Nearly $2,000,000 worth of property was destroyed by two fires in the heart of the business section of Philadelphia. The greater part of the two fires started in the big department store of Partridge and Richardson, Eighth and Filbert streets, the very center of the shopping district and before the flames were under control they spread to adjoining property and caused a loss of $1,800,000. While this fire was in progress, and spreading every moment, another fire broke out four blocks away, and the loss at this fire is estimated at $110,000. The losses of the two fires are more than covered by insurance.

Will Serve Where He Is.

A Fort Scott, Kan., dispatch says: John P. Reese, member of the national executive board of the United Mine Workers' association, sentenced to three months' imprisonment for contempt of federal court, has refused the order of United States Judge Williams for special jail privileges at Topeka, saying: "An innocent man has no preferences of prisons in which to be unjustly confined."

Yellow Fever Aboard.

At Plattsmouth a jury declared that John W. Harris was not guilty of the murder of George Jones at Elmwood during the old soldiers' reunion last summer.

CANNOT ACCOUNT FOR IT

Government Officials Do Not Understand the Manauense Matter.

War department officials are surprised at the information contained in the Manila dispatch concerning the Manauense, which has arrived at Manila. They are at a loss to account for the deplorable state of affairs which is said to have existed on the ship, as they say every precaution is taken before transport vessels leave the United States to see that they are properly and adequately supplied with commissary stores. A careful examination is made by the officials of the commissary and quartermaster bureaus to ascertain that the ships have aboard all that is necessary for the comfort and necessities of the crew and for the the safety of the ship.

Transport officials at San Francisco are at a loss to explain the alleged unseaworthy condition of the transport Manauense, whose arrival at Manila was reported Wednesday. A representative of the Associated Press interviewed a number of officials, and in every instance the alleged unseaworthiness, undermanned and unprovisioned condition of the vessel was ridiculed. It was stated that the Manauense was in first-class condition when she left this port on October 26. Her engines had been thoroughly overhauled and her fittings were in the best of condition.

OBLIGED TO TURN BACK

Transport Loaded With Horses Encounters Rough Weather.

With a cargo of dying horses and mules and fifty-five empty stalls, the United States transport Victoria returned to port late Wednesday night, having been forced by an unprecedented stress of weather off Cape Flattery to turn back from its voyage to the Philippines, says a Seattle, Wash., dispatch of November 29. Of the 410 horses and mules carried by the Victoria taken on board November 23, fifty-five were literally pounded to death against the sides of their stalls, and the remaining animals are so badly bruised that the officials of the vessel believe that many cannot be saved.

Veteran Editor Dead.

L. W. Hastings, for twenty years editor of the Aurora Republican, died at his home in Aurora after a long illness, of an affection of the stomach. The funeral was held Thursday morning at the Congregational church under the auspices of the Odd Fellows. It was one of the largest funerals ever held in that city, attesting to the popularity of the deceased and the sympathy of the people with his family.

Mr. Hastings was one of the pioneer newspaper men of Nebraska and a staunch supporter of all that was upright. He has suffered greatly in his fatal ailment, which, months before his death was known to be incurable.

Not to Leave Nebraska.

Major J. N. Killian will not leave Columbus as has been reported. He has no intention of taking such a step. To a correspondent the major said he had too many and too important interests in Columbus to leave it permanently. He has interests in Virginia and other eastern states for other parties which will require his attention at intervals. Major Killian is well known in eastern Nebraska for his service in the Philippines.

Sighted a Floating Wreck.

All the incoming vessels report terrible weather on the Atlantic, says a St. Johns, New Foundland, dispatch of the 30th. Many vessels are reaching port in a badly damaged condition. The schooner Zephyr reports sighting a floating wreck about 150 miles off the coast, right in the track of the ocean steamers. She also reports passing an almost submerged iceberg off Cape Race.

MESSAGE TO CONGRESS

The President Addresses Both Branches of the National Assembly.

NUMEROUS SUBJECTS ARE TREATED

What is Said of the Philippines, Cuba Porto Rico, Hawaii, Trusts, Army and Navy, Pensions, Pacific Railroads, Agriculture, the Currency, Civil Service, Etc., Etc.

To the Senate and House of Representatives: At the threshold of your deliberations you are called to mourn with your countrymen the death of Vice President Hobart, who passed from this life on the morning of November 21, last. His great soul now rests in eternal peace. His private life was pure and elevated, while his public career was ever distinguished by large capacity, stainless integrity and exalted motives. He has been removed from the high office which he honored and dignified, but his lofty character, his devotion to duty, his honesty of purpose and noble virtues remain with us as a priceless legacy and example.

IN THE MIDST OF PROSPERITY.

The Fifty-sixth congress convenes in its first regular session with the country in a condition of unusual prosperity, of universal good will among the people at home and in relations of peace and friendship with every government of the world. Our foreign commerce has shown great increase in volume and value. The combined imports and exports for the year are the largest ever shown by a single year in all our history. Our exports for 1899 alone exceeded by more than $1,000,000,000 our imports and exports combined in 1870. The imports per capita are 20 per cent less than in 1870, while the exports per capita are 58 per cent more than in 1870, showing the enlarged capacity of the United States to satisfy the wants of its own increasing population, as well as to contribute to those of the peoples of other nations.

Exports of agricultural products were $784,776,142. Of manufactured products we exported in value $339,592,146, being larger than any previous year. It is a noteworthy fact that the only years in all our history when the products of our manufactories sold abroad exceeded those bought abroad were 1898 and 1899.

RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES.

Government receipts from all sources for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1899, including $11,798,314.14, part payment of the Central Pacific railroad indebtedness, aggregated $610,982,004.35. Customs receipts were $206,128,481.75 and those from internal revenue $273,437,161.51.

For the fiscal year the expenditures were $700,093,564.02, leaving a deficit of $89,111,559.67.

The secretary of the treasury estimates that the receipts for the current fiscal year will aggregate $640,598,112, and upon the basis of present appropriations the expenditures will aggregate $600,598,112, leaving a surplus of $40,000,000.

For the fiscal year ended June 30, 1899, the internal revenue receipts were increased about $100,000,000.

The present gratifying strength of the treasury is shown by the fact that on December 1, 1899, the available cash balance was $278,004,837.72, of which $239,744,905.36 was in gold coin and bullion. The conditions of confidence which prevail throughout the country have brought gold into more general use and customs receipts are now almost entirely paid in that coin.

SURPLUS FOR CURRENT YEAR.

The strong condition of the treasury with respect to cash on hand and the favorable showing made by the revenue have made it possible for the secretary of the treasury to take action under the provisions of section 3,694, Revised Statutes, relating to the sinking fund. Receipts exceeded expenditures for the first five months of the current fiscal year by $13,413,389.91, and, as mentioned above, the secretary of the treasury estimates that there will be a surplus of approximately $40,000,000 at the end of the year. Under such conditions it was deemed advisable and proper to resume compliance with the provisions of the sinking fund law, which for eight years has not been done because of deficiencies in the revenues. The Treasury department therefore offered to purchase during November $25,000,000 of the 5 per cent loan of 1904 or the 4 per cent funded loan of 1907 at the current market price. The amount offered and purchased during November was $18,408,600. The premium paid by the government on such purchases was $2,263,521 and the net saving in interest was about $2,885,000. The success of this operation was sufficient to induce the government to continue the offer to puchase bonds to and including the 23d day of December, instant, unless the remainder of the $25,000,000 called for should be presented in the meantime for redemption.

INCREASE IN MONEY SUPPLY.

Increased activity in industry, with its welcome attendant—a larger employment for labor at higher wages—gives to the body of the people a larger power to absorb the circulating medium. It is further true that year by year, with larger areas of land under cultivation, the increasing volume of agricultural products, cotton, corn and wheat calls for a larger volume of money supply. This is especially noticeable at the crop-harvesting and crop moving period.

In its earlier history the national banking act seemed to prove a reasonable avenue through which needful additions to the circulation could from time to time be made. Changing conditions have apparently rendered it now inoperative to that end. The high margin in bond securities required, resulting from large premiums, which government bonds command in the market, or the tax on note issues, or both operating together, appear to be the influences which impair its public utility.

The attention of congress is respectfully invited to this important matter with the view of ascertaining whether or not such reasonable modifications can be made in the national banking act as will render its service in the particulars here referred to more responsive to the people's needs. I again urge that national banks be authorized to organize with a capital of $25,000.

I urgently recommend that to support the existing gold standard and to maintain "the parity of value of the coins of the two metals (gold and silver), and the equal power of every dollar at all times in the market and in the payment of debts," the secretary of the treasury be given additional power and charged with the duty to sell United States bonds and to employ such other effective means as may be necessary to those ends. This authority should include the power to sell bonds on long and short time, as conditions may require, and should provide for a rate of interest lower than that fixed by the act of January 14, 1875. While there is now no commercial fright which withdraws gold from the government, but on the contrary such widespread confidence that gold seeks the treasury demanding paper money in exchange, yet the very situation points to the present as the most fitting time to make adequate provision to insure the continuance of the gold standard and of public confidence in the ability and purpose of the government to meet all its obligations in the money which the civilized world recognizes as the best.

The financial transactions of the government are conducted upon a gold basis. We receive gold when we sell United States bonds and use gold for their payment. We are maintaining the parity of all the money issued or coined by authority of the government. We are doing these things with the means at hand. Happily at the present time we are not compelled to resort to loans to supply gold. It has been done in the past, however, and may have to be done in the future. It behooves us, therefore, to provide at once the best means to meet the emergency when it arises and the best means are those which are the most certain and economical. Those now authorized have the virtue neither of directness nor economy. We have already eliminated one of the causes of our financial plight and embarrassment during the years 1893, 1894, 1895 and 1896. Our receipts now equal our expenditures—deficient revenues no longer create alarm. Let us remove the only remaining cause by conferring the full and necessary power on the secretary of the treasury and impose upon him the duty to uphold the present gold standard and preserve the coinage of the two metals on a parity with each other, which is the repeatedly declared policy of the United States.

In this connection I repeat my former recommendations that a portion of the gold holding shall be placed in a trust fund from which greenbacks shall be redeemed upon presentation, but when once redeemed shall not thereafter be paid out except for gold.

LARGER MERCHANT MARINE.

The value of an American merchant marine to the extension of our commercial trade, and the strengthening of our power upon the sea invites the immediate action of congress. Our national developement will be one-sided and unsatisfactory so long as the remarkable growth of our inland industries remains unaccompanied by progress on the seas. There is no lack of constitutional authority for legislation which shall give to the country maritime strength commensurate with its industrial achievements and with its rank among the nations of the earth.

The past year has recorded exceptional activity in our shipyards and the promises of continual prosperity in shipbuilding are abundant. Advanced legislation for the protection of our seamen has been enacted. Our coast trade, under regulations wisely framed at the beginning of the government and since, shows results for the last fiscal year unequaled in our records or those of any other power. We shall fail to realize our opportunities, however, if we complacently regard only matters at home and blind ourselves to the necessity of securing our share in the valuable carrying trade of the world.

Last year American vessels transported a smaller share of our exports and imports than during any former year in all our history and the measure of our dependence upon foreign shipping was painfully manifested to our people. Without any choice of our own, but from necessity, the departments of the government charged with military and naval operations in the East and West Indies had to obtain from foreign flags merchant vessels essential for those operations.

The other great nations have not hesitated to adopt the required means to develop their shipping as a factor in national defense and as one of the surest and speediest means of obtaining for their producers a share in foreign markets. Like vigilance and effort on our part cannot fail to improve our situation, which is regarded with humiliation at home and with surprise abroad. Even the seeming sacrifices, which at the beginning may be involved, will be offset later by more than equivalent gains.

The expense is as nothing compared to the advantage to be achieved. The re-establishment of our merchant marine involves in a large measure our continued industrial progress and the extension of our commercial triumphs. I am satisfied the judgment of the country favors the policy of aid to our merchant marine, which will broaden our commerce and markets and upbuild our sea-carrying capacity for the products of agriculture and manufacture, which, with the increase of our navy, means more work and wages to our countrymen, as well as a safeguard to American interests in every part of the world.

EVILS OF TRADE MONOPOLIES.

Combinations of capital organized into trusts to control the conditions of trade among our citizens, to stifle competition, limit production and determine the prices of products used and consumed by the people are justly provoking public discussion and should early claim the attention of the congress.

The industrial commission, created by the act of the congress of June 18, 1898, has been engaged in extended investigation of this subject and the conclusions and recommendations at which it may arrive are undetermined.

The subject is one giving rise to many divergent views as to the nature and variety of cause and extent of the injuries to the public which may result from large combinations concentrating more or less numerous enterprises and establishments which previously were carried on separately.

It is universally conceded that combinations which engross or control the market of any particular kind of merchandise or commodity necessary to the general community, by suppressing natural and ordinary competition, whereby prices are unduly enhanced to the general consumer, are obnoxious not only to the common law, but also to the public welfare. There must be a remedy for the evils involved in such organizations. If the present law can be extended more certainly to control or check these monopolies or trusts it should be done without delay. Whatever power the congress possesses over this most important subject should be promptly ascertained and asserted.

President Harrison, in his annual message of December 3, 1889, says:

"Earnest attention should be given by congress to a consideration of the question how far the restraint of those combinations of capital, commonly called 'trusts,' is matter of federal jurisdiction. When organized, as they often are, to crush out all healthy competition and to monopolize the production or sale of an article of commerce and general necessity, they are dangerous conspiracies against the public good and should be made the subject of prohibitory and even penal legislation."

An act to protect trade and commerce against unlawful restraints and monopolies was passed by congress on the 2d of July, 1890. The provisions of this statute are comprehensive and stringent. It declares every contract or combination in the form of a trust or otherwise, or conspiracy in the restraint of trade of commerce among the several states or with foreign nations, to be unlawful. It denominates as a criminal every person who makes any such contract or engages in any such combination or conspiracy and provides a punishment by fine or imprisonment. It invites the several circuit courts of the United States with jurisdiction to prevent and restrain violations of the act and makes it the duty of the several United States district attorneys, under the direction of the attorney general, to institute proceedings in equity to prevent and restrain such violations. It further confers upon any person who shall be injured in his business or property by any other person or corporation by reason of anything forbidden or declared to be unlawful by the act the power to sue therefor in any circuit court of the United States without respect to the amount in controversy and to recover three-fold the damages by him sustained and the costs of the suit, including reasonable attorney fees. It will be perceived that the act is aimed at every kind of combination in the nature of a trust or monopoly in restraint of interstate or international commerce.

The prosecution by the United States of offenses under the act of 1890 has been frequently resorted to in the federal courts and notable efforts in the restraint of interstate commerce, such as the Transmissouri Freight association and the Joint Traffic association, have been successfully opposed and suppressed.

President Cleveland in his annual message of December 7, 1896—more than six years after the enactment of this law—after stating the evils of these trust combinations, says:

"Though congress has attempted to deal with this matter by legislation the laws passed for that purpose thus far have proved ineffective, not because of any lack of disposition or attempt to enforce them, but simply because the laws themselves as interpreted by the courts do not reach the difficulty. If the insufficiency of the existing laws can be remedied by further legislation it should be done. The fact must be recognized, however, that all federal legislation on this subject may fall short of its purpose because of inherent obstacles and also because of the complex character of our governmental system, which, while making the federal authority supreme within its sphere, has carefully limited that sphere by metes and bounds, which cannot be transgressed. The decision of our highest court on this precise question renders it quite doubtful whether the evils of trusts and monopolies can be adequately treated through federal action, unless they seek directly and purposely to include in their objects transportation or intercourse between states or the United States and foreign countries.

"It does not follow, however, that this is the limit of the remedy that may be applied. Even though it may be found that federal authority is not broad enough to fully reach the case, there can be no doubt of the power of the several states to act effectively in the premises and there should be no reason to doubt their willingness to judiciously exercise such power."

The state legislation to which President Cleveland looked for relief from the evils of trusts has failed to accomplish fully that object. This is probably due to a great extent to the fact that different states take different views as to the proper way to discriminate between evil and injurious combinations and those associations which are beneficial and necessary to the business prosperity of the country. The great diversity of treatment in different states arising fro mthis cause and the intimate relations of all parts of the country to each other, without regarding state lines in the conduct of business, have made the enforcement of state laws difficult.

It is apparent that uniformity of legislation upon this subject in the several states is much to be desired. It is to be hoped that such uniformity, founded in a wise and just discrimination between what is injurious and what is useful and necessary in business operations, may be obtained and that means may be found for the congress within the limitations of its constitutional power so to supplement an effective code of state legislation as to make a complete system of laws throughout the United States adequate to compel a general observance of the salutary rules to which I have referred.

The whole question is so important and far-reaching that I am sure no part of it will be lightly considered, but every phase of it will have the studied deliberation of the congress, resulting in wise and judicious action.

REVIEWS FOREIGN RELATIONS.

A review of our relations with foreign states is presented with such recommendations as are deemed appropriate.

The long pending boundary dispute between the Argentine republic and Chili was settled in March, last, by the award of an arbitral commission, on which the United States minister at Buenos Ayres served as umpire.

Progress has been made toward the conclusion of a convention of extradition with the Argentine republic. Having been advised and consented to by the United States senate and ratified by Argentina, it only awaits the adjustment of some slight changes in the text before exchange.

In my last annual message I adverted to the claim of the Austro-Hungarian government for indemnity for the killing of certain Austrian and Hungarian subjects by the authorities of the state of Pennsylvania at Lattimer, while suppressing an unlawful tumult of miners, September 10, 1897. In view of the verdict of acquital rendered by the court before which the sheriff and his deputies were tried for murder, and following the established doctrine that the government may not be held accountable for injuries suffered by individuals at the hands of the public authorities while acting in the line of duty in suppressing disturbance of the public peace, this government, after advanced by the Austr-Hungarian government, was constrained to decline liability to indemnity the sufferers.

It is gratifying to be able to announce that the Belgian government has mitigated the restrictions on the importation of cattle from the United States, to which I referred in my last message.

Having been invited by Belgium to participate in a congress, held at Brussels, to revise the provisions of the general act of July 2, 1890 for the repression of the African slave trade, to which the United States was a signatory party, this government preferred not to be represented by a plenipotentiary, but reserved the right of accession to the result. Notable changes were made, those especially concerning this country being in the line of the increased restriction of the deleterious trade in spiritous liquors with the native tribes, which this government has from the outset urgently advocated. The amended general act will be laid before the senate with a view to its advice and consent.

Early in the year the peace of Bolivia was disturbed by a successful insurrection. The United States minister remained at his post attending to the American interests in that quarter and using besides his good offices for the protection of the interests of British subjects in the absence of their national representative. On the establishment of the new government our minister was directed to enter into relations therewith.

General Pando was elected president of Bolivia on October 22.

Our representative has been instructed to use all permissible friendly endeavors to induce the government of Bolivia to amend its marriage laws so as to give legal status to the non-Catholic and civil marriages of aliens within its jurisdiction and strong hopes are entertained that the Bolivian law in this regard will be brought, as was that of Peru some years ago, into harmony wth the general practice of modern states.

A convention of extradition with Brazil, signed May 14, 1897, has been ratified by the Brazilian legislature.

During the past summer two national ships of the United States have visited Brazilian ports on a friendly mission and been cordially received. The voyage of the Wilmington up the Amazon river gave rise to a passing misunderstanding, owing to confusion in obtaining permission to visit the interior and make surveys in the general interest of navigation, but the incident found a ready adjustment inharmony with the close relations of amity which this government has always sedulously sought to cultivate with the commonwealths of the western continent.

The claim growing out of the seizure of the American-owned newspaper, the Panama Star and Herald, by the authorities of Colombia has been settled, after a controversy of several years, and an agreement assessing at $30,000 the inuemnity to be paid by the Colombian government in three installments of $10,000 each.

The good will of Colombia toward our country has been testified anew by the cordial extension of facilities to the Nicaraguan Canal commission in its approaching investigation of the Panama canal and other projected routes across the Isthmus of Darien.

Toward the end of October an insurrectionary disturbance developed in the Colombian republic. This movement has thus far not attained any decisive result and is still in progress.

Discussion of the questions raised by the action of Denmark in imposing restrictions on the importation of American meats has continued without substantial result in our favor.

The neighboring island republic of Santo Domingo has lately been the scene of revolution, following a long period of tranquillity. It began with the killing of President Heureaux in July last and culminated in the relinquishment by the succeeding vice president of the reins of government to the insurgents. The first act of the provisional government was the calling of a presidential election. Juan Isidro Jiminez, having been elected president was inaugurated on the 14th of November. Relations have been entered into with the newly established government.

The experimental association of Nicaragua, Honduras and Salvador, under the title of the Greater Republic of Central America, when apparently on the threshold of a complete federal organization by the adoption of a constitution and the formation of a national legislature, was disrupted in the last days of November, 1898, by the withdrawal of Salvador. Thereupon Nicaragua and Honduras abandoned the joint compact, each resuming its former independent sovereignty. This was followed by the reception of Minister Merry by the republics of Nicaragua and Salvador, while Minister Hunter in turn presented his credentials to the government of Honduras, thus reverting to the old distribution of the diplomatic agencies of the United States in Central America for which our existing statutes provide. A Nicaraguan envoy has been accredited to the United States.

An insurrectionary movement, under General Reyes, broke out at Bluefields in February last and for a time exercised actual control in the Mosquito territory. The Detroit was promptly sent thither for the protection of American interests. After a few weeks the Reyes government renounced the conflict, giving place to the restored supremacy of Nicaragua. During the interregnum certain public dues accruing under Nicaraguan laws were collected from American merchants by the authorities for the time being in effective administrative control. Upon the titular government regaining power a second payment of these dues was demanded. Controversy arose touching the validity of the original payment of the debt to the de facto regent of the territory. An arrangement was effected in April last by the United States minister and the foreign secretary of Nicaragua whereby the amounts of the duplicate payments were deposited with the British consul pending an adjustment of the matter by direct agreement between the governments of the United States and Nicaragua. The conroversy is still unsettled.

COMMENDS ISTHMIAN CANAL.

The contract of the Maritime Canal company of Nicaragua was declared forfeited by the Nicaraguan government on the 10th of October, on the ground of nonfulfillment within the ten-years' term stipulated in the contract. The Maritime Canal company has lodged a protest against this action, alleging rights in the premises which appear worthy of consideration. This government expects that Nicaragua will afford the protestants a full and fair hearing upon the merits of the case.

The Nicaraguan Canal commission, which had been engaged upon the work of examination and survey for a ship canal route across Nicaragua, having completed its labors and made its report, was dissolved on May 31, and on June 10 a new commission, known as the Isthmian Canal commission, was organized under the terms of the act approved March 3, 1899, for the purpose of examining the American isthmus with a view to determining the most practicable and feasible route for a ship canal across that isthmus, with its probable cost and other essential details.

This commission, under the presidency of Rear Admiral John G. Walker, U. S. N. (retired), entered promptly upon the work intrusted to it and is now carrying on examinations in Nicaragua along the route of the Panama canal and in Darien from the Atlantic in the neighborhood of the Atrato river, to the Bay of Panama on the Pacific side. Good progress has been made, but under the law a comprehensive and complete investigation is called for, which will require much labor and considerable time for its accomplishment. The work will be prosecuted as expeditiously as possible and a report made at the earliest practicable date.

The great importance of this work cannot be too often or too strongly impressed upon the attention of the congress. In my message of a year ago I expressed my views on the necessity of a canal which would link the two great oceans, to which I again invite your consideration. The reasons then presented for early action are even stronger now.

CHILI SHOWS ITS GOOD WILL.

A pleasing incident in the relations of this government with that of Chili occurred in the generous assistance given to the warship Newark when in distress in Chilian waters. Not alone in this way has the friendly disposition of Chili found expression. That country has acceded to the convention for the establishment of the Bureau of America Republics, in which organization every independent state of the continent now shares.

The exchange of ratifications of a convention for the revival of the United States and Chilian Claims commission and for the adjudication of claims heretofore presented, but not determined during the life of the previous commission, has been delayed by reason of the necessity for fresh action by the Chilian senate upon the amendments attached to the ratification of the treaty by the United States senate. This formality is soon to be accomplished.

OPPORTUNITIES IN CHINA.

In view of disturbances in the populous provinces of northern China, where are many of our citizens, and of the imminence of disorder near the capital and toward the seaboard, a guard of marines was landed from the Boston and stationed during last winter in the legation compound at Pekin. With the restorstion of order this protection was withdrawn.

The interests of our citizens in that vast empire have not been neglected during the last year. Adequate protection has been secured for our missionaries and some injuries to their property have been redressed.

American capital has sought and found various opportunities of competing to carry out the internal improvement which the imperial government is wisely encouraging to develop the natural resources of the empire. Our trade with China has continued to grow and our commercial rights under existing treaties have been everywhere maintained during the last year, as they will be in the future.

The extension of the area open to international foreign settlement at Shanghai and the opening of the ports of Nanking, Tsing-Tao (Kiao-Chou) and Talien-Wan to foreign trade and settlement will doubtless afford American enterprise additional facilities to take advantage.

In my message to congress of December 5, 1898, I urged that the recommendation which had been made to the speaker of the house of representatives by the secretary of the treasury on the 14th of June, 1898, for an appropriation for a commission to study the commercial and industrial conditions in the Chinese empire and report as to the opportunities for, and obstacles to, the enlargement of markets in China for the raw products and manufactures of the United States, should receive at your hands the consideration which its importance and timeliness merited, but the congress failed to take action.

I now renew this recommendation, as the importance of this subject has steadily growa since it was first submitted to you, and no time should be lost in studying for ourselves the resources of this great field for American trade and enterprise.

AMERICAN EXHIBIT AT PARIS.

The death of President Faure in February last called for those sincere expressions of sympathy which bent the relations of the two republics as closely allied by unbroken historic ties as are the United States and France.

Preparations for the representation of the industries, arts and products of the United States at the World's exposition to be held in Paris next year continue on an elaborate and comprehensive scale, thanks to the generous appropriation provided by congress and to the friendly interest the French government has shown in furthering a typical exhibit of American progress.

There has been allotted to the United States a considerable addition of space, which, while placing our country in the first rank among exhibitors, does not suffice to meet the increasingly urgent demands of our manufacturers. The efforts of the commissioner general are ably directed toward a strictly representative display of all that most characteristically marks American achievement in the inventitive arts and most adequately shows the excellence of our natural productions.

In this age of keen rivalry among nations for mastery in commerce, the doctrine of the evolution and the rule of the survival of the fittest must be as inexorable in their operation as they are positive in the results they bring about. The place won in the struggle by an industrial people can only be held by unrelaxed endeavor and constant advance in achievement. The present extraordinary impetus in every line of American exportation and the astounding increase in the volume and value of our share in the world's markets may not be attributed to accidental conditions.

The reasons are not far to seek. They lie deep in our national character and find expression year by year in every branch of handicraft, in every new device whereby the materials we so abundantly produce are subdued to the artisan's will and made to yield the largest, most practical and most beneficial return. The American exhibit at Paris should, and I am confident will be, an open volume whose lessons of skillfully directed endeavor, unfaltering energy and consummate performance may be read by all on every page, thus spreading abroad a clearer knowledge of the worth of our productions and the justice of our claim to an important place in the marts of the world. The accomplishment of this judicious selection, by recognition of paramount merit in whatever walk of trade and manufacture it may appear and by orderly classification and attractive installation is the task of our commission.

The United States government building is approaching completion and no effort will be spared to make it worthy, in beauty of architectural plan and in completeness of display, to represent our nation. It has been suggested that a permanent building of similar or appropriate design be erected on a convenient site, already given by the municipality, near the exposition grounds, to serve in commemoration of the part taken by this country in this great enterprise as an American national institute for our countrymen resorting to Paris for study.

I am informed by our commissioner general that we shall have in the American sections at Paris over 7,000 exhibitors from every state in our country, a number ten time as great as those which were represented at Vienna in 1873, six times as many as those in Paris in 1878 and four times as many as those who exhibited in Paris in 1889. This statement does not include the exhibits from either Cuba, Porto Rico or Hawaii, for which arrangements have been made.

A number of important international congresses on special topics affecting public interests are proposed to be held in Paris next summer in connection with the exposition. Effort will be made to have the several technical branches of our administration efficiently represented at those conferences, each in its special line, and to procure the largest possible concourse of state representatives, particularly at the congresses of public charity and of medicine.

GERMAN RELATIONS CORDIAL.

Our relations with Germany continue to be most cordial. The increasing intimacy of direct association has been marked during the year by the granting of permission in April for the landing on our shores of a cable from Borkum Emden on the North sea, by way of the Azores, and also by the conclusion on September 2 of a parcels post convention with the German empire. In all that promises closer relations of intercourse and commerce and a better understanding between two races having so many traits in common, Germany can be assured of the most cordial co-operation of this government and people. We may be rivals in many material paths, but our rival y should be generous and open, ever aiming toward the attainment of larger results and the mutually beneficial advancement of each in the line of its especial adaptability.

The several governments of the empire seem reluctant to admit the natural excellence of our food products and to accept the evidence we constantly tender of the care with which their purity is guarded by rigid inspection, from the farm, through the slaughterhouse, and the packing establishments, to the port of shipment. Our system of control over exported food staples invites examination from any quarter and challenges respect by its efficient thoroughness.

It is to be hoped that in time the two governments will act in common accord toward the realization of their common purpose to safeguard the public health and to the insuring of the products imported by either country from the other. Were the congress to Efforts to obtain for American life insurance companies a full hearing as to their business operations in Prussia have, after several years of patient representation, happily succeeded, and one of the most important American companies has been granted a concession to continue business in that kingdom.

I am also glad to announce that the German insurance companies have been readmitted by the superintendent of insurance to do business in the state of New York.

Subsequent to the exchange of our peace treaty with Spain, Germany acquired the Caroline islands by purchase paying therefor $5,000,000. Assurances have been received from the German government that the rights of American missionaries and traders there will be considerately observed.

DIFFERENCES WITH CANADA.

In my last anual message I referred to the pending negotiations with Great Britain in respect to the Dominion of Canada. By means of an executive agreement a joint high commission had been created for the purpose of adjusting all unsettled questions between the United States and Canada, embracing twelve subjects, among which were the questions of the fur seals, the fisheries of the coast and contiguous inland waters, the Alaskan boundary, the transit of merchandise in bond, the alien labor laws, mining rights, reciprocity in trade, revision of the agreement respecting naval vessels in the great lakes, a more complete marking of parts of the boundary, provision for the conveyance of criminals and for wrecking and salvage.

Much progress had been made by the commission toward the adjustment of many of these questions when it became apparent that an irreconcilable difference of views was entertained respecting the delimitation of the Alaskan boundary. In the failure of an agreement as to the meaning of articles iii and iv of the treaty of 1825 between Russia and Great Britain, which defined the boundary between Alaska and Canada, the American commissioners proposed that the subject of boundary be laid aside and that the remaining questions of difference be proceeded with, some of which were so far advanced as to assure the probability of a settlement. This being declined by the British commissioners, an adournment was taken until the boundary should be adjusted by the two governments. The subject has been receiving the careful attention which its importance demands, with the result that a modus vivendi for provisional demarcations in the region about the head of Lynn canal has been agreed upon and it is hoped that the negotiations now in progress between the two governments will end in an agreement of a permanent boundary.

Apart from these questions growing out of our relationship with our northern neighbor, the most friendly disposition and ready agreement have marked the discussion of numerous matters arising out of the vast and intimate intercourse of the United States with Great Britain.

NEUTRAL IN THE BOER WAR.

This government has maintained an attitude of neutrality in the unfortunate contest between Great Britain and the Boer states of Africa. We have remained faithful to the precept of avoiding entangling alliances as to affairs not of our direct concern. Had circumstances suggested that the parties to the quarrel would have welcomed any kindly expression of the hope of the American people that war might be averted, good offices would have been gladly tendered. The United States' representative at Pretoria was early instructed to see that all neutral American interests be respected by the combatants. This has been an easy task, in view of the positive declarations of both British and Boer authorities that the personal and property rights of our citizens should be observed.

Upon the withdrawal of the British agent from Pretoria the United States consul was authorized, upon the request of the British government and with the assent of the South African and Orange Free State governments, to exercise the customary good offices of a neutral for the care of British interests. In the discharge of this function I am happy to say that abundant opportunity has been afforded to show the impartiality of this government toward both the combatants.

LYNCHING OF THE ITALIANS.

For the fourth time in the present decade question has arisen with the government of Italy in regard to the lynching of Italian subjects. The latest of these deplorable events occurred at Tallulah, La., whereby five unfortunates of Italian origin were taken from jail and hanged.

The authorities of the state and a representative of the italian embassy having separately investigated the occurrence, with discrepant results, particularly as to the alleged citizenship of the victims, and it not appearing that the state had been able to discover and punish the violators of the law, an independent investigation has been set on foot through the agency of the Department of State and is still in progress. The result will enable the executive to treat the question with the government of Italy in a spirit of fairness and justice and a satisfactory solution will doubtless be reached.

The recurrence of these distressing manifestations of blind mob fury directed at dependents of natives of a foreign country suggests that the contingency has arisen for action by congress in the direction of conferring upon the federal courts jurisdiction in this class of international cases where the ultimate responsibility of the federal government may be involved. The suggestion is not new. In his annual message of December 9, 1891, my predecessor, President Harrison, said:

"It would, I believe, be entirely competent for congress to make offenses against the treaty rights of foreigners domiciled in the United States cognizable in the federal courts. This has not, however, been done, and the federal officers and courts have no power in such cases to intervene, either for the protection of a foreign citizen or for the punishment of his slayers. It seems to me to follow, in this state of the law, that the officers of the state charged with police and judicial powers in such cases must, in the consideration of international questions growing out of such incidents be regarded in such sense as federal agents as to make this government answerable for their acts in cases where it would be answerable if the United States had used its constitutional power to define and punish crimes against treaty rights."

A bill to provide for the punishment of violations of treaty rights of aliens was introduced in the senate March 1, 1892, and reported favorably March 30. Having doubtless in view the language of that part of article iii of the treaty of February 26, 1871, between the United States and Italy, which stipulates that "the citizens of each of the high contracting parties shall receive, in the states and territories of the other, most constant protection and security for their persons and property, and shall enjoy in this respect the same rights and privileges as are or shall be granted to the natives, on their submitting themselves to the conditions imposed upon the natives." The bill so introduced and reported provided that any act committed in any state or territory of the United States in violation of the rights of a citizen or subject of a foreign country, secured to such citizen or subject by treaty between the United States and such foreign country and constituting a crime under the laws of the state or territory, shall constitute a like crime against the United States and be cognizable in the federal courts. No action was taken by congress in the matter.

I earnestly recommend that the subject be taken up anew and acted upon during the present session. The necessity for some such provision abundantly appears. Precedent for constituting a federal jurisdiction in criminal cases where aliens are sufferers is rationally deducible from the existing statute, which gives to the district and circuit courts of the United States jurisdiction of civil suits brought by aliens where the amount involved exceeds a certain sum. If such jealous solicitude be shown for alien rights in cases of merely civil and pecuniary import how much greater should be the public duty to take cognizance of matters affecting the life and the rights of aliens under the settled principles of international law, no less than under treaty stipulation, in cases of such transcendant wrongdoing as mob murder, especially when experience has shown that local justice too often helps rather than punishes the offenders?

After many years of endeavor on the part of this government to that end the Italian government has consented to enter into negotiations for a naturalization convention, having for one of its objects the regulation of the status of Italians (except those of an age for active military service), who, having been naturalized in the United States, may revisit Italy. It is hoped that with the mutually conciliatory spirit displayed a successful conclusion will be reached.

JAPANESE TREATY OPERATIVE.

The treaty of commerce and navigation between the United States and Japan on Novvember 22, 1894, took effect in accordance with the terms of its sixth article on the 17th of July last, simultaneously with the enforcement of like treaties with the other powers, except France, whose convention did not go into operation until August 4, the United States being, however, granted up to that date all the privileges and rights accorded to French citizens under the old French treaty. By this notable conventional reform Japan's position as a fully independent sovereign power is assured, control being gained in taxation, customs revenues, judicial administration, coasting trade and all other domestic functions of government and foreign and extra territorial rights being renounced.

Comprehensive codes of civil and criminal procedure according to western methods, public instruction, patents and copyrights, municipal administration, including jurisdiction over the form of foreign settlements, customs tariffs and procedure, public health and other administrative measures have been proclaimed. The working of the new system has given use to no material complaints on the part of the American citizens or interetsts, a circumstance which attests the ripe consideration with which the change has been prepared.

Valuable assistance was rendered by the Japaneses authorities to the United States transport ship Morgan City, while stranded at Kobe. Permission has been granted to land and pasture army horses at Japanese ports of call on the way to the Philippine islands. These kindly evidences of good will are highly appreciated.

The Japanese government has shown a lively interest in the proposition of the Pacific Cable company to add to its projected cable lines to Hawaii, Guam and the Philippines a branch connecting with the coast of Japan. It would be a gratifying consummation were the utility of the contemplated scheme enhanced by bringing Japan and the United States into direct telegraphic relation.

Without repeating the observations of my special message of February 10, 1899, concerning the necessity of a cable to Manila, I respectfully invite attention to it.

I recommend that in case the congress should not take measures to bring about this result by direct action of the government, the postmaster general be authorized to invite competitive bids for the establishment of a cable, the company making the best responsible bid to be awarded the contract, the successful company to give ample bonds to insure the completion of the work within a reasonable time.

MEXICO A GOOD NEIGHBOR.

The year has been marked by constant increase in the intimacy of our relations with Mexico, and in the magnitude of mutually advantageous interchanges. This government has omitted no opportunity to show its strong desire to develop and perpetuate the ties of cordiality now so long happily unbroken.

Following the termination on January 20, 1899, by Mexico of the convention of extradition of December 11, 1861, a new treaty more in accordance with the ascertained needs of both countries was signed February 22, 1899, and exchanged in the City of Mexico on the 22d of April last. Its operation thus far has been effective and satisfactory. A recent case has served to test the application of its fourth article, which provides that neither party shall be bound to deliver up its own citizens, but that the executive authority of each shall have the power to deliver them up if in its discretion it be deemed proper to do so. The extradition of Mrs. Mattie Rich, a citizen of the United States, charged with homicide committed in Mexico, was after mature consideration, directed by me, in the conviction that the ends of justice would thereby subserved. Similar action on appropriate occasion by the Mexican executive will not only tend to accomplish the desire of both governments that grave crimes go not unpunished, but also to repress the lawlessness along the border line of the two countries.

The new treaty stipulates that neither government shall assume jurisdiction in the punishment of crimes committed exclusively within the territory of the other. They will obviate in future the embarrassing controversies which have heretofore arisen through Mexico's assertion of a claim to try and punish an American citizen for an offense committed within the jurisdiction of the United States.

The International Water Boundary commission, organized by the convention of March 1, 1889, for the adjustment of questions affecting the Rio Grande frontier, has not yet completed its labors. A further extension of its term for one year, until December 24, 1899, was effected by a convention signed December 2, 1898, and exchanged and proclaimed in February last.

An invitation extended to the president of Mexico to visit Chicago in October on the occasion of laying the cornerstone of the United States government building in that city was cordially accepted by him with the necessary consent of the Mexican congress, but the illness of a member of his family prevented his attendance.

The minister of foreign relations, however, came as the personal representative of President Diaz, and in that high character was duly honored.

Claims growing out of the seizure of American sealing vessels in Bering sea have been under discussion with the government of Russia for several years, with the recent happy result of an agreement to submit them to the decision of a single arbitrator. By this act Russia affords proof of its adherence to the beneficent principle of arbitration which its plenipotentiary conspicuously favored at The Hague disarmament conference when it was advocated by the representatives of the United States.

A suggestion for a permanent exposition of our products and manufactures in Russia although not yet fully shaped, has been so cordially welcomed by the imperial government that it may not inaptly taking a fitting place in whatever legislation the congress may adopt looking to enlargement of our commercial opportunities abroad.

KEEPING FAITH WITH CUBA.

My anual message of last year was necessarily devoted in great part to a consideration of the Spanish war and of the results it wrought and the conditions it imposed for the future. I am gratified to announce that the treaty of peace has restored friendly relations between the two powers. Effect has been given to its most important provisions. The evacuation of Porto Rico having already been accomplished on the 18th of October, 1898, nothing remained necessary there but to continue the provisional military control of the island until the congress should enact a suitable government for the ceded territory. Of the character and scope of the measures to that end I shall treat in another part of this message.

The withdrawal of the authority of Spain from the island of Cuba was effected by January 1, so that the full re-establishment of peace found the relinquished territory held by us in trust for the inhabitants maintaining, under the direction of the executive, such government and control therein as should conserve public order, restore the productive conditions of peace so long disturbed by the instability and disorder which prevailed for the greater part of the three preceding decades, and build up that tranquil development of the domestic state whereby alone can be realized the high purpose as proclaimed in the joint resolution adopted by the congress on April 19, 1898, by which the United States disclaimed any disposition or intention to exercise sovereignty, jurisdiction of control over Cuba, except for the pacification thereof, and declared its intention when that was accomplished to leave the government and control of the island to its people. The pledge contained in this resolution is of the highest honorable obligation and must be sacredly kept.

I believe that substantial progress has been made in this direction. All the administrative measures adopted in Cuba have aimed to fit it for a regenerated existence by enforcing the supremacy of law and justice; by placing wherever practicable the machinery of administration in the hands of the inhabitants; by instituting sanitary reforms; by spreading education; by fostering industry and trade; by inculcating public morality and, in short, by taking every rational step to aid the Cuban people to attain to the plane of self conscious respect and self reliant unity which fits an enlightened community for self government within its own sphere, while enabling it to fulfill all outward obligations.

This nation has assumed before the world a grave responsibility for the future good government of Cuba. We have accepted a trust the fulfillment of which calls for the sternest integrity of purpose and the exercise of the highest wisdom. The new Cuba yet to arise from the ashes of the past must needs be bound to us by ties of singular intimacy and strength if its enduring welfare is to be assured. Whether those ties shall be organic or conventional, the destines of Cuba are in some rightful form and manner irrevocably linked with our own, but how and how far is for the future to determine in the ripeness of events. Whatever be the outcome, we must see to it that free Cuba be a reality, not a name, a perfect entity, not a hasty experiment bearing within itself the elements of failure. Our mission, to accomplish which we took up the wages of battle is not to be fulfilled by turning adrift any loosely framed commonwealth to face the vicissitudes that too often attend weaker states whose natural wealth and abundant resources are offset by the incongruities of their political organization and the recurring occasions for international rivalries to sap their strength and dissipate their energies. The greatest blessing which can come to Cuba is the restoration of her agricultural and industrial prosperity which will give employment to idle men and re-establish the pursuits of peace. This is her chief and immediate need.

On the 19th of August, last, an order was made for the taking of the census in the island, to be completed on the 30th of November. By the treaty of peace the Spanish people on the island have until April 11, 900, to elect whether they will remain citizens of Spain or become citizens of Cuba. Until then it cannot be definitely ascertained who shall be entitled to participate in the formation of the government of Cuba. By that time the results of the census will have been tabulated and we shall proceed to provide for elections which will commit the municipal governments of the island to the officers elected by the people. The experience thus acquired will prove of great value in the formation of a representative convention of the people to draft a constitution and establish a general system of independent government for the island. In the meantime and so long as we exercise control over the island the products of Cuba should have a market in the United States on as good terms and with as favorable rates of duty as are given to the West India islands under treaties of reciprocity which shall be made.

For the relief of the distressed in the island of Cuba the war department has issued supplies to destitute persons through the officers of the army, which have amounted to 5,493,000 rations, at a cost of $1,417,554.97.

To promote the disarmament of the Cuban volunteer army and in the interest of public peace and the welfare of the people, the sum of $75 was paid to each Cuban soldier borne upon the authenticated rolls, on condition that he should deposit his arms with the authorities designated by the United States. The sum thus disbursed aggregated $2,547,750, which was paid from the emergency fund provided by the act of January 8, 1899, for that purpose.

Out of the Cuban islands revenues during the six months ending June 30, 1899, $1,712,014.20 was expended for sanitations, $293,881.70 for charities and hospitals and $88,944.03 for aid of the destitute.

SETTLE SAMOAN QUESTION.

Important events have occurred in the Samoan Islands. The election, according to the laws and customs of Samoa, of a successor to the late King Malietoa Laupepa developed a contest as to the validity of the result, which was to be decided by the chief justice. Upon his rendering a judgment in favor of Malietoa Tanu, the rival chief, Mataafa, took up arms. The active intervention of American and British war ships became imperative to restore order, at the cost of sanguinary encounters. In this emergency a joint commission of representatives of the United States, Germany and Great Britain was sent to Samoa to investigate the situation and provide a temporary remedy. By its active efforts a peaceful solution was reached for the time being, the kingship being abolished and a provisional government established. Recommendations unanimously made by the commission for a permanent adjustment of the Samoan question were taken under consideration by the three powers parties to the general act. But the more they were examined the more evident it became that a radical change was necessary in the relations of the powers to Samoa.

The inconveniences and possible perils of the tripartite scheme of supervision and control in the Samoan group by powers having little interest in common in that quarter beyond commercial rivalry has been once more emphasized by the recent events. The suggested remedy of the joint commission, like the scheme it aimed to replace, amounted to what has been styled a tridominium, being the exercise of the functions of sovereignty by an unanimous agreement of three powers. The situation had become far more intricate and embarassing from every point of view than it was when my predecessor in 1894 summed up its perplexities, and condemned the participation in it of the United States.

The arrangement under which Samoa was administered had proved impracticable and unacceptable to all the powers concerned. To withdraw from the agreement and abandon the islands to Germany and Great Britain would not be compatible with our interests in the archipelago. To relinquish our rights in the harbor of Pago Pago, the best anchorage in the Pacific, the occupancy of which had been leased to the United States in 1878 by the first foreign treaty ever concluded by Somoa, was not to be thought of either as regards the needs of our navy or the interests of our growing commerce with the east. We would not have considered any proposition for the abrogation of the tripartite control which did not confirm us in all our rights and safeguards of all our national interests in the islands.

Our views commended themselves to the other powers. A satisfactory arrangement was concluded between the governments of Germany and of Great Britain by which we retired from Samoa in view of compensations in other directions and both powers renounced in favor of the United Sttes all their rights and claims over and in respect to that portion of that group lying to the east of the 171st degree of west longitude, embracing the islands of Tutuila, Ofoo, Olosenga and Manau. I transmit to the senate for its constitutional action thereon a convention, which, besides the provisions above mentioned, also guarantees us the same privileges and conditions in respect to commerce and commercial vessels in all of the islands of Samoa as those possessed by Germany.

Claims have been preferred by white residents of Samoa on account of injuries alleged to have been suffered through the acts of the treaty governments in putting down the late disturbances. A convention has been made between the three powers for the investigation and settlement of these claims by a neutral arbitrator, to which the attention of he senate will be invited.

NOW AT PEACE WITH SPAIN.

Following the exchange of ratifications of the treaty of peace the two governments accredited ministers to each other. Spain sending to Washington the duke of Arcos, an eminent diplomatist, previously stationed in Mexico, while the United States transferred to Madrid Hon. Bellamy Storer, its minister at Brussels. This was followed by respective appointment of consuls, thereby fully resuming the relations interrupted by the war. In addition to its consular representation in the United States the Spanish government has appointed consuls for Cuba, who have been provisionally recognized during the military administration of the affairs of that island.

Judicial intercourse between the courts of Cuba and Porto Rico and of Spain has been established as provided by the treaty of peace. The Cuban political prisoners in Spanish penal stations have been and are being released and being returned to their homes in accordance with article vi of the treaty. Negotiations are about to be had for defining the conventional relations between the two countries, which fell into abeyance by reason of the war. I trust that those will include a favorable arrangement for commercial reciprocity under the terms of sections 3 and 4 of the current tariff act. In these, as in all matters of international concern, no effort will be spared to respond to the good disposition of Spain and to cultivate in all practicable ways the intimacy which should prevail between the two nations whose past history has so often and in so many ways been marked by sincere friendship and by community of interests.

I would recommend appropriate legislation in order to carry into execution article vii of the treaty of peace with Spain, by which the United States assured the payment of certain claims for indemnity of its citizens against Spain.

TURKEY A POOR PAYMASTER.

The United States minister to Turkey continues under instructions to press for a money payment in satisfaction of the just claims for injuries suffered by American citizens in the disorders of several years past and for wrongs done to them by the Ottoman authorities. Some of these claims are of many years standing. This government is hopeful of a general agreement in this regard.

In the Turkish empire the situation of our citizens remains unsatisfactory. Our efforts during nearly forty years to bring about a convention of naturalization seem to be on the brink of failure through the announced policy of the Ottoman porte to refuse recognition of the alien status of native Turkish subjects naturalized abroad since 1867. Our statutes do not allow this government to admit any distinction between the treatment of native and naturalized Americans abroad, so that ceaseless controversy arises in cases where persons owing, in the eye of international law, a dual allegiance are prevented from entering Turkey or are expelled after entrance. Our law in this regard contrasts with that of the European states. The British act, for instance, does not claim effect for the naturalization of an alien in the event of his return to his native country, unless the change be recognized by the law of that country, or stipulated by treaty between it and the naturalizing state.

The arbitrary treatment, in some instances, of American productions in Turkey has attracted attention of late, notably in regard to our flour. Large shipments by the recently opened direct steamship line to Turkish ports have been denied entrance on the score that, although of standard composition and unquestioned purity, the flour was pernicious to health because of deficient "elasticity" as indicated by antiquated and untrustworthy tests. Upon due protest by the American minister and it appearing that the act was a virtual discrimination against our product, the shipments in question were admitted. In these, as in all instances, wherever occurring, when American products may be subjected in a foreign country upon specious pretexts to discrimination compared with the like products of another country, this government will use its earnest efforts to secure fair and equal treatment for its citizens and their goods. Failing this, it will not hesitate to apply whatever corrective may be provided by the statutes.

The international commission of arbitration appointed under the Anglo-Venezuelan treaty of 1897 rendered an award on October 3, last, whereby the boundary line between Venezuela and British Guiana is determined, thus ending a controversy which has existed for the greater part of the century. The award, as to which the arbitrators were unanimous, while not meeting the extreme contention of either party, gives to Great Britain a large share of the interior territory in dispute and to Venezuela the entire mouth of the Orinoco, including Barima point and the Caribbean littoral for some distance to the eastward. The decision appears to be equally satisfactory to both parties.

Venezuela has once more undergone a revolution. The insurgents under General Castro after a sanguinary engagement, in which they suffered much loss, rallied in the mountainous interior and advanced toward the capital. The bulk of the army having sided with the movement, President Andrade quitted Carracas, where General Castro set up a provisional government, with which our minister and the representatives of other powers entered into diplomatic relation on the 20th of November, 1899.

TREATIES OF RECIPROCITY.

The fourth section of the tariff act approved July 24, 1897, appears to provide only for commercial treaties which should be entered into by the president, also ratified by the senate within two years from its passage. Owing to delays inevitable in negotiations of this nature, none of the treaties initiated under that section could be concluded in time for ratification by the senate prior to its adjournment on the 4th of March last. Some of the pending negotiations, however, were near conclusion at that time and the resulting conventions have since been signed by the plenipotentiaries.

Others within both the third and fourth sections of the act are still under consideration. Acting under the constitutional power of the executive in respect to treaties, I have deemed it my duty, while observing the limitations of concessions provided by the fourth section, to bring to a conclusion all pending negotiations and submit them to the senate for its advice and consent.

Conventions of reciprocity have been signed during the congressional recess with Great Britain for the respective colonies of British Guiana, Barbadoes, Bermuda, Jamaica and Turks and Caicos islands and with the republic of Nicaragua.

Important reciprocal conventions have also been concluded with France and with the Agentine Republic.

In my last annual message progress was noted in the work of the diplomatic and consular officers in collecting information as to the industries and commerce of other countries, and the care and promptitude with which their reports are printed and distributed has continued during the last year with increasingly valuable results in suggesting new sources of demand for American products and in pointing out the obstacles still to be overcome in facilitating the remarkable expansion of our foreign trade. It will doubtless be gratifying to congress to learn that the various agencies of the department of state are co-operating in these endeavors with a zeal and effectiveness which are not only receiving the cordial recognition of our business interests, but are being emulated by other governments. In any re-arrangement of the great and complicated work of obtaining official data of an economic character which congres may undertake it is most important, in my judgment, that the results already secured by the efforts of the department of state should be carefully considered with a view to a judicious development and increased utility to our export trade.

ALL AMERICAN REPUBLICS IN.

The interest taken by the various states forming the International Union of American Republics in the work of organic bureau is evidenced by the fact that for the first time since its creation in 1890 all the republics of South and Central America are now represented in it.

The unanimous recommendation of the International American conference, providing for the International Union of American Republics, stated that it should continue in force during a term of ten years from the date of its organization, and no country becoming a member of the union should cease to be a member until the end of said period of ten years, and, unless twelve months before the expiration of said period a majority of the members of the union had given to the secretary of state of the United States official notice of their wish to terminate the union at the end of its first period, that the union should continue to be maintained for another period of ten years, and thereafter, under the same conditions, for successive periods of ten years each. The period for notification expired on July 14, 1899, without any of the members having given the necessary notice of withdrawal. Its maintenance is, therefore, assured for the next ten years.

In view of this fact, and the numerous questions of general interest and common benefit to all of the republics of America, some of which were considered by the first International American conference, but not finally settled, and others which have since then grown to importance, it would seem expedient that the various republics constituting the union should be invited to hold at an early date a conference in the capital of one of the countries other than the United States, which has already enjoyed this honor.

The purely international character of the work being done by the bureau and the appreciation of its value are further emphasized by the active co-operation which the various governments of the chief Latin-American republics and their diplomatic representatives in this capital are now exhibiting and the zealous efforts they are making to extend the field of its usefulness, to promote through it commercial intercourse, and strengthen the bonds of amity and confidence between its various members and the nations of this continent.

TWO GREAT EXPOSITIONS.

The act to encourage the holding of the Panamerican exposition on the Niagara frontier, within the county of Erie or Niagara, in the state of New York, in the year 1901, was approved on March 3, 1899.

The exposition, which will be held in the city of Buffalo, in the near vicinity of the great Niagra cataract and within a day's journey of which reside 40,000,000 of our people, will be confined entirely to the western hemisphere. Satisfactory assurances have already been given by the diplomatic representatives of Great Britain, Mexico and Central and South American republics and most of the states of the United States that their countries and states will make an unique, interesting and instructive exhibit peculiarily illustrative of their material progress during the century which is about to close.

The law provides an appropriation of $500,000 for the purpose of making an exhibit at the exposition by the government of the United States from its executive department, and from the Smithsonian institution and National museum, the United States Commission of Fish and Fisheries, the Department of Labor and the Bureau of the American Republics. To secure a complete and harmonious arrangement of this government exhibit a board of management has already been created and charged with the selection, purchase, preparation, transportation, arrangement and safekeeping of the articles and materials to be exhibited. This board has been organized and has already entered upon the performance of its duties as provided for by the law.

I have every reason to hope and believe that this exposition will tend more firmly to cement the cordial relations between the nations on this continent.

In accordance with an act of congress, approved December 21, 1898, and under the auspices of the Philadelphia Commercial museum, a most interesting and valuable exposition of products and manufactures especially adapted to export trade was held in Philadelphia from the 14th of September to the 1st of December, 1899. The representative character of the exhibits and the widespread interest manifested in the objects of the undertaking afford renewed encouragement to those who look confidently to the steady growth of our enlarged exportation of manufactured goods, which has been the most remarkable fact in the economic development of the United States in recent years. A feature of this exposition, which is likely to become of permanent and increasing utility to our industries, is the collection of samples of merchandise produced in various countries, with special reference to particular markets, providing practical object lessons to United States manufacturers as to qualities, styles and prices of goods such as meet the special demands of consumers and may be exported with advantage.

In connection with the exposition an international congress was held, upon the invitation of the Philadelphia Commercial museum, transmitted by the Department of State to the various foreign governments, a congress for an exchange of information and opinions with a view to the promotion of an international trade. This invitation met with general and cordial acceptance, and the congress, which began its sessions at the exposition on the 13th of October, proved to be of great practical importance, from the fact that it developed a general recognition of the interdependence of nations in trade and a most gratifying spirit of accommodation with reference to the gradual removal of existing impediments to reciprocal relations, without injury to the industrial interests of either party.

CONFERENCE AT THE HAGUE.

In response to the invitation of his majesty, the emperor of Russia, delegates from twenty-six countries were assembled at The Hague on the 18th of May, as members of a conference in the interest of peace. The commission from the United States consisted of Hon. Andrew D. White, Hon. Seth Low, Hon. Stanford Newell, Captain Alfred D. Mahan of the United States nacy, Captain William ... Crozier of the United States army and Hon. Frederick Holls, secretary. The occasion seemed to be opportune for the serious consideration of a plan for pacific adjustment of international differences, a subject in which the American people have been deeply interested for many years, and a definite project for a permanent international tribunal was included in the instructions to the delegates of the United States.

The final act of the conference includes conventions upon the amelioration of the laws and customs of war on land, the adaptation to maritime warfare of the principles of the Geneva convention of 1864, and the extension of judicial methods to international cases. The convention for the pacific settlement of international conflicts embodies the leading features of the American plan, with such modifications as were rendered necessary by the great diversity of views and interests represented by the delegates. The four titles of the convention provide for the maintenance of general peace, the exercise of good office and mediation, the formation of commissions of inquiry and international arbitration.

The mediation provided for by the convention is purely voluntary and advisory, and is intended to avoid any invasion or limitation of the sovereign rights of the adhering states. The commissions of inquiry proposed consist of delegations to be specifically constituted for particular purposes by means of conventions between the contesting parties, having for their object the clear understanding of international differences before resorting to the use of force. The provision for arbitration contemplates the formation of a permanent tribunal before which disputed cases may be brought for settlement by the mutual consent of the litigants in each separate case. The advantages of such a permanent tribunal over impromptu commissions of arbitration are conceived to be the actual existence of a competent court, prepared to administer justice, the greater economy resulting from a well devised system, and the accumulated judicial skill and experience which such a tribunal would soon possess.

While earnestly promoting the success of establishing a permanent international tribunal, the delegation of the United States was not unmindful of the inconveniences which might arise from an obtrusive exercise of mediation, and in signing the convention carefully guarded the historic position of the United States by the following declaration:

"Nothing contained in this convention shall be so construed as to require the United States of America to depart from its traditional policy of not intruding upon, interfering with, or entangling itself in the political questions or policy or international administration of any foreign state; nor shall anything contained in the said convention be construed to imply a relinquishment by the United States of America of its traditional attitude toward purely American questions."

Thus interpreted the convention for the pacific settlement of international conflicts may be regarded as realizing the earnest desire of great numbers of American citizens whose deep sense of justice expressed in numerous resolutions and memorials has urged them to labor for this noble achievement. The general character of this convention, already signed by the delegates of more than twenty sovereign states, further commends it to the favorable action of the senate of the United States, whose ratification it still awaits.

MEDALS FOR THE VOLUNTEERS.

Since my last annual message, and in obedience to the acts of the congress of April 22 and 26, 1898, the remaining volunteer force enlisted for the Spanish war, consisting of 34,834 regulars, and 110,202 volunteers, with over 5,000 volunteer officers, has been discharged from the military service. Of the volunteers, 667 officers and 14,831 men were serving in the Philippines, and 1,650 of the regulars, who were entitled to be mustered out after the ratificaiton of the treaty of peace. They voluntarily remained at the front until their places could be filled by new troops. They were returned home in the order in which they were sent to Manila and are now all of them out of the service and in the ranks of citizenship. I recommend that congress provide a special medal of honor for the volunteers, regulars, sailors and marines on duty in the Philippines, who voluntarily remained in the service after their terms of enlistment had expired.

ENLISTING FOR THE ARMY.

By the act of March 2, 1899, congress gave authority to increase the regular army to a maximum not exceeding 65,000 enlisted men, and to enlist a force of 35,000 volunteers, to be recruited from the country at large. By virtue of this authority the regular army has been increased to the number of 61,999 enlisted men and 2,248 officers and new volunteer regiments have been organized, aggregating 33,050 enlisted men and 1,524 officers. Two of these volunteer regiments are made up of colored men with colored line officers. The new troops to take the places of those returning from the Philippines have been transported to Manila to the number of 581 officers and 26,322 enlisted men of the regular army and 594 officers and 15,358 enlisted men of the new volunteer force, while 504 officers and 14,119 men of the volunteer force are on the ocean enroute to Manila.

The force now in Manila consists of 906 officers and 30,573 regulars, and 594 officers and 15,388 of the volunteers, making an aggregate of 1,499 officers and 45,966 men. When the troops now under orders shall reach Manila the force in the archipelago will comprise 2,051 officers and 63,483 men. The muster-out of the great volunteer army organized for the Spanish war and the creation of a new army, the transportation from Manila to San Francisco of those entitled to discharge, and the transportation of the new troops to take their places has been a work of great magnitude well and ably done, for which too much credit cannot be given the War department.

During the past year we have reduced our force in Cuba and Porto Rico. In Cuba we now have 334 officers and 10,796 enlisted men; in Porto Rico, eighty-seven officers and 2,855 enlisted men, and a battalion of 400 men composed of native Porto Ricans, while stationed throughout the United States are 910 officers and 17,317 men, and in Hawaii twelve officers and 453 enlisted men.

The operations of the army are fully presented in the report of the secretary of war. I cannot withhold from officers and men the highest commendation for their soldierly conduct in trying situations, their willing sacrifices for their country and the interest and ability with which they have performed unusual and difficult duties in our island possessions.

In the organization of the volunteer regiments authorized by the act of March 2, 1899, it was found that no provision had been made for chaplains. This omission was doubtless from inadvertence. I recommend the early authorization for the appointment of one chaplain for each of said regiments. These regiment are now in the Philippines, and it is important that immediate action be had.

INSULAR POSTAL SERVICE.

In restoring peaceful conditions, orderly rule and civic progress in Cuba, Porto Rico and, so far as practicable, in the Philippines the rehabilitation of the postal service has been as essential and important part of the work. It became necessary to provide mail facilities both for our forces of occupation and for the native population. To meet this requirement has involved a substantial reconstruction. The existing systems were so fragmentary, defective and inadequate that a new and comprehensive organization had to be created. American trained officials have been assigned to the directing and executive positions, while natives have been chiefly employed in making up the force. In working out this the merit rule has been rigorously and faithfully applied.

The appointment of director general of posts of Cuba was given to an expert who had been chief postoffice inspector, and assistant postmaster general, and who united large experience with administrative capacity. For the postmastership at Havana the range of skilled and available men was scanned, and the choice fell upon one who had been twenty years in the service as deputy postmaster and postmaster of a large city. This principle governed and determined the selection of the American officials sent not only to Cuba, but to Porto Rico and the Philippines, and they were instructed to apply it so far as practicable in the employment of natives as minor postmasters and clerks. The postal system in Cuba, though remaining under the general guidance of the postmaster general, was made essentially independent. It was felt that it should not be a burden upon the postal service of the United States, and provision was made that any deficit in the postal revenue should be a charge upon the general revenues of the island.

Though Porto Rico and the Philippines hold a different relation to the United States, yet, for convenience of administration, the same principle of an autonomous system has been extended to them. The development of the service in all of the islands has been rapid and successful. It has moved forward on American lines, with free delivery, money order and registry systems, and has given the people mail facilities far greater and more reliable than any they have ever before enjoyed. It is thus not only a vital agency of industrial, social and business progress, but an important influence in diffusing a just understanding of the true spirit and character of American administration.

The domestic service continues to grow with extraordinary rapidity. The expenditures and the revenues will each exceed $100,000,000 during the present fiscal year.

Fortunately, since the revival of prosperous times, the revenues have grown much faster than the expenditures, and there is every indication that a short period will witness the obliteration of the annual deficit. In this connection the report of the postmaster general embodies a statement of some evils which have grown up outside of the contemplation of law in the treatment of some classes of mail matter which wrongly exercise the privilege of the pound rate, and shows that if this matter had been properly classified and had paid the rate which it should have paid, instead of a postal deficit for the last fiscal year of $6,610,000 there would have been on one basis a surplus of $17,637,570, and on another of $5,733,936. The reform thus suggested, in the opinion of the postmaster general, would not only put the postal service at once on a self sustaining basis, but would permit great and valuable improvements, and I commend the subject to the consideration of the congress.

NAVY UP TO ITS TRADITIONS.

The navy has maintained the spirit and high efficiency which have always characterized that arm, and has lost none of the gallantry in heroic action which has signalized its brilliant and glorious past. The nation has equal pride in its early and later achievements. Its habitual readiness for every emergency has won the confidence and admiration of the country. The people are interested in the continued preparation and prestige of the navy and will approve liberal appropriations for its maintenance and improvement. The officers have shown peculiar adaptation for the performance of new and delicate duties which our recent war has imposed.

It cannot be doubted that congress will at once make necessary provision for the armor plates of the vessels now under contract and building. Its attention is respectfully called to the report of the secretary of the navy, in which the subject is fully presented. I unite in his commendation that the congress enact such special legislation as may be necessary to enable the department to make contracts early in the coming year for armor of the best quality that can be obtained in this country for the Maine, Ohio and Missouri, and that the provision of the act of March 3, 1899, limiting the price of armor to $300 per ton be removed.

In the matter of naval construction, Italy and Japan, of the great powers, laid down less tonnage in the year 1899 than this country, and Italy alone has less tonnage under construction. I heartily concur in the recommendations for increasing the navy, as suggested by the secretary of the navy.

Our future progress and prosperity depend upon our ability to equal if not surpass other nations in the enlargement and advance of science, industry and commerce. To invention we must turn as one of the most powerful aids to the accomplishment of such a result. The attention of the congress is directed to the report of the commissioner of patents, in which were found valuable suggestions and recommendations.

On the 30th of June, 1899, the pension roll of the United States numbered 991,119. These include the pensioners of the army and navy in all our wars. The number added to the rolls during the year was 4,991. The number dropped by reason of death, minors by legal limitations, failure to claim within three years and other causes was 43,816, and the number of claims disallowed was 107,917. During the year 89,054 pension certificates were issued, of which 37,077 were for new original pensions. The amount disbursed for army and navy pensions during the year was $138,355,652.99, which was $1,651,461.61 less than the sum of the appropriation.

The Grand Army of the Republic at its recent national encampment held at Philadelphia has brought to my attention and to that of the congress the wisdom and justice of a modification of the third section of the act of June 27, 1890, which provides pensions for the widows of officers and enlisted men who served ninety days or more during the war of the rebellion, and were honorably discharged, provided that such widows are without other means of support than their daily labor and were married to the soldier, sailor or marine on account of whose service they claim pension prior to the date of the act.

The present holding of the department is that if the widow's income, aside from her daily labor, does not exceed in amount what her pension would be, to-wit: $96 per annum, she would be deemed to be without other means of support than her daily labor and would be entitled to a pension under this act; while if the widow's income, independent of the amount received by her as the result of her daily labor, exceeds $96, she will not be pensionable under the act. I am advised by the commissioner of pensions that the amount of the income allowed before title to pension would be barred has varied widely under different administrations of the pension office, as well as during different periods of the same administration and has been the cause of just complaint and criticism.

With the approval of the secretary of the interior, the commissioner of pensions recommends that, in order to make the practice at all times uniform and to do justice to the dependent widow, the amount of income allowed, independent of the proceeds of her daily labor, should be not less than $250 per annum, and he urges that the congress shall so amend the act so as to permit the pension officers to grant pensionable status to widows under the terms of the third section of the act of June 27, 1890, whose income, aside from the proceeds of daily labor, is not in excess of $250 per annum. I believe this to be a simple act of justice and heartily recommend it.

In accordance with the act of congress approved March 3, 1899, the preliminary work in connection with the twentieth century census is now fully under way. The officers required for the proper administration of the duties imposed have been selected. The provision for securing a proper enumeration of the population, as well as to secure evidence of the industrial growth of the nation, is broader and more comprehensive than any similar legislation in the past. The director advises that every needful effort is being made to push this great work to completion in the time limited by the statute. It is believed that the twelfth census will emphasize our remarkable advance in all that pertains to national progress.

PAYMENT BY PACIFIC ROADS.

Under the authority of the act of congress July 7, 1898, the commission consisting of the secretary of the treasury, the attorney general and secretary of the interior, has made an arrangement of settlement, which has had my approval, of the indebtedness to the government growing out of the issue of bonds to aid in the construction of the Central Pacific and Western Pacific railroads. The agreement secures to the government the principal and interest of said bonds, amounting to $58,812,715.48. There has been paid thereon $11,762,543.12, which has been covered into the treasury, and the remainder, payable within ten years, with interest at the rate of 3 per cent per annum, payable semi-annually, is secured by the deposit of the first mortgage bonds of the Pacific railway companies.

The amounts paid and secured to be paid to the government on account of the Pacific railroad subsidy claims are:

Union Pacific, cash, $58,488,223.75;

Kansas Pacific, cash, $6,303,000;

Central and Western Pacific, cash, $17,798,314.14; notes, secured, $48,050,172.36.

Kansas Pacific, dividends for deficiency due United States, cash, $821,897.70.

Making a total of $124,421,607.91.

The whole indebtedness was about $730,000,000, more than half of which consisted of accrued interest, for which sum the government has realized the entire amount, less about $6,000,000, within a period of two years.

On June 30, 1898, there were thirty forest reservations (exclusive of the Afognak forest and fish culture reserve in Alaska) embracing an estimated area of 40,719,474 acres. During the past year two of the existing forest reserves, the Trabuco canyon (California) and Black Hills, (South Dakota and Wyoming) have been considerably enlarged, the area of the Mount Ranier reserve, in the state of Washington, has been somewhat reduced and six additional reserves have been established, namely, the San Francisco mountains (Arizona), Black Meza (Arizona), Lake Tahoe (California), Gallatin (Montana), Gila River (New Mexico) and Fish Lake (Utah), the total estimated area of which is 5,205,775 acres. This makes at the present time a total of thirty-six forest reservations embracing an estimated area of 46,021,899 acres. This estimated area is the aggregated areas within the boundaries of the reserves. The lands actually reserved are, however, only the vacant public lands therein, and these have been set aside and reserved from sale or settlement in order that they may be of the greatest use to the people.

The protection of the reserves, organized by the department of the interior in 1897, has been continued during the past year, and much has been accomplished in the way of prevention or forest fires and the protection of the timber. There are now large tracts covered by forests which will eventually be reserved and set apart for forest uses. Until that can be done congress should increase the appropriation for the work of protecting the forests.

HELPS FOR AGRICULTURISTS.

The department of agriculture is constantly consulting the needs of producers in all the states and territories. It is introducing seeds and plants of great value and promoting fuller diversification of crops. Grains, grasses, fruits, legumes and vegetables are imported for all parts of the United States. Under this encouragement the beet sugar factory multiplies in the north and far west, semi-tropical plants are sent to the south, and congenial climates are sought for the choice productions of the far east. The hybridizing of fruit trees and grains is conducted in the search for varieties adapted to exacting conditions. The introduction of tea gardens into southern states promises to provides employment for idle hands, as well as to supply the home market with tea.

The subject of irrigation, where it is of vital importance to the people is being carefully studied, steps are being taken to reclaim all arid or abandoned lands, and information for people along these lines is being distributed.

Markets are being sought and opened up for surplus farm and factory products in Europe and Asia. The outlook for the education of the young farmer through agricultural college and experiment stations with opportunity given to specialize in the department of agriculture is very promising.

The people of Hawaii, Porto Rico and the Philippine islands should be helped by the establishment of experiment stations to a more scientific knowledge of the production of coffee, India rubber and other tropical products for which there is demand in the United States.

There is widespread interest in the improvement of our public highways at the present time, and the department of agriculture is co-operating with the people in each locality in making the best possible roads from local material and in experimenting with steel tracks.

A more intelligent system of managing the forests of the country is being put in operation, and a careful study of the whole forestry problem is being conducted throughout the United States. A very extensive and complete exhibit of the agricultural and horticultural products of the United States is being prepared for the Paris exposition.

SITUATION IN THE PHILIPPINES.

On the 10th of December, 1898, the treaty of peace between the United States and Spain was signed. It provided, among other things, that Spain should cede to the United States the archipelago known as the Philippine islands, that the United States should pay to Spain the sum of $20,000,000, and that the civil rights and political status of the native inhabitants of the territories thus ceded to the United States should be determined by congress. The treaty was approved by the senate on the 6th of February, 1899, and by the government of Spain on the 19th of March following. The ratifications were exchanged on the 11th of April, and the treaty publicly proclaimed. On the 22d of March the congress voted the sum contemplated by the treaty and the amount was paid over to the Spanish government on the 1st of May.

In this manner the Philippines came to the United States. The islands were ceded by the government of Spain, which had been in undisputed possession of them for centuries. They were accepted, not merely by our authorized commissioners in Paris, under the direction of the executive, but by the constitutional and well considered action of the representatives of the people of the United States in both houses of congress. I had every reason to believe and I still believe that this transfer of sovereignty was in accordance with the wishes and aspirations of the great mass of the Filipino people.

From the earliest moment no opportunity was lost in assuring the people of the islands of our ardent desire for their welfare and of the intention of this government to do everything possible to advance their interests. In my order of the 19th of May, 1898, the commander of the military expedition dispatched to the Philippines was instructed to declare that we came not to make war upon the people of the country, nor upon any part or faction among them, but to protect them in their homes, in their employments, and in their personal and religious rights." That there should be no doubt as to the paramount authority there, on the 17th of August, it was directed that "there must be no joint occupation with the insurgents;" that the United States must preserve the peace and protect persons and property within the territory occupied by their military and naval forces; that the insurgents, as well as all others, must recognize the military occupation and authority of the United States. As early as December 4, before the cession, and in anticipation of that event, the commander in Manila was urged to restore peace and tranquility and to undertake the establishment of a beneficent government, which should afford the fullest security for life and property.

On the 21st of December, after the treaty was signed, the commander of the forces of occupation was instructed "to announce and proclaim in the most public manner that we come, not as invaders and conquerors, but as friends to protect the natives in their homes, in their employments and in their personal and religious rights." On the same day, while ordering General Otis to see that the peace should be preserved in Iloilo, he was admonished "that it is most important that there should be no conflict with the insurgents." On the 1st day of January, 1899, urgent orders were reiterated that the kindly intentions of this government should be in every possible way communicated to the insurgents.

On the 21st of January I announced my intention of dispatching to Manila a commission composed of three gentlemen of the highest character and distinction thoroughly acquainted with the Orient, who in association with Admiral Dewey and Major General Otis, were instructed "to facilitate the most humane and effective extension of authority throughout the islands and secure with the least possible delay the benefits of a wise, generous protection of life and property to the inhabitants."

These gentlemen were Jacob Gould Schurman, president of Cornell university; Hon. Charles Denby, for many years minister to China, and Prof. Dean C. Worcester of the University of Michigan, who had made a most careful study of life in the Philippines. While the treaty of peace was under consideration in the senate these commissioners set out on their mission of good will and liberation. Their character was a sufficient guaranty of the beneficent purpose with which they went, and they bore the absolute instructions of this government, which made their errand pre-eminently one of peace and friendship.

But before their arrival at Manila the sinister ambition of a few leaders of the Filipinos had created a situation full of embarrassments for us and most grievous in its consequences to themselves. The clear and impartial preliminary report of the commissioners, which I transmit herewith, gives so lucid and comprehensive a history of the present insurrectionary movement that the story need not be here repeated. It is enough to say that the claim of the rebel leader that he was promised independence by any officer of the United States in return for his assistance had no foundation in fact and is categorically denied by the very witnesses who were called to prove it. The most the insurgent leader hoped for when he came back to Manila was the liberation of the islands from the Spanish control which they had been laboring for years without success to throw off.

The prompt accomplishment of the work by the American army and navy gave him other ideas and ambitions and insidious suggestions from various quarters perverted the purposes and intentions with which he had taken up arms. No sooner had our army captured Manila than the Filipino forces began to assume an attitude of suspicion and hostility which the utmost efforts of our officers and troops were unable to disarm or modify. Their kindness and forbearance were taken as a proof of cowardice. The aggressions of the Filipino continually increased until finally, just before the time set for the senate of the United States for a vote upon the treaty, an attack, evidently prepared in advance, was made all along the American lines, which resulted in a terribly destructive and sanguinary repulse of the insurgents.

Ten days later an order of the insurgent government was issued to its adherents who had remained in Manila, of which General Otis justly observes, that "for barbarous intent it is unequalled in modern times." It orders that at 8 o'clock on the night of the 15th of February the territorial militia shall come together in the streets of San Pedro, armed with their bolos, with guns and ammunition where convenient; that Filipino families only shall be respected; but that all other individuals of whatever race they may be shall be exterminated without any compassion, after the extermination of the army of occupation, and adds: "Brothers, we must avenge ourselves on the Americans and exterminate them, that we may take our revenge for the infamies and treacheries committed upon us. Have no compassion upon them; attack with vigor." A copy of this fell, by good fortune, into the hands of our officers, and they were able to take measures to control the rising, which was actually attempted on the night of February 22, a week later than was originally contemplated. Considerable numbers of armed insurgents entered the city by water ways and swamps and in concert with confederates inside attempted to destroy Manila by fire. They were kept in check during the night and the next day driven out of the city with heavy loss.

This was the unhappy condition of affairs which confronted our commissioners on their arrival in Manila. They had come with the hope and intention of co-operating with Admiral Dewey and Major General Otis in establishing peace and order in the archipelago and the largest measure of self-government compatible with the true welfare of the people. What they actually found can best be set forth in their own words:

"Deplorable as war is, the one in which we are now engaged was unavoidable by us. We were attacked by a bold, adventurous and enthusiastic army. No alternative was left to us except to fight or retreat.

"It is not to be conceived of that any American would have sanctioned the surrender of Manila to the insurgents. Our obligations to other nations and to the Filipinos and to ourselves and our flag demanded that force shoud be met by force.

"Whatever the future of the Philippines may be, there is no course open to us now except the prosecution of the war until the insurgents are reduced to submission. The commission is of the opinon that there has been no time since the destruction of the Spanish squadron by Admiral Dewey when it was possible to withdraw our forces from the islands with honor to ourselves or with safety to the inhabitants."

The course thus clearly indicated has been unflinchingly pursued. The rebellion must be put down. Civil government cannot be thoroughly established until order is restored. With a devotion and gallantry worthy of its most brilliant history, the army, ably and loyally assisted by the army, ably carried on this unwelcome but most righteous campaign with richly deserved success. The noble self-sacrifice with which our soldiers and sailors, whose terms of service had expired, refused to avail themselves of their right to return home as long as they were needed at the front, forms one of the brightest pages in our annals. Although their operations have been somewhat interrupted and checked by a rainy season of unusual violence and duration, they have gained ground steadily in every direction and now look forward confidently to a speedy completion of their task.

The unfavorable circumstances connected with an active campaign have not been allowed to interfere with the equally important work of reconstruction. I invite your attention again to the report of the commissioners for the interesting and encouraging details of the work in the establishment of peace and inauguration of self-governing municipalities in many portions of the archipelago. A notable beginning has been made in the establishment of a government in the island of Negros, which is deserving of special consideration. This was the first island to accept American sovereignty. Its people unreservedly proclaimed allegiance to the United States and adopted a constitution looking to a popular government. It was impossible to guarantee to the people of Negros that the constitution so adopted should be the ultimate form of government. Such action under the treaty with Spain and in accordance with our own constitution and laws came conclusively within the jurisdiction of congress. The government actually set up by the inhabitants of Negros eventually proved satisfactory to the natives themselves. A new system was put into force by order of the major general commanding the department of which the following are the important elements:

It was ordered that the government of the island of Negros should consist of a militar y governor appointed by the United States military commander of the Philippines, and a civil governor and an advisory council elected by the people. The military governor was authorized to appoint secretaries of the treasury, interior, agriculture, public instruction, an attorney general and an auditor. The seat of government was fixed at Bacolor. The military governor exercises the supreme executive power. He is to see that the laws are executed, appoint to office and fill all vacancies in office not otherwise provided for, and may, with the approval of the military governor of the Philippines, remove any officer from office. The civil governor advises the military governor on all civil questions and presides over the advisory council. He, in general, performs the duties which are performed by secretaries of state in our own system of government.

The advisory council consists of eight members, elected by the people, within the territorial limits which are defined in the order of the commanding general.

The time and place of holding elections are to be fixed by the military governor in the island of Negros. The qualifications of voters are as follows: (1) A voter must be a male citizen of the island of Negros. (2) Of the age of 21 years. (3) He shall be able to speak, read and write the English, Spanish or Visayan language, or he must own real property worth $500, or pay a rental on real property of the value of $7,000. (4) He must have resided in the island not less than one year preceding, and in the district in which he offers to register as a voter not less than three months immediately preceding the time he offers to register. (5) He must register at a time fixed by law before voting. (6) Prior to such registration he shall have paid all taxes due by him to the government. Provided that no insane person shall be allowed to register or vote.

The military governor has the right to veto all bills or resolutions adopted by the advisory council, and his veto is final if not disapproved by the military governor of the Philippines.

The advisory council discharges all the ordinary duties of a legislature. The usual duties pertaining to said offices are to be performed by the secretaries of the treasury, interior, agriculture, public instruction, the attorney general and the auditor.

The judicial power in vested in three judges, who are to be appointed by the military governor of the island. Inferior courts are to be established.

Free public schools are to be established throughout the populous districts of the island, in which the English language shall be taught, and this subject will receive the careful consideration of the advisory council.

The burden of the government must be distributed equally and equitably among the people. The military authorities will collect and receive the custom revenue, and will control postal matters and Philippine interest and trade, and commerce.

The military governor, subject to the approval of the military governor of the Philippines, determines all questions not specially provided for and which do not come under the jurisdic- of the advisory council.

The authorities of the Sulu islands have accepted the succession of the United States to the rights of Spain, and our flag floats over that territory.

On the 10th of August, 1899, Brigadier General Bates, U. S. V., negotiated an agreement with the sultan and his principal chiefs, which I transmit herewith. By article i the sovereignty of the United States over the whole archipelago of Jolo and its dependencies is declared and acknowledged.

The United States flag will be used in the archipelago and its dependencies, on land and sea. Piracy is to be suppressed and the sultan agrees to co-operate heartily with the United States authorities to that end, and to make every possible effort to arrest and bring to justice persons engaged in piracy. All trade in domestic products of the archipelago of Jolo when carried on with any part of the Philippine islands and under the American flag, shall be free, unlimited and undutiable. The United States will give full protection to the sultan in case any foreign nation should attempt to impose upon him. The United States will not sell the island of Jolo or any other island of the Jolo archipelago to any foreign nation without the consent of the sultan. Salaries for the sultan and his associates in the administration of the islands have been agreed upon to the amount of $760 monthly.

Article x provides that any slave in the archipelago of Jolo shall have the right to purchase freedom by paying to the master the usual market value.

The agreement by General Bates was made subject to confirmation by the president and to the future modifications y the consent of the parties in interest. I have confirmed said agreement subject to the action of the congress and with the reservation, which I have directed shall be communicated to the sultan of Jolo, that this agreement is not to be deemed in any way to authorize or give the consent of the United States to the existence of slavery in the Sulu archipelago.

I communicate these facts to the congress for its information and action. Everything indicates that with the speedy suppression of the Tagalo rebellion, life in the archipelago will soon resume its ordinary course under the protection of our sovereignty and the people of those favored islands will enjoy a prosperity and a freedom which they have never before known. Already hundreds of schools are open and filled with children. Religious freedom is sacredly secured and enjoyed. The courts are dispensing justice. Business is beginning to circulate in its accustomed channels. Manila, whose inhabitants were fleeing to the country a few months ago, is now a populous and thriving mart of commerce. The earnest and unremitting endeavors of the commission and the admiral and major general commanding the department of the pacific to assure the people of the beneficent intentions of this government have had their legitimate effect in convincing the great mass of them that peace and safety and prosperity and stable government can only be secured by a full acceptance of the authority of the United States.

The future of the Philippines rests with the congress of the United States. Few graver responsibilities have ever been confided to us. If we accept them in a spirit worthy of our race and our traditions, a great opportunity comes with them. The islands lie under the shelter of our flag. They are ours by the title of law and equity. They cannot be abandoned. If we desert them we leave them at once to anarchy and finally to barbarism. We fling them, a golden apple or discord, among the rival powers, no one of which could permit another to seize them unquestioned. Their rich plains and valleys would be the scene of endless strife and bloodshed. The advent of Dewey's fleet in Manila bay, instead of being, as we hope, the dawn of a new day of freedom and progress, will have been the beginning of an era of misery and violence worse than any which has darkened their unhappy past. The suggestion has been made that we could renounce our authority over the islands, and, giving them independence, could retain a protectorate over them. This proposition will not be found, I am sure, worthy of your serious attention. Such an agreement would involve, at the outset, a cruel breach of faith. It would place the peaceable and loyal majority, who ask nothing better than to accept our authority, at the mercy of the minority of armed insurgents. It would make us responsible for the acts of the insurgent leaders and give us no power to control them. It would charge us with the task of protecting them against each other, and defending them against any foreign power with which they chose to quarrel. In short, it would take from the congress of the United States the power of declaring war and vest that tremendous prerogative in the Tagalo leader of the hour.

It does not seem desirable that I should recommend at this time a specific and final form of government for these islands. When peace shall be restored it will be the duty of congress to construct a plan of government which shall establish and maintain freedom and order and peace in the Philippines. The insurrection is still existing, and when it terminates further information will be required as to the actual condition of affairs before establishing a permanent scheme of civil government. The full report of the commission, now in preparation, will contain information and suggestions which will be of value to congress, and which I will transmit as soon as it is completed. As long as the insurrection continues the military arm must necessarily be supreme. But there is no reason why steps should not be taken from time to time to inaugurate governments essentially popular in their form as fast as territory is held or controlled by our troops. To this end, I am considering the advisability of the return of the commission, or such of the members thereof as can be secured, to aid the existing authorities and facilitate this work throughout the islands. I have believed that reconstruction should not begin by the establishment of one central civil government for all the islands, with its seat at Manila, but rather that the work should be commenced by building up from the bottom, first establishing a municipal government and then provinical governments, a central government at last to follow.

Until the congress shall have made known the formal expression of its will I shall use the authority vested in me by the constitution and the statutes to uphold the sovereignty of the United States in those distant islands, as in all other places where our flag rightfullly floats. I shall put at the disposal of the army and navy all the means which the liberality of congress and the people have provided to cause this unprovoked and wasteful insurrection to cease. If any orders of mine were required to insure the proper conduct of military and naval operations they would not be lacking; but every step of the progress of our troops has been marked by a humanity which has surprised even the misguided insurgents. The truest kindness to them will be a swift defeat of their present leader. The hour of victory willbe the hour of clemency and reconstruction.

No effort will be spared to build up the waste places desolated by war and by long years of misgovernment. We shall not wait for the end of the strife to begin the beneficent work. We shall continue, as we have begun, to open the schools and the churches, to set the courts in operation, to foster industry and trade and agriculture, and in every way in our power to make these people whom Providence has brought within our jurisdiction feel that it is their liberty and not our power, their welfare and not our gain, we are seeking to enhance. Our flag has never waved over any community but in blessing. I believe the entire Filipinos will soon recognize the fact that they have not lost their gift of benediction in this world-wide journey to their shores.

EMBARRASSMENTS IN HAWAII.

Some embarrassments in administration has occurred by reason of the peculiar status which the Hawaiian islands at present occupy under the joint resolution of annexation, approved on July 7, 1898. While by that resolution of the republic of Hawaii, as an independent nation, was extinguished, its separate sovereignty destroyed, and its property and possessions vested in the United States, yet a complete establishment for its government under our system was not ohered. While municipal laws of the islands not enacted for the fulfillment of treaties and not inconsistent with the joint resolution or contrary to the constitution of the United States or any of its treaties remain in force, yet these laws relate only to the social and internal affairs of the islands, and do not touch many subects of importance which are of a broader national character. For example, the Hawaiian republic was divested of all title to the public lands in the islands and not only unable to dispose of lands to settlers desiring to take up homes, but is without power to give complete title in cases where lands have been entered upon under lease or other conditions which carry with them the right to the under purchase, lessee or settler to have a full title granted to him upon compliance with the conditions prescribed by law by his particular agreement or entry.

Questions of doubt and difficulty have also arisen with reference to the collection of tonnage tax on vessels coming from Hawaiian ports; with reference to the status of Chinese in the islands, their entrance and exit therefrom; as to patents and copyrights; as to the register of vessels under the navigation laws; as to the necessity of holding elections in accordance with the provisions of the Hawaiian statutes for the choice of various offices and as to several other matters of detail, touching the interests both of the island and of the federal government.

By the resolution of annexation the president was directed to appoint five commissioners to recommend to congress such legislation concerning the islands as they should deem necessary or proper. These commissioners were duly appointed and after a careful investigation and study of the system of laws and government prevailing in the islands, and of the laws in vogue there, they prepared a bill to provide a government under the title of "The Territory of Hawaii." The report of the commission, with the bill which they prepared, was transmitted by me to congress on December 6, 1898, but the bill still awaits final action.

The people of these islands are entitled to the benefits and privileges of our constitution, but in the absence of any act of congress providing for federal courts in the islands and for a procedure by which appeals, writs of error and other judicial proceedings for the enforcement of civil rights may be prosecuted, they are powerless to secure their enforcement by the judgment of the courts of the United States. It is manifestly important, therefore, that an act shall be passed as speedily as possible erecting these islands into a judicial district, providing for the appointment of a judge and other proper officers and methods of procedure in appellate proceedings, and that the government of this newly acquired territory under the federal constitution shall be fully defined and provided for.

ALASKA NEEDS BROADER LAWS.

A necessity for immediate legislative relief exists in the territory of Alaska. Substantially the only law providing a civil government for this territory is the act of May 17, 1884. This is meager in its provisions, and is fitted only for the administration of affairs in a country sparsely inhabited by civilized people and unimportant in trade and production, as was Alaska at the time this act was passed. The increase in population by immigration during the past few years, consequent upon the discovery of gold, has produced such a condition as calls for more ample facilities for local self-government and more numerous conveniences of civil and judicial administration. Settlements have grown up in various places, constituting in point of population and business centers of thousands of inhabitants, yet there is no provision of law under which a municipality may be organized and maintained.

In some localities the inhabitants have met together and voluntarily formed a municipal organization for the purpose of local government, adopting a form of a municipal constitution and charter, under which paid officials have been appointed and ordinances creating and regulating a police force, fire department, a department of health and making provision for the insane and indigent poor and providing for public schools, have passed. These ordinances, passed by said municipalities, are without statutory authority and have no sanction except as they are maintained by the popular sentiment of the community. There is an entire absence of authority to provide the ordinary instruments of local police control and administration.

The population, consisting of the usual percentage of lawless adventurers of the class that always flock to new fields of enterprise or discovery, and under circumstances which require more than ordinary provision for the maintenance of peace, good order and lawful conduct.

The whole vast area of Alaska comprises but one judicial district with one marshal and one district attorney, yet the civil and criminal business has more than doubled within the last year and is many times greater, both in volume and importance than it was in 1884. The duties of the judge require him to travel thousands if miles to discharge his judicial duties at the various places designated for that purpose. The territory should be divided into at least two districts and an additional judge, district attorney, marshal and other appropriate officers be provided.

There is practically no organized form of government in the territory. There is no authority, except in congress, to pass any law, no matter how local or trivial, and the difficulty of conveying to the congress an adequate conception and understanding of the various needs of the people in the different communities is easily understood. I see no reason why a more complete form of territorial organization should not be provided.

Following the precedent established in the year 1805, when a teporary government was provided for the recently acquired territory, then known under the name of Louisiana, it seems to me that it would be advantageous to confer greater executive power upon the governor and to establish, as was done in the case of the territory of Louisiana, a legislative council, having power to adopt ordinances which shall extend to all the rights of subjects of local origin, such ordinances not to take effect until reported to and approved by the congress if in session, and if that body is not in session, then by the president. In this manner a system of laws providing for the incorporation and government of towns and cities, having a certain population, giving them the power to establish and maintain a system of education to be locally supported, and ordinances providing for police, sanitary and other such purposes, could be speedily provided. I believe a provision of this kind would be satisfactory to the people of the territory. It is probable that the area is too vast and the population too scattered and transitory to make it wise at the present time to provide for an elective body, but the conditions calling for local self government will undoubtedly very soon exist, and will be facilitated by the measures which I have recommended.

CIVIL RULE FOR PORTO RICO.

I recommend that legislation to the same end be had with reference to the government of Porto Rico. The time is ripe for the adoption of a temporary form of government for this island, and many suggestions made with reference to Alaska are applicable also to Porto Rico.

The system of civil jurisprudence now adopted by the people of this island is described by competent lawyers who are familiar with it, as thoroughly modern and scientific, so far as it relates to matters of internal business, trade, production and social and private rights in general. The cities of the island are governed under charters which probably require very little or no change. So that with relation to matters of local concern and of private right it is not probable that much, if any, legistion, is desirable, but with reference to public administration and the relations of the islands to the federal government, there are many matters which are of pressing urgency. The same necessity exists for legislation to establish judicial jurisdiction in the island as has been previously pointed out by me with reference to Hawaii. Besides the administration of justice, there are subjects for public lands, the control and improvement of rivers and harbors, the control of the waters or streams not navigable, which, under the Spanish law, belonged to the crown of Spain, and have by the treaty of cession passed to the United States; the immigration of people from foreign countries, the importation of contract labor, the imposition and collection of internal revenue; the application of the navigation laws; the regulation of the current money; the establishment of postoffices and post roads; the regulation of tariff rates on merchandise imported from the island into the United States; the establishment of ports of entry and delivery; the regulation of patents and copyrights; these, with various other subjects which must entirely within the power of the congress, call for careful consideration and immediate action.

It must be borne in mind that since the cession Porto Rico has been denied the markets she had long enjoyed and our tariffs have been continued against her products as when she was under Spanish sovereignty. The markets of Spain are closed to her products, except upon terms to which the commerce of all nations is subjected. The island of Cuba, which used to buy her cattle and tabocco with customs duties, now imposes the same duties upon these products as from any other country entering her ports. She has, therefore, lost her free intercourse with Spain and Cuba without any compensating benefits in this market. Her coffee was little known and not in use by our people, and therefore there was no demand here for it, one of her chief products. The markets of the United States should be opened up to her products. Our plain duty is to abolish all customs tariffs between the United States and Porto Rico and give her products free acess to our markets.

As a result of the hurricane which swept over Porto Rico on the 8th of August, 1899, over 100,000 people were reduced to absolute destitution, without homes, and deprived of the necessaries of life. To the appeal of the War department the people of the United States made prompt and generous response. In addition to the private charity of our people, the War department has expended for the relief of the distressed $392,342.63, which does not include the cost of transportation.

It is desirable that the government of the island under the law of belligerent right, now maintained through the executive department, should be superceded by an administration entirely civil in its nature. For present purposes I recommend that congress pass a law for the organization of a temporary government, which shall provide for the appointment by the President, subject to confirmation by the Senate, of a governor and such other officers as the general administration of the island may require and that for legislative purposes on subjects of a local nature not partaking of a federal character a legislative council, composed of Porto Ricans and partly of citizens of the United States, shall be nominated and appointed by the president subject to confirmation by the senate, their acts being subject to the approval of the congress or the president prior to going into effect. In the municipalities and other local subdivisions it is recommended that the principle of local self-government be applied at once so as to enable the intelligent citizens of the island to participate in their own government and to learn by practical experience the duties and requirements of self-contained and a self-governing people. I have not thought it wise to commit the entire government of the island to officers selected by the people, because I doubt that their habits, their training and experience are such as to fit them to exercise at once in so large a degree of self-government, but it is my judgment and expectation that they will soon arrive at an attainment of experience and wisdom and self-control that will justify conferring upon them a much larger participation in the choice of their insular officers.

The fundamental principle for these people, as for all other people, is education. The free school house is the best preceptor for free citizenship. In the introduction of modern educational methods care, however, must be exercised that changes be not made too prtuntly, and that history and racial peculiarities of the inhabitants shall be given due weight. Systems of education in these new possessions, founded upon common sense methods, adapted to existing conditions and looking to the future movement and industrial advancement of the people, will commend to them a peculiarly effective manner the blessings of free government.

The love of law and sense of obedience and submission to the lawfully constituted judicial tribunals are embedded in the hearts of our people, and any violation of those sentiments and disregard of their obligations justly arouse public condemnation. The guaranties of life, liberty, and of civil rights should be faithfully upheld; the right of trial by jury respected and defended. The rules of the court should assure the public of the prompt trial of those charged with criminal offences, and upon the conviction the punishment should be commensurate with the enormity of the crime.

Those who, in disregard of law and the public peace, unwilling to await the judgment of the court and jury, constitute themselves judges and executioners should not escape the severest penalties for their crime.

What I said in my inaugural address of March 4, 1897, I now repeat: "The constitution and authorities should be cheerfully and vigorously upheld. Lynchings must not be tolerated in a great and civilized country like the United States. Courts, not mobs, must execut the penalties of the laws.

"The preservation of public order, the right of discussion, the integrity of courts and the orderly administration of justice must continue forever the basis of safety upon which our government security rests."

In accordance with an act of congress, providing for an appropriate national celebration in the year 1900 of the establishment of the seat of government in the District of Columbia, I have appointed a committee consisting of the governors of all the states and territories of the United States, who have been invited to assemble in the City of Washington on the 21st of December, 1899, which, with the committees of the congress and the District of Columbia, are charged with the proper conduct of this celebration.

Congress at its last session appropriated $5,000 "to enable the chief of engineers of the army to continue the examination of the subject and to make or secure designs, calculations and estimates for a memorial bridge from the most convenient point of the Naval observatory ground, or adjacent thereto, across the Potomac river to the most convenient point of the Arlington estate property." In accordance with the provisions of this act the chief of engineers has selected four eminent bridge engineers to submit competitive designs for a bridge combining the elements of strength and durability and such architectural embellishments and ornamentation as will fitly apply to the dedication of the "memorial to American patriotism." The designs are now being prepared and as soon as completed will be submitted to the congress by the secretary of war. The proposed bridge will be a convenience to all the people from every part of the country who visit the national cemetery, an ornament to the capital of the nation and forever stand as a monument to American patriotism. I do not doubt that congress will give to the enterprise still further proof of its favor and approval.

AMEND CIVIL SERVICE RULES.

The executive order of May 6, 1896, extending the limits of the classified service brought within the operation of the civil service law and rules nearly all of the civil service not previously classified. Some of the inclusions were found wholly illogical, and unsuited to the work of the several departments. The application of the rules to many of the places so included was found to result in friction and embarrassment. After long and very careful consideration it became evident to the heads of the departments, responsible for their efficiency, that in order to remove these difficulties and promote efficiency and harmony, amendments were necessary. These amendments were promulgated by me in an order dated May 29, 1899. The principal purpose of the order was to except from competitive examination certain places involving judiciary responsibilities or duties of a strictly confidential, scientific, or executive character, which it was thought might better be filled either by non-competitive examination, or in the discretion of the appointing officer, than by open competition. These places were comparatively few in number. The order provides for the filling of a much larger number of places, mainly in the outside service of the war department, by what is known as the registration system, under regulations to be approved by the president, similar to those which have produced such admirable results in the navy yards service.

All of the amendment had for their main object a more efficient and satisfactory administration of the appointment and established by the civil service law. The results attained show that under these operations the public service has improved and that the civil service system is relieved of many objectionable features which heretofore subjected it to just criticism the administrative officers to the charge of unbusinesslike methods in the conduct of public affairs. As it is the merit system has been greatly strengthened and its permanence assured. It will be my constant aim in the administration of government in our new possessions to make fitness, character and merit essential to appointment to office and to give to the capable and deserving inhabitants preference in appointments.

The 14th of December will be the 100th anniversay of the death of Washington. For a hundred years the republic has had the priceless advantage of the lofty standard of character and conduct which he bequeathed to the American people. It is an inheritance which time, instead of wasting, continually increases and enriches. We may justly hope that in the years to come the benignant influence of the Father of his Country may be even more potent for good than in the century which is drawing to a close. I have been glad to learn that in many parts of the country the people will fittingly observe this historic anniversary.

Presented to this congress are great opportunities. With them come great responsibilities. The power confided to us increases the weight of our obligations to the people, and we must be profoundly sensitive of them as we contemplate the new and grave problems which confront us. Aiming only at the public good we cannot err. A right interpretation of the people's will and of duty cannot fail to insure wise measures for the welfare of the islands which have come under the authority of the United States and insure to the islands the honor of this country. Never has this nation had more abundant cause than during the past year for thankfulness to God for manifold blessings and mercies, for which we make reverent acknowledgment.

A Hungarian philologist, Dr. Anton Velics, thinks he has discovered the original language of man. He has found that the great groups of languages, Indo-Germanic, Semetic, Hamitec and Altaic, are all based on between 200 and 300 ancient Chinese roots, some of which have disappeared from the Crinese language and are now found only in Japanese. He has published his theory in Hungarian, but is going to translate it into German, so that other philologists may be able to criticise it.

After going to Korea he played a prominent part in that country's politics and was finally chosen to organize and instruct the Korean army.

It doesn't look as if the world's supply of champagne was in any immediate danger of petering out. A report from the champagne districts of France says that if not a single bottle of champagne were produced in those districts, the world could still go on drinking champagne for five years, at its present rate of consumption, without using up the supply on hand.

France has a new submarine boat and will soon subject the invention to a series of trial tests to prove its superiority to recently constructed American vessels. The chief trouble with the submarine boats built up to-date has been their tendency to be entirely too submarine—to stay down and refuse to come up again. If the French have really made a boat which will dive, swim under the surface and arise when due the art of naval warfare may be materially revolutionized.

The omnipresent microbe is making its disturbing influence felt in strange and unexpected quarters. Beards and mustaches are placed under ban as being nesting-places of errant intruders, some of them pathogenic, or, in every-day parlance, having the power to produce disease. Because of this, the London Globe states, on the authority of a French scientific journal, that on motion of the celebrated Dr. Hubenck, of Breslau, the leading surgeons of Austria and Germany are considering the adopting of a rule requiring surgeons to be clean-shaved, or to, at least, as a preventive of danger, disinfect the hair of the face before operating. Nothing is said as to the hair of the head, but if this, too, is included in the interdict, bald-headed surgeons will enjoy a gratifying advantage.

The excessive candor which characterizes the criticism of men who hold public offices should not be considered proof that Americans do not respect such offices. Freedom of speech often degenerates into flippancy, but when a public man who holds an important place of authority appears in his official capacity the gathered crowds manifest a respectful deference. The highest illustration is furnished when the president of the United States is greeted at various points on a journey. Partisan violence ceases. No voice, no gesture expresses contempt or disrespect, although in each assembly may be many a political opponent whose private remarks may be uncomplimentary to the verge of savageness. The chief magistrate, who is officially the representative of all the people, moves through throngs which are cordial, appreciative, considerate. Antagonists may not like the man. They do not fail to honor the office. Tested with respect to their opinon of exalted station, Americans are to be judged by their behavior, and not by their talk.

A curious point of copyright law has been decided in England by the High Court of Justice. It appears that a volume of Lord Rosebery's speeches was prepared, in which were addresses, or portions of addreses, that had been reported from his lips for the London Times. As they were first put in literary or written form at the cost of that journal, the court decided that they were the property of the Times, and therefore granted an injunction to restrain his lordship from appropriating the report of his own words.

It is asserted that liquid air has twenty times the explosive force of dynamite. During experiments at Vienna, in the firing of cannon, the liquid air was exploded by an electric spark, and the results were extremely satisfactory. No heat was developed in the guns, and the range of the projectiles was much increased.

Eight Hundred Filipinos Surrender in a Body.

SMALL FORCE EFFECT THE CAPTURE

Rapid Advance of Troops Into the Interior—Natives of Mindano Turn On The Revolutionists—Greatest Triumph of the War.

A Manila, Dec. 2, 9:20 a. m. dispatch says General Connon surrendered 800 officers and men with rifles, several Americans and seventy Spanish prisoners and the garrison at Bayombong, province of Nueva Vizcaya, to Lieutenant Monroe, with fifty men of the Fourth cavalry.

Considerable interest is felt at Washington in the news of the surrender, particularly as the number is said to exceed that captured by the American troops at any one time. Bayombong is the city to which Aguinaldo at one time contemplated retreating for the purpose of locating the rebel capital, after he was forced to flee from Parlac, but the American troops pressed him so hard that he was unable to carry out his intention. General Otis' dispatch repeating information received from General Lawton, said it indicated that Bayombong had been captured on the 28th of November and is thought that is the same place referred to in the Manila dispatch. No information had been received at the war department regarding the surrender.

HE SAVED THEIR LIVES

Lieutenant Gilmore and Party Owe Their Lives to Aguinaldo.

When the landing party from the United States battleship Oregon, under Lieutenant-Commander McCracken, took the town of Vigan, province of South Ilicos, last Sunday, says a Manila dispatch of December 2, they found there an escaped prisoner, A. L. Sonnenshein, who furnished the first authentic account of the experiences of Lieutenant James C. Gilmore, of the gunboat Yorktown, who, with a party of the Yorktown, was captured by the insurgents near Baler, on the east coast of Luzon, last April while making an examination of the mouth of the river in an armed boat.

Mr. Sonnenshein was imprisoned at Abra for a long time with Lieutenant Gilmore and seven sailors, but contrived to escape, carrying a concealed note, written in naval cipher, dated Abra, November 19, addressed to "Any Naval Officer," and saying:

"You may have perfect confidence in anything the bearer says." The note was signed "Gilmore."

According to Mr. Sonnenshein, when Lieutenant Gilmore's launch entered the river, from Baler harbor, under cover of Ensign W. H. Standley's gun, the landing was received with three volleys. Two of the Americans were killed and two mortally wounded. Every man was hit, Lieutenant Gilmore receiving a flesh wound in the leg, and his foot stuck fast in the mud. It was a choice between surrender and being slaughtered.

Lieutenant Gilmore asked the terms of release, but they were of such character it was impossible for him to meet them, although he made an effort to do so.

The Americans were then bound hand and foot and taken to San Isidro, when General Luna ordered their execution. They were marched to the plaza, and in the presence of a great crowd, were aligned to be executed.

Lieutenant Gilmore said: "As an American officer and gentleman, I protest against being shot with my hands tied."

Aguinaldo interfered and prevented the execution. When General Lawton approached San Isidro last June, the Americans were removed to, Abra, where they were kept confined in cells for two months. Subsequently they were allowed greater liberty, but the report that Lieutenant Gilmore was given a house and servant is untrue. He had the same quarters as the men, and the Americans were given the same allowance as the Spanish prisoners—five cents a pay with which to buy rice and bananas, virtually the only rations.

CHANGE FAVORED BY MANY

Representation in National Convention Discussed.

In support of an argument made by the New York Press that the basis of representation in republican national conventions should be changed, that paper will publish a number of opinions received in reply to an effort to poll the national committeemen upon the subject. United States Senator Hanna and Charles S. Brayton of Rhode Island are non-committal.

Henry C. Payne of Wisconsin, Senator Scott of West Virginia, L. F. Hubbard of Minnesota and Frederick S. Gibbs of New York all favor a change. The concensus of their opinion is expressed by Mr. Payne, who protests at length against a policy which allows "one republican in Mississippi forty times as much voice in naming a candidate as one republican in the state of Illinois."

He cut his throat with a penknife and expired in a few moments.

The body was taken from the train at Plainview and prepared for burial. Rogers had the reputation in the Black Hills of being a desperate character and he was closely guarded on the trip by the sheriff and his deputy, but in some way eluded their vigilance and managed to cut his throat.

SAYS THAT IT IS BANKRUPT

Greater American Exposition Confesses Itself Insolvent.

The Greater American exposition association was to have appeared before Judge Munger in United States court at Omaha Wednesday, and through its officers show cause why it should not be adjudged bankrupt. Instead of the officers appearing, they were represented by their attorney, W. D. McHugh, who filed an answer, admitting all the allegations alleged in the petition of the creditors. This gave the case a new phase, as it was expected that a general denial would be filed. However, the attorney pleaded that he was not ready to go to trial, and took advantage of the ten days' continuance provided for under the provisions of the statute. The answer admits that the corporation was insolvent several weeks prior to the close of the show.

SHOOTS HIGHWAYMAN DEAD

South Omaha Bank Collector Battles With Footpads.

Harry Trumbull killed a highwayman in South Omaha. Trumbull was on his way home. Passing Twenty-fourth and J street, South Omaha, near a vacant lot, two men sprang out and grabbed him. One threw his arm around Trumbull's neck, seeking to throttle him, while the other masked man started to rifle the victims pockets. Having his hand on his revolver in his overcoat pocket, he shot one of the robbers dead, while the other escaped. Trumbull went to the police station where he is detained. He is collector for the Packer's National bank. The dead man is unknown and is about twenty-two years old.

An Honest Editor.

At a recent meeting of the Wisner town board a printing bill which had been allowed at the legal rate of $1 per square first insertion was, on the advice of Editor Kenower, of the Wisner Chronicle, reconsidered and cut down to 25 cents. In his defense of the action of the board in last week's issue of the Chronicle, Editor Kenower, state regent and reformer, admits that he charged the village of Wisner from January 1, 1887, to January 1, 1890, $1 per square first insertion, for publishing ordinances, etc., but finding that he had ignorantly been charging 75 cents per square too much, had only charged 25 cents straight since that time.

Fight Growing Bitter.

The fight in the township of Monroe over the question of incorporation is waging bitterly. On December 20 it will be carried into the courts. Albert & Reeder being the attorneys to handle the case for the petitioners, and Whitmeyer & Gondring for the faction opposed to incorporation. The two local papers of Monroe, the Republican and the Looking Glass, are arrayed for and against incorporation, respectively, and it is in a measure due to this, as well as personal animosity to Editor Gerard on account of his prohibition policy, that the office of the Looking Glass was broken into and wrecked last week.

OFFICIAL STATE CANVASS

Compilation Gives Holcomb a Majority of 15,107 Over M. B. Reese.

The official canvass completed yesterday by Secretary of State Porter gives Silas Holcomb a majority of 15,107 over Judge M. B. Reese, the republican candidate for judge of the supreme court. Edson Rich, one of the fusion candidates for regent of the university, came out with a majority of only 1,791 over McGilton, one of the republican candidates. J. L. Teeters, fusionist, received a majority of 6,783 over Ely, republican.

The exact majorities were not known until the state canvassing board completed the work of comparing the returns and footing up the figures. Many incorrect unofficial computations had been published, but all the interested persons were anxious to know the result, as it will stand on the records of the canvassing board. Judge Holcomb remained at the state house until the work of the board was completed. His vote was 109,320, while Reese received 94,213. One of the surprises was the increase in the prohibition vote. Chas. E. Smith, one of the prohibition candidates for regent, received 5,695 votes.

William Neville, fusion candidate for congress in the Sixth district, has a majority of only 2,354 over Moses Kinkaid.

BADLY BEATEN BY A BRUTE

Aged Woman of Lincoln Criminally Assaulted by a Young Man.

The charge of assault with intent to kill and commit rape has been placed against John W. Hayden, aged 23, a grocery clerk employed in Lincoln. His victim, Mary Dobson, is an old woman, seventy-seven years old, and keeps rooms for rent in the Carr building on P street.

Mrs. Dobson says Hayden came to her place and asked for a room. She did not notice that he was intoxicated. She showed him to a room, and returned to her own, three doors distant. She says that after Hayden had undressed he came to her room and began the assault, which she stoutly resisted. A terrible struggle ensued. She had a large piece of flesh bitten from her cheek; both her eyes were blacked, her head bears several cuts, and the room is spattered with blood. Hayden's clothing still bears blotches of blood. Hayden declares he must have been drunk, as he does not remember that he went to Mrs. Dobson's place, nor does he remember what occurred.

The piece of flesh bitten from Mrs. Dobson's cheek has been placed in spirits and is in the possession of the police. It will be kept for use at the trial.

Verdict of Not Guilty.

The jury in the district court took up the case of the State vs. William Jordan at Fremont. He is charged with rape on the person of Effie Lawson, a five-year-old girl. The case was attended with great interest during the week on account of the fact that the little girl's parents are well known. The jury brought in a verdict of not guilty.

Saloon for Fairmont.

The Fairmont saloon case came up in district court Monday. After hearing the evidence, Judge Hastings took the case under advisement, and decided the case in favor of the petitioners, so unless some other action is taken Fairmont will have a saloon, a thing it has not had for the last fifteen years.

The new Burlington depot at Friend has been completed. The building is 23x98 feet with a fourteen foot ceiling. The building has a stone foundation and is built of compressed brick. The Burlington is building another depot just like it at Kearney.

While Stephen, the fourteen-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Cunningham was delivering milk in the south part of Osceola and at the home of Josiah Locke, Mr. Locke's big dog lay on the porch, and when Stephen stepped up the dog jumped for him and buried his teeth in the boy's face, lacerating it quite badly. The dog had always been considered good, and this is the first time he has been known to be in the least vicious.

For 47 Years a Railroad Conductor.

Early this fall the management of the B. & O. R. R. decided that the uniformed force should be provided with service stripes, and on the winter uniforms each man has one or more gold stripes on his right sleeve if he has been in the service for five or more years. The gold stripe stands for five years continuous employment by the company and a glance over the list develops an interesting and instructive condition of affairs.

The ordinary man, in a peaceful and uneventful vocation, is seldom in continuous service for forty years, yet on the B. & O. R. R. there is a hale and hearty old man, with keen, undimmed eyes, and a springy step that has been in the continuous employ of the company for 50 years and is still better than many men half his age.

W. H. Green is his name, but everybody on the line calls him "Captain Harry" and he has a record that any man, in any station in life, would be more than proud of.

Captain Green is probably the oldest passenger conductor in the world. If he is not he has the best record, for not once has he been suspended from duty for any cause whatever. And then, too, he has never been injured. Green was born on September 12, 1827, in Cockeysville, Baltimore county, Md., and entered the B. & O. service March 3, 1850, as a freight brakeman. He was promoted in two years to freight conductor and in 1857 was given a passenger train and has served in that capacity ever since. He is now running through trains between Baltimore and Cumberland, Md., and wears ten service stripes on his right arm.

For many years B. & O. train employes have had an enviable reputation for politeness to passengers and attention to duty, and the adoption of the service stripe system will give the traveling public an opportunity to recognize long and faithful service.

Sugar Beets.

Washington Star: "There is an enormous crop of sugar beets in San Benito county, Cal., this year," said a gentleman who is largely interested in that product in California, to the writer recently. "The average yield is about twelve tons to an acre, which will net $3.50 per ton. As an illustration of the big profits that there are in this crop I have only to refer to three brothers who arrived in San Benito county last spring from Sweden, and, as an experiment, rented a farm of 275 acres, paying for it $7 an acre as the rent. They have raised not less than eighteen and probably twenty tons of beets to the acre. The work of cultivation has been done by the three brothers, with the assistance of one hired man, and it is estimated that they will make $6,000 this year above expenses."

There should be no objection to a lady lifting her skirts a little over two feet on a rainy day.

A Modern Instance.

The wonderful advance made in the science of farming during the last few years is one of the best examples of American progressiveness. A little incident recounted by the Ashtabula (Ohio) Sentinel is characteristic. One evening, a short time ago, a society in Jefferson needed a gallon of cream. The committee called up by telephone the proprietors of a milk farm two miles north of the town, and asked if they could furnish it. The reply was that they could as soon as milking was done. In thirty minutes from the time the call was made, the cream was delivered. The milk had been drawn from the cow, put into a separator, the cream extracted and sent to town by a man on a bicycle. A few years ago the committee would have had to send a boy in the afternoon, "yesterday's milk" would have had to be skimmed, and if the boy had not treed too many chipmunks on the way, he might have got back in time for the festival.

The Table Rock Argus.

P. H. TAYLOR, Publisher.

The man who handles the deposits in the "get-rich-quick" game is the only one who succeeds in its object. His victims put themselves together and begin to save their money anew for the benefit of the next shark with a glittering bonanza scheme.—Globe Democrat.

The prohibition party has filed its statement of campaign expenses After paying all bills a balance remained in the treasury, which might be turned over to help pay the deficit in the treasury or their populist allies. The principal expense seems to have been for literature, the liquor interests furnishing the drinks necessary to elect their candidate for supreme judge.—Omaha Bee.

The report of the postmaster general shows that the department run behind $6,610,776.76, the receipts from all sources being $5,021,384.17, while the expenditures were $11,632,160.92. While the deficit is much smaller than it has been for some years past, were it not for the abuses in second class matter, there would be a surplus instead of a deficit, and the abuses ought to be remedied as soon as possible.

There is something of a scramble for the place made vacant by the death of Senator Hayward, and friends of various candidates are using their influence with Governor Poynter to secure the appointment of their favorite. There is little doubt if the question were left to a majority of the fusion voters, ex-Senator Allen would come out away ahead. The governor's appointee will serve until the legislature convenes and elects a successor, so that the next legislature will have two United States senators to elect.

CONGRESS.

Washington, Dec. 4.—As early as 10 o'clock this morning an expectant throng buzzed about the public gallery and crowded the floor of the house. The prevailing question of the visitors seemed to be, "Where is Roberts?" At 10:15 he came in. All eyes were focused upon him and upon the pyramid which had been slowly erected in front of the speaker's desk. This pyramid, high beyond the ordinary man's reach, consisted of vast rolls of a flag covered with sheets arranged according to the states containing three million signatures protesting against the seating of Roberts. They were gathered by the league for social service and the national anti-polygamy league. Roberts looked at the huge pile and a smile flitted across his face. Then he fled into the cloak room.

Promptly at noon the members of the Fifty-sixth congress in the house were called to order by Clerk McDowell. Roberts, of Utah, in whom chief interest centered, occupied a prominent seat on the democratic side. The members arose when Chaplain Congdon offered prayer. When prayer was ended Clerk McDowell began the call of the roll. The clerk announced 352 members present. He next called for the election of speaker. General Grosvenor of Ohio, republican, proposed Gen. D. B. Henderson, of Iowa. Hay of Virginia, democrat, named James D. Richardson. Ridgley of Kansas, populist, proposed J. C. Bell of Colorado. On roll call Roberts voted for Richardson. The vote resulted Henderson 177, Richardson 153, Bell 4, Newlands 2.

Taylor of Ohio and Gray of Arkansas objected to the swearing in of Roberts and formally presented a petition of several million of signatures. The matter was referred to a special committee to be considered tomorrow. The other members were then sworn in.

Washington, Dec. 4.—Promptly at 12 o'clock today the senate was called to order by Frye of Maine, president pro tempore of that body. Dr Milburn, the blind chaplain, in his prayer feelingly and appropriately alluded to the death of Vice President Hobart. At 12:10 the senate adjourned until noon tomorrow in respect to the memory of Vice President Hobart.

Washington, Dec. 4.—In the senate today Cokerill moved the reference of Quay's credentials to the the elections committee, which was carried. Chandler's resolution in favor of seating Quay was also referred.

Bert Reavis sustained very severe injuries in the foot ball game last Saturday. In one of the scrimmages his left leg was twisted in such a way as to tear the ligaments loose, both at the ankle and at the knee. The injured member became badly swollen and was exceedingly painful. It will prevent him from indulging in any violent exercise for a long time. He is able to get around now with the aid of a cane.—Falls City Journal.

Brave Bill Anthony, the marine who reported the blowing up of the Maine to Captain Sigsbee, committed suicide yesterday owing to dispondency over his inability to find employment. It is little to the credit of the great eastern metropolis, the city which made so much noise and fanfaronade over the home coming of Dewey, that a plain man who had served his country nobly, could not gain a livelihood within its boundaries.—Chicago News.

Mrs R Churchill, Berlin, Vt., says, "Our baby was covered with running sores. DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve cured her." A specific for piles and skin diseases. Beware of worthless counterfeits.

SENATOR HAYWARD DEAD.

Nebraska City, Neb., Dec. 5.—(Special to The News.)—After twenty five days illness Senator M L Hayward breathed his last at 6:20 this morning, surrounded by his entire family, with the exception of his son Dr Edward Hayward, who is in the Philippines as a surgeon in the regular army.

The senator was taken ill on November 9th, while on his way from his office to his home, which he reached without assistance. He took to his bed at once and has not since been able to leave it. The physicians pronounced the disease progressive paralysis, and since that time, while at intervals he has seemed to rally and be somewhat better, he has gradually grown weaker physically until the end came.

Sunday evening the senator became unconscious, the change being caused by inflammation about the blood clot on the left side of the head, which gradually extended over the whole brain. Everthing possible that medical skill and loving and devoted hands could do has been done to relieve the sufferings of the patient and bring about his recovery.

Many realized from the first that the chances were largely against his recovery, but all hoped against hope. After the first few days his speech and brain became affected. He could speak only in short, jerky sentences, and his ideas had a strange confusion. Towards the last he realized that his end was near, and the near approach of death seemed to overwhelm him.

Among his friends the belief is that the great mental and nervous strain to which he was subjected in the senatorial contest of last winter was the primary cause of his illness. Previous to that he had enjoyed excellent health and an immunity from illness, but despite the fact that he took a long rest during the summer, he had never fully recovered. For several weeks prior to being last stricken he had worked hard straightening up his affairs in order that he might spend the winter at Washington, and this doubtless brought on the fatal stroke.

At the time of Senator Hayward's death there were present at his bedside his wife, his daughter, Miss Mattie, his son Major Wm. Hayward, his brother, Major E B Hayward and wife of Davenport, Iowa, his physician, Dr E M Whitten, Hon Paul Jessen and John W Dixen.

He was dead mentally for hours before his decease and his life ebbed away as he lay in an unconscious state. The remains will be interred in this city. No arrangements for the funeral will be made until word is received from Washington. His wife and family are bearing up well under their great sorrow.

The funeral of Senator Hayward will take place at his late home in Nebraska City at 2 o'clock Thursday.

The Way Wymore Saw It.

The football game between the crack team from Table Rock and the Wymore eleven which took place at Athletic park last Saturday afternoon was one of the most stubborn games ever played in southern Nebraska, and was won by Table Rock on a fumble, by a score of five to nothing.

The teams were nearly evenly matched Table Rock making her gains by end plays, while Wymore excelled in straight line bucking. The work of the home team was a suprise to all. They had not played a game together and the fact that they were up against a team which had been playing together since the first of October and had only met one defeat, led many to believe that our boys would not stand any show whatever.

Every member of the team did good work and the Wymore line was invincible. Table Rock never tried to go through the line but once and then they lost fifteen yards. However, they were able to make small gains by end plays. The game was marred by a most deplorable accident, in which Wymore's right end, Ed Feese, had his collar bone broken, and to this is attributed the loss of the game. The Table Rock boys themselves admit that had Feese remained in the game, neither side would have scored.

The game was called at 3 p. m., and the halves were to have been of 35 minutes duration. Table Rock won the toss and selected the south goal Mauck kicked off for Wymore to Table Rock's 25-yard line and the ball was returned five yards when Lonquest downed the bearer. After two downs Wymore won the ball on a fumble and made repeated gains through the center, but unfortunately lost the ball on a fumble at Table Rock's 15-yard line. Table Rock secured the ball and Woods, the clever little half back for the visitors, made end gains of ten and fifteen yards and with only a minute to play the ball was within 2 yards of Wymore's goal. Here is where Ed Feese received a broken collar bone and at the same time kept the visitors from scoring a touchdown, and the half was ended without either side scoring. Lonquest was put in Feese's place and Mabary was put in the game.

SECOND HALF.

Table Rock kicks to Wymore's 30 yard line and the ball was returned by Wheeler to center of field when the home team lost the ball on downs. Table Rock takes the ball but fails to make the necessary gains and the ball goes back to Wymore.

The ball was on dangerous ground when a fumble gave the ball to Table Rock and Woods carried it over the line for the only touch-down of the game. It was mere accident and was not won by superior playing. Table Rock failed to kick goal and the score remained 5 to 0.

The game was one of the best ever seen on the home grounds and Table Rock says it is the strongest line they have bucked this year. There is no doubt that had it not been for the unfortunate injury to Feese, neither side would have scored.—Wymorean.

A stockman named J W Dowlin, whose home is at Buffalo, Wyo., and who was enroute south with a shipment of horses, was severely injured at Sterling Tuesday evening. In stepping off the train at that place, his foot struck the rail in such a way that it was turned and coming in contact with the hard earth, the ankle was dislocated and the large bone broken just above the ankle. He called for help and succeeded in dragging himself on the car platform when train men and passengers came to his aid and he was brought to Table Rock, when B & M physician attended to his injuries and he rested here until the passenger train east yesterday morning when he continued his journey to St Joseph. He was a nervy fellow and stood the painful operation of having his leg reset with but one protest. While the doctor was pulling the foot to the proper place the patient said "Hold a minute, doctor; you'll have to give me a short rest, or I'll swear a little bit, and I don't want to do that."

The case of Miss Grace E. Grew against the village of Peru for damages, to the amount of $10,000 on account of disability caused by injuries received from a defective sidewalk, for the third time was up for trial at this term of court and for the second time the jury failed to agree. This result necessitates another trial at the next term of court. The Post hears that great dissatisfaction and some ill feeling exists among the jury on account of their failure to reach a verdict for the plaintiff. And rumor has it that the dissenting part of the jury refused to compromise because of the bad precedent which the case might then become to some ambitious and perhaps calculating Auburnite.—Auburn Post.

Being strongly and heavily built, it rides smoothly, is warm in winter and cool in summer.

Cars leave Omaha, St. Joseph, Lincoln and Hastings every Thursday, arriving San Francisco following Sunday, Los Angeles Monday. Only three days from the Missouri River to the Pacific Coast, including a stop-over of 1½ hours at Denver and 2½ hours at Salt Lake City—two of the most interesting cities on the continent.

YOURS TO PLEASE.

W. L. TAYLOR, Proprietor.

Editor Argus: By your kind permission, it will be my pleasure, as well as duty, to speak a few words in behalf of your townsman, Walter A. Layton, against whom charges of a very grave nature have recently been made. Such charges, in places where he is well known would be given no credence; but as he is almost a stranger to a majority of your readers, we deem it proper and only justice to give, as we may term it, a sketch of his life, the most of which has been spent in Marshall County, Kansas; when a boy of seventeen he entered Baker University. After a year or two at that institution he attended the State Normal at Emporia. He then taught several terms of school in districts near Axtell, one being in his home district, he was accounted a successful teacher, but had imbibed a taste for the profession of law, and to that end entered that department at the state university from which institution he graduated with the highest honors of his class in June 98, and that fall came to live among the people of Table Rock.

The writer has known Mr Layton a number of years; knew of him in his home where he was regarded as a model son and brother; knew of him as a student in those different places of learning, having been favored with the acquaintance of many of his college and classmates, who invariably spoke of him in the highest terms and think we can truthfully state that all through these years his character has been above reproach; that he has endeared himself in a peculiar way to his relatives, friends, and neighbors, is due to the fact that he has tried to live a christian life, And though he may err, his mistakes will be of the head and not of the heart; we know him to be a true man, worthy of the confidence of the community in which he lives.

Much more we would like to say, but will desist as it might seem overdrawn, as also distasteful to Mr Layton, who does not court eulogies and would be content to be exempt from the slanderous tongue, and have only justice done him.

Respectfully Yours,
L. L. Axos.

Thoughts of Christmas.

The Holiday season, that good season when men and women feel the force of the Christian sentiment "It is more blessed to give then receive," has come again. Once more we hang the latch string to the door on the outside; once more the spirit of Santa Claus is in the air; the world is again on the threshold of the happiest days of all the year. Christmas time, when old hearts are young again and young hearts are light and gay, is here to soothe and bless mankind once more.

It will be a happy Christmas for those who read my suggestions of useful things particularly suitable for gifts for men. It will be an easy task to select them if you come here. Men like the things that are useful and you can depend on the correctness of everything you purchase here.

Neckwear is always acceptable for Christmas and this is the place you want to get it. We have the largest, most complete and exclusive stock. Among our new styles are the English Square and Imperial, Mulford Puffs: Once Overs and Prince of Wales Bows. Other appropriate gifts purchased to best advantage here are: Gloves, Fancy Suspenders with silver and gold buckles, embroidered Suspenders Oxford and Square Mufflers, Silk Umbrellas, fancy Hose, Fur Mits, Slippers, Knives. Night Robes, Razor Cases, Cuff and Collar cases, in fact every thing for men from an Overcoat to a Plug of Tobacco.

HOLIDAY PERFUMES

Have you noticed that our perfumes are more lasting and odors more delicate than those you usually get elsewhere? it is due to the novel way we have in selecting them. We will be glad to show you our latest specialities whether you wish to by or not. And while here we will be only too glad too show you the most complete line of Toys, Dolls, Books, Inkstands, Blocks, Games, Balls, Writing Tablets, Pocket Books, Grain Morocco, Alligator and Seal, Celluloid Glove and Hankerchief Boxes, Hand Mirrors, Ladies Ties and the nicest line of Albums, to select from that ever came to Table Rock.

A Word to the Little Ones.

We have a fine line of Candies, Nuts, Dates, Figs, Oranges, and on Dec. 25, Christmas day, will give all our little boys and girls who visit our store a nice treat, now will be glad to meet all your happy faces.

Erick-a-Brack.

Glassware, Lamps, a wonderful line of China at low prices. Beautiful Cups and Saucers, Cream and Sugar Teapots, Chocolate Pots, Crocker Jars, Cake Plates, Toilet Trays, Pen Trays, Pin Trays, Vases, Bon Bons, Salads, in all the latest colors in direct imitation of Dresden and Austrian designs at half the price. And now what makes a more suitable gift or one that is more appreciated than a handsome dress pattern for mother or sister. We can offer you a stock to select from at prices that will tease your purse, to mention what we have in stock to attract and tempt you to buy your goods from us would be useless, yet we do not exagerate in saying that our line of Holiday Goods is the nicest in the nicest in the town. Speak about prices we are not only as low but lower on an average throughout. We realize there is two ways of doing a thing, a right way and the other way. We believe in order to catch good trade, we have to place good goods before them, and this reminds us of the minister with a far away Connecticut look on his face, mounted on a raw-bone, hat-rack horse and headed for Boston coming too where two roads meet he asked a dirty urchin the nearest road to town. "Who be you anyhow?" demanded the urchin, "I'm a follower of the Lord, my son," replied the divine. "Well it don't make no difference which road you take, Mister you'll never catch him with that Nag."

We might say more, but we are modest and have trimmed our smile accordingly.

YOURS FOR A MERRY CHRISTMAS AND HAPPY NEW YEAR,

W. C. FELLERS.

George A Hansell has been appointed deputy sheriff by our incoming officer, John Hossack. The selection is a good one and demonstrates that Mr Hossack is a man of sound judgment. No better selection could have been made, and in accord with Mr Hansell's numerous friends, the Standard extends congratulations. We are all pleased that the appointment fell to a west end man.—Humboldt Standard.

BURNED AT STAKE

The Awful Fate of a Negro Ravisher In Kentucky.

AWFUL VENGEANCE OF WOMAN'S FRIENDS

Thousands in the Mob but Not One to Plead for Mercy or Put Him Out of His Misery—Governor Bradley Will Act in the Matter.

When Murderer Dick Coleman colored, arrived at Maysville, Ky., Wednesday, in charge of officers, to stand trial, he and his escorts were met by a mob of fully a thousand people, headed by Ames Lashbrook, the husband of the woman whom Coleman murdered. The mob took him from the officers and went immediately up Second street through the central portion of the city to the hill, followed by at least 5,000 persons. All was done that was possible by the sheriff to prevent a lynching, but in the face of such a mob of people, irrespective of color, it was useless to attempt to do anything. Coleman was grabbed and a rope thrown over his head. He could be heard above the cries of the mob, pleading for his life.

The mob carried Coleman to a small hollow near the railroad, where he was bound tightly to a young sapling. Then a huge pile of brushwood and timber was heaped around him and the stack fired, while his eyes rolled horribly. Someone cut his eyes out and in a moment his head rolled around and he was believed to be dead.

Around the funeral pyre were thousands of maddened people. A dozen torches were applied simultaneously and huge tongues of fire swept up and around the poor wretch.

Before the roasting began Coleman was almost dead. The rope had torn and lacerated his neck and his face was terribly beaten up.

The crime for which Coleman was burned is the murder of Mrs. James Lashbrook, who had given him a home and food. She was enticed by him to enter a shed to see about some work, when he knocked her down with a club and assaulted her. The blow did not kill her, and Coleman, notwithstanding her cries for mercy, procured a razor and cut her throat. He was removed to escape mob violence.

Some men deprecate mob law, but say this was an exception to all rules. Coleman's mother is on her way to take charge of the ashes of her son.

All that was left of the body of Dick Coleman have now been raked out of the embers and buried in the potters' field. It was only a skull and two or three charred bones. All the rest of the body was ghastly fragments, widely distributed among relic connoisseurs. Perfect quiet now reigns in the city.

Governor Bradley has only five days of his administration remaining, but he will make an effort in that time to have the Maysville mob which burned Dick Coleman vigorously prosecuted. He will offer a reward for the apprehension of the mob.

Coleman has been kept in the jail at Covington, Ky., since his arrest for fear of mob violence at Maysville.

WOOD MADE MAJOR GENERAL

President McKinley Makes Promotion in Military Line.

The president has nominated Brigadier General Leonard Wood to be major general of volunteers. According to the officials of the war department the promotion of General Wood to the grade of major general of the volunteers is not likely to cause the immediate change in his position and duties as commander of the military provinces of Santiago and Puerto Principe. General Wood said that he expected to return to Santiago in a few days. As major general of volunteers General Wood will be the second ranking officer in Cuba, his single military superior being Major General Brooke, commanding the department, who is a major general in the regular establishment. General Wood's advancement gives him rank above Generals Wilson, Lee, Wheeler, Bates, Young, Chaffee and Ludlow, all of whom were senior to him in the volunteer army.

Washington Memorial Day.

The George Washington memorial association of Washington, has made public a request that on December 14, 1899, the centennial anniversary of Washington's death, all the schools of the land will suspend the regular order of exercises at 11 o'clock a. m. and devote twenty minutes to a memorial program, including a brief eulogy of the life and character of our first president, George Washington.

Party Leaders Confer.

Republican, democratic and independent senators, the last being the populist and free silver republican senators, held meetings to consider committee organization. There was a general understanding that the republicans should have a clear majority on all committees.

The Emilio Nunez patriot club at Havana, composed of Spaniards and Cubans, has issued a manifesto to the Cuban people. It says in part:

"Cubans are unnecessarily anxious with regard to the attention of the United States government. The facts do not warrant their suspicions. Heretofore the Americans have kept strictly to the terms of the joint resolutions of congress, and the recent declarations of Secretary Root bid fair to fulfill the desires of Cubans who are now thoroughly united. Even those among us who were formerly the subjects of a hostile nation now recognize the justice of the claims of Cuba.

SCANT NEWS FROM WAR

British Censorship Very Rigid and But Little Filtering Through.

A London dispatch of December 6 says that the censorship continues to be of the strictest character. Virtually no news is allowed to pass except diaries of events within the beleaguered garrisons and positions.

According to the latest accounts of the battle of Modder river, the Boer fire was the hottest on record and will revolutionize existing theories. It was effective up to 1,600 yards, but the casualties among the Boer troops was trifling. It was found impossible to bring the British ammunition reserve to the firing line. Many Boers wearing Red Cross badges were actually engaged in serving out ammunition. In connection with the many accusations against the Boer indifference to the laws of war, a letter published in Capetown asserts that before the Transvaal ultimatum was sent, the Boer leaders discussed the policy of using the white flag when driven in a corner, in order to deceive the British commanders, and this policy was generally approved.

It is reported that the mobilization of a Seventh division will be ordered at Aldershot, as a preparation for emergencies.

ATTACKED BY LARGE FORCE

Eight Americans Killed in Severe Engagement With Rebels.

Word from Manila, under date of December 6, at 11 a. m., says: Last night a force of insurgents estimated at 800 attacked the American garrison of 200 at Vigan, province of South Ilocos. The American loss was eight killed and many wounded.

After very hard fighting the Filipinos were driven off and through the mountains, leaving thirty-five dead. Colonel Bisbee is now reinforcing the garrison.

Fears are entertained regarding the various small bodies of General Young's troops now in the province of Abra.

A special cablegram from Hong Kong to the New York Evening World says that the Filipinos there announce that Aguinaldo is ready to surrender if Consul Wildman will receive him at Manila. The dispatch adds that the Filipino junta at Hong Kong was in communication with Aguinaldo last week and advised him then to throw himself on the mercy of the United States.

FIND MOTIVE FOR MURDER

Some Interesting Testimony Taken at the Molineux Trial.

The surprise of the day in the trial of Roland B. Molineux in New York for the murder of Katherine J. Adams, was the sudden introduction by the prosecution of direct testimony that Molineux harbored bitter enmity toward Harry Cornish and A. A. Harpster, a former employe of the Knickerbocker A. C., and a friend of Cornish; further, that Molineux sought in a roundabout way, by having an agent write to Harpster's former employer over a false signature to obtain information reflecting on Harpster's character that he might use the information to Harpster's injury. This new testimony, which was extracted from an unwilling friend of Molineux, is important, not only as showing a motive for Molineux seeking the death of Cornish, but as confirming the theory of the prosecution that Molineux wrote or caused to be written several letters, falsely signed, asking for drugs and medicines.

RETREAT BEFORE HUGHES

Insurgents Falling Back—No More Organized Resistance Expected.

A Manila, December 5, special says that General Hughes now occupies Santa Barbara and Cubutuan, island of Panay, his lines extending thirty-five miles north of Iloilo. He has occupied twenty towns. The inhabitants are returning with white flags, their fear of the Americans diminishing as they learn that they will all be well treated.

It is impossible for General Hughes to get the insurgents to fight. They are retreating to the mountains and no more organized resistance is expected. The artillery wagon mules are being used in the pursuit. General Hughes continues advancing northward and is spreading his lines.

To Divide Nebraska.

Representative Burkett Thursday introduced a bill dividing Nebraska into two federal districts, which would make Lincoln independent of Omaha in the matter of court terms. There has been much demand for this, and a bill to the same effect was introduced in the last congress by Mr. Strode.

Marry in Smallpox Hospital.

Charles Day and Miss Anna Maltby were married in the smallpox hospital opened at Corning Ia. Miss Maltby was there under quarantine, the disease having appeared in her family. Neither of the contracting parties had the disease.

The senate finance bill made public Tuesday was well received by the republican members of the house who framed the house bill, says a Washington dispatch. Mr. Overstreet of Indiana, who introduced the house bill, said that little difficulty was anticipated in reconciling the two measures. The bonding feature of the senate bill was the chief point of difference from the house bill and beyond this, he said, the bills proceeded on the same lines, the differences being those of phraseology. It is believed that these differences will readily be adjusted in a conference committee.

A DOUBLE TRAGEDY

Mysterious Crime at Odessa Blotting Out Two Lives.

A MAN SHOT, A WOMAN POISONED

The Husband of the Dead Woman Was First to Give the Alarm—Was Arrested Later—Verdict of the Coroner's Jury as Given.

Odessa, ten miles west of Kearney, was the scene of a double tragedy enacted about midnight Wednesday, and as a result Mrs. F. L. Dinsmore and Fred Laue are dead.

Shortly after midnight Mr. Dinsmore went to the home of Frank Tussing and told him that something terrible had happened over at the house; that Laue had killed Mrs. Dinsmore and committed suicide.

When they reached the house they found the dead body of Mrs. Dinsmore on the kitchen floor, and near her a tin cup which is supposed to contain a poison, and which will be used at the inquest this afternoon. Her body has already commenced to discolor.

Mr. Laue was found dead in bed upstairs with a bullet hole in his head. Only one shot had been fired.

Both families occupied the same house. It is reported that Mrs. Laue says her husband woke her up about midnight, kissed her good-bye and then shot himself.

It is also said that Dinsmore says his wife went to the kitchen to get a drink and as she remained so long he went to ascertain the trouble, and found her dead.

These coincidences are very strange. There were no marks of violence of any description on the body of Mrs. Dinsmore to show that she met death from violence. Mr. and Mrs. Dinsmore were married July 20 last, and Mr. and Mrs. Laue were witnesses. Her maiden name was Lillian Bloomfield, and she came from Chicago, where she has a sister and also has a brother in Missouri.

Dinsmore is a grain buyer at Odessa, and has been regarded as an exemplary citizen. He is under arrest.

The coroner's jury brought in the following verdict:

"The jury finds that Fred Laue came to his death by means of a bullet wound on the right temple, which waund was caused by the firing of a revolver in the hands of some person other than himself, and further, that said bullet was shot feloniously.

The findings in the case of Mrs. Dinsmore's death was that she had come to her death by poison administered or taken feloniously.

F. L. Dinsmore, husband of the dead woman, was taken to Kearney and placed in jail. Mrs. Fred Laue was left at home on account of her three small children, but will probably be watched.

The tragedy may always remain a mystery, as there is no direct evidence that a crime had been committed, Mr. Dinsmore being held merely on suspicion. The residents of Odessa are unable to advance any theory as to why either of the persons now dead should wish to die. Both couples always appeared happy and were respected by the community.

Freeman Case Taken Up.

The case in the district court at Beatrice, wherein Daniel Freeman asks for a mandamus compelling the school board in his district to eliminate the use of the Bible and the singing of hymns in the school has been called before Judge Letton. Witnesses were examined mainly to establish the fact that the teacher read from the Bible, when the attorneys submitted their arguments. Pemberton and Richards appeared for the plaintiff, Kretsinger and Murphy for the school directors. The plaintiff was the principal witness for his side.

Yellow Fever Outbreak.

Reports from Costa Rica indicate that yellow fever has appeared in the interior of the country. For the first time on record cases of the disease have broken out in Alajuela, twelve miles from the capital, where, on account of its high altitude it was not believed yellow fever could develop. Several of the patients have died. The government is taking vigorous measures to stamp out the disease.

Awarded Damages Against City.

The jury in the case of William Mendelson vs. the village of Plainview, tried in the district court, awarded the plaintiff $2,400. The bill of particulars alleged that Mendelson's wife, on account of a defective sidewalk, broke her ankle, from which she never recovered. The case may be taken to the supreme court.

Blackleg Among the Cattle.

Blackleg has made its appearance among several herds of cattle in the vicinity of Wilcox, several cases of which have resulted fatally. A number of farmers are inoculating their cattle with blackleg vaccine virus which it is hoped will check the ravages of the disease.

Cruel to the Inmates.

W. A. Elliott, superintendent of the Pocahontas county poor farm at Fort Douglas, Ia., has been arrested for cruelty in mistreating the inmates. It is charged that he horsewhipped some, kicked others and failed to respect sex or privacy of one of the female inmates.

To Look After Islands.

Representative Tawney of Minnesota has introduced a bill in congress to provide for a committee of seventeen to look after the affairs of the islands. It is to be known as the insular committee.

THE ALL-YEAR PLAN READY

Acting Chancellor Bessey Wants University Kept Open the Year Round.

Acting Chancellor Bessey of the state university intends to bring before the regents at their coming meeting next week the question as to the advisability of keeping the university open throughout the year, as he outlined it in his opening address in September. This plan divides the year into four quarters of twelve weeks, each separated by a week of recess. These four quarters are, to a considerable extent, independent of one another, sufficiently so as to enable students to enter upon profitable work at the beginning of any quarter in the year. This plan has been found to accommodate students and faculty much better than the present plan of turning over one quarter for vacation to all students and all members of the faculty. It does not involve the necessity of any student's continuing his work throughout the whole year. He may as now study three-quarters and rest one quarter, or he may study two quarters or even a single quarter and still be able to carry on his work profitably. There are some students, however, who are able to carry the work throughout the year, and for such the all-year plan will permit graduation in three years instead of four. For the faculty also this plan will have many advantages. It is not the intention to require a teacher to continue his work throughout the whole year, but to give him the opportunity of electing which quarter he will take for his period of rest, recreation or study. Some time ago Acting Chancellor Bessey had a personal interview with President Harper of the university of Chicago, who introduced this plan into that institution, and the result of this conference is that the acting chancellor feels still more certain that it will be advisable eventually to adopt the all-year plan.

CAN READ BIBLE IN SCHOOL

Judge Letton at Beatrice Dismisses Suit of Daniel Freeman.

At Beatrice Judge Letton decided the case wherein Daniel Freeman asked for a writ of mandamus compelling the school board in his district to discontinue the use of the bible and the Gospel Hymn book in the school. The writ was denied.

The court delivered quite a lengthy opinion in the case, holding that there was more in the reading of the bible in the schools than for the purpose of making it a place of worship. He held that the selection of the passages of scripture to be read and of the songs to be sung, should be left to the school board for examination and discrimination.

May Erect Big Tinshop.

Contracts are being figured on for a big tinshop at the Armour plant at South Omaha. The building, as proposed, will be 125 feet long by 75 feet in width, and four stories in height. As soon as bids can be submitted it is the intention to commence the erection of the structure. Brick work on the big Armour warehouse is up to the fourth story and the framework is completed to the seventh story.

Fire in Factory.

At Reading, Pa., one of the most appalling fires that has ever visited the city occurred Friday, when the extensive hosiery mill of the Nolde & Horst company took fire, destroying the plant, causing the death of one person, at least, and injuring about sixty other employes of the company. The known dead is Miss Louise Clay, aged forty-eight years.

The Odessa Tragedy.

The latest developements in the Odessa tragedy is the arrest of Frank L. Dinsmore at the instance of County Attorney Fred Nye charging him with murder, and the rumor that Mrs. Laue will be arrested also. The body of Mrs. Dinsmore was taken to Kearney and prepared for burial.

Killed in a Mine.

A telegram received at Osceola by relatives of Samuel Pulver, conveys the information that he was killed in a mine at Tineton Utah. The young man was born and raised in Osceola and went with his parents to Utah several years ago.

Fearfully Injured.

John Carey, aged 61, who works in Kreigel's factory at Nebraska City, was caught in a belt and thrown with much force against a shaft. His leg was so badly injured that it was found necessary to amputate it.

Epidemic Under Control.

The epidemic of scarlet fever which has been prevalent in the vicinity of Wilcox is now well under control, and so far no deaths have resulted. A very strict quarantine has been established by the authorities.

Bound Over.

At York Carey Sell was bound over to district court for statutory rape, his bond being fixed at $1,000. He was unable to give it and went to jail.

Herman Tiehen is the prime mover in an enterprise for a new Catholic church ot Salem. He is giving one-fourth the cost.

Arrives at Vigan.

A dispatch from Otis Thursday says General Young's brigade, which, according to dispatches had been lost on the island of Luzon for several days, has arrived at Vigan. It had a skirmish on the way, in which one American was killed and twelve wounded. The enemy was driven back, leaving twenty-five dead.

A Washington dispatch to the Chronicle says the next national republican convention will be held in Chicago, as McKinley expressed a preference for this city.

Mr. Isaac Brock, the Oldest Man in the United States.

Mr. Isaac Brock, of McLennan county, Tex., has attained the great age of 111 years, having been born in 1788. He is an ardent friend to Peruna and speaks of it in the following terms:

"During my long life I have known a great many remedies for coughs, colds, catarrh and diarrhoea. I had always supposed these affections to be different diseases, but I have learned from Dr. Hartman's books that these affections are the same and are properly called catarrh.

"As for Dr. Hartman's remedy, Peruna, I have found it to be the best, if not the only reliable remedy for these affections.

"Peruna has been my stand-by for many years, and I attribute my good health and my extreme age to this remedy. It exactly meets all my requirements.

"I have come to rely upon it almost entirely for the many little things for which I need medicine. I believe it to be especially valuable to old people."

Rob Cleverdale's Adventure.

By Seward W. Hopkins.

Copyrighted, 1899, by Robert Bonner's Sons.

CHAPTER I.

A Long Journey—A Terrible Plunge.

"Hurrah! Hurrah! Here it is, mother! At last! At last!"

The morning mail had just come in. Rob Cleverdale held aloft a square package, bearing the stamp and postmark of a republic in South America. Mrs. Cleverdale smiled.

"How eager you are," she said.

"And why would I not be, mother?" asked Rob. "When a fellow has an uncle and aunt and cousin whom he has never seen, and no other relatives in the world, he must be eager to see their pictures."

"And themselves, Rob?"

"Oh! If I only could! But, quick! Get it open! Oh, quick!"

It was evident that Mrs. Cleverdale was as eager as Rob, for her hand trembled as she undid the package.

"Oh! Oh!"

Rob's head was close to his mother's. Together they studied the photographs that had been sent from faraway Buenos Ayres. One was that of a handsome, elderly gentleman, with white hair and beard; another was that of a fine-looking lady, his wife, and the third, the one that had brought the expression of delight from Rob, was that of a beautiful young lady, about four years older than Rob himself. Rob was at this time about fifteen.

"So that's my cousin Elsie!" said Rob. "And Uncle David, and Aunt Anita. Isn't Elsie nice, mother?"

Mrs. Cleverdale did not answer. She leaned back in her chair and gazed with moist eyes at the face of her only brother and the picture of his only child.

"It seems so strange," said Bob, not noticing his mother's abstraction, "to be looking at the pictures of people I have never seen. Do you think I will ever see Uncle David or Elsie, mother?"

He did not seem so eager to see Aunt Anita. He knew that his uncle had married a wealthy lady of Buenos Ayres, and he felt rather in awe of the proud face with the black eyes that looked at him from the card.

"I hope so, Rob."

"But so far away!" said Rob. "Don't they ever come to New York to see you?"

"Your Uncle David is a very busy man," she said. "I don't suppose he ever has any time to go visiting. He owns so many interests in all parts of that country that they keep him occupied. I fancy, if you ever do see him, you will go there."

"Go there! What! Me go to South America!"

There was so much eager delight in Rob's words that Mrs. Cleverdale wiped an unbidden tear from her eye.

"Yes, Rob," she said. "I have not mentioned this before, because the subject was very painful to me. But it is time now for you to know something of the future that has been arranged for you. As you know, we are not rich. Your father was not one of the money-making kind. He was a good man, and a scholarly one. But he preferred to work for a stated salary rather than to strike out in risky enterprises for himself. So, when he died, he left us with nothing. My brother, David Horton, was just the opposite in nature. He went to Buenos Ayres when he was young, and started his career raising cattle and horses. He made money and married a lady of Buenos Ayres who was quite wealthy. Then he branched out and took up other lines of business, and now he is the controller of many of the industries in the Argentine Confederation. He is a banker in Buenos Ayres, and is the friend of the president. In fact, he is known to be the mainstay of the government in financial matters. Then he has silver mines on La Plata River, and gold mines on distant islands. He owns vast cattle ranges on the pampas, and ships that go to every country in the world. He is a merchant, yes, a merchant prince. His ships bring him treasure from all over."

"Why, he's just like Solomon was, with his ships and mines and things!" said Rob.

"I fancy, if the relative value of money was considered, your Uncle David would be found almost as rich as Solomon," said Mrs. Cleverdale, laughing at Rob's amazement. "But we must get on with our story. You know that I have looked for a letter from Buenos Ayres every three months. Well, that letter contains a remittance from Uncle David of five hundred dollars. That is what we are living on—what we have lived on since your poor father died."

"Oh! But I'll pay him all back some day, mother. Don't fear. I'll pay him all back."

Mrs. Cleverdale hugged Rob, and he did not see the tears that rolled down her cheeks.

"Yes, dear, you will pay him. And the time for that has come. I must read you a letter I received from him a short time ago. It is in reply to one I wrote him."

There was such evident emotion in his mother's manner that Rob looked at her in astonishment. He could see nothing to agitate her in the conversation they had. Mrs. Cleverdale left her chair and took from a drawer in her desk a letter bearing the same stamp as the package containing the pictures. She opened this, but did not at once begin to read. It was by this time apparent to Rob that his mother was feeling very sad. And if there was any one feature in Rob's nature that was stronger than another, it was his love for his mother. He put his arms around her and said:

"Don't read it, mother, if it makes you cry. Put the old thing away."

"No," she replied, patting his head. "It is for your good, my boy, and I must be brave. Uncle David is wise and shrewd. He knows what is best."

"Solomon again," said Rob.

"Listen," said Mrs. Cleverdale, beginning to read:

"LISTEN," SAID MRS. CLEVERDALE BEGINNING TO READ.

Bank of Buenos Ayres, Nov. 10, 189—.

My Dear Sister.—I have read your letter—the last one, in which you ask about Rob—at least six times. And at every reading I reach a new conclusion. Now, however, after the last reading, I think I have solved the problem of his future, and I have no doubt you will agree with me in that I have solved it well. To return to your letter, you have, as I understand, made some arrangement to give up your lonely housekeeping and make your home with Mrs. Seymour, your old school friend, and more than sister, who lives in Brooklyn. You feel that it is time Rob began to think of his career, or for you to think for him. I agree with you fully. If you were sure that the boy was adapted to a professional life I would say keep him at college, and I would see that he got through his professional studies and had enough capital to start life upon. But there is no certainty that this is so. I fear that he may have inherited the scholarly tastes and fine temperament of his father, together with his lack of worldly push. If this were so, it is time now to take him in hand and make a man of him. If you thought seriously of engineering, which you mentioned, I would say go ahead. But I have studied all the projects you spoke of, and cannot see that there is any better one than I am about to lay down to you. And I do not mind telling you that there is a strain of selfishness in my plan, so you need not feel that I am doing anything by way of charity. This arrangement will undoubtedly be as advantageous to me as to him. As you know, my interests are vast. I have so many investments that require personal attention that I am busy every waking hour. And besides myself there is no one in whom I can place any confidence. Now, my dear sister, I am getting old. I need a younger head—a younger hand—to take hold out here and help me. Rob is young—so much the better—he will be the more easily trained to my methods of business. You see my way of looking at it—now to my proposition. Bring Rob down here. Or, if your health is not good, as you say, I advise you not to bring, but to send him. There are times in the year when this climate is not good for weak lungs, notwithstanding the name. Go to your friend in Brooklyn and let me have Rob. I will put him at once in my office, or in the bank, and use him as a sort of private secretary. If he shows adaptability, this will enable him to grasp the details of the large concern, and by the time he is twenty he will either be of incalculable value to me or not worth his salt. I will continue the remittance of two thousand a year to you, or increase it if you wish. I will give Rob a fair salary to start on, and he shall have every comfort a boy needs. I will not spoil him. I do not believe in that sort of treatment. But I will make a man of him. Then to look beyond the few years I may have left to me, this great business which I have built up will require some one after I am gone to keep it out of the hands of strangers. There are plenty here who are watching with envious eyes. Wealth makes enemies here as elsewhere. Elsie is my only child. To leave her this great industrial task would be to have her lose it. So, if Rob turns out to be what I want him to be, he will not only become my manager when I am old, but he will become heir to some of the interests I have made so valuable. This, I think, is as good an opening as comes to the average boy. Think it over, and let me know your decision. I must begin to train a manager soon. I cannot stand the strain much longer. Anita and Elsie send love. They are speaking of having their photographs taken, and of sending you some. If they do, I will add mine. Send Rob's and yours—Rob's so that I may know him when he arrives. You see, I count on your acceptance.

It will be lonely for you, but think of Rob's future.

Your loving brother,

DAVID HORTON.

By the time Mrs. Cleverdale got through reading her voice was trembling, and Rob was staring at her with his eyes wide open, in the greatest amazement. What a wonderful vista was here held out to him! He could even picture the thing to himself—there, in that almost unknown country, working hard to gain his uncle's confidence, and trusted with the management of large affairs. But then—to leave his mother! That dear mother, whose prop he had been since his father died. He could not think of that.

There was silence for a moment.

"I have thought this all over, Rob," said Mrs. Cleverdale, now speaking calmly. "It is the grandest thing for you! Just think what a future Uncle David offers!"

"But you! I can't leave you!"

"My dear boy, it is hard, but we must bear it. And you will soon be able to come and see me, you know, and some day, perhaps, my health will be better, and I can come to you. Yes, you must go. Uncle David has set his heart on it, and I would not disappoint him. We have no one else, you know, to look to."

Rob gulped down a sob, and then and there resolved to do just as his mother advised, and to show as little emotion as possible—thus making the parting so much easier for her.

Rob's picture was taken within the week and sent to his Uncle David at Buenos Ayres, with a letter from his mother, thanking Mr. Horton, and accepting his tempting offer.

KEEPING CHARLEY'S SEAT.

He Would Not Come Forward to Claim It.

Many amusing scenes are enacted before the footlights at bargain matinees, especially in the theaters where no reserved-seat coupons are issued on such occasions, and the rule of "first come, first served" obtains, says the Philadelphia Record. At a recent matinee of this kind in a popular theater much merriment was excited by the efforts of a stout, good-natured looking woman to secure a seat for a young man, evidently a relative, who had come into the theater after the house had pretty well filled up. She had succeeded in securing a seat herself and holding another one by the medium of sundry wraps and parcels, alongside, pretty well down toward the stage. In front of these she stood sentinel, anxiously scanning every new group that came in. Finally she saw the young man and began wildly to wave her handkerchief at him, but apparently he was looking everywhere save in the right direction. Meanwhile several seat-hunters had espied the unoccupied chair and were casting envious and suspicious glances at it. The situation was becoming critical; so, without more ado, the stout party put her hand to her mouth and shouted in stentorian tones across the entire auditorium: "Charlie! Here's your seat!" Every one laughed; but Charlie, evidently not courting unwelcome notoriety, discreetly kept in the background. "Charlie!" she yelled again, in louder tones, and then the denizens of the gallery, quick to seize an opportunity, began a chorus of "Charlie! I say, Charlie!" "Charlie!" where are you?" and "Ho! Charlie!" which strengthened the youth in his wise resolution to stay just where he was. Then the sentinel surrendered the seat to a determined-looking woman who wore spectacles.

WHY WE GIVE THANKS

REASONS FOR OBSERVING THE NATION'S FEAST DAY.

The Exceptional Causes for Thanksgiving Set Forth by President McKinley in His Proclamation Appointing Thursday, Nov. 30, For That Purpose.

The president of the United States has issued his proclamation naming Thursday, Nov. 30, 1899, as a day of general thanksgiving and prayer "to be observed as such by all our people on this continent and in our newly acquired islands, as well as by those who may be at sea or sojourning in foreign lands." In his customary crisp phraseology, always admirable for its incisive directness and its freedom from verbiage, President McKinley points out the facts that support his statement that "Seldom has this nation had greater cause for profound thanksgiving." Seldom indeed has this nation, and never has any other nation, had equal cause to give thanks. Here are some of the causes as set forth in the president's proclamation:

"No great pestilence has invaded our shores."

See national election returns 1896, 1898. The pestilence of free trade has ceased to afflict us.

"Liberal employment waits upon labor."

See American Protective Tariff league's industrial census for March, 1899, showing an increase of 39.56 per cent in amount of labor employed, 54.09 per cent in amount of wages paid and 10.49 per cent in wage rate per capita.

"Abundant crops have rewarded the efforts of the husbandman."

Also higher prices for these crops by reason of the larger employment and the greater consuming capacity of American work people.

"Increased comforts have come to the home."

The people of the United States were never before so well fed, so well clothed, or so well housed.

"The national finances have been strengthened and public credit has been sustained and made firmer."

Owing to a sound financial and economic policy which has increased individual and national wealth to a degree never before known.

"In all branches of industry and trade there has been an unequaled degree of prosperity, while there has been a steady gain in the moral and educational growth of our national character. Churches and schools have flourished."

The three things go together: prosperity, morality, intelligence. These are conspicuous in Republican policies and practices.

"American patriotism has been exalted."

It always was and always will be exalted by a thoroughly American government such as that which now directs affairs of state.

Such are the chief causes for thankfulness suggested by the president in his proclamation. They are splendid, extraordinary exceptional causes which appeal to the pride and excite the gratification of every true American. Happy is the fortune of the president who can cite such an array of reasons for general thanksgiving. His predecessor in office could not do it four years ago.

PROOF OF PROSPERITY.

Notable Decrease in the Amount of Child Labor Employed.

The enormous amounts of work being done in the factories of Grand Rapids, and the increased number of men employed, clearly indicates that this city has not failed to get its share of prosperity. According to figures compiled by Deputy Factory Inspector Addison, of the Michigan Factory Inspection bureau, the number of employes in the factories in this city has been increased to a total of 13,193 since the first of May, the number on that date being 12,729, an increase of 464. There is also a noticeable decrease in the number of children and boys under 16, their places being taken by men and older boys. The companies have decided that they are better off with the older employes, and they do not care to take the chances of prosecution for violation of the law which prohibits the employment of boys under 16 years of age. Again, under more prosperous conditions the necessity for every member of a family to be earning something does not exist as it did once, and that fact has considerably thinned the ranks of child labor throughout the country as well as in this city. Increased trade and increased employment are sure signs of prosperity, and if Senator Jones of Nevada, who lately expressed his belief that there was no real prosperity in the country, will come to Grand Rapids he will be speedily convinced that present prosperity is something very real, after all.—Grand Rapids (Mich.) Herald.

SOME OF THE CAUSES FOR THANKSGIVING.

LYING UNDER A MISTAKE.

Sheer Demagogism to Charge the Republican Party with Trusts.

Increased prices with no increased salaries or wages is a lop-sided prosperity that follows with peculiar propriety in the wake of the party that by restrictive tariff called trusts into existence.—So-called Democratic organ.

The opposition organs are filled with just that sort of political stuff. In the paragraph quoted there is one unimportant truth. A few articles have been advanced slightly in price, perhaps, but that has been much more than counterbalanced in the increased demand for labor, and the general advance in wages.

It is not true that there has been a "recent marked increase in the price of every day necessities," nor is it true that there have been "no increased salaries or wages." Wages have been generally increased, and in many cases largely increased.

As for trusts, so far it has not been a political question; individuals of all parties have been and are mixed up with them, so are free-trade countries. And it is sheer demagogism for the organs of that party to charge that trusts were organized by the Republican party or that that party is in any way responsible for them more than any other party. Such a charge would be at variance with the truth, and none know it better than those organs which are continually mouthing it over. In fact it is a part of their political stock in trade. That is only another way of politely saying to any one who ventures to make the charge: "You lie, sir—under a mistake."—Norwalk (Ohio) Reflector.

No More Use for Populism.

Edgerton, S. D., September 30, 1899.—To the Editor: I have noticed of late several statements in the Journal relating to the deposit per capita of residents in different parts of the country. I do not consider any of them, taking into account our handicap of no railroad towns, as good as Charles Mix County's. There are four banks in the old part of the county now having deposits of over $20 per capita. There are no manufacturers', large ranchers', stock or grain buyers' deposits, and half of the merchants keep their accounts at their railroad shipping points, or use the "sock." Ninety per cent of the deposits belong to the farmers and the balance to a part of the merchants. This county went Populist last year, but it will never happen again as long as the present conditions of the country will last.

T. E. ANDREWS.

When prosperity comes in at the door Populism flies out at the window. That is the burden of a brief but significant communication from Charles Mix County, S. D. The statement that the farmers of that county have nearly $20 per capita laid away in the banks before marketing this year's fine crops forms the basis of the prediction.—Sioux City (Ia.) Journal.

Bryan Applauded.

Mr. Bryan is reported to have applauded a speech of President McKinley at Canton, Ill. As the brief address was principally devoted to the martial triumphs of this country, and to the greater triumph of "overcoming the enemies of prosperity" and scattering their forces, Mr. Bryan was either sincere or has decided that prosperity is something more than a semblance. The former asserted that "this nation has been greatly blessed, and at this hour we are a united and prosperous people." Col. Bryan continues to harp upon the doleful theme of a suffering people, ground down by the money power, plutocrats and octopuses whose brains and money are actively engaged in the work of oppressing labor. Facts and conditions prove which of the two men is right.—Tacoma (Wash.) Ledger.

Would Be a Sad Revenge.

If the people want the predictions of Demo-Pops to come true, all they have to do is to vote for them, as was done in 1892, and they will see a repetition of history. The year 1899 has so far been the most prosperous the nation has ever known, and it would be a sad reverse to destroy it that Bryan and his supporters may hold office. —Medford (Okla.) Patriot.

WE'RE PROSPEROUS; THAT IS ALL.

Facts Known to Every Intelligent Man, but Worth Reading Just the Same.

A famous epitaph commemorates the virtues of a Roman woman who, in an age of frivolity, "staid at home and span her wool." She did not promenade abroad until her household was clothed in purple and fine linen of domestic manufacture. So, with but two intervals in the past generation, the United States has been engaged in providing for its own people enough food, enough clothing, enough manufactures of every sort to supply every reasonable American want by the proceeds of American industry. It has stayed at home and spun its wool with success, and now it is ready to go abroad in search of markets for the irrepressible surplus of its industry.

For a long time we were accustomed to speak of 1892 as "the McKinley year," as "the record-breaking year of exports." But the inevitable trend of Republican policy has carried us far and away beyond the figures of 1892. For example, during the whole fiscal year of 1892 our exports of copper and copper manufactures were worth $7,226,392; during the first eight months of 1898 they were worth $22,925,485; during the first eight months of this year they have amounted to $25,197,056. Our exports of iron and steel, exclusive of iron ore, were worth $28,809,930 during the twelve months of the fiscal year 1892. They were worth $68,008,071 during the first eight months of 1899. Our exports of leather and its manufactures were worth $12,084,781 in the whole of 1892, and $17,413,458 during the first eight months of the present year.

We exported agricultural implements to the value of $3,794,983 during the twelve months elapsing between June 30, 1891, and June 30, 1892, and to the value of $11,495,450 between January and September, 1899.

A phenomenal increase of exports is noticeable in almost every branch and department of manufactures. Simultaneous with this there has been a vast extension of the production of goods for home use. Never have the demands of the home market been more pressing; never have William J. Bryan's "common people" been so well fed, so well clothed, so well housed, so well supplied with money to spend, as at present.

But there has been one decrease in exports. In 1892 our exports of provisions, exclusive of breadstuffs, were worth $140,262,159; for the first eight months of this year they are worth $121,651,443. We have now more money to spend on food, and we are eating more and better food. The time seems not far distant when the American people will be able to consume all of the choicest products of American farms.

All these are hard facts, known to every intelligent man, but it is worth while to gather them and read them occasionally as long as the voice of the Democrat is heard in our land.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

Railway Prosperity.

The railways of the country are doing an unparalleled business at the present time. Not only are people traveling in greater numbers than in ordinary times, but there is an equally heavy amount of freight traffic. So much freight is to be transported that the railways are finding it difficult to provide enough cars to meet the demand for them. The situation is summed up by an Eastern railway official as follows: "With the enormous business in sight it will be a crime if, for the next six months at least, there is a single rate cut on an unemployed car east of Chicago. There is sufficient business to keep every road busy."

The great amount of business done by the railway companies is a sure indication of the great prosperity that prevails in all parts of the country. It reflects good times for all the people. The crops are large, causing unusually heavy shipments of grain and agricultural products, which means increased freight business for the railways, while the great amount of manufacturing and our large exports to foreign countries contribute to a great extent in giving the railways new business. Then the people are traveling more than usual, because they feel that they can afford it. The prosperity of the railways is an infallible test of the prosperity of the country. As they have never known a period when their receipts were greater, it may be assumed that the country is enjoying greater prosperity than ever before.—Milwaukee Sentinel.

Watch for the Christmas issue of the Omaha Illustrated Bee, sixteen pages and a beautiful colored cover.

The Omaha Bee has spared no expense in preparing a Christmas feast for its readers in its Christmas issue of the Omaha Illustrated Bee.

The cover will be in colors, and, taken as a whole, although it seems hard to believe, it will surpass in beauty most of the eastern magazines. The Bee never does things by halves.

Yesterday Gov. Poynter appointed W. V Allen to be United States senator, to succeed, Senator Hayward. Allen served a term as senator, and the legislature elected Hayward his successor, but Mr Hayward died before he took his seat and Allen will take up his senatorial work where he left it. During the time he was out of the senate he was appointed district Judge and at the fall election was elected to the same position. G M Hitchcock, editor of the World-Herald, made a strong fight for the appointment but a telegram from Bryan in favor of Allen settled the fight against him.

FROM LINCOLN.

Lincoln, Neb., December 11, 1899. Editor Argus: Public interest in this city, as probably in most portions of the state, is centered in the question as to whom Governor Poynter will finally name as the successor to the late Senator Hayward. Every indication foreshadows the appointment of W V Allen, though the governor has given out no intimation in any direction that could be regarded as a "tip." Mr Poynter presides at a pro-Boer meeting in Omaha tonight and will return to Lincoln tomorrow (Tuesday.) It is generally expected that the senatorial selection will be made Wednesday. Public sentiment from all parts of the state except Omaha has favored Allen from the beginning, and even in Omaha feeling is by no means unanimous for Hitchcock.

The letters and telegrams which have been received at the governor's office since last Wednesday have been very numerous, and the politicians who desired to influence Governor Poynter in choosing a senator were almost as thick while he remained in the city. The governor went to Albion last Friday to get away from the rush of political workers and the state house has been comparatively quiet since.

The new auditorium, which is now nearing completion, will be a fine looking building and will seat about 4,000 people. It is located on the southeast corner of Thirteenth and M streets, just across from the Lindell hotel. The auditorium, when finished will be a monument to Lincoln enterprise and will probably become a landmark in the history of the city. The brick used in its erection came from the Cotton plant at Table Rock and the beauty of the building is being enhanced by chipping the outside surface of the brick. The auditorium will be ready for use by the first of February, if not before.

Another fine building, which was finished about three weeks ago, is the new Richards block at Eleventh and O. It is a five-story brick building and takes the place of the old four-story Richards block which burned down a couple of years ago. The new building is the finest and best lighted office block in the city, and every one of its rooms has already been rented.

Some rumors have been going the rounds to the effect that Dr Andrews, superintendent of schools at Chicago, would be tendered the position as chancellor of the state university. What authority exists for these stories is not known. One of the new regents said the other day that no consideration of Dr Andrews' name had been made by the incoming board and declared that there had been no meeting or consultation between himself and anyone else in regard to the matter. If any agreement to engage Andrews as chancellor has been made, it is nearly certain that it has been made by the old board. The Andrews talk is now dying out and, as there was very little except talk, perhaps it is just as well.

Table Rock's contingent now in Lincoln continue to thrive and hold their own. Rhinehart Wessel is president of the Palladian Boys Debating club and has been ever since the university opened. It is probable that most of the Table Rock people will be home for Christmas and the boys who are attending the university are looking forward to the trip with a great deal of pleasure.

Hoping the Argus will continue to prosper and with best wishes to everyone in Table Rock, I remain,

Very truly yours,
ELLIS E. WOLFE.

Nancy Hank's Loom.

The loom on which Miss Nancy Hanks, the mother of the great emancipator, Abraham Lincoln, did her weaving is now owned by Dan Smith of Garfield. The story goes that Nancy Hanks used to make regular trips from her home in Larue county to Stephensport. On her route she would stop and weave cloth for people. It seems that one of her customers, John Martin, came into possession of the loom, and at the sale after his death it was bought by old George Brulington. In time he died, and the loom was fallen heir to by Mrs. Patsy Macey. At her death the place was sold to Mr. Smith, and the loom was put in with the other property. This loom is made of white oak, and all the parts are decayed, except the beam, which is about eight inches in diameter and eight feet long. —Breckinridge (Ky.) News.

McBRIDE'S CONFESSION.

Alleged Slayer of Marshal Craig Makes a Deposition.

J. C. McBride, alias George Bullock, the prisoner confined in the Minnesota state prison at Stillwater, Minn., is either a self confessed murderer or one of the biggest liars of the century. McBride, it will be remembered, was the man that made a confession some time ago to the warden of the Minnesota prison in which he said that he was the individual that murdered Marshal Craig in the depot lunch room at Table Rock on the night of September 20, 1896. The confession of McBride was at that time given some prominence in the papers, as the murder was a most cold blooded one and to this day no trace of the murderer has been found.

County Attorney J. C. Dort has spent some time in looking into the confession of McBride, and a great deal of correspondence has passed between him and Warden Woffer, of the Minnesota prison. The warden called McBride into his office one day, and The Republican herewith gives, for the first time, his confessed connection with the crime:

Q. Do you remember the date of the murder?
A. No, sir. My mind is confused more less as to date.
When do you think it was?
It was sometime after July.
What year?
1896, I believe.
Give me the particulars of the shooting; the position you was standing in, etc.
I was standing sideways from the marshal. As near as I can recollect the marshal was shot in the stomach.
Where did this shooting take place?
As near as I can recollect I was standing inside of the hardware store which we had burglarized for the purpose of stealing property.
What did you get in the store?
I got some razors; that is all I got.
Did your partner get anything?
Yes, he got some razors.
Did he get anything else?
Not that I know of.
How did you get into the building?
With slip keys.
How did you get out?
Came out through the same door.
Was it open all the time?
No, sir.
Did you close it when you went in?
Yes, sir.
Where were you when you first saw the marshal?
Right at the door coming out.
Were you ahead or behind your pal?
I was behind him.
Where was your pal when you did the shooting?
Right in front of me, outside of the door on the sidewalk.
Was your partner standing between you and the marshal when you did the shooting?
Yes, sir. That is, a little to one side of the door.
What did you do after you shot the marshal.
We walked across the country to Sabetha, Kansas
Well, what did you do immediately after the shooting; there were several things you were obliged to do before you could walk across the country as you state; what I want to know is, what did you do immediately after the shooting; where did you go; how did you get out of town, etc.; give me the particulars in your own way?
We closed the store door but did not lock it. From there we went to the B & M yards.
Did you walk or run?
Ran.
Did you see anybody around there when you did the shooting?
Yes, there was either a man and a woman, or two men.
Couldn't you tell whether it was a man or woman?
No I couldn't tell for sure as they were across the street and I could not see plainly.
Directly across the street from the store?
No, sir.
Where were they then?
A block and a half from the store. They were on one side of the street and we passed down the other.
Were these the only persons you saw after the shooting on your way to the B & M yards?
No, sir.
Did you see any one else?
A lot of the town people.
Well, who were they?
I don't know. They were the people in town that was after us.
Where were they after you?
The railroad yards.
Inside or outside?
Inside the railroads.
That doesn't answer my question. I asked you if you met or saw any other people on your way from the place of shooting to the railroad yards?
Yes sir.
Did you know them and what were they doing?
I didn't know but that they were after us.
How far from the railroad yards were they after you, or how far had you gone away from the place where the shooting took place before you were pursued?
Right at the time.
How many people got after you right after the shooting or before you got far away from the store?
I don't remember.
Did they chase you all the way to the railroad yards from the store?
That I don't know, but they were looking through the yards for us. That is, they followed us from the store but we lost sight of them and did not see them until they were looking for us in the yards.
Tell me what streets you went down from the store to the railroad yards?
We went down one of the back streets to the depot, that is, railroad yards.
How long did you remain in the yards?
About a minute. Then we went right east across the fields.
Did you see anybody after that?
I did not.
Where were you when you met the first persons after leaving the railroad yards?
Didn't meet any person until next day. Then we went direct to Sabetha, arriving there some time after dark next evening.
Did you walk all the time?
Yes, except a little in the afternoon.
Did you meet any one the next day, and where?
Farmers, as near as I can judge.
How long did you stay in Sabetha?
About three hours. Then left on the next train going east on the St Joe & Grand Island railroad.
Where did you go?
To Hiawatha, Kansas.
How did you enter Table Rock and when?
Came right up from the south and left the railroad track southeast of the depot.
How did you come in?
A foot.
From what point did you walk into Table Rock?
From Pawnee City.
How far is that from Table Rock?
Six miles.
How did you get into Pawnee City?
Came on the Rock Island.
And how?
On a freight train from Horton, Ks.
What time did you leave Pawnee City for Table Rock?
Between 9:30 and 10 o'clock.
The night of the murder?
Yes, sir.
What time did you arrive at Table Rock?
It was between twelve and half past as near as I can judge. I had no time piece.
Did you go direct to the store which you burglarized?
No, sir. Sat down along side the track south of town a little while. I don't know just how long. Thought it was late enough then and went to the store. We went to the hardware store, the first one we came to.
Did you see anybody on your way there?
Yes, sir. Some people of the town.
You told me the other day that the person that was with you in the commission of this crime is now an inmate of this prison, and that there were only two of you?
Yes sir.
Did you see anybody on your way there?
Yes, sir. Some people of the town.
You told me the other day that the the person that was with you in the commission of this crime is now an inmate of this prison, and that there were only two of you?
Yes sir.
Did you get any thing to eat while you were in Table Rock?
Yes, sir. A restaurant.
What time was this?
I don't know. It was after we sat down on the track for a rest. I noticed they were about to close up when we went in there.
You told me that you went direct from where you were sitting down on the railroad to the store which you burglarized?
Yes, but before we went to the restaurant and got something to eat.
Is that the only place you got anything to eat in Table Rock?
Yes, sir.
Where was the restaurant located?
About the centre of a block on Main street.
That is rather indefinite. How far was it from the railroad track where you were sitting, or from the store on Main street?
It was quite a piece from the railroad track and not very far from the store.
Describe the interior of the restaurant; the way it was fixed inside?
The front was filled up on each side. There was canned goods on one side and on the other side was large bottles containing candies. A show case with some cigars in and another show case with candies, and the tables in the restaurant were in a room back of this. There were two counters in the front part. In the eating part there was four tables.
What were the counters for?
To do up goods on.
What was this, a restaurant, a dry goods store or a grocery store?
A restaurant.
What do you mean by counters to do up goods on?
It was only a short portion on each side where the cases stood on.
Now, you have described all of the furniture that was in these two rooms which you claim was a restaurant where you got something to eat that night?
Yes, except the chairs.
Warden Woffer states that after the above confession, and from facts in his possesion from Mr Dort, he is convinced that McBride is lying and that his confession is a fake pure and simple, as the robbery he speaks of did not take place in Table Rock that night, but at Falls City, where a store was burglarized and razors and pistols purloined. The person he implicates in his confession was also a prisoner in the Minnesota penitentiary up to Nov. 28, when his term expired.

McBride claims as his reason for confessing the crime now is because of a troubled conscience and that he feels that he can no longer live under the strain and hold the secret of the crime.

There is no queston but what McBride knows in the main the outlines of the circumstances of the murder committed, but his description of the interior of the restaurant and several other fine points prove him to be a consumate liar.

Another point where McBride was off was in the name, as he was uncertain, until shown a map, whether it was Guide Rock or Table Rock.

The authorities here have decided to let the matter drop, but are quite certain that McBride knows well the circumstances of the killing and may have been in that vicinity that night or heard the facts from the lips of the man that committed the murder.—Pawnee Republican.

The January number of the Delineator, which is called the Century Number, begins the fifty-fifth volume, and it exhibits a marked advancement in many details. There is as usual, a complete presentation of the season's fashionable modes, a varied selection of brilliant literary features and a generous amount of general household matter. Conspicuous among the literary articles is An Affair of Violets, by Harriet Riddle Davis, a delightful story of happy results following the tragic ending of a young woman's efforts in a business venture. In this number also is presented the first of a series of practical papers on Children and Their Ills by Dr. Grace Peckham Murray. Cornelia Atwood Pratt contributes the first of three papers on The Young Girl, dealing with the last of her school days and the first years at home. The Cradles of the World, by Laura B. Starr, is an admirably illustrated article descriptive of babyhood among many peoples. College News, by Carolyn Halsted, reviews the many features that mark the new year at the educational centers. A pertinent article at this time is the household topic New Year's Resolutions as considered by N S May; other domestic subjects of worth are: Mending, by Mary Foster Snider, and an attractive group of receipts by Nannie Moore. An article on Ecclesiastical Embroidery is contributed by Emma Haywood, Social Observances, conducted by Mrs Frank Learned, is a valuable feature of the magazine, and in addition are the various departments: crocheting, lace making, tatting, knitting, the dressmaker, the milliner, the holiday books, etc, etc. The Delineator is the woman's favorite magazine, and is issued by the famous fashion publishers, The Butterick Publishing Co (Limited), at 7 to 17 West Thirteenth Street, New York, at the remarkably low rate of $1.00 for a year's subscription, or 15 cts per copy.

Dec 8th. The W C T U met with Mrs McCasland but owing to the stormy weather the attendance was not large. The president read a chapter from Paul's letter to the Thessalonians commenting on it as especially applicable and encouraging in our work and after prayer we took up the discussion of our local work. owing to the illness of her mother, Mrs McCasland had not been able to do anything with the contest work and it was suggested that the young people would prepare a temperance drama if given a little more time, so it was decided to postpone our talked of entertainment until in Jan. Only one copy of our year book had come as yet and matters of local interest proved so interesting that our was gone ere we were aware. Christmas preparations being so pressing now it was thought best to adjourn for three weeks to meet next time by request with Mrs Gates. E E Lion

The Signal of Nov 30th appears a letter from California stating that while the broad vineyards of table grapes hung full of luscious glassy fruit and the vines still retained their green flourishing appearance, many vineyards of the wine grapes in the same locality look as if scorched by fire, brown, twisted and leafless, and in consequence many wineries are closed.

Nature seems to be slowly working in unison with those who are working for the betterment of the world. This blotting out of a wine vineyard is not for one season but for all time for when it withers and dies from phylozera, the process so poisons the ground that this same variety of plants can never again be grown in the same soil. The sweet old Mission grape, prized by all Californians, which is about the same size and some what resembling some varieties of the wine grape, is not touched by this disease but flourishes where the wine grape would perish.

Slowly yes surely sin brings its own punishment and if we persist in misusing the good things of this world there is no telling how soon blight may fall upon our corn and wheat and we perish for the necessities of life. Is it not time that the watchmen upon the walls everywhere should lift a warning voice, instead of excusing and trying to explain away sin in high places? Will God deal more leniently with us than with his chosen people in time past when we have not only the warning of his word but the fulfilment of the awful prophesy concerning them and the fall of many other nations?

Regarding railroad men the Union Signal says: The railroad men of the United States and Canada are almost without exception on the right side of the temperance Question. Recently the Hon L S Coffin of Fort Dodge, Iowa has distributed nearly 140,000 white buttons at his own expense; each button bears the letters "R R T A" which means Railroad Temperance Association. Mr Coffin has expended over $4,000. for these buttons besides giving his time and labor for the purpose of carrying on the good work." Slowly but surely the leaven of good is working and those who stand firmly on the side of right will prevail." One shall chase a thousand and two put ten thousand to flight.

A NEW REBELLION

Aguinaldo Goes to Cavite to Plan New Trouble.

HAS STRENGTH IN HIS OLD HOME

Rebels of the Province Showing Increased Boldness—Americans Sleep On Their Arms—In Constant Fear of an Attack at Imus.

A Manila, December 7 dispatch says: The expectation of catching Aguinaldo in the north has been practically abandoned, and the probability now is that he will turn southward, if he has not already, his destination being Cavite province, his home, where the insurrection began, and where it still has its great strength. The Filipino soldiers in that province have recently been showing increased enthusiasm and boldness, and captured insurgents say that Aguinaldo is coming to join them with a large army. The same belief prevails among the natives at Manila and elsewhere that Aguinaldo intends to make his headquarters in Cavite province.

There are 3,000 insurgents before Imus and Bacor, keeping the Americans sleeping on their arms and nightly awaiting attack. The Filipinos have several cannon. The first mayor of Imus under the American regime, who ultimately deserted, is their leader in the assaults and is ambitious to take the town. Three soldiers of the Fourth infantry have deserted and are now with the enemy. Most of the inhabitants of Imus are so strong in their sympathies with the insurgents that it is necessary to use a part of the regiment to patrol the streets and prevent shooting from houses whenever an attack begins.

The American forces in the south have separated into many small commands and are pursuing bands of Filipinos. General McArthur is engaged in clearing the mountain country west of the Manila-Dagupan railroad. General Grant is moving from Angeles toward Subig with 400 men. Colonel Bell is sweeping south from Mangatarem.

FOR MUNICIPAL OWNERSHIP

The Platform of the Socialist Mayor of Brockton, Mass.

Charles H. Coulter, the newly-elected socialist mayor of Brockton, Mass., won by a plurality of 1592 votes. He is twenty-nine years years old. He said: "The social democratic party, of which I am proud to be a member, declares for the co-operative commonwealth and the ownership of all the means of production and distribution.

"It will be my aim and that of my fellow-socialists in the city government to enter a wedge wherever possible for municipal ownership and see to it that no more valuable franchises are given away to any corporation whatever."

SENT UP FOR TWELVE YEARS

Clyde Mattox Convicted of Murder in Oklahoma.

Clyde Mattox was convicted of manslaughter and sentenced to twelve years imprisonment at Newark, Okl., Friday. The crime for which he was sentenced, his fifth murder, was the killing of Lincoln Sweeney, a ranger, at Ponce City, last spring. For a previous murder Mattox was sentenced to hang, but President Cleveland commuted the sentence to life imprisonment and President McKinley at a later date pardoned him.

Another Advance in Brooms.

The stockholders of the Union Broom Supply company held a secret meeting at Chicago and decided to make the price on broom corn $200 per ton. This is the first time the company has given a quotation on the supply held by it, and it is said by stockholders that this price will advance materially within another month. The Union Broom Supply company, according to W. L. Roseboom, president, holds fully 90 per cent of the raw material.

Explosion Kills Three Men.

The powder works of James S. Miller, near Sumneytown, Pa., were completely wrecked by explosion and three men were killed and several others injured. The dead are: William Baer, superintendent of the works, Allen Schneck, John Schwager. Joan Schaffer was probably fatally injured and Raymond Faust was seriously bruised. The entire five buildings which comprised the works were demolished. The cause of the explosion is not known.

Shot By a Burglar.

Rev. D. B. Cheney, pastor of the First Baptist church at Racine, Wis., and his wife, were shot and probably fatally injured by a burglar Thursday morning last at 10 o'clock. At the point of a revolver they were compelled to turn over money and jewelry. Thinking they were endeavoring to conceal some valuables, the burglar shot them both and escaped.

End Not In Sight.

A Friday special from Manila says the end of the insurrection is not in sight, and the field commanders now think it is far away. It is estimated that 30,000 insurgent troops are still at large, and Aguinaldo is said to have escaped with a much larger force than at first supposed.

Unconscious Two Days.

A Moscow dispatch says the state of Tolstoi's health is very serious. The famous author has been unconscious for two days. He has stomach trouble.

DESECRATION OF THE FLAG

Appeal to Congress to Make the Law More Stringent.

Charles Kingsbury Miller of Chicago chairman of the flag committees of the Sons of the American Revolution and the society of colonial wars in Illinois and an executive member of the American flag association of New York, has forwarded to every representative and senator at Washington a document appealing for the enactment of a law for the protection of the flag and to prohibit its use for advertising or commercial purposes. The petition, which is headed "Desecration of the American Flag. Our National Disgrace," is accompanied by indorsements from hundreds of public men, including exPresidents of the United States, members of President McKinley's cabinet, foreign ambassadors and ministers, senators, soldiers who achieved distinction in the Spanish and civil wars, leading educational men and many others. All of the communications are strong indorsements of a flag law, and call upon congress to enact such a measure without delay. It is said a united movement will be made at this session of congress to secure the passage of a flag law.

TRANSVAAL WAR PROGRESS

There Is No Stirring News From the Border—Things Are Statu Quo.

A London, Dec. 7 dispatch says: Again there is a complete lull in news from the seat of war. Ladysmith has established heliographic communication with Frere, and it is reported that all was well up to Sunday. A dispatch from the Boer laager, by way of Lourenzo Marques, dated Thursday, November 30, confirms the report that the commandos have been closing in upon Ladysmith and mounting big guns in new positions. According to the same advices a heavy cannonade had been maintained and a general assault ordered for Thursday morning, but was countermanded at the last moment.

Modder river dispatches say that the Boers are encamped amid the hills half way to Kimberley, but it is also asserted that a large body of the enemy has gone in the direction of Jacobsdal. It is possible, therefore, that Lord Methuen may endeavor to clear his right flank as far as Jacobsdal before continuing his advance. He is still waiting at Modder river for stores, guns and ammunition.

Boers Using a New Gun.

The hottest bombardment of the siege took place last Thursday says a Ladysmith dispatch of December 2. The Boers got a new gun in position on Lombard's kop, completely commanding the town, and shelled our camp Monday and yesterday, planting shells with great accuracy in the camp of the Gordon highlanders and the Manchester regiment, where there were many narrow escapes. Today the enemy resumed the bombardment, doing some very effective shooting. Several of our guns have been shattered by the Boer big gun.

Siege of Mafeking Serious.

While the war office at London has received intelligence that Mafeking was safe on November 20, it admitted that the investment there was closer than before. The Boers are using new shells filled with a high explosive from a ten-ton gun and that the situation is serious.

From Natal the only press dispatches which come through were forecasts of the terrible battle impending on the Tugela river.

General Joubert Is Ill.

A dispatch from Pretoria dated December 2, says that General Joubert is indisposed and has arrived at Volksrust, across the Transvaal border, for medical treatment.

THE PLOT WIDE IN EXTENT

French Senate Takes Testimony Against the Revolutionists.

In the French senate, sitting as a high court Thursday, several police officers testified that an understanding existed between the anti-semites and the nationalists and socialist leaders. Superintendent Puybaraud deposed that a confederation for a federation of the various leagues had been proposed, adding that at one meeting the question of a triumvirate had been even discussed. M. Deroulede, he said, was to have been one of this triumvirate, but he considered it inexpedient to mention the names of the other two.

TAYLOR MAY GET DECISION

Kentucky Commission Said to Favor the Republican Claimant.

The decision of the Kentucky state board of election commissioners, covering the gubernatorial contest, will be handed down tomorrow, Saturday, morning. The strong probability is that certificates of election will be given to William S. Taylor, the republican candidate for governor, and to the republican candidates for the other offices on the state ticket. The vote will probably be two for the republican and one for the democratic state ticket.

Resumes Command.

A Capetown, Dec. 7, special says: General Walker today received an official dispatch from Methuen dated December 6, saying he had resumed command of the column and is in nightly communication with Kimberly. The health of his troops is excellent.

Refuse to Accept Stock.

Farmers in the vicinity of Henderson have refused to take stock in the proposed Nebraska & Gulf road. The surveyors are now surveying a route within three miles west of Henderson where they propose to build a town.

DINSMORE THE MAN

Mrs. Laue Confesses to Brother of Her Husband.

KILLED WIFE FIRST THEN FRED LAUE

Woman Says She Has Been Silent at Dinsmore's Bidding—Confession Causes Great Sensation—Lynching Talk

The mystery surrounding the double murder that occurred at Odessa Monday night, December 4, which the lives of Mrs. Lillian Dinsmore and Fred Laue were taken, is gradually clearing up. Mrs. Laue, wife of the murdered man, has made a confession, in which she charges Frank L. Dinsmore, the husband of the murdered woman, with having committed both crimes.

The confession was made only after several hours' persuasion on Mrs. Laue by a brother and uncle of the dead man. As soon as Mrs. Laue had confessed to them, D. Laue, the uncle mentioned, at whose house they were staying, hitched up a team and took her to Kearney, arriving at 2 o'clock Friday morning. County Attorney Nye was called up and met Mrs. Laue, the brother and the uncle of the dead man at the city hall, where and when the confession was taken down in writing and properly signed by the witnesses.

It is charged that for several months Dinsmore has been infatuated with Mrs. Laue, and on different occasions has tried to get her to elope with him, which, however, she refused to do. It also appears from statements made by her and Mrs. Dinsmore's brother, that Dinsmore possessed hypnotic power, which power Mrs. Laue claimed to have been under for the last six months. Mrs. Dinsmore's brothers say that he had had their sister under his power for several years. Dinsmore is charged with laying the plans for the killing of both persons, and Mrs. Laue says he told her what to say at the inquest. Dinsmore wanted to commit the crime Thanksgiving night but was persuaded to put it off by Mrs. Laue. Monday night Mr. and Mrs. Dinsmore had retired at their usual time, as also had Mr. Laue.

Shortly afterwards Dinsmore came to the kitchen, where Mrs. Laue was waiting, and told her that part of the deed was done and that he would have to finish the job at once, whereupon he went to Laue's room and shot him while he was still asleep in bed, where he was found when the first neighbors arrived on the scene.

Dinsmore then brought his wife's dead body down stairs and placed her on the floor in front of the kitchen stove, where it lay until it had been examined by the doctor.

The confession of Mrs. Laue has caused a great sensation, and rumors that an attempt will be made to lynch Frank Dinsmore are flying thick and fast. Extra guards are on duty at the county jail, loaded with repeating Winchester rifles, and Sheriff Funk is determined to protect the prisoner, regardless of consequences. As he is an officer of iron nerve there will be serious trouble before the prisoner is taken from him.

Frank Dinsmore was taken to North Platte for safe keeping. He was extremely nervous and frightened and wanted the guards to keep close to the cab in which he was taken from the jail to the train. He will be kept there until his preliminary trial.

OBLIGED TO FEED BASUTOS

The British are Hampered by the Presence of the Natives at Kimberly.

A London, December 8 special says: The Daily Mail publishes a dispatch from Julian Ralph at Modder river who says:

"The Kimberly people are troubled by the necessity of feeding 10,000 Basutos in the diamond fields, whom the Boers refuse to allow to depart, and who, should they fail to get enough meat, would become discontented and restless. Five hundred and thirty Boers were killed or wounded in the battle here. That number has already been accounted for, and the enemy's losses were probably much heavier."

LOOK FOR A BLOODY BATTLE

Boers Active in Preparing Defenses and Rifle Pits at Spytfontein.

Perhaps an explanation of the retirement of burghers from Natal can be found in a dispatch from Modder river, December 3, saying that a strong Boer force, estimated to number 3,000 men, were reinforcing General Cronje from Natal. The same dispatch says everything points to the fact that a great engagement will be fought at Spytfontein. The Boers are massing on the hills there, are vigorously buiding stone defenses and are digging rifle pits in every direction.

SEN. HAYWARD'S FUNERAL

A Large Concourse of Relatives and Friends Pay Tribute to the Dead.

The funeral services of the late Senator M. L. Hayward were held in the presence of a vast concourse of neighbors, state and federal officers and many distinguished citizens of Nebraska. The city took on an air of mourning. Flags were displayed at half-mast and all business houses were closed during the afternoon.

The remains were viewed at the house by a great number of people. Brief services were conducted by Rev. H. L. House, pastor of the Baptist church. Assisted by Dr. C. M. Shepherd, pastor of the Methodist church. The procession that followed the remains to the grave was one of the largest that ever passed through the streets of this city. Company C, Second regiment, Nebraska national guard, acted as an escort. Following came members of William Baumer Post No. 24, G. A. R., of which organization Senator Hayward was a member.

During the forenoon Mrs. Hayward signified a desire to speak to the members of the legislature who had been the warm supporters of her husband in his memorable contest. Those who were at the residence at that time were summoned and Mrs. Hayward bore up bravely while expressing her gratitude for what they had done for her husband during his life. She told them that she wished to meet them personally to speak to them as she thought her husband would have her do if he were alive. The little group of men who listened to the brief expression of regard were deeply moved and no one in the group was able to utter a word in reply.

BULLER MOVES FORWARD

Commander-In-Chief Starts For the Front and to the Relief of Ladysmith.

General Buller's arrival at Frere is held to indicate that all the preparations for an advance to the relief of Ladysmith are complete, says a London dispatch of the 8th, and that stirring news will soon be received. The fact that Lord Methuen is announced as resuming his command at almost the same moment is interpreted in some quarters to mean that the battles will be fought simultaneously in Natal and at Spytfontein. It appears doubtful, however, whether General Methuen's force is yet ready for what will evidently be a heavy encounter.

The government has decided to dispatch to South Africa at the earliest possible moment a cavalry brigade of about 4,000 men.

CONFESSES THE MURDER

Three Men Admit The Killing of a Farm Hand.

Amos Phillips, a Bates county farmer, under arrest at Fort Scott, Kan., with Red and George Smith, brothers, charged with complicity in the murder of Leopold Edlinger, a farm hand, two weeks ago, has confessed the crime and said that all three were members of a gang of professional stock, grain and harness thieves, who have operated all over southwest Missouri and southeast Kansas, and who have two rendezvous, one in the timber in Cedar county, and another in Bates county. Public indignation is intense, and through fear of a mob Sheriff Wheeler has placed a strong guard about the jail.

Against Goebel.

All pretense of a fight for the certificate of election as governor of Kentucky has been given up by the Goebel people, and whether a contest will be made in the legislature is really yet to be determined. Commissioners Eellis and Pryor would not discuss the matter, but, tacitly admitted they would decide for Taylor. Commissioner Peyntz will present a minority report. Extensive preparations are being made to inaugurate Taylor Tuesday, December 12.

LOST SIX HUNDRED

British Troops Meet Serious Reverse at Stormberg.

MANY WERE KILLED AND WOUNDED

Boer Defenses are Found to Be Impregnable—Four Thousand British Soldiers Attack Enemy's Position, But Are Driven Back.

In the attack on Stormberg, says a London dispatch of December 10, General Gatacre lost in killed, wounded and captured, more than six hundred men. It appears that the attack on Stormberg, was made by Gatacre's force of 4,000 men, after a forced march of twelve miles from Molteno. There the British met the Boers and a terrific fight ensued, in which the British lost heavily and were forced to retreat. General Gatacre reports that he found the Boer defenses impregnable. While details of the fight are not at hand, it is believed that a large number of the British troops were cut off and captured during the retreat.

General Gatacre's movement may be termed a reconnoissance in force. Its object was to ascertain the strength of the position of the Boers who were strongly entrenched along the Stormberg range. He left Putters kraal shortly after noon Saturday with a fighting force slightly over 4,000 men.

Leaving Molteno at the night before he made a memorable night march over the rocks and veldt. There was no sound except a steady tramp and there was no distinguishing lights, the moon having gone down about half past eleven.

The column arrived safely within a couple of miles of its destination, the only incident of the march being an occasional sudden call of "halt," under the belief that the Boers were near. Suddenly a terrific fire opened simultaneously on the British front and right rank. The Royal Irish Rifles, which formed the advance, sought shelter behind a neighboring kopje and were speedily joined by the remainder of the column.

It was soon found, however, that this position also was covered by the Boer guns, which were more powerful than had been supposed. The troops, therefore, sought a safer position about a half a mile away, the two batteries in the meantime began engaging the Boers, and covering the troops withdrawal. The action was begun at long range and a detachment of mounted infantry northward, with a view of using gatlings on the enemy's right flank. Suddenly a strong commando was seen moving from the north and the Royal Irish Rifles and the Northumberland regiment was sent out to meet it.

It was soon discovered, however, that the Boers had machine guns well placed, and the British were compelled to face the terrible fire.

Finding it impossible to hold the position in the face of the enemy apparently superior in position, numbers and artillery, the British retired on Molento, the Boers following up the retirement closely and bringing two big guns on the retiring columns.

Reviewed at London.

A London, Dec. 7 special says: It is hardly too much to regard General Gatacre's repulse near Stromberg as the most serious defeat British army have yet sustained in the whole campaign. Already the official advices show that two men were killed, nine officers and seventeen men were wounded and nine officers and five hundred and ninety-six men are missing. But it is evident that the worst is not yet known. The proportion of wounded and killed is so small, when compared with the missing—who are undoubtedly prisoners in the hands of the Boers—that the supplementary list of casualties is awaited with serious misgivings.

DEATH IN A COAL MINE.

Fearful Disaster in the Town of Carbonado, Wash.

Brief telegrams from Carbonado, a mining town forty miles from Tacoma, Wash., says seventy-six miners were caught in a mine during a fearful explosion of coal damp.

The explosion occurred at the noon hour just as the men were preparing to leave the shift. Seventy-six men were in the mine which filled with fire damp at once. Several hours elapsed before efforts could be made to enter the mine.

The surviving relatives at once flocked around the shaft, creating a terrible scene with their loud lamentations. The mines are owned by the Carbon Hill Coal company, and gives work to 400 men, with an annual output of 300,000 tons. The mines are supplied with every appliance for safety. They are largely tunneled and the tunnels are so big that locomotives run into them.

Later advices say that thirty-two men have been taken out dead, forty-four having been rescued alive. Two men, Peter Werp and Michael Knish, escaped death as by a miracle, having suffered an awful night entombed in the dark cavernous chamber of horror.

The theory of Superintendent Davies is that a small pocket of gas was opened and became ignited. The concussion of gas explosion caused the terrific explosion of dust which caused all the damage and loss of life.

FIGHTS HIS WAY THROUGH

There Is Joy at Manila Over the Safety of General Young.

There was considerable relief in Manila when the news was received that General Young's small force had arrived safely at Vigan, province of South Ilocos, December 6. Anxiety has been felt for General Young and the garrison at Vigan since it was known that General Tino had a large aggressive body of insurgents operating in the vicinity. General Tino made a stand in the mountain pass between Narvacan and San Quinto. The natural strength of the position was augmented by trenches and pitfalls. The fight lasted five hours. General Young had three companies of the Thirty-fourth infantry under Lieutenant Colonel Robert L. Howze and two troops of the Third cavalry, Captain Swigart commanding, and one troop under Captain Chase. He was reinforced during the fight by Colonel Luther R. Hare with a battalion of the Thirty-third, enroute to Vigan. General Young ended the fight by charging and routing the enemy, who left twenty-five dead and several rifles and thousands of rounds of ammunition in the trenches. The enemy employed artilery. Only one American was seriously wounded.

READ WHAT A PROMINENT PHYSICIAN Has to say who has had 35 YEARS of active Practice of Medicine:

FOR 30 DAYS YOU CAN TRY IT FOR 10 CENTS.

I have never before in my 35 years of practice of medicine given my testimonial of recommendation to any patent medicine, but there is a remedy, the result of which has come under my own observation; for there is no Disease which has so baffled the medical skill of all ages as Rheumatism and to find a Reliable remedy for the same. At last we have found it in "5 Drops," manufactured by the Swanson Rheumatic Cure Company, Chicago, Ill. The "5 DROPS," has proven itself wonderful for its curative power in Rheumatism, not as a Temporary Reliever only, but to give a Permanent Cure in even in chronic cases. Sometime ago, I had among others several Rheumatic cases under my treatment and prescribed for these patients the very best Remedies which I skillfully selected, but without desirable results. I then heard of "5 DROPS" and of its Wonderful Cures, and prescribed it to a few patients who found relief from its use within a few days. After that I prescribed it to a great number and to my surprise, I will say that in the course of Two or Three Weeks after they had used "5 DROPS" and "5 Drop" Plasters they were Cured. Among these were a few who had, for a number of years, been suffering with Chronic Rheumatism, who had piloted themselves around on Crutches. They came to my office without Crutches and told me they were perfectly Well. They give all the credit to "5 DROPS" and to "5 Drop" Plasters and this is their testimony to the Swanson Rheumatic Cure Company for their kindness and for the conscientious way in which they are placing these Wonderful Remedies among suffering humanity, which they told me to write to the Company as an acknowledgement. As I have seen the Curative Power of "5 DROPS" and "5 Drop" Plasters, in a great many instances, I can Truly recommend them and also that the firm is perfectly honest and reliable to deal with.

The Condor of Peru.

First of all the birds of Peru comes the condor, a sober, staid-looking individual with a black coat, white collar and a shaven crown. He has also a touch of white on his wings—cuffs, one might call them. The females are distinctly black without a touch of color, though there is a little white on their wings. Hideous brutes they are to look at near to, and if you manage to shoot one you will find him swarming with the most loathsome parasites; they are a grand sight up against the sky, sailing swiftly on their great, twenty-foot spread of wing, or hovering for hours as motionless as if they were painted against the blue.

Track Tanks for Freight Engines.

The use of track tanks by which locomotives of high speed passenger trains may take water without stopping is almost universal on the larger Eastern roads, where fast expresses are the rule. The B. & O. R. R. has a number between Washington and Philadelphia and intends to equip the entire Main Line in the future. This decision was recently arrived at through the use of passenger locomotives, equipped with water scoops, on fast freight trains. It was found that much time was saved, danger from stopping being reduced to a minimum and cost of running lessened. The extra stops for water take much time and the wear and tear on equipment is no small matter. If the experiment on this part of the road proves successful, track tanks will be installed on every division between Baltimore and Chicago. As a starter, the 50 new Vauclain compound engines recently ordered will be fitted with water scoops.

If you have not tried Magnetic Starch try it now. You will then use no other.

"YOU ARE MY PRISONER."

Innocent People Who Have Been Arrested on Serious Charges.

Every year a large number of peaceable and law-abiding English citizens are arrested and imprisoned for crimes of which they are about as guiltless as the proverbial babe unborn. To be placed in such a position is at all times painful and irritating, but when the offense for which one is wrongly arrested happens to be the grave crime of "wilful murder," the horror of the situation is intensified. Yet cases of mistaken identity are by no means rare in this connection, and whenever a crime of this character is committed, and the criminal manages for a time to elude pursuit, a certain number of innocent people are pretty sure to be arrested on suspicion. There is a story told of a judge of the high court who was once arrested on suspicion of having burglarious designs on the house of a friend in Mayfair. The police officer charged him with loitering with felonious intent, and the prisoner's description of himself as one of her majesty's judges was received with a grin of sarcastic derision. At that moment an old offender was brought in who happened to catch sight of his lordship's face, which he had good reason to remember. "You here, my lord?" he exclaimed, with unfeigned astonishment. "Well, this beats cock fighting." The rogue's unsolicited corroboration of the judge's declaration saved the situation, and his lordship was allowed to depart in peace. A well-known member of the sporting world was removing from his late dwelling to another in the immediate neighborhood. The rest of his goods and chattels had gone before in van-loads, but his silver trophies, prize cups, etc., he packed into a portmanteau, and carried personally. It was late in the evening when he left the house, and the street, which was a long, leafy avenue in Maida-vale, was quite deserted. He had not gone very far on his way, however, before a policeman stopped him, and demanded to know what he was carrying. It is not every day one is accused of burgling his own property.—London Mail.

DO NOT NEGLECT REPOSE.

Indifference to It the Cause of Much Ill Health.

I know half a dozen women who are systematic in their diet, who make their taste conform to their comfort, to one who practices anything that approaches systematic sleep. Infraction of dietetic laws is punished swiftly and in a fashion that admits of no question as to the reason for the punishment. If that was true of the breaking of the laws of sleep, more women would give attention to healthful sleeping. It is unquestionable that our indifference to the need of systematic repose is responsible for the loss of a vast amount of precious strength. Lengthy, sound and undisturbed sleep is indispensable to good health and good temper; persistent wakefulness, on the contrary, leads quickly and inevitably to serious disturbances of the brain and nerves, and sooner or later to a general demoralization of the mental and physical forces. Children who are permitted to sit up late night after night, over their studies, thus establishing a most pernicious habit, invariably find themselves, in mature life, unable to sleep during the early hours of the night, and long before middle age is reached are fast in the grip of the fiend insomnia. The old-fashioned practice of going to bed before dark and getting up before daylight, still in vogue in the country, is no more to be emulated than the opposite extreme. Women are at their best in the midday hours, not in the early morning. The desire for early rising is rather a symptom of weakness or of advancing age than of physical and intellectual vigor, for the wearied body or mind demands repose, and if denied it will suffer. After all, the boy who resents hustling out of bed at unearthly hours because "it is better for him," is fulfilling the law of sleeping better than his parent, who does not feel his need of plenty of sleep.

An Unfortunate Introduction.

From the Memphis Scimitar: A well-known man, who is very much smitten with a young lady who has a fondness for children, thought the proper thing for him to do was to take his niece to the animal show, and let her see him in the role of an affectionate uncle. He bought the little tot peanuts and lemonade, and everything her childish fancy craved, so long as the young lady was looking his way. After the performance was over and while they were looking at the animals the child wandered away from him. He was busy watching the young lady, and thought the child was walking by his side. When he reached the entrance he felt a small hand in his, and thought it was that of his little niece. About that time he caught the eye of the young lady who was near him. He noticed a smile on her face, and thought she was pleased to see him. "Miss ——, here is my little niece," he said in delight, and he reached down to present the little girl. Instead of his little golden-haired niece he found that he was holding the hand of a black-faced little pickaninny. This explained the cause of the unusual smile the young lady had given him. His face turned several colors, and he did not wait to explain matters.

Mr J Sheer, Sedalia, Mo., saved his child's life by One Minute Cough Cure. Doctors had given her up to die with croup. It's an infallible cure for coughs, colds, grippe, pneumonia, bronchitis and throat and lung troubles. Relieves at once.

A TIDAL BORE.

The Famous Wave at the Head of the Bay of Fundy and How to See It.

The bay of Fundy is known to the world chiefly on account of its tides, which rise to an immense height, seventy feet having been recorded. As these tides reach the head of the bay and are forced up the Petticodiac river the conditions are such as to form the front into an almost perpendicular wall of water, termed a "bore." This formation is a grand and exciting spectacle, and interest in the phenomenon is increasing. Large numbers of American tourists, scientific men and others visit the locality to admire its effects and study its causes. About nineteen miles from the mouth of the Petticodiac, at a point commonly known as the "bend," the river takes a turn almost at right angles to its previous course. Immediately above the bend and on a line of the Intercolonial railway is situated Moncton. The run of the rising tide first breaks into a bore at Stony creek, eight miles below Moncton. At first it is scarcely noticeable, but it gradually grows until at the bend it about reaches its maximum height. The wharves of Moncton are thus the most popular position from which to view this interesting phenomenon, says Self-Culture. The average interval from the arrival of one bore to the arrival of the next is about twelve hours and twenty-five minutes, so that the average retardation from day to day is about fifty minutes. But "his boreship" is erratic, and the daily retardation may be anywhere from forty minutes to an hour. The best time to see the bore is during the full moons of August, September or October, and if the visitor would see this natural wonder in its most beautiful aspect let him choose a bright moonlight night, rather than the daytime. Under such favorable circumstances a crowd of 400 or 500 people, one day last fall, witnessed the arrival of the bore. The schedule time for its arrival, given by the local newspapers, was 9:20 o'clock. At 9:12 the expectant crowd on Moncton's wharves heard a noise easily distinguishable as the rush of distant waters. This grew louder and louder as the bore approached and rounded the bend, and at 9:22, two minutes later than the schedule time, there appeared in full view of the spectators an almost perpendicular wall of water, five or six feet in height, rushing madly against the swift current of the stream. In some places along the head of the bore the water, beaten into a foam by its own violence, sparkled in the moonlight, while along the shore the mud plowed from the bank made the water almost black. The contrast was beautiful.

A TELESCOPE BUSYBODY.

Something in a Neighbor's House He Failed to See.

"I bought a very powerful hand telescope last summer," said a man of affairs who amuses himself by dabbling in science, "and was star-gazing on my roof almost every pleasant night," quotes the New Orleans Times-Democrat. "One evening I was seated up there with my glass when my attention was attracted by a little square of yellow toward the southwest. Out of purely idle curiosity I lowered the telescope in that direction, and was startled to find myself looking at a man in his shirt-sleeves seated at a table in what seemed to be a study of some kind, evidently engaged in writing. He was marvelously distinct, and when I was about to turn away he suddenly clapped both hands to his forehead and then threw them outward with an indescribably tragic gesture. Needless to say, I threw scruples to the wind and kept my glass on the spot. In the next five minutes the man went through the most singular and inexplicable performance. He would write for a few seconds, bring his hands together in an attitude of prayer, write again, jump up and pace the floor, slap his head, write some more, clutch at the empty air, and, altogether, he piqued my curiosity to the highest point. I finally concluded he was an author in the throes of composition, and called to my brother-in-law, who sometimes scribbles verses, to come and give an expert opinion. 'Come and see a fellow-poet in a fine frenzy,' I called, and he came up in his pajamas. I trained the instrument for him along the edge of the parapet. 'Behold the bard!' I said. 'Bard, your grandmother!' he exclaimed, after a long look through the tube. 'Why, I know that man well. He's a boot and shoe drummer.' 'Drummer or not,' I replied, 'he is certainly writing a poem—probably a sonnet on the immortality of the insole. Otherwise, how do you account for his pawing the air and smiting his brow?' My brother-in-law looked again. Then he roared with laughter. 'Bah!' he said, 'he's not wrestling with the divine afflatus. He's scrapping with mosquitoes.' I took another survey myself and reluctantly admitted the correctness of the theory. I had never thought of mosquitoes."

Mrs Annie E Gunning, Tyre, Mich., says, "I suffered along time from dyspepsia; lost flesh and became very weak. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure completely cured me." It digests what you eat and cures all forms of stomach trouble. It never fails to give immediate relief in the worst cases.

CAT CAUSED

A Woman to Faint Because She Thought It Was a Burglar.

Philadelphia Inquirer: "That was a funny incident that happened the other night," said one of Philadelphia's "finest," "that burglar cat, I mean the cat being mistaken for a burglar. But I remember a much more serious matter than that resulting from the appearance of a cat at a window of the house of a friend of mine living in Brooklyn. One evening in the winter of 1892 my friend's wife was sitting in the back parlor on the ground floor waiting for her husband to come home to tea. It was quite dusk, but she had not lighted the lamp and was doing a little dreaming, I suppose. Something happened, and when my friend let himself in with his latch-key he found his wife on the floor in a dead faint. He could not bring her back to consciousness, unsuccessfully, and finally had to leave her and run out for a doctor, who, fortunately, lived only a couple of doors away. After a lot of trouble the doctor resuscitated her, but she immediately became hysterical and went off again. In her hysterics she kept calling out that there was a man trying to get in at the window. The next day she described him as a man with a rough fur cap and a beard and striped coat; that's all she could tell, and as it was so dark. He tried to break the window, but when she shrieked and fell in a faint he must have been frightened and escaped. Of course, the story was pooh-poohed, but the lady insisted she was right. Two days later my friend went home and found her again unconscious. This time she was so seriously frightened that it was several days before she was able to attend to her house duties, and her mother came to stay with her. Another two days passed. There had been no further attempt on the part of any man to break in. The mother had persuaded her daughter to take a nap, saying she would prepare tea, and she went down stairs to do so. It was a little later than usual, and my friend was already due home. In fact, he put the key in the keyhole, when his ears were saluted by a series of piercing shrieks. He rushed into the house and found his mother-in-law in a faint and his wife gibbering like an idiot and pointing at the window, on the sill outside of which sat a huge Angora cat with one paw up at the pane; It was nearly two years before his wife recovered her reason."

CURIOUS CHILDISH PRACTICE.

Little Girl's Sure Method of Knowing Her Mate.

There was a little girl on the street cars who was acting very queerly. That is "certain grown-ups" who have forgotten the ways of little girls seemed to think so, says the Kansas City Journal. She was sitting very quietly beside her mother, but her bright eyes were watching the streets closely for something. Every now and then they would sparkle and she made a queer little gesture. She touched the end of her second finger to her tongue and doubling up her fist struck it into the palm of her other hand. "Ninety-five," she said under her breath. "Ninety-six, ninety-seven." Each time making the gesture. What could the child be doing? Just where little girls learn some things is a question. Probably from their grown-up sisters or other little girls' grown-up sisters. However it may be there is a way whereby little girls can tell who their future husbands are going to be. They get together and agree to count white horses until they get 100. Then they must see three white mules and after that the first young man who meets them is the fated one. Just how the meeting takes place is a matter of previous arrangement among the little girls. It may be the first one who shakes hands with them or who opens the door for them or who gives them something. Then, of course, there is the contest of seeing who will get the 100 horses first—to say nothing of the mules. That was what made the little girl's eyes sparkle. "Only three more. Just think, mamma. Then the mules. I'm beating the other girls all to pieces."

UP THE HILL FOR A CENT.

Small Boy in Germantown Starts a New Business.

There's a new and flourishing business just started up in Germantown. It means money for small boys and a rest cure for bicyclers, says the Philadelphia Press. Perhaps you've seen wheelmen and wheelwomen toiling up the Wissahickon hill that brings them out into Rittenhouse street. When that stage of the journey is reached one is pretty well tired out anyhow, and to meet Wissahickon hill in addition is the last straw. The look of rage and hopelessness and utter exhaustion on bicyclers' faces would be pitiful if it did not come from a voluntary self-martyrdom. Well, there is nothing for it, when you get there, except to ride up or walk up, pushing your wheel. The first proposition is out of all possibility. And heretofore there have been daily processions of purple riders seen trudging up the hill, trundling their wheels beside them. Now, however, all this is going to be changed, by dint of enterprise and business ability. You get to the foot of the hill and you dismount, and a crowd of small boys bears down upon you. "Take your wheel up for a penny, lady!" "Save you all de trouble for a cent!" "The whole hill for a copper." So they besiege you. And you gratefully turn over your bicycle to somebody's hands and walk on leisurely and unburdened, with time to stick in loose hairpins and mop your heated brow. Blessed be the small boy!

SWALLOWED A PIN.

Three Years Ago and It Has Just Come Out of His Finger.

Whitstone Landing Cor. Chicago Inter Ocean: Percy Smith, 25 years old, swallowed a pin three years ago. The other day there came out of the little finger of his right hand at the first joint a pin which he identified as the one then swallowed. He was, on the occasion referred to, three years ago, chatting with several members of the Warlow Athletic Club, of which he is secretary and was holding the pin in his mouth, as was his habit. Suddenly the pin slipped down his throat and caught there crosswise. His friends took him to Dr. Bleeker, who grappled for the pin with a Bull forceps, but it eluded his grasp, sliding down the oesophagus longitudinally, but fortunately point upward. Smith was a little cautious at first, but as the pin did not annoy him he soon forgot to keep track of it. Several days ago, however, he felt an annoying sensation, as if from a splinter, in his little finger. He probed for it with a needle and to his surprise struck metal. He then upon squeezed the finger until the hidden object was forced far enough out for him to catch hold of it, whereupon with a jerk, he drew it out and to his surprise he found it to be a discolored pin that had come out point first. Mr Smith declares that the only pain he has felt for years was when he drew this pin out of his finger. The patient is doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances.

"One Minute Cough Cure is the best remedy I ever used for coughs and colds. It is unequalled for whooping cough. Children all like it," writes H N Williams, Gentryville, Ind. Never fails. It is the only harmless remedy that gives immediate results. Cures coughs, colds, hoarseness, croup, pneumonia, bronchitis and all throat and lung troubles. Its early use prevents consumption.

Japanese Fires.

A fire in Japan is exciting. The Japanese seem to lose their heads completely in the presence of the fire demon. The people move from the houses where the fire breaks out into the next, then to another, and so on, until the fire is over, the united families moving from house to house with great nonchalance. A man dancing on his roof with a paper fire god is supposed to avert the danger, and no man is more surprised than he, when, in spite of the fire god, the house ignites, and in a moment roof and man fall together. In three days the houses are rebuilt and all traces of fire removed.

THE WAY TO GO TO CALIFORNIA

is in a tourist sleeper, personally conducted, via the Burlington Route. You don't change cars. You make fast time. You see the finest scenery on the globe.

Your car is not so expensively furnished as a palace sleeper, but it is just as clean, just as comfortable, just as good to ride in—and nearly $20 cheaper. It has wide vestibules, Pintsch gas high back seats, a uniformed Pullman porter, clean bedding, spacious toilet rooms, tables and a heating range. Being strongly and heavily built, it rides smoothly, is warm in winter and cool in summer.

In charge of each excursion party is an experienced excursion conductor who accompanies it right through to Los Angeles.

Cars leave Omaha, St. Joseph, Lincoln and Hastings every Thursday, arriving San Francisco following Sunday, Los Angeles Monday. Only three days from the Missouri River to the Pacific Coast, including a stop-over of 11 hours at Denver and 24 hours at Salt Lake City—two of the most interesting cities on the continent.

Society for Book-Taking.

New York correspondence Pittsburg Dispatch: In a neighboring Long Island village the young men have a new privilege. On paying ten cents a week they can have their socks darned by the belles of the village, who have organized themselves into the "Giddy Girls' Darning club." One of the young ladies noticed a hole in the hose of a young man who was paying her a social visit the other night and, on comparing notes, it was found that many of the other girls of the village had been impressed by the fact that the beaux of the place needed help in keeping their socks in order. The young man who was admitted to the privileges of the club must not be in the habit of smoking, drinking, playing cards, or doing anything real naughty. All he has to do then is to pay ten cents a week and wear his socks into as many holes as pleases him.

OUR BOYS AT THE FRONT.

Letter From Arthur Longwell to His Brother.

Dear Brother: Well Bolivar, here I am out on the firing line 50 miles from Manila. The regiment is out shooting now, and the band left here to guard camp. I paced my old beat last night from 7 to 9 and 1 to 3, for the first time on guard since I joined the army. The rain was pouring down and way off, not very far either. About 2 miles—we could hear the enemy's bugles going about half past two, it made a fellow feel kind a skeery. They had a big battle yesterday, we could hear the old cannon going all day. The 32nd was out but did not get into much trouble. We landed in Manila November 1st and they loaded us right onto the train and brought us out here. We passed over several battle grounds and seen lots of bullet riddled houses. When we first got here at Angeles, the enemy's line was only 800 yards out, but we have driven them back farther now.

All of us boys are well. I never had such an appetite in my life as I have had since we landed. I guess a fellow gets over it in the course of time. I'm glad the band don't have much guard duty, for I am so sore today I can hardly walk, go out for 2 hours and get all wet and then go lie down all wet and sleep 4 hours and then get up shivering, it gets a fellow in short time. We had a very nice trip over, the ocean is not so bad as a person might think if you have smooth water. We had a little rough weather but not much. I suppose you got my letter I wrote you from Honolulu. We were there 3 days and seen Ned and Guy Gere but did not get to go out with them much. Six months ago I did not think I would ever live in a bamboo house but that is what we are doing now. All the houses of Angeles are built of bamboo set up off the ground about 4 feet, and some are very fine residences and show great ingenuity in in the erection thereof. Ahem!

We have been living in tents till today; the 17th Regimet moved and we go into barracks but I think we will move soon on still farther into the enemy's country I believe the war will end before six months and we will be back home by next winter, at least I hope so.

Nov. 7th '99. Well I had to go on guard and did not get a chance to finish till now. We moved into houses last night, Rich and I have a little room all to ourselves.

This the awfulest country for lizards and spiders and centipeds you ever didn't see? It's awful to lie down and feel the lizards crawling over you and hear them digging around under your pillow. Whew! They are harmless I guess but they are long slimy things and a fellow hates to have them crawling over him.

This is the country for me I guess, everything is little; little engines and cars, hold about 15 people, narrow tracks, all the horses are little bit of things, and the people are very small too. My I'd like to bring a couple of ponies home with me. You can buy them for a dollar apiece here, but the expense would come in getting them home. There is all kinds of money buried around in town here. Some of 32nd boys found $1,000 buried, quite a little stake isn't it?

We got two months pay yesterday, the first money we have had since August. Been busy spending a good share of it, laying in supplies of various articles necessary to the comfort of a soldier's life, such as smoking tobacco and cigarette, towels, writing paper and stamps, etc. They pay us in gold altogether here, as far as possible and only every two months. I got a 20 and a 10 in gold and $1.25 in silver. The $30 gold piece I deposited with the paymaster and that leaves me $11.20 to last 2 months.

Tomorrow they commence the advance, with the 17th, 9th, 12th and one batallion of the 32nd; as far as I know the band stays here. They had the band out doing guard duty and got stuck on them as soldiers and now the Adjutant says he is going to do all he can to get guns for them and get up a rep for us as the fighting 32nd band. Their was not one in the band that had ever done guard duty, and my beat was right in front of headquarters and I heard all sorts of things. The officer of the day said, "that band can learn more about guard duty in 15 minutes than the companies can in a month. I expected to have to be the whole guard, myself, tonight but I never had less trouble in my life." The Adjutant chimed in "You d——, right; that band is all right. Will close for this time dear brother, answer soon and you will greatly oblige.

Go to W. A. Conklin's for Holiday Goods.

There was brought to the Record office yesterday by McCage Wright, who is boring a new stock well for Geo. H. Clark, 1½ miles northwest of Diller, several pieces of wood which were taken out of the well at a depth of 90 feet below the surface and evidently came from a drift of logs which is so thick that Mr Wright is unable to bore through it with his auger. The specimens, which are well preserved, but not petrified, include two or three different kinds of wood and will be sent to the state geologist, at Lincoln, who may be able to tell how it got there.—Diller Record.

Thoughts of Christmas.

The Holiday season, that good season when men and women feel the force of the Christian sentiment "It is more blessed to give then receive," has come again. Once more we hang the latch string to the door on the outside; once more the spirit of Santa Claus is in the air; the world is again on the threshold of the happiest days of all the year. Christmas time, when old hearts are young again and young hearts are light and gay, is here to soothe and bless mankind once more.

It will be a happy Christmas for those who read my suggestions of useful things particularly suitable for gifts for men. It will be an easy task to select them if you come here. Men like the things that are useful and you can depend on the correctness of everything you purchase here.

Neckwear is always acceptable for Christmas and this is the place you want to get it. We have the largest, most complete and exclusive stock. Among our new styles are the English Square and Imperial, Mulford Puffs, Once Overs and Prince of Wales Bows. Other appropriate gifts purchased to best advantage here are: Gloves, Fancy Suspenders with silver and gold buckles, embroidered Suspenders, Oxford and Square Mufflers, Silk Umbrellas, fancy Hose, Fur Mits, Slippers, Knives, Night Robes, Razor Cases, Cuff and Collar cases, in fact every thing for men from an Overcoat to a Plug of Tobacco.

HOLIDAY PERFUMES

Have you noticed that our perfumes are more lasting and odors more delicate than those you usually get elsewhere? it is due to the novel way we have in selecting them. We will be glad to show you our latest specialties whether you wish to by or not. And while here we will be only too glad to show you the most complete line of Toys, Dolls, Books, Inkstands, Blocks, Games, Balls, Writing Tablets, Pocket Books, Grain Morocco, Alligator and Seal, Celluloid Glove and Hankerchief Boxes, Hand Mirrors, Ladies Ties and the nicest line of Albums, to select from that ever came to Table Rock.

A Word to the Little Ones.

We have a fine a line of Candies, Nuts, Dates, Figs, Oranges, and on Dec. 25, Christmas day, will give all our little boys and girls who visit our store a nice treat, now will be glad to meet all your happy faces.

Brick-a-Brack.

Glassware, Lamps, a wonderful line of China at low prices. Beautiful Cups and Saucers, Cream and Sugar Teapots, Chocolate Pots, Crocker Jars, Cake Plates, Toilet Trays, Pen Trays, Pin Trays, Vases, Bon-Bons, Salads, in all the latest colors in direct imitation of Dresden and Austrian designs at half the price. And now what makes a more suitable gift or one that is more appreciated than a handsome dress pattern for mother or sister. We can offer you a stock to select from at prices that will tease your purse, to mention what we have in stock to attract and tempt you to buy your goods from us would be useless, yet we do not exagerate in saying that our line of Holiday Goods is the nicest in the nicest in the town. Speak about prices we are not only as low but lower on an average throughout. We realize there is two ways of doing a thing, a right way and the other way. We believe in order to catch good trade we have to place good goods before them, and this reminds us of the minister with a far away Connecticut look on his face, mounted on a raw-bone, hat-rack horse and headed for Boston coming too where two roads meet he asked a dirty urchin the nearest road to town. "Who be you any-how?" demanded the urchin, "I'm a follower of the Lord, my son," replied the divine. "Well it don't make no difference which road you take, Mister you'll never catch him with that Nag."

We might say more, but we are modest and have trimmed our smile accordingly.

IS A BOER TRIUMPH

British Reverse at Stormberg Was Very Decisive.

A TOTAL OF 672 PRISONERS TAKEN

Cronje Holds Good Position In Front of Methuen—Desperate Condition of Affairs at Ladysmith—Defenders Are Now on Half Rations.

Six hundred and seventy-two British prisoners were taken at Stormberg by the Boers, says a Pretoria dispatch.

In the fighting at Modder river General Cronje maintained his position and captured fifty British soldiers.

The following dispatch has been received from the Boer laager near Ladysmith:

"Several Kaffir runners from Ladysmith to Estcourt have been captured. They received from fifteen pounds to forty pounds for the trip. The intercepted messages show that men and horses in Ladysmith are now on half rations, that whisky is one pound a bottle and that beer is exhausted."

Sorties by the British armored train and Boer shelling of the town continues, says a Mafeking telegram of November 30. The British have had but few casualties. Last evening the protectorate regiment managed to occupy an outpost where the British Lee-Metfords could reach the enemy's big gun, and the result was that the effectiveness of the Boer fire was materially reduced.

London Still in Suspense.

No further news has been received at London to remove the mystery overhanging General Gatacre's retreat from Stormberg. He has not yet forwarded the promised additional message and the censorship has prevented the correspondents from explaining the matter.

As time goes on it becomes evident that General Gatacre's misfortune or error will delay the invasion of the Free State perhaps some weeks. It is exceedingly probable that he will be compelled to retire on Queentown and to wait for reinforcements, which can hardly reach him until Sir Charles Warren's division arrives at the Cape.

Dies on His Way Home.

Bradford Hutchins, a passenger on a Burlington train, died at Hastings of consumption. He was en route to his home in New Hampshire from a trip to the mountains. His body was turned over to the coroner at Hastings and his wife in the east was notified. The body will be forwarded to New Hampshire for burial.

It is reported at Duluth that Cecil Rhodes and Dr. Jameson of South African fame, have had an agent in the Rainy Lake gold fields several weeks negotiating for the purchase of promising gold properties.

ALEJANDRINO SURRENDERS

Filipino Commander and His Staff In General MacArthur's Hands.

An expedition headed by the battleship Oregon have left Manila for Subig, says a Manila dispatch. It is reported that the Filipino commander, General Alejandrino, with his staff, has surrendered to General MacArthur and there is also a rumor that Alejandrino is at Aguilar suffering from a wound received in a fight between insurgents and bandits, and that he will be given an opportunity to surrender and will be properly cared for.

Major Spence, with a column of the Thirty-second regiment, captured a new insurgent camp, an uncompleted stronghold in the Tassan district. He left Dinalupan and marched ten miles along mountain trails, finally encountering a large band of insurgent, who retreated after a brisk skirmish. The Americans had no losses.

The records of the treasury of the so-called Filipino government, together with a quantity of paper money and another Nordenfeldt, have been found at Mangatarema.

Three Americans who, with a commissary sergeant of the Twelfth infantry were traveling from San Fernando to Angeles, left their escort for a moment and went into the brush. As they did not return speedily a search was made for them, but they could not be found. They were probably captured by the rebels.

A mail orderly disappeared between Angeles and Bamban. He also is supposed to have been captured.

A force of one hundred insurgents attacked near Bailimag a wagon train escorted by thirty men of the Sixteenth infantry. A sharp engagement followed. The Filipinos lost eighteen in killed and nine in captured. During the recent attack by the insurgents upon Vigan, the Filipinos obtained possession of the plaza, and of a church in the center of the town from which the Americans dislodged them. It seems that the escaped Spaniards obtained guns and fought with the Americans against the insurgents.

MAIL BAG IN A QUEER PLACE

Found Wrapped Around Brake Beam of an Express Train.

A mail bag torn and used up was removed from a brake beam beneath a postal storage car in a Vandalia eastbound train in Terre Haute, Ind. The bag, which contained some valuable mail matter, was wrapped closely around the brake beam and had evidently been picked up at Milford, O., carried through on the fast train to St. Louis, and then brought back east as far as that city before its presence on the brake beam of the car was discovered. Railroad men cannot understand just how the bag managed to become wrapped around the beam so tightly, nor how the railroad inspectors overlooked it. A report was forwarded to Washington.

Discredit the Story.

The family and relatives of Major Logan at Youngstown, O., discredit the story sent out from San Francisco that he was shot by his own men in battle to redress a fancied grievance. Robert Bentley, administrator of Major Logan's estate, says:

"The story is too absurd to believe; we have a copy of the report of General Otis filed with the war department that Major Logan was killed by Filipinos in battle, and are satisfied it is correct."

Mrs. Logan and her mother, Mrs. C. V. Andrews, leave next Wednesday for Coronado, Cal., where they will await the remains of Major Logan.

Usual Quarantine Order.

The usual annual quarantine order against the area where the splenetic or southern (Texas) fever exists among cattle will be issued shortly by the department of agriculture, to take effect January 1. The order will be substantially like that of last year, the most important difference being that whereas last year the whole of California was included in the proscribed area, the quarantine line now, in view of the co-operation of state authorities, will be drawn across the state in an easterly line from San Francisco.

Attempt to Wreck a Train.

Passenger train No. 306, north-bound, the Fort Scott and Joplin limited, on the Kansas City, Fort Scott & Memphis railroad, ran into an open switch as the train was slowing for the station at Weir City, Kan. The speed had been greatly reduced and only the engine, No. 19, and tender left the track; no one was injured. The switch had been partly turned by somebody with the evident intention of derailing the train.

Distribution of Seeds.

The department of agriculture will begin its distribution of seeds a little earlier this year than last, shipping them south the beinning of January and perhaps sending a few shortly before the first. This year the seeds for distribution to all parts of the country will consist of 13,000,000 packs of vegetable seeds, 1,588 of flower seeds, besides field and lawn grass seeds.

The republican leaders of Pennsylvania opposed to the leadership of M. S. "A force of United States marines who landed at Nigan, from the battleship Oregon, was defeated by the Filipinos under General Finco (Tino) on December 5. The Manila newspapers, despite the censorship, admit that General Lawton is missing.

Governor-elect Taylor in his inaugural address said:

"The verdict rendered by the people last November was the mandate of the people in favor of civil liberty. It was the triumph of the people over the merciless, remorseless partisan machine erected to enslave them.

WOOD TO BE NEW GOVERNOR

President Believed to Have Decided on Brooke's Successor.

A special from Washington says: "Governor of Cuba" will be the official designation of the office to which Major General Leonard Wood will be assigned early in the new year as the successor to Major General Brooke, the present military governor of the island.

By omitting the word "military" the president wishes to impress upon the Cubans that under the new regime "civil" government as far as possible under military officers and men will obtain. The word "civil" will not be substituted for "military" because that would appear incongruous in view of the authority under which the president is operating. Nevertheless it is the desire of the president that General Wood shall cut loose from rigid military methods and allow the Cubans the widest latitude possible in municipal affairs. Indeed, that was his principal motive in selecting General Wood for the governorship. The number of departments in the island will probably be reduced in a month or two, so that there will be no necessity for all the general officers now there. General Ludlow desires, it is understood, to come home when General Wood takes command.

Notwithstanding the opposition from the line of the army to the appointment of General Wood as major general of volunteers, the confirmation by the senate of his nomination may be accepted as a foregone conclusion. A favorable report by the military committee may be looked for on Tuesday and his confirmation will probably immediately follow. General Wood will remain in Washington until he has received his new commission and will then proceed to Santiago and arrange for his transfer to Havana.

Graham was lieutenant colonel of the Second Kansas regiment in the Spanish war and is well known.

Mason Appeals for Boers.

An appeal by Mr. Mason of Illinois for an expression of sympathy for the Transvaal republic in its war with Great Britain, was the feature of the senate proceedings Monday. It was the first formal address delivered in the senate this session, and was listened to with thoughtful attention by both the members and a large gallery of auditors. No business of importance was transacted by the senate, and an early adjournment was taken.

The London war office has issued a notice that after January 1 a deduction will be made from the soldiers serving in South Africa—in the case of privates, 4 pence per day for wives, and a penny for each child; in the case of sergeants, 8 pence for wives and 2 pence for each child. These sums have thus far been paid by the government. The order indicates a belief that the campaign will be a long one.

Prevented Utter Rout.

Later details regarding the disaster to General Gatacre's column at Stormberg show that but for the magnificent work of the British artillery the disaster would have been more extensive than it was, as the incessant Boer shell fire in the midst of the repulsed infantry ultimately led to disorder. The Boers captured three British guns.

IS SHOT BY EDITOR

Fatal Affair in the News Office at Belden, Neb.

J. HARK BLENKIRON IS THE VICTIM.

Demands Retraction of Newspaper Article, and Tragedy Follows—Slayer Surrenders and Is Placed in Jail.

At Belden, a small town south of Hartington, Charles H. Harris, editor of the Belden News, shot and instantly killed Hark Blenkiron of Atkinson. The News office was the scene of the crime.

Blenkiron, who was an old resident of Belden, took exception to an article printed in the News, and called on Harris to retract the statement. During the excitement Harris drew a revolver, as he claims, in self-defense, and shot Blenkiron, who walked a few steps and dropped dead. Harris immediately went to Hartington and surrendered himself to the sheriff, and is now in jail, awaiting his preliminary hearing.

Blenkiron leaves a wife and family in Atkinson, while Harris is a single man and has relatives in Paulina, Ia.

Excitement runs high at Belden, but the officers have no fear of mob violence.

At the coroner's inquest over the body of Hark Blenkiron, the evidence went to show that the shooting was done in self defense. The real trouble which led up to the shooting occurred the middle of last week, when Mr. Blenkiron had trouble with the Belden bank over an overdraft, and, it is alleged, tried to close up the institution. The editor wrote up the affair in his paper, and to this Blenkiron took offense and undertook to have it retracted. There was no one present at the time the shooting took place except Harris and Blenkiron. Harris was seen at the county jail, and while not disposed to talk very much, he seemed cheerful and confident that the public, when acquainted with the facts, would justify the shooting on the grounds of self-defense. The sheriff has the revolver which was used in the shooting. It is an old fashioned horse-pistol.

The Blenkirons are among the wealthiest families in that part of the state and will fight the case to the bitter end.

DISEASE ATTACKS CATTLE

Farmers Near Ainsworth Sustain Losses to Their Herds.

Several ranchmen in the vicinity of Ainsworth, of late have been losing stock through some mysterious cause. G. Fowler, a few miles north of Ainsworth, is the latest victim. During the past few days he has lost ten head. The cattle have been running in the corn fields and it is thought they get hold of some poisonous weeds. The cattle seem all right a few minutes prior to their death, when they begin to reel and weave about like a drunken man and falling, die in great agony. The ranchmen are taking their cattle off the corn stalks and putting them in the feed lots, and where this is done no further losses are reported. It is a good case for investigation by the state authorities.

WOMAN KILLED BY A TRAIN.

Distressing Accident in Grand Island Railroad Yard.

A most distressing accident has just occurred at Grand Island, Mrs. C. A. Baldwin, an elderly lady, being run down by the incoming St. Joseph & Grand Island passenger train and instantly killed. Mrs. Baldwin had been on the north side to see the woman who does the washing for her family. She was compelled to wait on account of a west-going Union Pacific freight train, and as soon as the last car of the freight had passed she attempted to cross, coming right in front of the swiftly running passenger train. She was thrown high in the air and fell alongside the track. Beyond a gash in the head, the remains were not cut or mangled.

The Story of Christmas

Her Merriest Christmas

A western lady, who formerly lived at Cambridge, Mass., writes entertainingly of what she declares was the happiest Christmas of her life. The climax of this merry occasion was a house party given at the home of her uncle not many miles from Cambridge. The lady writes:

"My uncle owned a big place about twenty miles from town, and every year he invited all his relatives to spend the Christmas holidays with him. He was a widower with two children—a son 26 years old and a daughter of 17. This girl, my cousin, Stella, was one of the brightest and most fun-loving girls I have ever known. I was just two years her senior, and between us we managed to stir up that house party to a degree nothing short of startling! Twenty people beside our family were invited, there being altogether about thirty guests in the house. Among them were a young lawyer from New York (for whom I immediately conceived a violent admiration), a naval officer, three Yale men from New Haven; my two brothers, an antique female cousin of ours (age unknown), some girls from New York and a young married couple from St. Louis. Before the end of a week Stella and I had almost originated a divorce case, where the young St. Louis couple were concerned. Of course, there were some other people, but they were sort of chaperones, old fogies who didn't count much. Well, that year the 25th of December fell on Wednesday, and the guests were invited from Dec. 23 to Jan. 2, and I can tell you we made Rome howl. My brothers and I, with our parents, arrived at our uncle's late Monday morning. The snow had been falling steadily for thirty-six hours, and was many inches deep.

"We drove from the little rickety station three miles 'cross country to the farm. We were the first arrivals, and we made good use of the advantage over the other invited guests. The next train, at 4 o'clock, brought them all, and at 5 they came shouting and singing up to the house, an sleighs, wagons and carriages, borrowed from the farmers all over that part of the country. Well, the first evening was passed in the big dining room, all of us crowded about the roaring log fire. That is, all of us, excepting the young lawyer from New York and—myself. We were seated on a chintz-covered soap-box, off in a dim corner of the room, discussing—er—the possibilities of effect of mistletoe on—ah—mankind. Before the candles were brought in to announce the 'time for disappearing,' we two had begun to understand each other. It was our first meeting, but in the country, and at Christmastide, people become acquainted very quickly.

"The next morning we all arose at 8 o'clock, and after the jolliest kind of a breakfast, we hauled in great bunches of evergreen, reels of crow-foot moss, and pile after pile of holly and mistletoe. We spent most of the day on step ladders or tables, hammering and tacking the Christmas decorations in place. And in the evening my uncle had a big pine tree brought in and set up in the parlor. We had each brought scores of little packages from town to present on Christmas morning, and these were suspended from the branches of the tree. Mistletoe was everywhere, and so were the girls. The consequence will be readily understood—the men were not of the variety known as shy.

"It was long past midnight when we trooped on to our rooms and 2 o'clock struck before the last good night rang down the darkened hallway. As soon as all was quiet, I stole from my room, and tip-toed down the corridor to my cousin Stella's door. It was locked, but I tapped gently, and was soon admitted. We two girls slipped down stairs, where I had told the butler (an old servant of my uncle's) to wait for us. And then we put our three heads together and concocted a grand scheme, for the undoing of everybody in the house. We tugged and hauled that big over-loaded Christmas tree from the parlor, through the hall into the library, and then we exchanged the names on all the presents. It was almost daylight before we finished, but we were amply repaid for our trouble.

RECEIVED A PAIR OF HUNTING TROUSERS.

"By 9 o'clock everybody was dressed and down stairs, exchanging greetings and gifts. Stella and I were the last to arrive, and our entrance was the signal for a grand rush to the parlor. And lo! the big Christmas tree had flown. My uncle was enraged, the guests much excited, and the young lawyer from New York looked very much amused. A search was promptly instituted, and of course the tree was found in the library, standing in stately solitude.

"Who on earth could have put it there?' No one knew—and no one could guess—Stella and I were particularly obtuse. And after awhile the presents were distributed. The young married woman's card was inclosed in a bundle of embroidered flannel petticoats, to 'my darling husband,' and 'darling husband' presented his 'little love' with a volume of Mother Goose tales, and a red bathing suit; my old maid cousin received a Dutch pipe and a pair of hunting trousers; my uncle got a half dozen tulle veils and a pair of gold garter clasps."

THOSE CHRISTMAS CHILDREN.

The little folks at our house—they talk like anything
'Bout Santa Claus comin', an' what he's goin' to bring;
An' mother never has to scold, or tell
'em 'bout the noise—
They're just the sweetest little girls—
the best of little boys!

'Cause why? They know that Santa
Claus knows ever'thing they do,
An' while he's loadin' up his sleigh
he's watchin' of 'em, too!
An' them that minds their mother
they gets the most o' toys—
They're just the sweetest little girls—
the best o' little boys!

They've just been writin' letters to Santa Claus each day,
An' tellin' him just what they want an' showin' him the way
To where our house is, so's he'll know just where to leave the toys
Fer just the sweetest little girls—the best o' little boys!

They're longin', longin', longin' fer the days and night to go,
An' all o' them are happy, an' they make their mother so!
She never has to scold 'em, or tell 'em
'bout the noise—
'Cause they're the sweetest little girls
—the best o' little boys!

Use Plenty of Paper and Cards.

No child of today would consider a present half a present—except, of course, those that Santa Claus with his own hands hangs upon a tree or thrusts into a stocking—unless it were hidden in manifold paper wrappings at the bottom of a box with a bright colored Christmas card lying on top of it. Anyone accustomed to being with children will appreciate the pleasure that the accessories of their Christmas gifts give them. Every scrap of ribbon, the tiniest card, the very scraps of bright wrapping paper, are all hoarded, and used somewhere for decoration. The little girl makes sashes of the ribbons and dresses for her paper dolls of the tissue wrappings, while the cards serve as priceless works of art on the walls of her playhouse.

The lucky man is the man who sees and grasps his opportunity.

Rob Cleverdale's Adventure.

By Seward W. Hopkins.

Copyrighted, 1898, by Robert Bonner's Sons.

CHAPTER II.

Having gone thus far, Rob would not have been a true boy had he not looked forward to this great change in his life without more or less eagerness and pleasure. And Rob was a true boy. He was a good boy, and a good scholar. He was the best runner, the best football player, and the best swimmer in the circle of boys in which he was leader. The blood of splendid health coursed through his veins. He was sturdy, strong and handsome. What boy such as this would not hail with delight a life in South America, with prospects of adventures in wild and mysterious places.

Mrs. Cleverdale so far entered into his hopes and plans, that at last she became not only reconciled to the parting, but pleased at it. It meant so much for the boy she dearly loved. She believed that her own life would not be long, and she was glad of this opportunity for Rob to find a home where his future was assured.

And at last the eventful day came. Mrs. Cleverdale had a friend, a lawyer, who undertook to get Rob safely off.

"He goes to Rio de Janeiro on the United States and Brazil mail," said the lawyer, Mr. Brown. "At Rio he changes and takes another ship. Fortunately, I am acquainted with the captain of the 'Vigilancia,' which sails next week from here. I will take Rob to see him, and then we can rest assured that he will arrive safely. There is no better sailor or better man afloat than Captain Baker of the 'Vigilancia.'"

So Mr. Brown took Rob to meet Captain Baker. The captain of the 'Vigilancia' was a fine, hearty man, every inch a sailor, and every inch a gentleman. He won the boy's heart at once by his kindness.

"Don't you worry about this young gentleman, Mr. Brown," he said. "He and I are going to be very good friends. We are going to enjoy every foot of the way from here to Rio, and there he will be placed in good hands for the rest of the trip. He's all right. We sail on Wednesday. Don't forget."

So on Wednesday Rob found himself on board the "Vigilancia" with his mother and Mr. Brown to see him off. Mrs. Cleverdale could not help crying a little, but she laughed gayly immediately after, and the memory that Rob took away with him was his mother and Mr. Brown laughing away as if they enjoyed the occasion. This helped Rob very much.

On Wednesday the big ship left her dock and steamed away.

It was in the winter time; and Rob, closely muffled in a big ulster, stood on the deck watching the sights as they went down the East river, and down the bay. After the panorama of the passing docks he became interested in the grand view of the harbor, the Statue of Liberty, which looks so different when viewed from the city; the forts, with their ugly looking guns, the taking on of a pilot and his departure—all these things kept Rob interested, so that even when he thought he was leaving his native land, perhaps forever, he waved aside the sorrow, and told himself that soon he would be a man with money enough to come back if he wished.

Captain Baker was very kind to Rob, and, with the exception of a few days of seasickness, the boy enjoyed the trip to Rio de Janeiro—a distance of nearly seven thousand miles—very much.

At Rio, Captain Baker introduced him to the captain of a ship of the Royal Mail Line, which was to go to Buenos Ayres. This was the final step of Rob's long journey, and it was here that his troubles were to commence.

There were few passengers on board, and most of these were natives of Brazil or the Argentine Republic, traveling on business. There was one passenger, however, who seemed to take a great fancy to Rob, and who at once struck up an acquaintance with him. This was a young man about twenty-five years of age. His name was Lemuel Starne, and he was apparently of mixed English and Spanish parentage. He was quite handsome and well dressed, with black, piercing eyes, and a firm look about the mouth. Rob was glad to be friends with Mr. Starne, for the sail to Buenos Ayres would have been a long and lonely one without a friend to talk to. The captain of the "Royal Mail" was not so friendly as Captain Baker, and Rob fell in with Mr. Starne most of the time.

Mr. Starne was much interested in Rob's prospects, and his coal-black eyes glistened when Rob, in the innocence of his heart, told what a splendid offer Mr. Horton had made him. But Mr. Starne, while getting all Rob's story out of him, said nothing about his own business on board the "Royal Mail."

The ship stopped at Montevideo, in Uraguay, and then entered the River de La Plata.

It was on a black and moonless night when Rob and Mr. Starne were standing near the rail chatting. The few passengers were distributed far away from them, and the crew were busy. There was no one near enough to see in the darkness, just what was going on in that portion of the deck.

Mr. Starne was bending over the rail.

"Look down there," he said to Rob. "See that splendid phosphorescent light."

Rob leaned far over the rail and peered downward.

Suddenly he felt a clutch from behind. A hand was clapped over his mouth, and, without being able to cry out or to make a struggle for his life, Rob was shoved over the rail, and went down like a log into the foaming waters that churned around the speeding steamer.

CHAPTER III.

The Rescue on Board the Black Cat.

The steamship of the Royal Mail was not the only thing afloat in La Plata River that dark night. Hidden from the men on the swift steamer by the thick blackness of the night, and the fact that she carried no lights, was a schooner, which was feeling her way across the broad expanse of the estuary, within hailing distance of the steamship that passed her unwittingly.

This schooner was a peculiar craft. She was not so peculiar in appearance as in action. She was a low, narrow craft, built for speed, and carried a tremendous amount of sail. As has been said, there was no light shown on the schooner. She ran the risk of being struck by a passing vessel. But this was only a chance, and her captain knew that if lights were shown there was almost a certainty of being run down by government boats.

Across the stern of this vessel no name could be seen in the brightest daylight. But still she had a name. It was "El Gato Negro," or "The Black Cat."

The crew of "El Gato Negro" was a mixed lot of rascals, some being Spanish, born in South America, some being French, some Portuguese, and some native Indian. "The Black Cat" had a bad name among the officials of Argentina, and she was, in reality, the fastest and most successful smuggler in the world.

She was entering the river, even now, with a cargo of rifles and ammunition, and also of rum and tobacco, on which there is a heavy duty in Argentina, and was making in the dark for a certain spot where the contraband cargo could be landed without fear of detection.

The language spoken on board the "Black Cat" was something beyond printed words to describe. It was certainly a jargon of English, mixed with Spanish, French or any other language that came handy. The men were, to a man, a desperate, cut-throat gang. Captain Torrevo, of the "Black Cat" was on deck peering at the lights of the steamer, which was passing a short distance ahead of the schooner. He grinned with satisfaction as he thought how lucky it was for him that the night was too black for the men on the steamer to see the "Black Cat."

The captain had taken extra precaution to avoid a colliston of any kind, and a half dozen lookouts were distributed throughout the schooner. With but half her sails spread to the gentle night breeze, the "Black Cat" glided easily and noiselessly through the water.

The Royal Mail was now far up the river, and her lights could just be distinguished; they flickered, then were gone. The "Black Cat" was crossing the path of the steamer, not more than three minutes after she had passed.

"Hist!" came a cry from a lookout in the bow. "Me hear cry—cry—see? Listen!"

"Ho! Me hear um!" said another lookout who had strained his ears. "What um be? Man in water?"

"Him over there!" shouted a fellow who was as black as the night itself. "Hark! Hear de same zing over?"

Captain Torrevo had rushed forward, and was listening intently.

Faintly there came to his ears the words, "Help! I am drowning! Help!"

"Boy in the water," said the captain, whose ears never deceived him on the water. "Hey! Port there! Hard! Stand by there to rescue! Lower away a boat!"

Men sprang to obey the captain, and in an instant there was a small boat resting on the water, with four swarthy and almost murderous looking men in it—for what? To rescue a human being from drowning. These men would take the life of another as quickly as look at him if his life was necessary to their own safety. But the cry for help that came from the black water of the river had found a response in their own hearts, as it might have found in the hearts of the manliest and most courageous of the sailors on a man-of-war.

When Rob struck the water, after his sudden plunge from the deck of the "Royal Mail," he went down deep into the river, and for a moment was bereft of his senses. But this was simply for the moment, and up he came again to the surface, to battle bravely for his life. He saw the receding lights of the steamer, and cried out as lustily as he could for help. But the steamer had gone too far for his voice to be heard on board, and it was heard instead by the men on the "Black Cat."

Suddenly Rob, who was not trying to swim, but simply to keep himself afloat, which he was able to do, heard the plash of oars near him. Then he heard the voice of a man calling out to him:

"'Hoy! 'Hoy! Where him be?"

"Here I am!" shouted Rob. "This way! This way!"

A few strokes of the oars brought the boat nearer still, and then the boat was allowed to drift, while a man stood in the bow ready to seize the person who needed help as soon as he came in reach.

"Light, quick!" said this man in the bow.

Suddenly a gleam lit up the darkness, and the rays of a small lantern were turned on the water. Rob was then about ten feet from the boat. He at once took a few strokes toward it. He was seized in the strong hands of the man in the bow, and in a moment more was dragged into the boat.

His life had been saved—by smugglers.

The lantern was extinguished, and an instant later a light was displayed on the deck of the "Black Cat." Toward this the men rowed, and in about five minutes more Rob, shivering, soggy with soaked clothing, and ready to shout and laugh and cry all at once, from his mixed emotions, stood on the schooner's deck.

Doing Penance for Sins.

In former times persons guilty of grievous and notorious offenses were required to make open confession and further to make satisfaction for the scandal given by their bad example by doing penance publicly in a white sheet in their parish church, says Stray Stories. The sheet was used to show clearly to every one which was the offender. The last time that public penance was done in an English church was on Sunday evening, July 30, 1882, when a man named Martree, in the Church of All Saints, East Martree, made an open confession of immorality and promised to perform the penance thus imposed upon him by the vicar. No white sheet was used on this occasion. The last case in which one was used appears to have been one in St. Bridget's church, Chester, in 1851. But on that occasion the penance was not public, the church door being locked. In the previous year however, public penance in a white sheet was done in a country church in Essex and a similar thing occurred in Ditton church, near Cambridge, in 1849.

Meteorological Use of the Kite.

In the meteorological section of the British association Mr. Rotch gave an account of the work done at the Blue Hill meteorological observatory, Massachusetts, by means of kites during the last year. The maximum height attained was 12,440 feet in February of this year. The fact that the increase of altitude obtained this year is smaller than in former years seems to indicate that the extreme height to which the kites can rise is being approached. The attempt of the United States weather bureau to secure daily records with kites at sixteen stations was unsuccessful for forecasting on account of light winds, which prevented daily flights at all the stations, but many data were obtained simultaneously in the free air and at the ground.

The house currency bill was passed Monday by a vote of 190 to 150. Every republican and eleven democrats voted for it.

The supreme court has knocked out the Weaver law and with it J. G. P. Hildebrand's salary, but it doesn't affect Jim's initials—they'll go on forever.

The annual meeting of the State Horticultural Society will be held at Lincoln, January 9, 10 and 11. Secretary Barnard has prepared an excellent program for the occasion.

The Bartley bondsmen are not liable—so says the supreme court, and the bondsmen bow with delight to the mandates of the court while the state will have to grin and bear it.

Nebraska faped pretty well in the house committees. Congressman Burkett was dissapointed in not getting a place on post offices, and post roads, but was placed on elections and public lands.

Allen took the oath of office as United States senator on Tuesday. There is something of a row on in fusion circles over his appointment but he will give as much satisfaction to the people as any fusionist that could have been named.

We have a fire company and a big 300 barrel cistern filled with water located on one of the principal street corners, but it would be practically useless in case of fire because of lack of means of drawing the water from the cistern. All of which means: Let's get a good pump!

Up to last night the official report of British losses in killed, wounded, and missing during the South African campaign only lacks 2,370 of an entire British army division of 10,000 men. And this showing is made as a result of an active campaign extending only over six weeks. It is not to be wondered at that there is great mourning throughout the United Kingdom.—Inter Ocean.

The Roberts investigation has been occupying a big place in public interest this week. Roberts sets up the claim that congress has no authority to keep him from his seat unless it proves that the crime alleged against him has been committed since his election to congress. It has been quite clearly demonstrated that he has maintained the marriage relations with at least three women since the Edmonds-Tucker law went into effect.

Surveyors have been at work laying out a road from Nebraska City to Table Rock. The road is to run just east of Julian and into Auburn, from there almost direct to Table Rock. It is thought that the road will be built next summer, it will be a great improvement over the line that they now have from the City to Auburn, which has given a great deal of trouble on account of being so near the river and washing out every time there is a raise.—Julian Gazette.

The supreme court has handed down a decision reversing the judgment of the Douglas county district court in the case brought by the state against the Omaha National Bank to recover $201,884 that it paid Bartley out of state funds to take up a warrant he had previously sold and the proceeds of which he embezzled. The district court held the state had no cause for action against the bank and the supreme court reverses that decision.

Washington, Dec 19—A Manilla dispatch received here reports that General Lawton has been shot and killed by Filipino sharpshooters. Lawton, according to a dispatch from Manilla late last night, started with the Eleventh cavalry and two battalions of infantry yesterday evening to capture San Mateo, where 300 insurgents had entrenched themselves. It is supposed here that Lawton met the enemy and, with his well known fearlessness, exposed himself recklessly and was picked off by a sharpshooter.

It is understood that James R Keene, the Wall street leader is about to take a long rest, According to Keene's friends he has won five millions in Wall street in the last few weeks, half of which he has given Mrs Keene by virtue of an agreement made between them years ago that she should have half of his winnings. Keene's sortune is now believed to be abott twenty millions. His vacation may be a step towards his final retirement from the street. He said recently he had all the money he wanted.

A meeting of the republican national committee was held at Washington last Friday, with all but three delegates present, and chairman Mark Haunah in the chair, at which it was decided to hold the next convention at Philadelphia on June 19th. In the contest for place, Chicago gave the city of Brotherly Love a strong chase, the final vote being 24 votes for Chicago and 25 for Philadelphia. Grant was renominated at Philadelphia in 1872, and is the only city since the war where a republican President has been nominated to succeed himself.

Judge Scott, of Omaha, is celebrating his retirement from the bench in a manner consistant with his reputation as a gurgulous fanatic, as becoming in a Judge as silks and jewels are to a razor-back Georgia, swine. He sentenced three of Omaha's preachers to pay a fine of $200 for contempt of court, and in rendering his decision delivered a tirade against them as senseless as it was vindictive. It would be a burlesque on humanity to find a man who didn't hold Judge Scott in contempt, and the voters of Douglass county are to be congratulated in returning him to private life, where his crazy mouthings can harm no one but himself.

The bones of John Paul Jones, America's first and greatest naval hero lie under a shed at No 1 Rue des Ecluses St Martin, in the city of Paris. It is proposed to bring to bring the remains to America, that they be buried with national honors at Arlington. Members of congress in Washington have gone on record as favoring the project, and a concurrent resolution instructing Ambassador Porter to prepair for the removal by a warship, will be introduced by representative Bingham of Pennsylvania in a few days. It is to be hoped that this resolution will be speedily acted upon. Americans are in the mood to do honor to dead heroes as to the living, and certainly the memory of no dead naval commonder is as sacred to the people as that of John Paul Jones. He rendered services which deserve all possible public recognition.—Chicago Journal.

BUNKER HILL.

We have been having winter weather in earnest the past week—the ground white with snow, and the thermometer at 6° Tuesday morning.

Bowen and Axler have been shelling corn for Albert Kovanda, E D Howe, J B Pepoon, and others.

There is to be a Christmas entertainment and tree at Bunker Hill school house on Saturday evening Dec. 23.

We are informed that at the spelling school held at Pleasant Valley last week Friday evening, Mr Wilbur Patchin and Miss Ida Foale carried off the honors.

The State Journal of Friday says: John A Linderman, the Adams lumber dealer who pleaded guilty on Wednesday to having sent a scurrilous letter through the mails to a young woman who worked in a restaurant in his town, will hardly use the mails for that purpose again. Judge Munger would not affix a penalty to the offense last evening, because he had not seen the letter upon which the complaint was founded, which was in the possession of a witness who was not in court yesterday. District Attorney Summers managed to get hold of the letter, however, last evening and the judge accordingly got a glimpse of its contents. Ex Senator Murphy of Beatrice, who appeared for the defendant, was anxious to have the case disposed of so that he could get back home this morning, and Judge Munger got into court at about 8 o'clock to accomodate him. The defendant and his counsel were doubtless somewhat abashed when the sentence was pronounced. It was that Linderman should pay a fine of $500 and costs. The court suspended execution of sentence for fifteen days to allow Linderman to raise the money.

A special from Beatrice to the Lincoln State Journal says: The controversy between General Colby and County treasurer Maures, which has resulted in a number of law suits, reached a peculiar and most interesting point today and the result of the ruling of the courts on the point of law raised, will be watched by hundreds of people who are delinquent in the paying of personal taxes. Yesterday Maurer levied on the office furniture and law library of Colby to secure the payment of delinquent taxes Today Colby appeared before the board of supervisors and asked that the taxes in question be stricken from the tax list. In support or his request he cited a section of the statutes which says that when the township collectors make their report, they shall make a statement of the uncollected taxes, together with good reasons why they were not collected. It is then the duty of the board to strike from the tax list those reported uncollected. The law, apparently, has not been complied with in this regard, and Mr Colby's contention is that he is not liable for these taxes and that they should be stricken off. After considerable discussion on motion of supervisor Bivens, the matter was referred to County Attorney Rinaker for an opinion as to the duty of the board in the matter. The point raised is a new one and the result will be watched with no little interest. Inasmuch as the date of the sale of Colby's office furnishings is but five days off, the county attorney's opinion is expected will be delivered before that time. By some it is contended that either the township collector or the county clerk and their bondsmen are liable for failure to carry out the law.

Sights at Table Rock.

In company with Col. Tom Roberts (not Brigham H) we visited Pawnee county this week and had occasion to spend several hours in the little city of Table Rock, and as this was our first visit to the city we of course was considerably interested in the findings. The first thing that challenged our admiration was the excellent brick sidewalks of which the city has many hundred yards, and which is in good condition. We met quite a number of old acquaintances among whom were Dr Broyles, Judge Roberts (not the Judge Roberts recently shut out of congress but the Judge Roberts who was read out of the republican party for the crime of inviting Helen Gougar to deliver a lecture on anti-imperialism in that city) Hon. M. H. Marble, Hon. Wm. Sutton, W. H. Talcott and family, Cornelius Cook, Grandpa Morley, Lee Horton and our friend and fellow sufferer Frank Taylor, of the Argus. It is needless to remark that we enjoyed the few hours that we spent in the city.

Table Rock town site was platted by Rev. Giddings, the Methodist presiding elder who declared that the soul of his miserly neighbor was so infanticimally small that 10,000 such souls could dance in double quadrille on the point of a cambric needle and have plenty of room to spare. The first line of railroad reached there almost thirty years ago, and the town pulled stakes and moved to the depot but owing to periodical dampness that filled the cellars and floated off everything that was loose, it was moved back to the hill where it now spreads over many acres of ground and claims a population of 1,000.

Table Rock can boast of two of the largest and best brick plants in the state from which are shipped hundreds of car loads of brick, and the B. M. company has an industry that we cannot name, but by some process the gumbo is dug up on the bottoms and baked, boiled, fried or burned until it resembles gravel, when it is used for ballasting the road.

The B. & M. that has faith in Nebraska to remove mountains if they are in the way of the line, has in past years removed a large portion of one of the bluffs south of town to Lincoln where Buckstaff Bros coined the same into vitrified brick with which to pave the streets.

The place is still called Table Rock because of the fact that Landlord Talcott has a way of overloading the tables until they not only groan, but rock and may fall. But while we think of it we will remark that the city is without a commodious hotel while the hotel at the depot would endure several hundred dollars worth of repairs.—Auburn Granger.

The American people will profoundly regret the killing of Major General Lawton, who had won a high place in their esteem as one of the ablest and bravest of our generals. Of the commanders in the Philippines none had more of the respect and confidence of his countrymen than Lawton and he achieved this by services of exceptional merit. The country expected much of him and he did not disappoint it. Every duty devolving upon him he discharged with energy and unfailing good judgment and when the history of the Philippine war shall have been impartially written there can be no doubt that the name of Lawton will be conspicuously associated with its most important events. In some respects Lawton was an ideal soldier. Of dauntless courage, he was ever at the front, inspiring his men by his example while keeping himself fully informed of the situation. His gallantry at El Caney was conspicuous and there are numerous instances in his operations against the Filipinos in which he showed his utter fearlessness. He was distinctively a fighter, who believed that when fighting had to be done it should be prosecuted with the utmost vigor. No officer in the Philippines, it is but fair to say, has contributed more to the suppression of the insurrection than General Lawton and it is peculiarly lamentable that he has fallen when the consummation for which he fought so well is about realized.—Omaha Bee.

New York, Dec. 19.—Stocks recovered violently today. The treasury's arrangement to increase the amount of internal revenue receipts to be held by government depositor banks had an excellent effect upon sentiment among borrowers of money, which effect was improved when the banks decided to borrow government bonds on which to carry the increased deposits of governments money.—Furthermore, the clearing-house committee offered to lend $10,000,000 more on the stock exchange, to break the call money rates down to a reasonable figure. No further failures were announced, and the panic conditions of yesterday disappeared. Higher quotations from London for the internationally listed American railway shares had a good effect at the opening. London houses traded on both sides of the market, but on balance bought about 15,000 shares of various stocks. There were wide and frequent fluctuations in stock prices in the early trading, and a few issues got back to prices close to the lowest Monday. When it became apparent, however, in the afternoon that no further weak spots were to be uncovered locally, and the call money rate dropped under 6 per cent, the market, which had been gradually strengthening, became buoyant, the advances for a time being almost as rapid as the declines of Monday. The closing was at advances of from 2 to more than 6 points.

REPORTED ROUTED

Ten Thousand Boers Said to Be Captured.

GENERAL BULLER IS GIVEN THE CREDIT

Rumor that Generals Clery and Buller Have Entered Ladysmith and Raised the Siege—News Is Discredited by War Office at London.

A London, December 14 dispatch says: On the stock exchange here today at 3 p.m., Rand mines suddenly jumed up one pound on the rumors that General Clery had entered Ladysmith and that General Buller had captured 3,000 Boers.

3:35 p.m.—A special dispatch from Pietermaritzburg says Generals Buller and Clery have entered Ladysmith and have captured 10,000 Boers.

The British war office has heard nothing of the story of the relief of Ladysmith. The officials do not credit the report, as, they add, the relief of the place at such an early date is believed to be practically impossible.

A London, December 15 telegram says: The war office is still without news from Ladysmith, other than that already published. The general belief is that the large Boer forces Lord Methuen encountered at Magersfontein were partly drawn from Natal, and that General Buller will strike a blow before these have time to return.

"Lord Methuen's check, following General Gatacre's repulse," says the Capetown correspondent of the Daily News, "has had a most depressing effect upon the loyalists, who are by no means a growing body. They are filled with dark forbodings. Dutch disaffection is rapidly growing. A large section is restless and would need but little persuasion to join the Boers.

"There are disturbing reports from the eastern districts of Cape Colony, where many secret meetings have been held.

"The imperial authorities are arming the loyal farmers in the Stutterheim and Bedford districts."

The correspondent of the Standard at Modder river, describing the fight at Magersfontein, says:

"Six miles had to be covered before the highland brigade could reach the Boer stronghold. It is not yet clear through what miscreance the force, which was led by guides, came upon the Boer trenches so unexpectedly and so suddenly.

"Beyond question the Boers were aware of the approach of the British and had prepared to receive them. According to one version two highlanders, through nervousness or clumsiness, discharged their rifles prematurely, but it is equally probable that the advance Boer scouts conveyed the intelligence. Our men were totally unprepared. They had not even fixed bayonets. The disaster was all the more exasperating because of the consciousness that, had the brigade been extended and with bayonets fixed, the trenches might have been successfully rushed with far less sacrifice of life."

A revised list of the total casualties to the British troops at Magersfontein places the number at 832.

Iowa Coal Mines Tied Up.

All the big coal mines in Webster county are reported to be tied up by the strike of about 500 men at Kalo, Coalville, Lehigh and Carbon, says a Des Moines dispatch. The men went out because of the unwillingness to grant advances of wages which the men thought just in view of the advancing prices of coal. The struggle promises to be long. The Boone county district, immediately adjoining Webster county, is likely to be drawn into the trouble.

The preliminary examination of Frank L. Dinsmore was held before E. Frank Brown, county judge, at Kearney. Very few were in attendance, as it was not generaly known that he would be be brought from North Platte so soon for examination.

The complaint was made, charging him with deliberately, premeditatively and feloniously shooting and instantly killing Fred Laue of Odessa on the night of December 4. Dinsmore entered a plea of "not guilty" and waived further examination.

Mrs. Laue is held under $10,000 bond for her appearance as a witness for the state in the district court. Dinsmore will remain in the county jail until his trial at the January term of the district court.

A Manila, Dec. 14 special says: Lieutenant Colonel Howse's report shows definitely that General Tino is conveying American prisoners north. Bruce of the First Nevada and Edwards of the Yorktown were rescued near La Paz. Howse is rapidly pursuing Tino with Pennsylvania's battalion of the Thirty-third infantry.

BOERS BEAT BULLER

British Commander Suffers a Serious Reverse.

ENGAGEMENT OCCURS ON TUGELA RIVER

Three Forward Movements Made and Each Time Driven Back—Further Fighting Useless Sacrifice of Life—Lose Eleven Guns.

A London, December 16th special says the war office has received a dispatch announcing that General Buller has met with a serious reverse, losing ten guns.

General Buller was attempting to cross the Tugela river. Finding it impossible to effect his object, he ordered a retirement in order to avoid greater losses. He left eleven guns behind.

The following is the text of General Buller's dispatch announcing his reverse:

"Buller to Landsdowne:

"Chievelri Camp, December 15.—6:30 p. m.—I regret to report a serious reverse. I moved in full strength from our camp near Chievelri at 4 o'clock this morning. There are two fordable places in the Tugela river, and it was my intention to force a passage through at one of them. They are about two miles apart.

"My intention was to force one or the other with one brigade, supported by a central brigade. General Hart was to attack the left drift, General Hildyard the right road, and General Lyttleton was to take the center and to support either. Early in the day I saw that General Hart would not be able to force a passage, and I directed him to withdraw. He had, however, attacked with great gallantry and his leading battalion, the Connaught rangers, I fear, suffered a great deal. Col. I. G. Brooke was seriously wounded.

"I then ordered General Hildyard to advance, which he did, and his leading regiment, the East Surry, occupied Colenso station and the houses near the bridge. At that moment I heard that the whole artillery I had sent to support the attack, the Fourteenth and Sixty-sixth field batteries and six naval twelve-pounder rapid-firers, under Colonel Long, had advanced close to the river in Long's desire to be within effective range. It proved to be full of the enemy, who suddenly opened a galling fire at close range, killing all their horses, and the gunners were compelled to stand to their guns. Some of the wagon teams got shelter for troops in a donga and desperate efforts were being made to bring out the field guns.

The fire, however, was too severe and only two were saved by Captain Scofield and some drivers whose names I will furnish.

"Another most gallant attempt with three teams was made by an officer whose name I will obtain. Of the eighteen horses thirteen were killed and several drivers were wounded. I would not allow another attempt, as it seemed that they would be a shell mark sacrificing life to a gallant attempt to force the passage. I supported by artillery. I directed the troops to withdraw, which they did in good order.

"Throughout the day a considerable force of the enemy was pressing on my right flank, but was kept back by mounted men under Lord Dundonald and part of Great Britain's brigade. The day was intensely hot and most trying on the troops, whose conduct was excellent. We have abandoned ten guns and lost by shell fire one. The losses in General Hunt's brigade are, I fear, heavy, although the proportion of severely wounded, I hope, is not large. The Fourteenth and Sixty-sixth field battalions also suffered severe losses. We have retired in our camp at Chievelri."

No independent reports of the engagement have yet been allowed to come through to London, but General Buller's own dispatch tells the sad tale in sufficient outline to show that the British have been entrapped again by the astute Boers. It was not anticipated that General Buller would make a frontal attack. No criticisms of his movements are made, however, since apparently he suffered a repulse rather than a defeat, and did not push the attack home, but broke it off in the middle so as to save a useless sacrifice. It is expected that he will renew the attack shortly. Immediately on receiving the news the war office decided to mobolize still another division and to replace the losses of artillery. The necessary reinforcements will be hurried off as speedily as possible.

Wants Place to Keep Money.

Secretary Gage has called the attention of congress to the lack of facilities in our new insular possessions and dependencies for the safe keeping of large sums of money required for current expenses of the army and navy. He recommends that authority be given him to designate one or more banks or bankers in each of these islands as depositories of public moneys.

Navy Short of Men.

The navy is 4,000 men short of the legal maximum, and this in spite of the best efforts of the recruiting officers. Sec. Long has written a letter calling the attention of congress to the state of affairs, and suggesting that it might offer a decided premium for enlisting men by extending to sailors the act allowing apprentices a full outfit of clothing not to exceed $45 in value. Under the present system the men are kept in debt for months after enlistment by the purchase of the necessary outfit from advance payments.

MASONS REVERE HIS NAME

Impressive and Solemn Ceremonies at the Tomb of Washington.

Mount Vernon was the scene Thursday of the most unique and impressive ceremony, in its rich and picturesque history. Masons of high degree from all over the United States and Canada met at the tomb of Washington in services commemorating the 100th anniversary of the death of the greatest American. President McKinley delivered an eloquent tribute to the memory of the first president, and senators and representatives in congress, high officials of the government and distinguished private citizens were participants and spectators of the solemn service.

Later in the day, when the Masonic ceremonies had been concluded, the Independent Order of Red Men succeeded them in honoring the memory of Washington with the rites of their order.

At Mount Vernon the procession was formed in line at the mansion, where President McKinley and other distinguished guests joined it, and moved solemnly to the vault where first reposed the remains of Washington. This procession was formed and moved in the exact order and over the same path which was followed at Washington's funeral.

Halting at the vault, the Third cavalry band played a funeral dirge, and Right Rev. A. M. Randolph, bishop of the Southern Episcopal diocese of Virginia, offered an invocation. This was followed by an address by the grand master of Masons in Colorado, and the procession then moved on to the tomb, where the remains of Washington now lie.

Here occurred the impressive ceremonies of the Masonic ritual. The grandmasters of the thirteen original states formed in line, facing the representatives of the other jurisdiction and the grand lodge and other brethren standing in a circle around the tomb with joined hands. Then the grand master of Virginia called upon each of the jurisdictions in turn for the messages and tributes sent by them.

As the grandmasters of California, representing the western states, concluded the following responses were made:

The craft: "Amen."

All of the grandmasters: "Oh death, where is thy sting."

The craft: "Oh grave, where is thy victory."

The grandmasters then deposited their wreaths and evergreens and the craft slowly marched past, laying on the tomb their tributes. Upon reaching the mansion the lines were drawn up and President McKinley delivered an address. He was introduced by the grand master of Virginia and delivered an eloquent oration, which was listened to in profound and impressive silence.

MUST NOT USE COERCION

Otherwise a Combination to Strike is Legal.

At Trenton, N. J., an important decision was rendered by Vice Chancellor Reed in the case of the Cumberland Glass Manufacturing company of Bridgton against the glass blowers' association of the United States and Canada, Dennis A. Hayes, president, and others. The suit grew out of the glass blowers' strike at Bridgton last March, and which has since been amicably settled. The Cumberland Glass Manufacturing company sought to enjoin the defendants from the part they were taking in the strike. The vice chancellor, in his opinion, holds that a combination to strike or to induce others to strike is made lawful under a New Jersey statute, providing that the means used be those of persuasion and not of coercion.

Washington news says the republican national convention will be held at Philadelphia on Tuesday, June 19th next. The place and date were decided upon by the national republican committee Friday, after a friendly contest for the honor of entertaining the convention between the city selected St. Louis and New York.

Was a Desperate Fight.

Details gathered by a representative of the Associated press among the wounded British and Boers give some idea of the nature of the fight of Magersfontein. The Highlanders did all that the most gallant troops in the world could do, but it was impossible to face the terrible fire of the Boers. The British artillery again saved the situation and divide the honors of the day with the Scotts. The batteries worked for hours under a galling rifle fire.

ALLEN IS SELECTED

Governor Poynter Names Him to Succeed Hayward.

APPOINTMENT WAS MADE WEDNESDAY

Preponderance of Sentiment Among the Fusionists Was for the Madison Man and His Appointment Is the Result—It is Satisfactory.

William V. Allen was appointed by Governor Poynter Wednesday to take the place as United senator from Nebraska, left vacant through the death of Senator M. L. Hayward. The commission was signed by the governor at 12:10 in the afternoon and has been formally issued to the new senator. By this selection Mr. Allen will at once resume the seat in the upper house of the national congress which he has occupied during the last six years, and will serve by virtue of his appointment until the next state legislature convenes in January, 1901.

The decision to appoint Senator Allen was reached by the governor only after much careful deliberation and was purposely postponed until the present time in order that the people of the state might have an opportunity to be heard from as to their preference for the place. His final action is based entirely on the great prominence of fusion sentiment throughout the state, which has from the first been overwhelmingly in support of Allen.

GEORGE WALKER LOCATED

Man With Price Upon His Head Running a Saloon in Manila.

A Chadron, Neb., December 12 special says: George Walker, a Wyoming lawyer, whom J. J. Hurt of South Omaha ran out of America, made his escape from the Pacific coast more than a year ago and has turned up in Manilla, where he is assimilating the natives with the best American liquors. He is running a saloon in Manila. Walker, it is charged, killed a schoolmate years ago, but had successfully dodged justice, and coming west, had the fact hid to his friends here till he crossed Mr. Hurt in the trial of Hurt for shooting a destroyer of his domestic tranquility at Casper, Wyo., about five years ago. As soon as Hurt was acquitted he started in pursuit of Walker, and was three years running him down. When he had a cinch and would have had Walker in the toils of law in twenty-four hours, the outlaw scented danger, and borrowing all he could from all his friends, departed, leaving his wife without a dollar. She is now living in Sioux county, Nebraska. Walker was also guilty of successfully stealing a government saw mill in Wyoming in its territorial days, and getting away with it. For three years Hurt and Walker carried six shooters for each other when in Wyoming at the same time, but they never happened to meet. If they had, Walker would not be running a saloon in Manila today, it is safe to say.

Conductor's Narrow Escape.

Conductor C. N. Brooks, running out of Chadron on the Wyoming line of the Elkhorn, had a hairbreadth escape from the iron wheels on his last run out. He attempted to step from one car to the other while switching at Caspar, Wyo., and did not notice that the cars were uncoupled until he had stepped and the cars were parting. Unable to check himself he fell between the moving cars, but in falling he doubled up and when he struck the ground he was on the roll hoop fashion, and rolled from the track before the car wheels caught him. They came so near, however, that the cap on his head was caught, and his face wiped grease from a boxing. He is now at Fremont recovering from the injuries of his fall.

Jerome Murder Trial.

At Fremont, in the case of the state against Ed Jerome, for the attempted murder of Sam Pope, Jerome was on the point of testifying for the defense, but the attorneys for the state wanted Pope present during the testimony. It developed that Pope was too ill to attend and court adjourned. Pope's wounds, together with something akin to nervous prostration, have weighed him down until he is nearly a physical wreck.

Said to Be Safe in Sweden.

A special from York, Neb., December 12, says Andy Freeburg, the absconding stock dealer of Gresham, is said to be now in Sweden. A cablegram is reported to have been received from him a few days ago, stating that he had arrived safely in that country. The matter of his numerous crooked cattle deals in which an Omaha commission firm and the David City and York banks are involved, are pending in the district court here.

Closed by Creditors.

L. L. Oliver's general merchandise store at Burwell has been closed on chattel mortgages given wholesale houses on the stock.

Watson Case Dismissed.

At 4:30 Monday afternoon Judge Ramsey convened district court at Nebraska City. The two cases of the State vs. John C. Watson were first called and his attorneys, General Colby and John V. Morgan, demanded an immediate trial. County Attorney Wilson stated to the court that he had been unable to locate the principal witnesses in each case. General Colby insisted that the cases were set for this date over his objection at the last term, when his client was anxious for trial. The cases were dismissed and Mr. Watson discharged by the court.

A BOSTON MAN PLEASED.

In conversation with some friends, a prominent Boston man told of his sufferings from rheumatism and nervousness, and one of his friends gave him some advice, which, will be mentioned later, and which has proven to be of incalculable value.

He successfully acted on the advice, it was necessary to make a trip of over 2,000 miles, but he undertook it, and now thanks his friend for the advice, as he finds himself fully relieved of his old trouble and has returned to his home feeling able to cope with his business demands, a new man.

The advice given was to go to "Hot Springs," South Dakota, and there take the baths and enjoy the finest climate of any health resort in America.

If this man was satisfied after making a long trip, those residing within a few hundred miles and similarly afflicted can certainly afford to try it, or rather can't afford to neglect to try it.

A Big Fill.

On the Deadwood, S. D., branch of the Burlington Railroad is a gulch 700 feet wide, known as Sheeps Canyon. This was crossed, until recently, by a wooden bridge, 126 feet high, which took over 240,000 feet of lumber in the building. Recently this trestle was filled in, and the great undertaking attracted the attention of railroad men all over the country. It took twenty weeks to accomplish the task. It was necessary to haul 2,880,000 cubic feet of earth one and one-half miles on a two per cent grade and unload off the high bridge. This required 1,486 trains of fifteen cars each; 22,000 carloads in all. It was a stupendous undertaking, but now the bridge can't burn, and it doesn't cost a lot of money every year for repairs and watchers.

The B. & O. R. R. has just placed an order for 43,500 tons of 85 pound steel rail for delivery in 1900. The contract price is about $3 per ton or $7 per cent more than the Receivers paid for rail during the time they had charge of the property. Of the total amount just ordered the B. & O. proper will get 26,000 tons, the B. & O. S. W. 12,500, the Pittsburg and Western 4,000, and the Cleveland Terminal and Valley 1,000.

The Typewriter Invention.

A statistician has proven that the invention of the typewriter has given employment to 500,000 people, but he fails to state how many cases of weak stomachs it has induced. All people of sedentary occupation need Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It helps nature to bear the strain which ensues from confinement.

A Bright Outlook.

La Porte, Texas, is now attracting the attention of the business men of the United States and during 1900 great interest will be manifested in it. Owing to an advantageous natural location it is destined to enjoy a growth in commercial manufacturing and shipping interests which millions of dollars in advertising and years of energetic promotion could not give it were it not so favored by nature. Men of affairs with large experience in the upbuilding of cities are predicting a future for La Porte which if but half realized will make it the greatest seaport on the Gulf of Mexico and indeed one of the principal seaports of the United States as well as a city of great importance in the manufacturing, railroad and commercial world. It is at the head of Galveston Bay in the celebrated coast country of Texas and has a summer and winter climate which makes it a resort for travelers the year round. The farming land surrounding it is as fine as any in the United States.

Cod liver oil hasn't half so bad a taste as the man that wears a silk hat with a sack coat.

There Is a Class of People.

Who are injured by the use of coffee. Recently there has been placed in all the grocery stores a new preparation called GRAIN-O, made of pure grains, that takes the place of coffee. The most delicate stomach receives it without distress, and but few can tell it from coffee. It does not cost over one-fourth as much. Children may drink it with great benefit. 15 cents and 25 cents per package. Try it. Ask for GRAIN-O.

Ambition without pluck and energy is a useless possession.

All except bad ones!

There are hundreds of cough medicines which relieve coughs, all coughs, except bad ones! The medicine which has been curing the worst of bad coughs for 60 years is Ayer's Cherry Pectoral.

Here is evidence:

"My wife was troubled with a deep-seated cough on her lungs for three years. One day I thought of how Ayer's Cherry Pectoral saved the life of my sister after the doctors had all given her up to die. So I purchased two bottles, and it cured my wife completely. It took only one bottle to cure my sister. So you see that three bottles (one dollar each) saved two lives. We all send you our heartfelt thanks for what you have done for us."—J. H. BURGE, Macon, Col., Jan. 13, 1899.

Now, for the first time you can get a trial bottle of Cherry Pectoral for 25 cents. Ask your druggist.

Suffers Disastrous Reverse at Magersfontein.

FLOWER OF BRITISH ARMY CRUSHED

Boers Stand Firm and Triumph Over Invaders—British Losses Believed to Reach 450 But Full Details Lacking—Gloom at London.

Each important battle seems to bring a worse reverse for the British, says a London dispatch of the 14th inst., and the papers admit that Lord Methuen's defeat at Magersfontein is the worst the war has yet produced. The Morning Post says:

"We have had our day of humiliation appointed for us. Let us accept it humbly and soberly, and be better and stronger for the lesson it has taught us. This last reverse will make us a fresh butt of Europe. There never was a more apt occasion to prove to Europe what we are worth."

The position Lord Methuen assaulted is thus described a by correspondent:

"Magersfontein range terminates on the east, with an abrupt faddle rock, some 150 feet high. Boer entrenchments run around the whole front. The position is some two miles long, due east and west. The western end of the trenches follow the contour of the kopjoes and afford a retreat."

It is estimated here that Lord Methuen's forces amounted to 11,000 men, and perhaps to more. No reliable estimate of his loss has yet been received. They are believed to have been at least 450.

The war office has received the following dispatch from General Methuen, dated Tuesday, December 12:

"Our artillery shelled a very strong position held by the enemy in a long high kopje from 4 until dusk Sunday. It rained hard last night.

"The Highland brigade attacked at daybreak on Monday the south end of the kopje. The attack was properly timed, but failed. The guards were ordered to protect the Highlands right and rear. The cavalry and mounted infantry with a howitzer artillery battery, attacked the enemy on the left and the guards on the right, supported by field artillery and howitzer artillery. They shelled the position from daybreak, and at 1:15 I sent the Gordons to support the Highland brigade. The troops held their own in front of the enemy's entrenchments until dusk, the position extending, including the kopje, for a distance of six miles toward the Modder river. Today I am holding my position and entrenching myself. I had to face at least 12,000 men. Our loss was great."

Considerable significance attaches to General Methuen's statement that he is entrenching himself, indicating fear that the Boers may follow up their advantage, adopt the offensive and attack him. Indeed, the gravity of the situation from the British point of view can hardly be overestimated. General Methuen's long lines of communication to De Aar are most vulnerable. Should they be cut, General Methuen will find himself in a very tight place, if only from lack of supplies.

Irishmen to Aid the Boers.

in their fight against Great Britain. A party of young Irish Americans have left Cleveland, O., to join the Boers At New York these young men, who are mostly veterans of the Spanish-American war, will join about 500 other Irishmen, and the entire party will sail from New York on Saturday for Paris. In the latter city the men will join an Irish regiment being formed to go to the assistance of the Boers.

HER TESTIMONY WEAKENED

The Ground Glass Story in Sanderson Case Not Verified.

The cross-examination of Miss Marie Robertson in the Sanderson attempted murder case now in progress at Marshall, Mich., developed that she had never actually seen the defendant place the glass in the mill to be ground up. She refused to answer why she had not shown the ground glass, which, according to her testimony, was about the house for three weeks prior to Sanderson's death, to some one. The undertaker who prepared the body for burial testified that he was not sure whether there was any glass in the embalming fluid he used.

New Strawboard Trust.

A new strawboard trust will be launched the first of the year in opposition to the old trust, says an Indianapolis, Ind., special. The promoters are Crawford Fairbanks of Terre Haute, M. N. Williams of Anderson and Col. W. T. Durbin, republican national committeemen of Indiana. The first two were until recently connected with the American Strawboard company. The mills in the new combination are at Terre Haute, Anderson, Joliet and Lima.

Farmer Fatally Injured.

Josephus Moore, a farmer and a Nebraska pioneer, living four miles west of Elm Creek, was run over and severely injured by the team of another man. The two were husking corn in the same field. One ear was cut off and he was injured internally and may not live.

Heavy Snow in England.

A heavy snow storm is interfering with traffic on the railroads and street car lines in various parts of England. Skating has commenced and hunting and racing have been suspended.

WIN WITH A LOSS

Sortie at Ladysmith Cost the British Many Men.

A London, December 13 special says that the war office has received the following dispatch from General Buller:

Dispatch from General White dated December 11 says:

"Last night Colonel Metcalfe and 500 of the Second rifle brigade sortied to capture a Boer Howitzer on a hill. They reached the crest without being discovered, drove off the enemy, and then destroyed the Howitzer with gun cotton.

"When returning, Metcalfe found his retreat barred by the Boers, but he forced his way through, using the bayonet freely. The Boer losses were considerable. The British losses were the following: Lieutenant Fergusson and eleven men killed: Captain Paley, Second Lieutenant Davenport, Second Lieutenant Bond and forty-one men wounded; six men captured who had remained behind in charge of the wounded."

A special dispatch from Lourenzo Marques says a Boer telegram from Mafeking announces that Lady Sarah Wilson, aunt of the duke of Marlborough, who was captured by the Boers while acting as correspondent for the London mail, has been exchanged for a Boer woman who was a prisoner at Mafeking.

TWO AMERICANS MURDERED

Native of British Honduras Boldly Shoots Them Down.

A special from New Orleans says: It is reported there from a reliable source that two Americans of prominence were shot and killed in San Pedro, Spanish Honduras, the same inland city where Frank Pears was murdered. The killing, as reported, was of a particularly aggravated type, and this fact, together with the prominence of the victims, will doubtless lead to another official inquiry. As the story reached New Orleans Captain Jock Imboden and William Gold were in their room at San Pedro when a native of prominence walked into the door and without the least provocation opened fire. Captain Imboden was shot once and Gold was shot three times. The shooting occurred last Monday and the news of it was brought by the steamer, Breakwater, which touched at Bluefields on her way home. If there was an old trouble behind the killing nothing could be learned of it. What was done with the man who did the killing could not be learned.

CLAIM HE DOCTORED BOOKS

Charges Made Against a Bankrupt Merchant of Iowa.

A dispatch from Des Moines, Ia., December 12, says: A. O. Ingram, the failed Mt. Ayr merchant, has been adjudged a bankrupt. He filed an admission of insolvency and consented to the sale of his assets. The creditors have called a meeting in Des Moines to organize to fight the preferences given by Ingram through transfers of property before his failure. They are scattered all over the United States. Ingram, entitled to a credit rating of about $25,000, got into debt over $120,000. The creditors charge, in federal court proceedings, that he doctored his books so that they did not show nearly all his indebtedness.

WRECK ON JERSEY CENTRAL

Four Men are Buried Under the Debris and Killed.

A passenger train on the Jersey Central railroad, east bound, ran into the rear end of an extra coal train, also east bound, opposite Laurys, near Allentown, Pa. Engineer Yeomans, Fireman Smith, and Baggagemaster Herth of the passenger train, all of Easton, Pa., and Flagman Hann of the coal train, who lives at Bergen, N. J., were buried under the wreck and killed. The bodies have not yet been recovered. The wreck caught fire, and the engine, smoker and baggage car of the passenger train were burned. The passengers were severely shaken up but none were injured.

Had no Redress in Law.

At Crown Point, Ind., Judge Gillett decided that a non union workman, discharged at the behest of the union, had no redress in law. The judge holds that the union has a legal right to demand the dismissal of any man not a member of the union. The case was that of Walton vs. Lake lodge No. 5, amalgamated association of iron and steel workers. Walton was discharged by the Inland Forge and Iron company of Chicago on demand of the union. No charge of incompetency was preferred against him and his sole offense was not being a member of the union. He thereupon brought suit for $20,000 damages against the union.

Fight Among the Shriners.

There is a fight among the Mystic Shriners of Iowa which will deveop at the meeting of El Kahir temple in Cedar Rapids. The two Iowa temples, Kaaba at Davenport and El Kahir at Cedar Rapids, have been petitioned to allow a third to be established at Des Moines. They oppose the action and at the Cedar Rapids meeting the friends of Des Moines will appear in force and attempt to carry their point.

Many Ask to Speak.

There is such great pressure for time on the part of the members of both sides who desire to participate in the currency debate in the house that three night sessions have been ordered. Interest in the debate is not keen, judged by the attendance in the gallaries, although the members themselves are listening attentively to the speeches.

THEY WANT NO STREET FAIR

The State Board of Agriculture Arrives at a Decision.

The officers of the board of managers of the state board of agriculture met recently at Lincoln for the purpose of discussing matters relative to holding a street fair in Lincoln in 1900. The board has experienced a complete change of sentiments as regards holding a state street fair in connection with the Lincoln festivities of that nature. The idea was abandoned as impracticable. The board will now make the people of Lincoln a proposition as to what is needed before a street fair can be held.

The board will look over the old fair grounds and the proposition will be submitted to the committee of the Commercial club looking after the matter. It is not expected that anything in the way of new buildings will be required. More accommodations for stock than at present exist will be necessary and some repairing on the old buildings.

A citizen in speaking of the state fair said that Lincoln should consider the matter carefully as it will be impossible to hold a fair next year under the law and existing conditions unless the citizens of Lincoln see that the grounds are made ready. The state board is helpless unless the city furnishes the proper accommodations. It is especially fitting that during the first year of the new century a fair be held. If one is not, the matter will go over to the next legislature and no one knows what will happen then. This citizen believed there would be no difficulty in making arrangements for the old grounds, but he simply desired the public to appreciate the circumstances that now exist. Mr. Macfarland, who owns a controlling interest in the Nebraska exposition association, will accompany the board to the fair grounds and will make the inspection with them.

The date of the fair is fixed by the national association which arranges dates for the entire country so that there may be no conflicts. The Nebraska fair is allotted the week of September 3 to 8. This is an excellent time. Always of late years when the same week has been selected, the weather has been good and the fair has been successful.

STATE PRESS ASSOCIATION

Officers Complete Arrangements for the Annual Meeting of Editors.

W. N. Huse of Norfolk, president of the Nebraska state press association; F. N. Merwin, of Beaver City, secretary of the same organization, and N. J. Ludi of Republican City, D. H. Cronin of O'Neill and J. C. Seacrest of Lincoln, members of the executive committee, held a session at the Lindell hotel, Lincoln, to arrange for the annual meeting of the editors of the state, which is to be held at Lincoln on January 23 and 24. The program was put together as far as possible and arrangements were made for completing it. The officers are all of the opinion that it will excel in interest and profit any meeting held in years. The sessions will be held this year at the Lindell.

An interesting item of business was the report by President Huse that a customer had been found for the press building on the Chautauqua grounds at Crete. The sale will net the association $75.

Marshal Keim Reports.

Former Deputy United States Marshal A. G. Keim, who was indicted a few days ago, has arrived in Omaha and at once reported at the government building, announcing his readiness to face the charges preferred against him. Until a few months ago Keim was a deputy on the marshal's force, residing at Beatrice, and having the southern portion of the state for his territory. It is charged that he found a druggist at Falls City selling liquor without a license and accepted $50, agreeing not to report the case. Parties who claimed to know the facts appeared before the grand jury and secured the indictment.

Hunt Down a Prisoner.

On the night of December 6 burglars broke into the stores of Sadman & Fish company and A. S. Swanson at Chappell, for the third time within seven weeks, and stole several pairs of shoes, pants and overcoats. Mr. Fish of the Sadman & Fish company got track of the burglar at Julesburg, Colo., next morning and followed him to Cozad where he was caught with the goods, brough him to Chappell and had his trial, pleaded guilty and was sentenced to the penitentiary at a special term of court held by Judge Grimes. This is rather quick work, being less than three days when he is taken to the penitentiary from the time the theft was committed.

Thought to be Insane.

Ex-Marshal Henry Thompson returned from Fremont to North Bend with his wife, who is suffering from temporary insanity. Mrs. Thompson put her children to bed Saturday night, kissed them good night, then took the evening train for Schuyler. From there she went to Fremont, where she was stopped and held until Mr. Thompson went after her. It is supposed that she is temporarily insane.

Rise of a Nebraska Editor.

John K. Calkins, formerly connected with the Chadron Journal and who afterwards went to Wyoming and published democratic newspapers all over that state, sold the Wyoming Derrick about four years ago to W. H. Korns, another Nebraska editor, and went to Ruskin, Tenn., and joined the Ruskin co-operative colony of socialists and publishers of the Coming Nation. During his four years in the colony Mr. Calkins has filled all capacities of trust from job man in the Coming Nation printery to editor thereof and secretary and president of the colony.

The Cause of Chapped Hands.

Much of the discomfort experienced from chapped hands in cold weather is due to washing with inferior soap, the ingredients being poisonous to the skin. It is therefore important to have pure soap. If warm rain water and Ivory soap are used in washing the hands, they will be smooth and white at all seasons. ELIZA R. PARKER.

In Two Sections.

In the Surrey village of Send is a sick benefit society which is conducted in two sections, one for teetotalers and the other for moderate drinkers. The last balance sheet is a curious one. It shows that the abstainers have required no sick pay during the twelve months, and the subscriptions were returned to the extent of 1 pound, 4 shillings and 9 pence each. On the other hand, only 18 shillings each was available for the moderate drinkers, whose section had received 15 pounds, 1 shilling and 8 pence in sick pay. The first death in the club occurred recently, and the question arose whether both sections should be called on to pay the levy usual in such cases. As the deceased was a moderate drinker, the teetotalers contended that no part of the subsidy should fall upon them, but on a vote being taken they were defeated on the point. They feel very much aggrieved, however, and it is not improbable that the section for abstainers will cease to exist at the end of the year.—London Telegraph.

For Friendly Faces.

Among the individual accents bestowed upon a room after it is furnished, expressive of personal taste, perhaps nothing is more in evidence than photograph frames, says the New York Commercial Advertiser. Novelties in this direction are for that reason much sought and quickly bought up. The latest thing, in many sizes, are mahogany and colored glass, two-leaved screens, with watered or damask silk mountings in the back, forming extra holdings among the folds or oval openings for small photographs. On the fronts, the photograph is framed in wood with ormolu decoration in heading or top design. The largest of these screens stands twenty-four inches high, each leaf being eleven inches high, and costs $32. Equally charming are smaller ones at $15, $12, $8 and $5, and in all of these are the same silks, glass and mahogany used. Single mahogany frames, with empire or Louis XVI. gilded bronze ornamentation, sell for $4 and $4.50.

Saw Possible Trouble Ahead.

In the mountain district of Tennessee there are many people who never saw a train, and when a railroad was surveyed and constructed through a wild part of the state, but little work was done by the natives for a year. They put in the greater part of their time watching the workmen, but the greatest event of their lives was when the first train came along. Some of them were afraid of the engine, and gave it a wide berth. The track was finally laid as far as Cumberland river, and, owing to the delay in the arrival of the bridge material, the workmen crossed the river and began the construction of a tunnel. One day a tall, rawboned Tennesseean stood watching the work. There was a puzzled look on his face, and he finally said: "They may be able to hit that hole every time, but if they miss it there will be h——l to pay." The man actually believed that no bridge would be built and the trains would make a flying leap across the river and dash into the tunnel on the other side.—Hermann Advertiser-Courier.

An Old-Timer.

From the Memphis Scimitar: A crowd of men were seated in one of the steamboat offices in the city the other afternoon while an old steamboat veteran regaled them with stories about old times on the Mississippi and reminiscences of old-time citizens. "Did you know old Bill Jones?" asked one of the men, after the captain had finished relating how he ran a gauntlet of Indians with his boat, way back in the forties. "'Member Bill Jones? Well I guess I did," replied the captain. "Let's see, he died just after the war. He was a good old fellow, too. I knew his father before he was married to Bill's mother." One of the boys thought the old man was "doping," and, by way of tripping him up on dates, asked: "Cap, how long have you been running on the river?" "Who, me? Why, I started on the Mississippi when it was nuthin' but a creek."

Fourteen Mistakes.

An English paper gives a list of what it terms "the fourteen mistakes of life." While there are undoubtedly other mistakes than those mentioned, the list is a fairly comprehensive one. It is a great mistake to set up our own standard of right and wrong, and judge people accordingly; to measure the enjoyment of others by our own; to expect uniformity of opinion in this world; to look for perfection in our own actions; to worry ourselves and others with what can not be remedied; not to yield in immaterial matters; not to alleviate all that needs alleviation as far as lies in our power; not to make allowances for the infirmities of others; to consider everything impossible that we can not perform; to believe only what our finite minds can grasp; to expect to be able to understand everything. And the last and greatest mistake of all is to live for time alone, when any moment may launch us into eternity.

Just Saved His Life.

It was a thrilling escape that Charles Davis of Bowerstone, O., lately had from a frightful death. For two years a severe lung trouble constantly grew worse until it seemed he must die of Consumption. Then he began to use Dr King's New Discovery and lately wrote: "It gave instant relief and effected a permanent cure." Such wonderful cures have for 25 years, proven it's power to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung troubles. Price 50c and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed. Trial bottles free at C G Wright's drug store.

Husbands and Wives.

More than one man whose name is a household word has been advanced through the untiring energy of his wife. It is a question whether ex-President Cleveland would have enjoyed as much of a political career had it not been for the popularity of Mrs. Cleveland. Through every phase of the ex-president's political life Mrs. Cleveland held sway in the hearts of the people. The first Mrs. Whitney paved the way for her husband's political success. It was through her wealth and hospitality that the ex-secretary first won his way into public life. Notable among society people is Mrs. Potter Palmer. She has made the name of Palmer famous in this country and abroad. Perhaps no man ever had a more helpful and devoted wife than the late Mr. Gladstone, or ever recognized her aid in a more chivalrous way. He paid many a touching tribute to the care she took of him and the courage with which she inspired him.

Mastodon Bones in South Dakota.

S. C. Yarnell of Pierre, S. D., has recently received the petrified joint of a mastodon's leg which measures more than nineteen inches in circumference. It was picked up by a cattle herder at Flint Rock Butte, who declares that many other pieces of the skeleton were in sight at the same place. Petrified ribs, each eleven feet long, have recently been found near the butte, and Mr. Yarnell intends to make a trip to the locality for the purpose of excavating the entire skeleton, which he is certain is buried there. Mr. Yarnell has at various times found the lower jawbone and other remains of mastodons in the Bad Lands, and believes that a more thorough search would reveal many such prehistoric remains.

Bright, but "Sassy."

Two Boston men, on their way to Taunton the other day on their bicycles, stopped at a farmhouse for bread and milk and "fixin's." A small boy of 6 or thereabouts seemed quite interested in them and offered to do the "cake walk" for 2 cents. After the performance they invited him to have a cooky. He then took one without any acknowledgment, when one of them asked: "Do you know what 'Thank you' is in English?" Without any hesitation the youngster made answer, "Do you know what 'Shut up' is in French?"

Proposed Absolute Measure of Time.

In the Journal de Physique, M. Lippmann advocates the adoption of an absolute measure of time based on making the Newtonian constant of gravitation equal to unity. Instead of adopting an astronomical unit of density based on taking the mean solar second as unit of time, we are to adopt an absolute unit of time based on taking water as the unit of density. On making the necessary calculations the proposed unit is found to be approximately equal to 3,862 seconds of mean time.

Brave Men Fall

Victims to stomach, liver and kidney troubles as well as women, and all feel the results in loss of appetite, poisons in the blood, backache, nervousness, headache and tired, listless, run-down feeling. But there's no need to feel like that. J W Gardner, of Idaville, Ind., says: "Electric Bitters are just the thing for a man when he don't care whether he lives or dies. It gave me new strength and good appetite. I can now eat anything and have a new lease on life." Only 50 cents, at S G Wright's Drug Store. Every bottle guaranteed.

Petrified Serpent.

Pottsville (Pa.) special to the Philadelphia Inquirer: An interesting relic was brought to the surface from the new shaft of the Philadelphia & Reading Coal and Iron company at Wadesville. It is a mammoth snake from 4 to 11½ inches in diameter, 27 feet long, and perfect to the smallest detail. It forms a piece of petrified matter weighing over 100 pounds.

Champagne.

It is said that there is more champagne drank in one year than the champagne districts produce in seven.

Mrs Annie E Gunning, Tyre, Mich., says, "I suffered along time from dyspepsia; lost flesh and became very weak. Kodol Dyspepsia Cure completely cured me." It digests what you eat and cures all forms of stomach trouble. It never fails to give immediate relief in the worst cases.

Complete.

From the Chicago Daily News: Agent—Yes, that is an incubator to raise babies in. Old Lady—A great invention. But then, it seems sad that the little tot in there should never hear its mother's soothing voice. Agent—Oh, that's all right. There's a phonographic attachment that sings "Rock-a-By Baby."

Wud Wait.

English Tourist—Waiter, bring me some sugar, please. Wild West Waiter—There ain't any but three lumps in the house, cap—you kin have them as soon as them gents gets through with 'em—they've got 'em marked, an' they're shakin' dice with 'em!—London Tid-Bits.

Physiognomy of Speech.

From the Chicago Tribune: Naggus—I have read your speech, Borus, and to tell the truth, I don't like its physiognomy. Borus—Its physiognomy? What do you mean? Naggus—Its "I's are too close together.

Salt at Poles.

In the polar regions the sea contains less salt than near the equator.

Male students, it is announced, have organized a legal bureau to protect them against the operation of the Connecticut blue laws, one of their number having been arrested for the crime of kissing a pretty girl in public. The so-called blue laws of Connecticut date from 1656 and to the modern reader are a most remarkable code of enactments. It was a crime, for instance, to make mince pies, to celebrate Christmas day, or to play on any instrument of music except the drum, trumpet or jewsharp. Any man or woman who wore clothes trimmed with gold, silver or bone lace valued at more than two shillings a yard was liable to indictment by the grand jury and was subject to a fine of $1,500. It was a crime to run on Sunday, or even walk, except slowly and reverently, to and from meeting. Women were forbidden to kiss their children on Sunday and on fast days. Quakers and priests on returning to the colony of New Haven, after once having been expelled, were condemned to death, and any one might seize them without a warrant. Bringing cards or dice into the colony was punishable by a fine of $15. All these and many other similar laws were passed under the direction of Gov. Eaton, inspired, it is claimed, by the Rev. John Davenport, his pastor and best friend.

MARRIED—At the M. E. parsonage in Pawnee City, on Wednesday, Dec. 13, Mr Joseph Brown of Pawnee City and Mrs Mary Turner of this place. The announcement was a complete surprise to the many friends of "Aunt Mollie," although for several days before the event several of her friends noticed something unusual about her, but did not think what could be the cause. Her eyes were brighter and she was merrier than she had been for years. In fact, it has even been stated by intimate friends that she often sang the old, old love song, "We'll Live on Bread and Cheese and Kisses." Nevertheless the entire community extends to Mr and Mrs Brown their congratulations, and hope they may live in peace and happiness and share together in their declining years all the joys of this life.—Du Bois Times.

Shot at the Lawyers.

Some years ago the present lord chancellor of England was cross-examining a shrewd bucolic witness. "They sometimes call you a Devonshire dumpling, don't they?" asked the genial advocate. "I believe they do," replied the witness. "But you are not a Devonshire dumpling?" The witness waited till the laughter occasioned by this inquiry subsided, then he slowly drawled out: "Hey, but if I had been a doompling, you lawyers ud a gobbled I up afore now!"—New York Tribune.

WOMEN PIANO TUNERS.

New Field of Labor Which Does Not Require Much Exertion.

I have been pondering the problem of feminine money-making occupations, and among the unexplored fields I believe piano tuning to be just the thing for musical women, for it is generally conceded that a woman's ear is finer than a man's, although one musician of my acquaintance takes exception to the statement. However, I say to him that fewer women than men sing off the key and play out of tune. Piano tuning is not hard work—that is, it does not require any amount of physical exertion. It does require a correct ear, a knowledge of music and a degree of skill which can be acquired from a teacher in the tuning line like any other trade. There are many houses where a feminine tuner would be preferred to a man, and not the least reason why the compensation to both sexes should not be equal. It is one of the few fields where the competition is even. It disturbs me greatly to note the difference in salaries paid to men and women who do the same work. Often the woman has a family dependent upon her, and while the man has nobody in the world on whom to spend his money, yet her sex, not her ability, debars her from earning as much money as the man whose desk adjoins hers. I am rather lukewarm on the subject of woman's rights because I believe that in the main our sex has a great many privileges, more than is good for us sometimes. There are a few things in which I could wish an improvement, and the salary question is one of them. A faithful, industrious woman who looks out for her employer's interest ought to receive the consideration generally extended to a male employe with those same excellent qualities, and I will fight for a reform in that direction with the full strength of my voice and the entire force of my pen. That reform would help us more than the ballot-box privilege ten times over.—Kansas City Journal.

DESTRUCTIVE FUN.

An Officer's Sport That Caused Kansas' Greatest Prairie Fire.

The greatest prairie fire known in Kansas was in the year 1869, and it was set out by an officer of the United States government, says a Kansas City paper. This officer is now in Washington, and, during the Spanish war, his name was more frequently in the papers than any other. One day in 1869 he and a party of officers from Fort Hays were returning from a wild turkey hunt in the canons of the Saline. The wind was blowing a hurricane, and when a stop was made on the high prairie some ten miles north of Hays this officer deliberately touched a match to the dry, crisp grass in order to make a spectacle. When the other officers saw what he was about to do they made a desperate effort to stop him, but the deed had been done and the red flames were reeling across the prairie like a frightened antelope. That fire swept from where it had been started clear across Kansas into what is now Oklahoma. The streams and roads offered no obstacles to it whatever. While going south it had also turned to the east, and left a trail of ruin across Rice, Reno, Kingman, Harper and other counties. Thousands of settlers were burned out, losing their houses and their feed, their horses and cattle. If the man who set that fire had been known to the settlers all the troops on the plains would not have been enough to stay their vengeance. As it was, he suffered remorse beyond description. When the officers at Hays would bring him papers telling of the damage done he would groan and curse himself roundly. He left Hays for some other post in the following year, and, so far as we know, his name was never connected with the gigantic prairie fire of 1869.

A Butterfly Spectacle.

The inhabitants of New York were astonished on Sept. 7 by an invasion of butterflies, which suddenly appeared by thousands fluttering about the tall buildings, alighting on the grass in the parks, spreading their broad, orange-hued sails above the roaring traffic in the streets, and even threading the wiry mazes of the Brooklyn bridge. They belong to the variety known as the Monarch, or Milkweed butterfly, which measures from three to four inches across the wings. The cause of their strange invasion is not known. They disappeared as suddenly as they had come.

AGE LIMIT OF GREAT MEN.

Out of 77 Men of Genius Less Than Half Attained 70.

A great man does not always attain a ripe old age; in fact, hardly half of the greatest men of modern and ancient times have reached that limit of age set by the Bible—70. Among statesmen Mirabeau was 42, Pitt 47, Caesar 55, Richelieu 57, Cromwell 59, Washington 67, Charlemagne 71, Frederick the Great 74, Disraeli 75, Augustus 76, Bismarck 83, Talleyrand 84. Of great conquerors, Alexander the Great died at 32, Napoleon at 51, Hannibal at 63, Themistocles at 65, Marius at 71, Marlborough at 72, Tilly at 72, Blucher at 76, Barnadotte at 80, Wellington at 83, Xenophen at 86, Moltke at 91. The age at death of philosophers was, Spinoza 44, Descartes 53, Hegel 61, Aristotle 62, Socrates 68, Leibnitz 70, Linnaeus 70, Copernicus 70, Galileo 73, Kant 79, Plato 82, Newton 84, Humboldt 89. The longevity of great writers and poets is as follows: Byron 36, Schiller 45, Moliere 51, Virgil 51, Shakespeare 52, Dante 56, Dickens 57, Horace 57, Racine 59, Scott 61, Milton 65, Cervantes 68, Aeschylus 69, Rabelais 70, Petrarch 70, Euripides 71, Corneille 78, Victor Hugo 83, Goethe 83, Voltaire 84, Sophocles 90. To painters death came at the ages stated: Raphael 37, Corregio 40, Van Dyk 42, Holbein 57, Valesquez 61, Rembrandt 63, Rubens 61, Michaelangelo 89, Titian 99. Musicians died at these ages: Schubert 31, Mozart 35, Mendelssohn 38, Chopin 39, Weber 39, Schumann 41, Beethoven 56, Bach 65, Palestrina 70, Spohr 75, Handel 75, Haydn 77. And four great religious leaders died at these ages: Calvin at 54, Mahomet at 62, Luther at 66, Confucius at 71.

"I am indebted to One Minute Cough Cure for my health and life. It cured me of lung trouble following grippe." Thousands owe their lives to the prompt action of this never failing remedy. It cures coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis, pneumonia, grippe, and throat and lung trouble. Its early use prevents consumption. It is the only harmless remedy that gives immediate results.

"Digests what you eat."

A New Material from Potatoes.

A Dutchman has patented a method of utilizing the residues of the manufacture of potato flour. After straining this raw material and separating from it portions of peel and other impurities, it is treated with glycerine and dilute acid. The resulting compound is a gummy, viscous mass, which is carefully dried and reduced to powder. The next operation is to moisten this powder with a certain percentage of water and to press it into blocks, with the help of molds if desired, the finished product being a homogeneous, wood-like solid with a metallic ring, which can be cut, turned, bored with ease, and will take the finest screw thread. It is believed that the material will conveniently take the place of wood, vulcanite, celluloid and even metal for many purposes. It is said, moreover, to be an excellent insulator for electrical purposes. The cost at which it can be produced is not stated.

Secret Drawers in Furniture.

"Most people seem to think," said a maker of furniture, "that secret drawers and hidden receptacles in furniture only exist in novels and plays, but this is by no means so. I very frequently take orders for such items and I employ a clever woman designer, who shows positive genius in planning places of concealment which no amount of tapping or measuring could reveal. In most cases even were the hollow receptacle discovered the woodwork around would have to be cut away, so complex are the fastenings. Most of the orders come from women—and rich people of course—and I have no doubt that a desire to hide articles from too curious servants dictates the orders."

Motors in the German Army.

This year in Germany traction motors were used for the provisioning columns, and although the roads through the Black forest were steep and in places bad, the experiment was most successful. There were exceedingly few accidents, and the motors effected a great saving in both men and horses.

Cricket-Fighting.

The most popular and exciting form of gambling in China is cricket-fighting. At every street corner these little insects are for sale in tiny cages of split bamboo. The care of them and the training is quite an elaborate business. Fish, honey, boiled chestnuts and rice form their food, and if they are ill they are dosed with all sorts of remedies. For a chill a mosquito is administered; for asthma, bamboo butterflies; for fever, young shoots of green pea. On the great day of battle two crickets are placed on a tray with a deep rim, and fight furiously with shrill chirps of defiance. The Buddhist priests pay large sums for champion crickets, and hundreds of dollars change hands over a fight. These crickets are often buried in little silver coffins; this is done secretly by night, for their owners believe that then the spirits of dead crickets will come back to animate new ones.

The Vocabularies of Civilization.

If the English language is soon to be the universal tongue, one is inclined to feel rather sorry for those who have to acquire it. For, according to a German statistician who has made a study concerning the comparative wealth of all the languages of modern civilization, ours is the only one which heads the list with the enormous vocabulary of 260,000 words. Germany comes next, after a great drop, with 80,000 words; then follows Italy, with 75,000; France, with only 30,000; Turkey, with 22,000, and Spain, with 20,000 words. Fortunately the literature of a nation does not depend on the number of words in its vocabulary, for did not the French masters of the pen in the seventeenth century work with the small capital of 5,000 words?

A Boom in Burns Relics.

There is a decided boom in Burns relics, and the collector recently had an opportunity of purchasing at Sotheby's, London, two brass candlesticks, 10 inches in height, formerly in possession of Burns; they are described as "the state candlesticks of his little parlor at Ellesland before he came to Dumfries." Their authenticity is borne out by a framed memorandum signed by the poet's eldest son and named sake; and they realized 11 guineas.

CHILDREN BURNED

Eleven Little Ones Aflame at Quincy, Ill.

WERE DRESSED IN FLEECY MATERIAL

Stuff Ignites Easily—Panic Follows Accident—Work of Rescue Prompt—Agonizing Scenes on Parents' Part.

While the school children of St. Francis parochial school, Seventeenth and Vine streets, Quincy, Ill., were rehearsing Friday afternoon for an entertainment to be given next Tuesday evening, one of their dresses caught fire from a gas jet and a few minutes later four of them were burned to death, two died an hour later and five others died before midnight. Half a dozen others were burned more or less seriously. The dead:

Irene Freiburg.
May Wavering.
Mary Althoff.
Bernardina Greund.
Colletta Middendorf.
Mary Hickey.
Wilhelmina Guttendorf.
Oliva Timpe.
Addie Futterer.
Josephine Bohme.
Margaret Warner.

All these are between nine and eleven years of age. Helen Soebbing and several other teachers, Father Nicholas and Professor Frank Musholde were painfully burned in trying to save the children.

The fire started in a little dressing room where the children were dressing for rehearsal. One of them brushed against a gas jet, and in an instant she was aflame. She ran screaming out of the room, communicating the blaze to the others.

There were fourteen children in the cast of the Christmas entertainment and only a few escaped. It was all over in ten minutes and in that time four perished, seven were fatally burned and others more or less severely injured.

The children were panic-stricken and rushed this way and that, screaming with pain. But the agony was brief. Only a few moments elapsed and then four of them sank to the floor dead. Others fell, too, but they still lived, suffering excruciating agony.

The school hall was filled with children and many more would have been killed in the panic which followed had it not been for the prompt efforts of the teachers and sisters who were in charge of the entertainment and were present.

Frank Musholt, a teacher, heard the cry of fire, and was half way up the stairs at one bound. He met the child all ablaze and instantly enwrapped her with his coat, but she broke away and rushed on past him into the group of other children.

The shrieks and screams of the injured were agonizing. The little ones lay helpless and impotent on the floor and writhed about in their agony.

The dead were charred in most cases beyond recognition. The home of peaceful pleasure had in an instant become a charred house. The doctors fitted about about on their missions of mercy, seeking to apply soothing lotions to those who were still alive and seeking also to cover the charred bodies of the dead with blankets or other covering.

Besides the many patients within the smoke stained walls there were dozens of fainting and heart-broken women without. They screamed as some of the scenes came to them and if the child or loved one was among the dead and wounded their grief gained the mastery and there was a collapse which required the attention of the doctors.

DWIGHT L. MOODY IS DEAD

The Noted Evangelist Dies at His Home in Northfield, Mass.

Dwight L. Moody, the evangelist, whose fame was world-wide, died at his home at Northfield, Mass., Friday. His family was gathered at his bed side and the dying man's last moments were spent in comforting them. In the day Mr. Moody realized that the end was not far off and talked with his family at intervals, being conscious to the last, except for a few fainting spells. Once he revived, and, with a wonderful display of strength in his voice, said in a happy strain:

"What's the matter? What's going on here?" One of the children replied: "Father, you have not been quite so well and so we came in to see you."

A little later Mr. Moody talked quite freely to his sons, saying: "I have always been an ambitious man, not ambitious to lay up wealth, but to leave you work to do, and you're going to continue the work of the schools in East Northfield and Mt. Hermon and the Chicago Bible institute?"

Just as death came Mr. Moody awoke as if from slumber and said with much joyousness: "I see earth receding, heaven is opening; God is calling me," and a moment later he expired.

Strike in Collieries.

A strike began at the Hyde Park and Oxford collieries of the D., L. & W. company, at Scranton, Pa. The drivers went out after making a demand for an increase of 10 cents per day, making a wage scale of $1.47 per day. There is a possibility of the strike spreading to the other collieries.

More Trouble for Li Hung Chang.

Li Hung Chang has been appointed acting viceroy of Canton. It is believed this is preparatory to his degradation in compliance with the French demands.

BULLER'S LOSS WAS HEAVY

Somewhat Larger than the First Estimate of the General.

A London, December 23 special says: There is still no definite news concerning the military operations in South Africa. Probably this is because the only cable that is working is choked with official dispatches.

General Buller's casualty list at Colenso, just published, shows that 141 were killed, and 746 wounded. Two hundred and twenty-seven are described as missing, and of these about forty are known to be in the hands of the Boers. This makes a total larger than General Buller's original estimate.

Belated stories from Chiveley camp, Natal, all concur in saying the British did marvels in an impossible situation. The oldest war correspondents say they never saw anything comparable with the bravery of the men and officers. The naval contingent created an immense furore, engaging the Boers single-handed and hailing seranpel and lyddite shells on the fortifications north of the town in a vain effort to silence the murderous fire of the Boers, while the British forced the passage of the river.

The advance of the Second brigade along the road leading to the bridge in the face of a deadly fusilade is described as magnificent. The British forced their way across the fire zone under a perfect storm of bullets from the invisible Boers. The patter of the bullets on the dry plain, it is added, raised the dust like heavy raindrops on water.

The queen has been greatly annoyed by the unfounded statement that she is in ill health and perpetually weeping. A paragraph contradicting these stories appears in the papers, which add that it has never been her majesty's habit to "display grief like a hysterical schoolgirl."

MAINE VICTIMS SENT HOME

Over One Hundred Bodies Put Aboard the Texas.

The removal of the dead of the Maine was not accompanied by any ceremonies over the bodies, as, newly coffined, they were placed in the mortuary chapel of the cemetery until all was completed, says a Havana dispatch of December 22. At 10 o'clock last night ten wagons formed a procession, carrying 151 coffins to the Machina wharf, passing through unfrequented streets. The bodies reached the wharf at 11:30 under a strong guard from the battleship Texas, were placed aboard two steam lighters before daylight and were taken to the warship at 6 a. m.

The Texas left here at 10 a. m. All the remains were thoroughly disinfected. A difference was found between the number of coffins entered on Chaplain Chadwick's list, which was 153, and the actual number of coffins exhumed. Search was made through all of the twenty-two graves in which the coffins were buried, but the missing two were not found. Father Chadwick said the difference could be explained by a clerical error at the time of interring, as he was very busy at the wharf, giving instructions and identifying the bodies, and could not supervise every detail.

Surrrendered to Russians.

The state department has issued a warrant for the surrender to the Russian government of A. P. Shutlein, alias A. F. Klutchinski, who is charged with larceny and false entry in Russia. He was bookkeeper in the Wilnae National bank and is said to have stolen 12,000 rubles, besides making false entries. He came to the United States and settled down in Seattle, where he was arrested and brought before United States Commissioner Shields at New York, who committed him for extradition.

May Select His Station.

The war department has instructed Major General Brooke, lately military governor of Cuba, to report to the adjutant-general at Washington. He will come by easy stages to get used to winter weather. It is said at the war department that his future assignment to duty will depend mainly upon his own wishes in the matter.

Cox Bound Over.

William Cox, one of the trio of young toughs who brutally assaulted Laura Berch November 26, near Twenty-fourth and Franklin streets, in Omaha, and who was arrested at a grading camp north of Council Bluffs, has been bound over under bond of $1,500. George McClure, another one of the young men, is awaiting trial on a like charge, and is in the county jail.

Brands Number 1311.

The brands now on file with the secretary of state number 1,211. The total number will probably reach 1,400 by the first of the year, when the state marks and brands committee will meet to pass upon the brands. After the first of the year the person first filing a brand will be entitled to use it and no one will be permitted to infringe upon his rights.

Congressman Boutelle Ill.

Congressman C. A. Boutelle of Maine, who is at Young's hotel, Boston, has been taken seriously ill. The nature of his trouble is not given out.

Loan Association Assigns.

Use Dynamite.

At Springfield, Ill., a street car was wrecked by dynamite right in the heart of the city. No passengers were aboard and the conductor and motorman were not injured. The strikers disclaim any responsibility for the affair.

THE GIFT IS MADE

Library Building for Lincoln Seems Assured.

A LETTER FROM ANDREW CARNEGIE

Writes to Congressman Mercer and Mentions Incidentally that He Had "Just Given Lincoln $75,000 For a Library."

A Washington, D. C., Dec. 23, special says: It seems to be an assumed fact that Lincoln, Neb., is to get a Christmas present in the form of a $75,000 library, the gift of Andrew Carnegie. The news of the gift was contained in a personal letter from Mr. Carnegie to Congressman D. H. Mercer, but up to tonight none of the eastern papers contained any mention of the gift.

Mr. Mercer was visited at his residence, but could give no further details. He received the letter yesterday. It had been written Wednesday evening. The letter was written mainly on another subject, but toward the end Mr. Carnegie wrote:

"I have just given Lincoln $75,000 for a library. That ought to do Nebraska for the present."

Meeting Postponed.

Governor Poynter has received a letter from the chairman of the Washington centennial committee stating that a meeting of the committee which was to have been held Thursday last had been postponed on account of the adjournment of congress for the holiday recess. Governor Poynter expected to attend the centennial celebration at Washington, but the chairman announces that reception and dinner have been postponed and the date for the celebration has not yet been determined.

Child Dies From Scalding.

A sad accident occurred at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Babcock, living about two miles west of Bradshaw, Tuesday morning. The family washing was being done and a tub of boiling water was standing on the floor when their little three-year-old child in some way stumbled and fell into it, and before it could be removed was so severely scalded that in removing its clothing the skin and flesh was found to be cooked. The little girl suffered for nearly twenty-six hours, dying the following Wednesday.

Gets Five Years.

The case of John Johnson at Wahoo, the man who shot Sheriff Ferris last September, while the latter was attending to some official duties on Mr. Johnson's premises, occupied the greater part of two days, and attracted a large crowd to the court room. The jury brought in a verdict of guilty, and the judge sentenced him to the penitentiary for five years. Johnson is regarded as a bad citizen and the general feeling is that he has been dealt with justly.

Paid Out Much Money.

State Treasurer Meserve paid out more money last Wednesday than on any previous day during his term of service. The payment was large owing to the disbursement of the school apportionment. It happened that the warrants on that fund poured in very lively. The total payment for the day was $130,000, and of that amount $118,000 was school money. Much of the school money will go to teachers.

Suit Is Dismissed.

The injunction suit that was brought in the district court of Lancaster county by the Bartley bondsmen to restrain the governor and attorney general from proceeding in Douglas county with the trial of the case in which the Omaha National bank was involved on the ground that there was equity in the Bartley bondsmen's position, has been dismissed, the decision of the supreme court in the case having removed further need for the action.

Young Farmer Becomes Insane.

A young man named William Bradehoft, from Berlin precinct, was taken to Nebraska City and placed in the city jail. He is the son of a prosperous farmer and for some time has been unbalanced mentally but harmless, but suddenly became violent and had to be cared for. He was declared insane by the commissioners on insanity and will be removed to Lincoln as soon as possible.

To Entertain Buttermakers.

Morris Friend of the Lincoln committee which is looking after the entertainment of the national buttermakers' convention to be held in Lincoln in January has turned over $1,000 to Secretary Sudendorf. The committee is meeting with good success in obtaining the remaining $1,000 which was promised as a bonus to secure the meeting.

SOLDIERS REMAINS

Bodies of Nebraska Dead to Be Brought Home.

UNDERTAKERS NOW IN PHILIPPINES

Will Locate, Disinter and Ship to United States All Soldiers Buried In Philippines—The Date of Their Arrival Is Not Now Known.

Adjutant General Barry has received the following reply from William S. Patton, quartermaster of the United States army, in answer to a request for information regarding the return of the remains of Nebraska soldiers from the Philippines and Honolulu:

"A corps of undertakers departed from San Francisco, Cal., on October 25, 1899, for the purpose of locating, disinterring and shipping to this country the remains of all soldiers buried in the Philippine islands, and it is expected that those buried at Honolulu, H. I., will also be exhumed and sent to San Francisco, Cal., when the corps of undertakers reaches that point on the return trip.

"If practicable, it is intended to complete the work by the close of the winter, but the exact date of arrival of any bodies cannot, at this time, be determined. Applicants for remains will be notified by telegraph from San Francisco when received there, and shipment promptly made by express to destination desired, at government expense. Unclaimed remains will be reinterred in the national cemetery at the Presidio of San Francisco."

The election of First Lieutenant K. R. Andrews to be captain of company A, Kearney, has been approved. First Sargeant H. Hugh Sydenham was elected first lieutenant.

THE OMAHA BANK CASE

Its Reversal Gives the State Another Chance to Collect.

The reversal and remanding of the suit of the state against the Omaha National bank by the supreme court gives the state another chance to recover $201,888, the amount which was drawn from the bank on a warrant that was intended to reimburse the sinking fund of the state for a loss that occurred when the Capital National bank of Lincoln closed. The warrant was disposed of by State Treasurer Bartley and was presented to the Omaha bank by the Chemical National bank of New York. The state contends that the Omaha bank should not have cashed the warrant and having done so must make good the loss to the state. The Omaha bank was a state depository at the time. In the district court of Douglas county a jury decided that the state did not have a cause of action. The state took the case to the supreme court.

PYSZKA SHOOTS TYDA

Saloonkeeper and Customer Quarrel Over a Glass of Beer.

At South Omaha Wednesday evening Frank Pyszka shot John Tyda, a saloon keeper during a quarrel over the payment for a glass of beer. Tyda is in a precarious condition and cannot live. Pyszka also shot and slightly wounded a police official who sought to arrest him. He was captured after a long chase, but not before he had been shot in the leg.

Must Justify the Advance.

Opposition on the part of shippers everywhere to the abolition of commodity rates on January 1 and a change in the classification, which will be equivalent to a general advance in rates of from 10 to 50 per cent, says an Omaha dispatch, has resulted in the interstate commerce commission summoning the traffic officials to appear in Washington next Thursday and justify the contemplated advance.

Dr. P. S. George Bound Over.

Dr. P. S. George of Lincoln, who was arrested at Table Rock for practicing medicine without the requisite diploma, in his examination at Pawnee City, in Judge Belding's court, was held to appear at the next term of the district court of Pawnee county, his bond being fixed at $300. H. W. Hays and Henry Keeper, of that vicinity becoming his bondsmen.

Severely Burned.

Bind Negro Over to Court.

William Battle, the negro charged with attempting to rape Miss Curtis in the Watson hotel at Nebraska City, had a hearing before Judge Leigh and was bound over to the district court.

Scarlet Fever Epidemic.

The scarlet fever epidemic which made its appearance in Columbus several weeks ago, is still prevalent and is the cause of considerable apprehension. Mrs. William Newman, the wife of a farmer living three miles west of town, is seriously ill with the disease and several children show symptoms of it. This family lost a child last week and the mother contracted the disease while engaged in its care. Four children of Thomas Noon are also down with it. The afflicted families are being kept under the strictest quarantine.

Siamese Superstition.

The Siamese have so strong a superstition against even numbers that they will have none of them. The number of rooms in a house, of windows or doors in a room, even of rungs in a ladder, must always be odd.

The Memory.

Scientists have discovered that the memory is stronger in summer than in winter. Among the worst foes of the memory are too much food, too much physical exercise, and, strangely enough, too much education.

Will Be Disappointing.

An English scientist shows that liquid air cannot do the great things expected of it as a source of power or of refrigeration. The cost of manufacture is such that it cannot pay to use the air produced by the evaporation of the liquid for the propulsion of an engine. For refrigeration a lump of ice beats a bottle of the liquid air.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. CHAPTER IV.

"But the great 'Black Cat!'" exclaimed the captain, who spoke better than any one else on board, "It's only a boy!"

"But I'm grateful to you for saving my life, even if I am," said Rob, between his chattering teeth.

"Oh, ho! Of course! But what under the sun are you doing in the river?"

"Him swim berry well," said one of the men, who had gone in the boat. 'Him swim like fish! Him make good one!"

"Come with me," said Captain Torrevo. He turned, and led the way toward the companion hatchway, whither Rob followed him.

It had been so dark on deck that Rob could not see what kind of men he had been saved by. He was therefore surprised when he entered a small but comfortable and well-lighted cabin to find the captain to be a small, swarthy, evil-faced fellow, who looked as if he would sooner kill a man than save one.

"The young senor is very wet," said the captain, with a grin that was meant to be friendly. "I will give him a change of clothing, and he may tell me how he came to be in the river. Of course, I understand he fell from that steamer that just passed."

"I fell—or was thrown," said Rob.

The captain seemed to pay little attention to this. He eyed Rob narrowly, with an evident desire to measure his stature. Then he opened a trunk or sea-chest that stood in one corner of the cabin.

"Ah! Hp! Ha!" exclaimed the captain, each explosive coming louder than the preceding, as he attacked the store of garments that was packed away in the sea-chest. Finding what he was after at last, he sent one piece after another flying across the cabin toward Rob.

"There!" he said, with a grunt of satisfaction. "The young senor can find plenty to wear. Come! You are wet. We must hurry!"

Rob at once began to take off his wet garments, and the captain brought out a rough towel with which he gave the drenched boy a good rub down. Having brought a glow of warmth, he desisted, and Rob dressed himself in the dry garments.

Rob had never been so picturesquely clad before. Nor so richly. First, he put on a suit of the finest underwear, that fitted him very well. Then, over these, he put a pair of white trousers, all embroidered with red silk. Then a silk waistcoat, and over all a fine velvet jacket made gay with lace. Spanish shoes, with fine points, completed the outfit, and were put on over silk stockings, the like of which Rob had never seen before.

The gay clothes transformed Rob into quite a different boy, and he could not restrain a laugh as he looked at himself in a glass.

"And now the young senor will need something to warm him up," said the hospitable captain. He called out a name that Rob did not understand, and in a moment a black fellow appeared. The captain gave an order in Spanish, and the black one disappeared. He soon returned, however, with two glasses of hot mixed rum.

"The young senor will drink it," said the captain.

"No, sir," said Rob. "I thank you, captain, but I never touched a drop of that stuff, and I never will."

"To warm up, senor."

"No. I don't want it. I am warm enough now."

Bob thought of his mother, and the many promises he had made to her that he would never touch a drop of alcoholic drink.

The captain of the "Black Cat" looked in amazement at Rob.

"You won't drink, senor?"

"No."

"Then I will."

He took one glass from the black steward and drained it. He then took the other and sent its contents after the first.

The black boy then took Rob's clothes to dry them.

"Now, tell me how you got into the river and what you are doing here," said the captain, beginning to feel even more friendly.

"I don't believe I can tell you how I came to fall into the river," said Rob. "I am on my way to Buenos Ayres to my uncle's, and met on board the steamer a gentleman by the name of Starne. He and I were on the deck talking and he told me to look down in the water. I did so, and then I felt some one seize me and throw me in. But I can't understand why Mr. Starne should wish to kill me."

"No! No! Did you ever meet him before?"

"Never."

"Was any one else near you?"

"I saw no one else."

"Ha! Ho! Look out for Senor Starne, whoever he is. Now, who are you?"

"My name is Rob Cleverdale. I was on my way to make my home with my uncle, David Horton, of Buenos Ayres. Have you heard of him?"

The captain of the "Black Cat" gave a long whistle of surprise.

"You are the nephew of Senor Horton?"

"Yes."

"The black hand is in it."

Having uttered this mysterious sentence, the captain of the "Black Cat" walked to and fro a moment and seemed to be doing some hard thinking.

"Look here," he said, suddenly. "I didn't know what I was doing when I picked you up. Even now, I ought to throw you in again. But I won't do that. But you must promise one thing."

"Promise one thing!" echoed Rob, staring at the captain in surprise and terror. "What do you mean? Why ought you to throw me in again? What have I ever done to you that should make you wish to kill me?"

"Nothing to me, except fall in the way of my schooner," said the captain.

TOOK A GLASS AND DRAINED IT.

"But I know this Senor Starne. He is—well, there are others who know him and who know me. If it was known that I picked you out of the water and saved your life—pr-r-r-r!"

The captain drew his hand across his throat most significantly.

"But what have I done! Why should any one kill you for helping me? Tell me!"

The captain banged his fist on the table.

"Look here!" he said, now in an angry mood, "I tell you, that I have taken a risk in saving you. Ask me no questions. But I tell you this. From today you are no longer Senor Horton's nephew. Do you understand?"

"But I am," said Rob. "I am on my way to get to him."

The captain of the "Black Cat" exploded with an oath.

"Hang you!" he cried. "I will kill you myself if you do not obey. You are no longer his nephew. You are mine."

"Yours! Your nephew! What do you mean?"

"Listen! You are stupid, I think. But listen, and I will tell you what I mean. I mean that where we are going the name of Senor Horton is death to him who utters it—unless to curse it. If you let it be known that I saved the life of the man that Starne tried to kill, I shall be killed myself, and you will lose your life in the end. There is plenty of reason for hating him. He is rich. These duties are put on to make him richer. And he hires soldiers to hunt us down and kill us, to protect his own interests. I don't know why Starne wished to kill you. But I know that the name of Senor Horton will lose your life and mine if you utter it."

The captain spoke so hotly that Rob could not doubt his sincerity. A terrible fear crept into his heart—a fear that after all he was never going to see his uncle, and perhaps never going to see his dear mother again.

"Your name is Ricardo, my nephew," said the captain. "Ricardo Torrevo, the same as mine. Do you understand?"

"Yes," faltered Rob, wondering what difference a name meant to a fellow who was sure to be killed.

"Not a word out of you about this night. Do you hear?"

"Yes," stammered Rob again.

"Very well. Now go to bed. You need sleep."

Rob looked at the captain doubtfully.

"You need not fear if you obey," said the captain of the "Black Cat." I like you. We are short-handed and need a boy. You will be safe—if you keep your tongue still. If not, I cannot be responsible for your safety."

"I'll keep still," said Rob.

"I know. Go to bed. Come, I will show you your room."

He led the trembling and wondering boy to a cabin near him and had the black steward bring a light. This room was clean and comfortable.

"Sleep!" said the captain. Tomorrow you will have work to do."

Wondering what the captain meant, our hero lay down on the bed, and, though he wept a little, and was much troubled, the youth could not be kept from slumber, and he was soon asleep.

When, after a sleep that was somewhat disturbed by dreams, Rob at last awoke and went on deck, the schooner had come to anchor in a beautiful sheltered bay on the south shore of the river.

And what an amazing and bustling scene met Rob's astonished gaze.

CHAPTER V.

The "Black Cat" lay peacefully in a bay that was, to all appearance, from Rob's point of view on deck, completely surrounded by water. It was evidently a deep bay, with a winding entrance, so that the great river could not be seen from it, and the anchorage of the schooner could not be seen from the river. The water was as smooth as glass. The shores of the bay, nearest the schooner, were low and gradually sloping. Near the water's edge there was a long line of sand. Above and beyond this there was higher ground, with plentiful verdure, flowering plants and trees.

But it was not the natural beauty of the place, great as it was, that attracted Rob's attention.

There were, plying from schooner to shore and back again, three or four boats, manned by men as black as negroes, stripped to the waist and straining at the paddles till the perspiration glistened on their skin. These boats were not like the small boats of the "Black Cat." They were large, flat things, evidently used for conveying goods from the vessel to the shore. And that is just what these men were doing.

Rob had paid some attention to political matters, and while studying in school about various South American republics, had also taken up the constitution of each, and the points of difference in their governments. He had read the tariffs of all, and recalled the fact that there was a large duty on tobacco and rum in the Argentine Republic. There was an odor of tobacco in the air, and Rob was not long in reaching the conclusion that these men were engaged in the dangerous business of smuggling tobacco and rum into the country without paying this duty.

Whims of Race Horses.

From the Washington Star: "Talking about people being peculiar," remarked an old trainer out at the Bennings race track the other day, "if there is anything more peculiar than race horses I haven't come across it. Race horses, I mean thoroughbreds, of course, are as full of whims as—well, as a woman, and you've got to humor them just the same as women. I remember one I trained some years ago—a horse, I mean, of course. He was a great one, and few of them could show him the way in. Yet that fellow couldn't be exercised in preparing him for a race unless the boy on him was rigged out in the stable's regular colors. You couldn't fool him about it, either, for he knew just as well whether the boy was fully dressed as we did, and if he wasn't you couldn't get the old fellow on the track. But when the boy put on the duds, why, the old horse would go out and do all that was wanted of him.

"Then there was another that I had that wouldn't associate with other horses, and the consequence was that we had to train him by himself. Actually had to wait every time until every other horse was off the track. Then, when he had the whole track to himself, we had all we could do to get him off when we thought he had been given enough. This same one we had to send to the post by himself, and when we got him there we had to keep him away to one side, off from the bunch. Another one I had was just the opposite, for he wouldn't go on the track, either for exercise or for a race, unless he was accompanied by another horse.

"Then there is the horse that runs true as long as he is in the lead, but will stop and give up the fight the moment another one gets near him or passes him. On the other hand, there is the horse that tries all the harder as long as he is behind. Then there is the horse that will not try if the jockey has a whip, while there are others that will not try unless they are given both whip and spurs. But, as I said, they are very peculiar, and have as many whims as mankind."

AS A TRUST ANTIDOTE

FREE TRADE A REMEDY WORSE THAN WORTHLESS.

The Drugs and Nostrums Which the Cobdenite Quacks Would Prescribe for a Patient Not in Need of Such Treatment.

Perhaps the ablest and most complete answer yet given to the Havemeyer free trade contention that "the customs tariff is the mother of trusts" is that which is to be found in the paper contributed by Dr. Samuel Adams Robinson to the proceedings of the Chicago trust conference of September, 1899. In the current issue of the American Economist this interesting contribution is reproduced in full. It will be noticed that the paper submitted in behalf of the American policy of protection to American labor and industry is in no sense an apology for or a defense of that policy. Dr. Robinson would as soon think of apologizing for the Aposties' Creed or the Sermon on the Mount. He takes the offensive, not the defensive—how effectively a reading of his very forcible paper will show.

The tone assumed by Dr. Robinson is indicated in the title of his contribution, "Free Trade as a Trust Antidote." Believing as he does that free trade is to a country such as ours a calamity and a curse, the writer loses no time in defining his attitude of vigorous attack upon that doctrine which scans so well as a theory and proves so atrociously destructive in practice. With a well-aimed shaft of irony he begins by puncturing the pretension that free traders are enemies of trusts, and he shows beyond question that it is not the trusts, but the protective tariff, that they wish to destroy. He says:

"Assuming, however, for the purpose of this discussion, that the enemies of protection are also the enemies of trusts in equal sincerity, it ought to be plain to every unbiased mind that the remedy for trust oppression is not to be found in the death of domestic competition. At least we should not make a headlong rush for that remedy until we are sure that it is the right one. Rather let us be wise and patient and inform ourselves as to the precise character of the disease before attempting to diagnose and prescribe. When we shall have done this it is not impossible that the trust antidote will be forthcoming in the shape of effective laws born, not of guesswork and dogmatism, but of knowledge gained from test and experience.

"If experience has taught anything, it has taught that in a country such as ours, with its limitless latent resources awaiting development, you cannot pluck the fruit of prosperity from the tree of free trade. It does not grow there. Do men gather grapes of thorns, or figs of thistles? On general principles the remedy for monopoly is not the limitation of internal competition. Gasoline is not a good medium for fire extinguishment. Free trade is not the remedy we are in search of, unless the people of the United States are prepared to enter upon an experiment certain to overthrow our industries, but not certain to smash the trusts. So I say, for the present:

"'Rather bear those ills we have Than fly to others we know not of.'

"The certain effect of the destruction of new competition through the removal of protection, the only guaranty of unrestricted domestic competition, is convincingly pointed out by Dr. Robinson. He emphasizes the fact that competition is the only menace which the trust has to fear, and that to destroy that competition would be to play into the hands of the trusts. It would inevitably lead, first, to a sweeping reduction of American wages and of the American standard of living, and, second, to the formation of the international trust—a trust composed of wage payers against whom the wage earners of America would be powerless in the absence of the advantage which they now possess by reason of the protective tariff.

"The facts as to tin plate—that, in practical operation, the ostensible duty of 1½ cents a pound is reduced to about ½ a cent per pound, and that while American makers were advancing the price 77 cents a box the Welsh makers put up their price $1.45 a box—these and other relevant facts are cited by Dr. Robinson to show that the American tin plate trust has not yet been convicted of the crime of arbitrarily advancing prices to a point not justified by the large increases that have taken place in the cost of materials, wages, etc., and that in free-trade Great Britain the advance has been double that put in force in protected America. He also shows that, whereas American tin plate workers have been granted an advance of 25 per cent over the wages they received under the Wilson law, the tin plate workers of Wales have been compelled to submit to a 10 per cent reduction of their wages.

"The concluding portion of Dr. Robinson's article bristles with points well put. On the question of tariff and wages he says:

"The question of the effect of a protective tariff upon wages has been injected into this discussion somewhat gratuitously upon the part of the enemies of protection; somewhat unwisely, too, it must appear, for no one, I believe, claims that a reduction in wages has yet been put in force by the trusts. The fact is that in the general advance of wages, estimated at 15 per cent for the entire country, which has taken place in connection with the phenomenal prosperity following the restoration of the policy of protection to American wages and industry, trust wage payers have thus far shown no disposition to shirk their share. So we must conclude that the free trade claim that wages are not affected by tariffs is a proposition on general principles intended to discredit protection and not aimed at the trusts. Here again the American free trader stands solitary and alone, a gloomy Napoleon on an economic St. Helena. His foreign fellows long ago abandoned the contention. There is at present scarcely a shade of difference among European manufacturers as to the true cause of their inability to compete with America in the world's markets. With common accord they say it is the result of the high wages paid American workingmen, and that the establishment and maintenance of the American standard of wages has been made possible only by the operation of the protective principle. The American wage earner has lately had an object lesson along the line of tariff and wages. The lesson lasted four years, and he is not likely to forget it."

The case against free trade as an antidote for trusts is pungently summed up as follows:

"The free-trade advocate of the removal of protection as a trust antidote finds himself upon the horns of a dilemma. Either we need protection to hold the home market against outside competition, or we do not need protection, and can get along equally well without it—better, our free trade friends tell us. If we do not need protection, its removal would be valueless as a trust antidote. If we do need protection in order to maintain our hold upon a market with a consuming capacity estimated at nine billions yearly, then the removal of protection would work such havoc with our country's prosperity as the gloomiest of pessimists would find it well nigh impossible to adequately foreshadow. I am not a pessimist. I am a protectionist, a very different thing now and always. Protectionists in the past have known how to confront a danger with a defense. They will know how to meet the trust question at the proper time and in the proper way. They have never failed in an emergency; they will not fail now. A remedy will be forthcoming whenever the pathological moment arrives. We all remember the practitioner who could cure but one disease, and who always threw the patient into a fit and then prescribed for the fit. History does not, however, record that he was invariably successful in curing the fit. The stage of fits has not yet been reached, though some of the quacks would have us think otherwise. Their antidote is an old and a well-known one. It was tried in 1892, and we all know how it worked. Do we want any more of it? I think not."

Have Used American Goods.

There is bitter complaint among the manufacturers of woolen goods in England that Americans have practically ceased to buy of them. Under the Wilson low-duty tariff we purchased woolen manufactures in one year to the value of $49,162,992. With the freight and other charges added these goods cost the American consumers $60,000,000, and the profit went into the pockets of the foreign manufacturers. Under the present tariff law we purchased but $13,831,967. Is it strange that the foregin manufacturers should grumble at the loss of this trade?

We have used all the woolen goods we needed, we have found no fault with the quality, and the prices have not been unreasonable. The difference is that we have used American goods, made in American factories by American working men and women, and have kept our money in the American family instead of paying to foreigners.—Sandusky (Ohio) Register.

A Riotous Demand.

In a late interview the western manager of one of the chief watch making factories of the world stated that he could sell the entire output of the works, 2,000 watches a day, out of hand for cash, and furthermore added that the demand was for the better movements. The demand he described as "less than desperate." If McKinley prosperity continues at this rate we may have riots in the cities on the part of people who are unable to get rid of their money fast enough.—Topeka (Kan.) Capital.

A Successful Auctioneer.

A Nodaway county farmer had a public sale recently which amounted to over $7,000, of which $5,000 was paid in cash. General Prosperity must have auctioneered the sale.—Springfield (Mo.) Republican.

THE PATHOLOGICAL MOMENT HAS NOT YET ARRIVED.

Dr. Protection—In my judgment, there is no present need of such drugs and nostrums in this case. The pathological moment has not yet arrived. When it arrives I shall be ready to prescribe. Quoting from the remarks of Dr. Samuel Adams Robinson at the Chicago trust conference, I would say: "The stage of fits has not yet been reached, though some of the quacks would have us think otherwise. Their antidote is an old and a well-known one. It was tried in 1892, and we all know how it worked. Do we want any more of it? I think not."

FOOLISH FALLACY.

The Foreign Label Regarded as a Guaranty of Superior Quality.

A short time ago the wife of a prominent manufacturer desired to present to a friend enough silk dress goods for two costumes. A sample was shown to the friend, and it was explained that this sample was of domestic silks. The friend to whom the silks were to be presented, a lady of old New England stock, intimated that she would much prefer to have foreign goods. The suggestion was accepted, and the donor, accompanied by her friend, picked out some silk dress goods at one of the prominent retail shops in New York, which were accepted by the friend, and she was very much delighted at the change from domestic to foreign goods, as she thought. It happened that the husband of the good lady who was making the present was a silk manufacturer, and on arrival at home, when the question had been settled, and the foreign goods selected, he examined them, and by a peculiar mark upon the goods which had been accepted, he showed the ladies that the alleged foreign goods were made by his own factory in this country.

Such incidents as this illustrate the difficulties attending the introducing of American goods among a class of consumers who cling to the notion that a foreign label is a guaranty of superior quality. It is not inappropriate in this connection to state the fact that a large amount of the alleged foreign silks sold in the stores of prominent cities with foreign brands woven into the goods are made right here in this country under the operations of the Dingley tariff.

Canada's Lumber Embargo.

In retaliation against the United States for the Dingley tariff law Canada a few years ago adopted a measure which discouraged the exportation of lumber to this country. Certain Michigan men who at that time already had contracts with the province of Ontario for lumber cutting privileges, immediately protested that this course was a violation of a constitutional guarantee. With difficulty, and after a long series of delays, the Michigan parties have at last obtained an order authorizing them to bring suit against the province to terminate this interference. The recent addition of Mr. Stratton to the Ontario cabinet is construed as an indication that the province means to make it easier for the United States to get lumber in Canada than formerly.—New York Tribune.

The Wage-Earner's Share.

A dispatch from Youngstown, Ohio, dated Nov. 8, reads as follows:

"At a wage conference today between James H. Nutt, of the Iron Manufacturers' association, and a committee representing the Amalgamated Association of Iron and Steel Workers, the wage scale for November and December was placed on a basis of 1 6-10 cents, which makes the wages of puddlers $5.50, an increase of 50 cents per ton. This is the highest price paid for puddling since 1880."

Thus does the wage-earner come in for his share of the general prosperity. He has not been overlooked in the division of benefits. It is one of the glories of the protective system that it always looks after the wage-earner.

What Does This Mean?

American Economist: "Every wool grower of the country should ask his congressman or senator whether the customs authorities throughout the country are collecting the duty on wool as intended by the Dingley tariff." This is the statement of a reliable authority in close touch with domestic wool interests. What does it mean?

It means that the Wilson-Gorman tariff act that allowed wolves to run at large and destroy sheep has been superseded by an act that has fenced up the wolves so that they will have to either devour one another or go hungry. They cannot feast on mutton to any great extent while the Dingley bill remains intact.—Peoria (Ill.) Journal.

This makes the third student from Pawnee county who has received this honor, the others being Miss Edith Henry of Pawnee City and E D Howe of Table Rock.

A meeting of the House committee on appropriations will be called by Chairman Cannon for Jan 4, the day after Congress will reassemble. At that time the committee will probably be asked to approve the first urgent deficiency appropriation bills of the session. This will carry something more than $50,000,000, nearly all of which arises out of the operations of the military arm of the government. With the presentation of this bill, doubtless will come the first contest on the floor of the House over the Philippine question and the policy of the administration in relation thereto. Though the proposed appropriation for military expenses will make debace on the subject pertinent to the consideration of the bill, it is expected that the debate will not be general, nor prolonged, at that time, but will be merely the opening of the fusillade, as it were.

Los Angeles, Cal., Dec. 25.—At 4:25 this morning a severe earthquake shock was felt over a large portion of Southern California, the undulations lasting about twelve seconds. The entire center of the shock appeared to have been at San Jacinto; a small town in Riverside county. The business portion of San Jacinto consists of two blocks of two-story buildings, some of which were built of brick. Ten or fifteen buildings were damaged, chimneys being toppled over and walls cracked and shaken. The total damage at San Jacinto and Hemit, a small town near by, is estimated at $50,000. The large tourist hotel at Hemit was damaged and the hospital at San Jacinto also suffered. The rear wall of the Johnson block at Hemit fell. No person was injured at either place so far as is known.

The shock was heavy at Santa Ana Anaheim, San Bernardino, Riverside and other places, but no particular damage is reported except from San Jacinto and Hemit.

In this city no damage was done, though the shock was particularly violent. The houses here are well filled with eastern tourists and they were in many instances terrified at the unexpected disturbances and rushed from their rooms in a fright. Wild reports concerning the earthquake soon spread like wildfire and the telephone and telegraph wires between this city and adjacent towns were kept busy handling inquiring messages. It was reported that several lives were lost in the collapse of the hotel at Hemit, and another rumor to the effect that six Indians had been killed at the same place, but fortunately there was no truth in these rumors of the loss of life.

Color in Commerce.

The United States consul-general at Frankfort says "that it is important to study the taste of people in the matter of color, as well as in regard to shape, in designing goods for a foreign market. Saxon makers of needles drove England out of Brazil by wrapping their goods in pink paper instead of black. Other Germans are catering to the fondness of Russians for red in their dress. France recently learned how distasteful green is to a Chinaman, but it cost a good deal of money to make the discovery."

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C., December 23, 1899. (Special Correspondence.) The first two weeks of congress reaching up to the holiday recess did not develop anything of special importance to Nebraska, aside from the currency debate and the passage of the bill by the house declaring the gold to be the standard of the country. Several special pension bills were introduced by the Nebraska Representatives, one of which calls for a pension at the rate of $100 a month for the widow of Col. Stotsenburg. Mr. Burkett introduced bills calling for the erection of $75,000 public buildings at Falls City and Plattsmouth. Mr. Sutherland asked for a $125,000 building at Hastings, and Mr. Mercer asked for the establishment of a U. S. Mint at Omaha. Free rural mail delivery is also asked for Washington and Sarpy counties.

In the debate which has been going on, Neville and Robinson have taken the opportunity to make speeches They were allowed time one evening when the hall was nearly deserted. When they finished there were twenty three democrats and pops in the room. The republicans had all gone home. The speeches were made so they might be printed in the congressional record, and will be made to see service in the campaign next year. They both sang the song of Bryan and 16 to 1.

The first question of public importance taken up in the house was the Roberts polygamy case. The republican members were unanimous in favor of excluding the polygamist Robinson of Nebraska joined with a few democrats in voting to allow Roberts to take the oath of office. The third district congressman had forgotten all about the "Sulu" treaty which was so industriously exploited by the fusionists two months ago.

Republicans and democrats alike, now admit that the country has had the gold standard for twenty-five years or more, and that the pending currency bill only made a declaration of what is already in effect. The vote on the bill could have been counted at the beginning of the debate, yet the democratic members talked on the question as if it were entirely new, and as if the result hung on their words. The debate was utilized by both parties in outlining the issue for the coming presidential campaign. The republicans have had a great deal of sport during the debate, as they have lost no chance to quote from Bryan's "First Battle," a copy of which had been purchased in a Washington book store for 25 cents. The calamity speeches come in for a good deal of ridicule.

The democratic speakers were all made to admit that prosperity had come under the republican administration, but they had the same old excuse—it was only temporary. Eastern people have agreed, however, that temporary prosperity which turns out to be permanent, is a pretty satisfactory sort, and outside of the democratic caucus circle the gold standard and the republican tariff laws are universally favored.

It is learned that the sentiment in the southern states is changing rapidly, the cause being the establishment of a large number of factories in the south. The smoke from the chimneys of new iron and cotton mills, the increased demand for labor and the general increase in wages, has taught the southern people that the protective tariff is a good thing, and that there are other national questions besides "Negro supremacy" and hereditary democracy. While it is not likely that the election machinery of the south will allow of any republican majorities next year, there is sure to be a decided slump in the vote.

In Washington and all through the east there has been much comment over the disgraceful scramble of the fusionists in Nebraska to get the place made vacant by the death of Senator Hayward. It is generally understood here that the scramble was commenced as soon as Judge Hayward was taken seriously ill, and the country is forming a pretty correct idea of the real purpose of the so-called "reform party" of Nebraska. A southern member was heard to say, "Why, down south we wait till a man is dead before we all fight for his clothes. They must be right anxious out west."

How to Learn Good English.

From Gunton's Magazine: If the pupil always hears correct English from his teachers and is always corrected when he uses incorrect English he will acquire a correct use of the language without spending several years studying books devoted to rules and their many exceptions, diagrams, parsing, spelling lists, etc. After the pupil has learned to use correct English, while learning something else which he writes and talks about, five hours a week for one school year is found necessary for the systematic teaching of English grammar.

His Gleeful Nephew.

Major W. R. P. Wallace of the Gloucestershire regiment, who was among the captives at Nicholson's Nek, can scarcely be popular with young folk. He has a nephew at Borlase school, Marlow. One day lately one of the form masters was reading to his boys a newspaper account of the capture of the ill-fated column, and when he came to the mention of Major Wallace's name, the thrilling narrative was interrupted by a gleeful exclamation from the nephew: "Then my old uncle is bagged, too!"

The Malaria Mosquito.

According to the observations of Major Ross of India, the germs of malaria are borne, not by the brindled or gray mosquito, but by his cousin, the spotted-winged mosquito. Major Ross was recently sent to the west coast of Africa to investigate the sources of malaria there, and he reports that, as in India, the spotted-winged mosquito is the agent through which the disease is spread. Italian investigators have also shown that mosquitos convey the germs of malaria into the blood of human beings.

Born the Ideal Pioneers.

The Boer is the ideal pioneer. From the days of the great trek, in 1837, and even before that, he opened up countries hitherto unexplored by a white man. A great deal of fuss has been made of mighty travelers, English and foreign, who have traversed Africa, to the vast pecuniary benefit of their publishers and with no small meed of fame to themselves. But there was scarcely one of the old Voortrekkers and hunters of the '40s and '50s who did not accomplish feats of endurance, pluck and lengthy travel which were ten times as trying.

The ancestor of all our native out door grapes is the original wild grape which the Norsemen found on the shores of Vineland. The Concord is supposed to be the wild grape changed through cultivation. Britain's Match Consumption.

More matches are used in Great Britain than in any other country in the world. It has been estimated that British people use an average of eight matches each person per day, and annually over 1,700,000,000,000 are burned.

Insects on Plants.

A good and simple method of driving insects from plants was accidentally discovered by a Frenchman. He found that the leaves of the tomato plant would drive away the insects. He covered the shrub or plant he wished to rid of insects with leaves of the tomato plant, and soon the odor drove them away. Then to make a simple process he made a decoction of the fresh tomato leaves as a spray, which is just as effective and costs hardly anything.

First Electric-Heated Theater.

The first theater in the world to be heated by electricity is the Odeon, in Buenos Ayres. A short time ago the proprietors asked a local company if it would undertake to heat their premises by electricity, and, although the management had many misgivings as to the possibility of being able to do so, so sanguine was the electrical engineer of the concern, an American, that he could devise a practical and satisfactory system of electric-heating apparatus for the purpose that he was given carte blanche and immediately proceeded to work out his scheme, which he has done successfully.—Philadelphia Record.

Forgave His Debtors.

From the Nashville Banner: The last act in the life of Uncle Henry Bowen, a venerable citizen of Humphreys county, was the invocation to "Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors," and he practiced what he prayed. A messenger was dispatched to summon all his debtors to the bedside of the dying patriot, and they came under the apprehension of being called on to settle, but the old man gave each one the note held against him and thus squared the account. Several thousand dollars indebtedness was wiped out by his philanthropy.

A Prize for Inventors.

The heirs of the late Anthony Follet of Washington have offered a prize of 100,000 francs ($20,000) to be awarded during the exhibition in Paris next year to the inventor of the best apparatus for saving life in case of disaster at sea. The prize is open to universal competition. The award will be made by a jury sitting in Paris. It is provided that the entire prize may be awarded to a single individual, or a portion of it may be awarded to each of several persons, as the jury may decide.

Millet's "Angelus."

There are few pictures which have so stirred the heart of humanity as Millet's "Angelus." The girl who supplied the model for the woman's figure was Adele Marie, who constantly reappears in the famous French artist's pictures. It is stated that she retains no resemblance of the man who posed with her. He was a mere "waif and stray," who probably little suspected that his assumed attitude of prayer was to be thus immortalized.

Had Too Many Offices.

From a western Colorado postmaster to the department at Washington: "Pleas except my resignation of p m of the govment at this town I had ben alacted j of the peace & school commisner said duties preventing me from bitin off more than I can chaw by trine to kill three birds with 1 ston Yores respectably."

Colors Hit in Battle.

It would appear from long observation that soldiers are hit during battle according to the color of their dress in the following order: Red is the most fatal color; Austrian gray is the least fatal. The proportions are: Red, 12; blue green, 7; brown, 6; Austrian bluish gray, 5.

Acoustics Affected by Plastering.

It has been discovered that the plastering in the walls of a room seriously affect its acoustic properties. The best results are obtained by using pure gypsum.

"One Minute Cough Cure is the best remedy I ever used for coughs and colds. It is unequalled for whooping cough. Children all like it," writes H N Williams, Gentryville, Ind. Never fails. It is the only harmless remedy that gives immediate results. Cures coughs, colds, hoarseness, croup, pneumonia, bronchitis and all throat and lung troubles. Its early use prevents consumption.

Bright, but "Sassy."

Two Boston men, on their way to Taunton the other day on their bicycles, stopped at a farmhouse for bread and milk and "fixin's." A small boy of 6 or thereabouts seemed quite interested in them and offered to do the "cake walk" for 2 cents. After the performance they invited him to have a cooky. He then took one without any acknowledgment, when one of them asked: "Do you know what 'Thank you' is in English?" Without any hesitation the youngster made answer, "Do you know what 'Shut up' is in French?"

Dwight L. Moody, the great revivalist, died last Friday. No man of present generation made a greater impression on the lives of men and women than did Mr. Moody. Thousands of men who were groping down in the blackness of crime, disappointment and despair, were led by him to Christ and up into bright, beautiful, hopeful living; blessing others as they themselves had been blessed. In all hearts there is sorrow but his last words: "Earth recedes, heaven is opening," is their consolation and hope.

A "smoothe duck is doing" Illinois towns with a trick that lays the gold spectacle man in the shade. He is well dressed, talks nice, but is in a whole lot of trouble. He is very anxious to get to his home, which is in some other state, but is busted and willing to part with a fine gold watch for almost nothing. If he can't get any more $3 will get it. He has his clothes full of watches, and they cost him $2.15 each. He was run in twice last week at Belleville, for selling without a license. He had $1,600 in cash and two dozen watches in his clothes. He had no difficulty in showing that he bought the watches of a New York firm that makes them especially for the business hence he could not be held for robbery.

"An American Mother" will conceal the identity of one of the most prominent women of the day in the authorship of a series of singularly frank articles about to begin in The Ladies' Home Journal. The articles will deal with the vital questions entering into modern American womanhood, and the directness of their character is in a way revealed in the title of the first article, "Have Women Robbed Men of Their Religion?" which the writer boldly answers in the affirmative. The series will then go on and deal with the exact conditions prevailing in girls' colleges, revealing an unusually keen insight, and drawing some emphatic deductions which will awaken unusual interest.

A tramp ran into a printing office and said that a man had just swallowed a two-foot rule and was dying by inches. The editor started out to learn the particulars of the death and meeting a doctor told him about the case. He said that was nothing; that he had a patient that once swallowed a thermometer and died by degrees. A couple of by-standers then chipped in. One said it reminded him of a fellow down in Kansas who swallowed a pistol and went off easy. The other said he had a friend in New Jersey who swallowed a pint of applejack and went off in good spirits. We once heard of a man who ate some horsemeat and died of nightmare. A man once asked an old German if his son, who had swallowed a tape measure died by inches and he replied that "his son vent out in the alley and died by the yard."

GRANDMA WOOD

Died at the Home of Her Daughter, Mrs. Emily Wemple, on Last Sunday Morning.

Grandma Wood was born near Albany, New York, May 14 1806, and died at Table Rock, Neb., Dec. 24 1899, aged 93 years, 7 months and 21 days. She was married to Jeremial Wood, Oct. 25, 1827. To them were born 9 children, of whom seven are living at the present time. She was blessed with 52 grand children and 16 great grand children. Her husband sickened and died after they had lived together nearly twenty years leaving her to give direction to the children; afterwards she spoke often of the care and great responsibilities which were thrust upon her. Nobly she did her part. At the age of 17 she was most happily converted, professed faith in Jesus and soon after united with the Methodist Episcopal church to this faith she clung with great tenacity.

She was a safe counselor. It was not because she was a great philosopher, but she was great in experience and it could be said of her as it was said of one of old, "Flesh and blood hath not revealed it to you;" many things were revealed to her by the Holy Spirit. She said to a minister who was about to leave the children, "You will be forgotten, tempted but I shall not cease to pray for you. She was always in her pew when it was possible for her to be present; was never silent in prayer and cheerful. She was very helpful to the pastor and a benediction to the people. The love-feast, the class and prayer meeting and the Holy Communion were great seasons to her heart. Her mouth was filled with the shouting of praise and glorying in God and how happy she was when some of the children or grandchildren were converted and joined the church she had loved and served for nearly three quarters of a century.

Rev Appleton ill-edicts the dead which die in the Lord; even saith the Spirit that they may rest from their labors and their works do follow them.

Death to the Christian is like sweet sleep to the body. Sleep is nature's sweet restorer, balm of hurt minds, chief nourisher of life's feast, sleeve of care, knits up the raveled sleeve of care, sleep that lets down the curtain and shuts out the jarring strife of human life. So calm is death to the Christian and he sinks the sweetest that is in waiting on the other side of the river. Death was a happy release to our sister. How joyfully did she slip off the soiled and tattered garments of this life and take on the beautiful apparel of heaven. With what transport and delight did her soul speed away from the body to enjoy a mansion prepared for the blest. Always patient and cheerful, buoyant in spirit and full of hope, impressing those about her with her wonderful sweetness and cheerfulness at all times. To those who knew her best she was the highest type of woman. As a mother we knew her to be devoted, kind, and loving. All the children and the numerous grand children and great grand children can appreciate these words:

My mother, when I learned that thou wast dead,
Say, wast thou conscious of the tear I shed?
Hovered thy spirit o'er thy sorrowing son
Wretch, even then, life's journey just begun.
Perhaps a seraph has convey'd the balm
Perhaps a cherub caught the falling tear
Perhaps it was not given to mortal ken
Perhaps a fear, if souls can weep in bliss.
Ah that maternal smile, it answers yes!

Happy the person whose mother is a Christian. Years will not erase from lips her loving kiss and her prayer brings back the wanderer.

Bright be the place of thy soul,
No lovlier spirit than thine
Ever broke from its mortal control
In the pride of the blessed to shine.
On earth thou were't all but divine
As thy soul shall immortal be
And our sorrows may cease to repine
When we know thy God is with thee.

Clothed of death, so fit and pure,
Like starlight upon marble fair,
As surely it is life, not death,
That in still beauty sleepeth there.

The funeral services were held at the M M Church at 11 o'clock on Wednesday forenoon, conducted by Rev G M Gates, the sermon being preached by Rev P Van Fleet, to whom we are indebted for the above tribute to her memory. Those from abroad who were present were: H J Wood, Streator, Ill.; Theron Treat, Wilsonville, Neb.; Mrs Kate Davis, Mr and Mrs Earnest Gray, Mr and Mrs Tom Cooper and their little boy, and E D Wood, of St. Joseph. Two of her children, Noah Wood, who is in Montana, and Mrs Jennie Richards who lives in California, were not present. Everybody who knew Grandma, loved her, and the sorrow of the relatives is in a large measure shared by the entire community.

The Argus has received the song entitled "Summer Time in Dixie" which has been taken from the 1899-1900 season Minstrel Song, composed and written by Hattie Nevada, known to the musical world as "The Queen of the Musical Writers". The songs: "The Letter Edged in Black," "While the Leaves Came Drifting Down," "On the Old Missouri Shore," "I'll Come Back When the Hawthorn Blooms Again," and "Just the Picture of a Girl I Used to Know" by the same author are being sung in every country of the Globe, and this song bids fair to outshine them all. It is set to a negro melody of exceptional sweetness as well as simplicity. This song is published by the Kansas City Talking Machine Co., of Kansas City, Mo., who are also manufacturers of original records for Graphophones and phonographs and issue the largest catalogue in the world. Their list will be sent to any address on receipt of a 2c. stamp to cover postage. "Summer Time In Dixie can be had of any up-to date music dealer and if your dealer has not the song, and will not get it for you it can be had of the publishers at half price, by remitting them 25 cents in coin or stamps.

LAWTON IS SHOT

Famous Fighter Killed by Insurgent Bullet.

WAS VICTIM OF HIS OWN DARING

Falls at Head of Column Leading a Charge—His Death Instantaneous—Surgeons Come Quickly, but Services Useless.

A Manila, December 20 special says: Major General Henry W. Lawton has been shot and killed at San Mateo. He was standing in front of his troops, was shot in the breast and died immediately.

General Lawton started for Manila last night with cavalry under Captain Lockett and battalions of the Twenty-fifth and Twenty-seventh infantry under Lieutenant Colonel Sargent, for the purpose of capturing San Mateo, where Gernomo was said to have 300 insurgents.

General Lawton left home Monday night, having returned from his northern operations Saturday, to lead an expedition through Mariquina valley, which has been an insurgent stronghold throughout the war. The valley had several times been invaded, but never held by the Americans. General Gernomo was supposed to have there the largest organized force north of Manila, and General Otis wished to garrison Mariquina.

San Mateo was attacked at 8 o'clock and a three hours' fight ensued. This resulted in but few casualties on the American side, apart from the death of General Lawton, but the attack was difficult because of the natural defense of the town.

General Lawton was walking along the firing line within 300 yards of a small sharpshooters' trench, conspicuous in the big white helmet he always wore, and a light yellow raincoat. He was also easily distinguishable because of his commanding stature. The sharpshooters directed several close shots, which clipped the grass nearby. His staff officers called General Lawton's attention to the danger he was in, but he only laughed with his usual contempt for bullets.

Suddenly he exclaimed:

"I am shot," clenched his hands in a desperate effort to stand erect and fell into the hands of a staff officer.

Orderlies rushed across the field for surgeons, who dashed up immediately, but their efforts were useless. The body was taken to a clump of bushes and laid upon a stretcher, the familiar white helmet covering the face of the dead general.

Almost at this moment the cheers of the American troops rushing into San Mateo were mingling with the rifle volleys. After the fight six stalwart cavalrymen forded the river to the town carrying the litter on their shoulders, the staff preceding with the colors, and a cavalry escort following. The troops filed bare-headed through the building where the body was laid and many a tear fell from the eyes of the men who had long loved intrepid Lawton. The staff was stricken with grief as though each man had suffered a personal loss. Owing to the condition of the country, which is impassable so far as vehicles are concerned, the remoins could not be brought to Manila. Mrs. Dawton and the children are living in a government residence formerly occupied by a Spanish general.

The News at Washington.

The war department received the following official confirmation of the killing of General Lawton near San Mateo, Luzon:

Manila, Dec. 20.—General Lawton, engaged in driving insurgents from San Mateo section of country northeast of Manila, killed instantly at 9:30 yesterday morning. A great loss to us and his country. (Signed) OTIS.

General Lawton's death was a great shock to the officers of the war department, to nearly all of whom he was known personally. Hitherto his luck in battle had been marvelous. He had been in hundreds of skirmishes and midnight attacks.

Major Smith, with three companies of the Seventeenth, surrounded and captured another band of guerrillas which was terrorizing a large section north. The troops killed several of the band.

General Hughes has captured insurgent strongholds at Leapiz and Romblon, the navy co-operating. One man was killed and one wounded.

The insurgents in the island of Panay are apparently suppressed.

SULTAN'S SON-IN-LAW SKIPS

Takes Family Jewels and All the Money He Could Collect.

A Constantinople, Dec. 19 dispatch says: The flight of the sultan's son-in-law, Mahmud Pasha, Thursday with the jewels and all the money he could collect has been the sensation here. It has been ascertained that he sailed for Marseilles on a steamer and the Turkish government has telegraphed to the French minister of foreign affairs asking for the arrest of Mahmud on his arrival at Marselles and his return to Constantinople on the charge that he is implicated in a plot to assassinate the sultan. This accusation, however, is generally discredited, and it is believed the refuge is the victim of an intrigue.

Wanted to See the Baby.

Some young women, according to a Philadelphia paper, noticed a foreign-looking man pushing a closed baby carriage. Their curiosity was aroused and one of them asked to see the baby that was so completely covered. The man hesitated but finally succumbed to the girls' glances, and, unbuttoning the apron, he disclosed a small, rotund gentleman, with mustache and Napoleon, quietly chewing an unlighted cigar. The girls were speechless with surprise and shame for having intruded on the man's privacy, although he was a tiny one, under three feet in length. He graciously pardoned the women as he stroked his mustache, and invited them to see him at the export exposition, where he has just arrived to be exhibited. Then, bidding them good-by, he ordered his attendant to continue with the daily ride.

Two tables stand near, and upon one are two cups, a bottle of sake and a kettle with two spouts. Upon the other are a miniature plum tree, typifying the beauty of the bride; a miniature fir tree, which signifies the strength of the bridegroom, and a stork standing upon a tortoise, representing long life and happiness. The two-spouted kettle is put to the mouths of the bride and bridegroom alternately, signifying that they are to share each other's joys and sorrows. The bride keeps her veil, and it is used as her shroud when she dies.

Leavenworth, Kas., it is claimed, stands at the head of American cities in the shipment of apples. Indeed, more apples are shipped from Leavenworth than from any other point on either side of the Atlantic ocean. In addition to the large number of local packers engaged in the business at that place hundreds of packers flock to Leavenworth annually from other parts of the country for the purpose of shipping away fruit. There are two immense cold storage plants in Leavenworth, one of which is built to accommodate 75,000 bushels of apples.

BOERS ARE NOT IDLE

They are Massing in Great Numbers at Stormberg

NO TIDINGS FROM METHUEN AS YET

Causes Renewed Anxiety—Rebel Dutch Joining Boers—One Commando of Two Thousand Enlisted—Lack of Definite News From Front.

A London, December 21, dispatch says the Daily News has the following dispatch from Capetown, dated Saturday, December 16:

"The Boers intend to make a big stand at Stormberg, and are massing a great force at the abandoned British camp. One commando of 2,000 consists chiefly of rebel Dutch."

The gravity of the military situation is again becoming accentuated in the public mind, owing to the complete absence of news. Nothing has been heard from Lord Methuen since Sunday, and it is feared that his communication has been cut. If this be so his position is dangerous.

The Boer position, already formidable on December 11, has since been greatly strengthened, extending for an area of twelve miles. It is entrenched according to the approved methods throughout the entire length. Wire fences have been placed before all the trenches at every point, guns have been got into position, and there is every evidence that the Boers are well supplied with ammunition. Only a powerful attacking force can hope to make a successful assault.

CAUSES UNIVERSAL SORROW

Americans at Manila Grieve Over Gen. Lawton's Death.

Major General Lawton's body was brought to Manila Wednesday afternoon, his staff and a squadron of cavalry affording an escort. It was found necessary to bridge the river. The funeral will take place from his late residence at Manila, a mansion formerly occupied by a Spanish general. The body has been temporarily placed in a vault in El Paco cemetery, where many of the Americans have been interred, and a guard of honor will be maintained.

When Mrs. Lawton and her four children shall have completed their arrangements for returning to the United States the remains will be taken on a transport with an escort of officers for final interment, as is thought probable here, in Arlington cemetery.

General Lawton's death has caused universal sorrow in Manila. No American officer had greater popularity among all ranks, and in his dealings with the natives he commanded their respect and confidence to a remarkable degree. The mayors whom he installed in the neighboring towns are arranging to attend the funeral in a body.

Pension for Mrs. Lawton.

Senator Fairbanks Thursday introduced a bill granting a pension of $2,000 a year to the widow of General Lawton. Representative Landis of Indiana introduced a similar bill in the house. Mr. Landis represents the district from which Lawton's first regiment was recruited.

Senator Fairbanks saw the president today in regard to the return of General Lawton's body to the United States. The senator suggested that the funeral be given something of a national affair.

Cubans are Happy.

Much enthusiasm was manifested on every side.

Secretary Long informed the president that the bodies of the victims of the Maine disaster probably would reach Washington next Tuesday or Wednesday. The president will attend the burial services at Arlington if nothing occurs to prevent.

Despite repeated British denials it seems to be a fact that British agents are busy in many of the rural districts of Germany hiring veterans for service in South Africa. Several well authenticated cases have been reported the past week.

The government, says a London dispatch, has at last consented to mobilize a force of ten thousand mounted infantry, a force which General Buller is credited with having demanded all along as essential to success in South Africa.

The war office has issued an order to the effect that the government has decided to raise for South Africa a mounted infantry force, to be called the "imperial yeomanry," and to be recruited from yeomanry, volunteers and civilians. Enlistments will be for one year, or during the continuance of the war.

LYNCH A NEGRO MURDERER

Mob of Miners in Pennsylvania Shoot Him to Death.

Sanford White, superintendent of construction of the W. J. Rainey Coke company at Dunbar, Pa., was shot and killed by David Pierce, a colored employe. Pierce then fled to the mountains, followed by an angry mob. He was discerned in hiding and riddled with bullets.

The trouble began with a quarrel between Pierce and Richard Cunningham, superintendent of the Mount Vernon works over a question of work. White interfered in behalf of Cunningham, when the negro drew a revolver and fired, the ball penetrating White's abdomen, making a fatal wound.

Immediately after firing Pierce ran for his life, with more than 200 persons in hot pursuit. He was chased for more than two miles before his pursuers came within shooting distance, but as soon as they did he was made the target for a shower of bullets. He fell with seven wounds through his body and died in a short time.

FIRE IN TENEMENT HOUSES

Seven Lives are Sacrificed in New York City—Several Badly Burned.

Several lives were lost in two big tenement houses which were destroyed by fire in New York city early Wednesday morning. Five charred bodies were found on the upper floor of a burned tenement at 102d street and Third avenue, and five women and a little girl, all badly burned, were carried from the blazing house to nearby hospitals. There is thought to be but slight chance of any of the six surviving.

A few hours earlier a deadly fire attacked a five story tenement on Tenth avenue, burning to death Mrs. Martin Fox and her child. The charred remains of both were found after the fire. Mr. Fox is a hackman and was not at home at the time.

Octogenarian of Iowa Who is Still Hale and Hearty.

He is hale and hearty, possessing all his faculties. If he lives until January 1, of which there is no doubt, he will have lived in three centuries, provided the new century begins then—and the Octogenarians are planning a great reception for him, in which all the pioneers and aged people of the city will take part.

It is probable that the college will be rebuilt at once.

RATE IS OPPOSED

Shippers Appeal to the Interstate Commission.

THE MAIN PLEA IS FOR MORE TIME

New Freight Schedule is Too Suddenly Applied—Transportation Companies Claim Enhanced Prices Make the Advance Necessary.

A hearing was begun Thursday at Washington by the interstate commerce commission in the matter of changes in freight classification and advances in freight by carriers using the official classification. Many complaints have been filed with the commission alleging that discriminating changes in freight classification by carriers has been agreed upon to take effect January 1, 1900. To determine this question the hearing of today was held. Many of the most prominent railway freight officials in the eastern part of the country attended the hearing and representatives of large shipping interests in the same section were also present.

At the opening of the hearing C. E. Will of New York, chairman of the official classification committee, said the railroads were without knowledge of the persons who had requested the hearing, and asked that they be called upon to state wherein the proposed changes were unjust.

He maintained that the proposed advance in freight rates were due to the increased cost of railroad plants and maintenance and the advances had been applied to classes of freights that could well afford to pay them.

In the course of the long explanation by W. A. Day, attorney for the committee, Mr. Gill gave no reasons for the proposed advances upon special articles or classes of freight except the general reasons which applied to all freight. He maintained that the proposed new classifications, generally speaking, were restorations of freight rates which prevailed in times past when commercial and trade conditions were similar to what they now are. His replies to a long series of questions indicated that his own belief and that of his colleagues on the classification committee was the recent marked advance in the price of railway equipment and operation—in steel rails and all forms of steel and iron, etc—rendered it necessary for the railroads, in a degree proportionately to advance freight rates. He said freight rates had been on a gradually descending scale for about twenty years, but he was unable to say whether the proposed new rate would be higher or lower than the rates which prevailed in 1882.

In a statement to the commission Attorney Day said a comparison of the proposed rates on certain specific articles showed that a new rate would be higher than had ever existed since the commission was created.

Without reaching any conclusion the hearing was adjourned till today, Friday.

CLOSE COMPACT IN ORIENT

China and Japan Have a Perfect Understanding.

An additional indication of the secret understanding which has recently been arrived at between China and Japan is seen in the honors lately conferred on Yano Fumio, who has resigned his post as Japanese minister at Pekin in order, it is said, to take the post of foreign adviser to the imperial Chinese government. The empress dowager has just conferred on Yano Fumio the Order of the Double Dragon of the First Class. This gives him a Chinese rank equal to that of the highest viceroy or the president of the greatest six governing boards, or departments, at Pekin. He has left for Tokio, it is added, for special instructions from the Japanese government.

Less Demand for Clothing

Upward of 2,500 seamstresses have been thrown out of employment by the closing of most of the departments of the Schuylkill arsenal. The order went into effect this week and the tent-making department is the only one working. The shut-down is for an indefinite period and work may not be resumed until next July. The Schuylkill depot is the largest station for the manufacture of soldiers' clothing in this country and for a year and a half it has supplied the uniforms for the great majority of the army. The demand for clothing decreased when the war with Spain ended and lately the output has been excessive.

Immigration is Heavy.

Immigration continues to be unusually heavy for this time of year. For the month of November 26,460 immigrants came to the New York port, as compared with 18,196 during the same month last year. For the preceding four months the figures show a substantial increase in each case. Most of the nationalities are represented, but the Italians figure most prominently, followed by the Austro-Hungarians. The English, Irish and Scotch show a decided decrease.

DEROULEDE IS CONDEMNED

Sent to Prison for Two Years for Insulting French President.

At Paris M. Deroulede was sentenced to imprisonment for two years on the charge of insulting the president of France and libeling senators comprising the high court of justice.

In the senate, sitting as a high court of justice, counsel urged that the charges against M. Marcel-Habert be joined to the present proceedings, but the prosecutor general declared this would be illegal.

M. Deroulede, whom, though ill, was present, virulently denounced the senators and law officers for being "subservient to the government's orders."

"I wish to be condemned. I will say what I think of these scoundrels. This assemblage is infamous and dishonors France and the republic."

During increasing din M. Deroulede continued: "I include in my denunciations both the senate and the president of the republic."

The prosecutor with difficulty made himself heard in the tumult which ensued, and demanded the prompt punishment of M. Deroulede, who continued to hurl insults at the high court, coupled with the assertion that he desired punishment.

The session was eventually suspended and the court retired to consider the situation.

The prisoners acclaimed M. Deroulede.

GIFT FOR LIBRARY BUILDING

Andrew Carnegie Said to Have Given $75,000 to Lincoln, Neb.

Though no answer was received to a telegram sent to Mr. Carnegie's home Thursday night in regard to the truth of the rumor, the report is believed by those who have had knowledge of correspondence between Lincoln people and Mr. Carnegie on this subject. S. L. Geisthardt, formerly a member of the city library board, has been endeavoring to convince Mr. Carnegie that he would do well to give Lincoln a public library building.

By M. S. Jameson.

"Well, if those fellows are coming around to see the old year out they had better show up pretty soon," yawned H. Parker Baxter as he slammed down the cover of a ponderous and gruesome medical book and turned a pair of sleepy eyes to the clock which was complacently ticking away the last fifteen minutes of '98. No other sounds were to be heard, save the occasional settling of the fire in the grate, for the snow lay deep and soft over the cobble and flagstone outside. The old year, after a stormy life, was dying calmly and beautifully.

To our friend Baxter, one of these unimpassioned, dusty men who never "join in," this ancient ceremony of seeing the old year out appealed but feebly. He used to say of New Years, "an arbitrarily fixed point in time which has become the inaugural date for good resolutions, to the necessary neglect of all other dates for their formation," but most of his friends thought this simply a speech that he was gratified to make. He was trying hard to pose as a "rising young physician," and was really acting the part to himself, as many an ambitious man will do.

But however this may be, as the seconds ticked along, H. Parker grew more and more drowsy. He settled himself back in the chair, stared at the fire, and blinked. Then his eyelids dropped.

"This will never do," says he, straightening up with a jerk and reaching out to the table for something to read or look at, "I must keep awake a few minutes longer." Chance put a stack of photographs under his hand, and though they were stale enough he began to look them over again—incidentally yielding to the comfort of lying back in the big chair. Some were portraits of his friends at school and college, some were old faded prints that ought to have had romances attached, but which were really very prosaic, even to him. Others bore the brand of the amateur's first attempt—these to be passed by quickly; a few were the products of his own photographic skill at Granite Head last summer—bathers in the surf, the hotel, a clam bake, etc.—all very fair photographs in their way—but hold! here is one that might be studied critically. There is no hurry. It is too late now for the revellers to come. H. Parker shifts to a still more comfortable position and the soft lamp light shines over his shoulder upon as pretty a little picture as you would ask to see.

It is the picture of a dark-haired girl, dressed in a suit of duck. She is standing on a log of driftwood with her hands behind her and her handsome, happy face turned squarely to the camera. In the developing of this picture H. Parker had conceded that more care was required than in ordinary work; he had watched its delicate lines appear with the enthusiasm of a true lover of the chemist's art. With any other passion? Possibly, but that was past and gone four months ago.

The young doctor liked that photograph, somehow. He had examined it time and again until he knew its every detail. It did not grow stale like the others. But tonight there seemed to be a new light upon it, a new tone in the unfocused background of sand and sea, an undefinable change of expression in those brown eyes looking out of the albumen paper. Our imagination is subject to such unhealthy flutters as this, yet most interesting grew that picture, and H. Parker's eyes and heart were won, if his reason sanctioned not.

Preposterous and incredible! The duck skirt began to move slightly, as if stirred by a breeze from the sea, and the margins of the picture drew farther and farther apart, until on one side a row of bath houses came into view, while on the other the broad, blue ocean sparkling in the summer sunlight! More than this, H. Parker was conscious of a slight odor of salt in the air, as of seaweed and wet rocks left by the tide. The distant boom of breakers, soft at first, grew louder and nearer. When the girl stepped down from the drift log to the sand before his eyes, the doctor's smile of incredulity suddenly expired. When she looked at him and spoke he felt a tremor in the very marrow of his bones, and not a tremor wholly of surprise either.

There he was—on the beach with her again; not Baxter of surgical treatises and test-tubes, but the summer-tanned devotee of Granite ... and the very ardent, though unassuming, admirer of Grace Marston. Her first words confused his thoughts, he felt a ghostlike atmosphere about him, but after that the glaring August sun warmed him through, the sea breeze exhilarated him, he was filled with energy and real live happiness.

"Dear me," she was saying, "to think that there is nothing better for you to photograph than a summer girl making a guy of herself on an old log! There go those Sewall girls from the Pines; if you hurry you can catch them to pose in a group for you. I've heard they are great at it."

"At posing, I suppose," he answered. "No, Miss Marston, I have graduated from the snap-'em-whenever-you-can class and have entered the art school—hence I have chosen you for the picture."

"Ha-ha-ha! I appreciate that," laughed the girl as they began to saunter down toward the cliffs, "but have you considered, Mr. Baxter, the probability of my breaking the plate?"

"What! An angler, too? I shall not humor the weakness in you, still, if you are a summer girl, as your own confession would indicate——"

"Pardon me, Mr. Baxter, 'you know I like the assertion better when you let me make it."

"Of course. Observe that I advance no statements on the subject myself. I was merely going to say that if you are a summer girl of the approved newspaper-joke sort, your likeness upon the plate could not fail to produce the effect that it has upon—er—men's hearts, to wit—complete fracture."

THE DOCTOR LIKED THAT PHOTOGRAPH.

"Why, I am surprised at you," said Grace, a faint blush hardly perceptible under the healthy tan which she had found no difficulty in acquiring at Granite Head.

H. Parker studied her face in its mock severity and watched the dainty little hand go up to push back some annoying hair that blew across her eyes. A great wave of admiration for that noble girl rose up in his breast—admiration very unlike that with which he had heard his brilliant classmates proclaim their knowledge. His heart told him, "I love her." Why not let his heart be heard?

They strolled along together to the music of the sea. H. Parker felt that there was melody even in the screaming of the gulls overhead. He wondered why it had never seemed so before.

"Let us sit up there under the big rock," suggested Grace, pointing to the nearest of the cliffs which leaned forward over the sand and made a cosy shelter from the sun. Here the sand was cool, the glare softened and the view of cheap cottages and decrepit bath houses cut off, while the whole stretch of beach on the right lay before them like a broad white highway. Grace sat with her back against the rock, and at her side reclined the doctor, full length upon the sand.

"Are you ever serious, Miss Marston?" quoth he with but a trace of that quality in his own tone.

"Sometimes."

"On what rare occasions would it be possible for one to find you in that mood?"

"Oh, well, I'm not naturally so, you know, but once in a while when something goes wrong to induce it I get very serious—even blue—and as I always end by finding out what a silly, useless creature I am, there is very little enjoyment in being serious. Please let's not be serious, Mr. Baxter."

"Never more light-minded in my life, Miss Marston—never. But tell me how you deduct your conclusion which proves you a silly, useless creature. I am very clever at showing fallacies in reasoning."

"Well, unless because I live a useless life. Just look at my diary for a winter. Just look it through and see if you find anything accomplished, anything improving or worthy. Dances—calls—teas, over and over again. Do you call that sort of thing living? The people I meet day by day there; do I know them, are they friends, do they know me? No, it's all vanity—artificial—a waste of time."

Grace was serious enough now and stared out to sea with a frown upon her brows as dark as any that ever hovered there.

A pause and her companion spoke.

"It may be vanity for some, but not for you, Miss Marston. Society furnishes a field for superficial character to breed and thrive in, but yours is good and strong and sincere."

"I have begun to forget and disregard what it naturally is. I am tired of that life. I love the woods and the sea—the open air and the sense of freedom; freedom to go where I please, be as I want to be, choose companions that I like."

"Then the view of cliffs and breakers is pleasanter than the brilliant ballroom with its music and flowers? That cottage half buried in the pines seems a truer home than many a brown stone front on the avenue?"

"Ah, a thousand times," answered Grace with the frown dying out of her face. His words were slow and earnest, but she seemed not to connect them with the speaker. They put her into a brown study and she fell to examining a handful of sand for garnets. Watching the search, he continued even more quietly than before.

"Would there be happiness for you in a little home such as that cottage, far from town, with all its parties and things, where you would be with real people, where you would be loved and served by real friends?"

Closer scrutiny of the sand.

"Would you give up that luxurious life that you have followed for this, and for a fellow whose every energy would be turned to your happiness—such a fellow, in fact, as I?"

The sand slipped away, and the garnets were lost.

"Oh, Grace, Grace, would you—could you——?"

Ding, dong—ding, dong—ding, dong; twelve o'clock.

H. Parker Baxter awoke with a great start and looked around astonished. He had seen the New Year come in August.

NEW YEAR'S DAY IN KITCHEN.

Cook will probably have her New Year's callers, and if you are wise you will close eyes and ears for the nonce, nor investigate too closely the contents of dish or demijohn. For her friends are hale and hearty, with old fashioned ideas on the subject of hospitality, and an aversion to such foolish fripperies as tea or coffee!

If you have a few flowers or ribbons that you do not need, they will be well bestowed upon her, and will add to her attractiveness as she sits in state behind a well filled table in her kitchen presiding over some such scene as this:

Ting-a-ling-ling!

"Mary, there's the basement bell. G'wan now an' open the dure."

The kitchenmaid does so, and reports:

"It's Mr. Duffy."

"Arrah! come right in, Mr. Duffy. It's th' first ye are, an' good luck to you."

"Good luck to you, Miss Kelly. Shure it's a fine night, God be praised!"

"Awin! Sit down."

Duffy does so, and stares around in awkward fashion.

"An' are ye makin' many calls, Mr. Duffy?"

"This is the first. Shure I didn't lave the dumps till sivin."

"True for you. An'pwhat will you have to drink? There's sherry wine an' port wine, an' claret wine an' some whisky."

Mr. Duffy's dull eye brightens.

"I'll take a little of th' ould stuff," he says with a grin.

He takes it, but not a little.

"Will yez have some cake or a sandwich?"

"Have yez arrah a corn bafe san'wich in th' house?"

"Shure I have! Take two of thim."

He does so, and munches till the bell rings again.

The maid announces "Mr. Geohogan."

Duffy rises with some show of perturbation.

"I think I'll be goin'."

"Arrah don't hurry. Ye know Mr. Geohogan?"

"I know no good av him."

"Arrah, phat talk have you more?"

Duffy moves to the door as the newcomer enters, and the two men nod to each other in a surly fashion.

FOINE NIGHT, GOD BE PRAISED.

"Good night," says Duffy.

Cook follows him to the door, and her sibilant whisper can be heard plainly.

"Why don't you like him, Mr. Duffy?"

"Shure he's a scab! An', besides, he's from Tyrone. I niver give a county Tyrone man more than th' tip av me finger."

And the basement door clangs behind him.

Mr. Geohogan partakes freely of refreshment, and is proposing marriage when a new batch of callers arrive.

"Givan wid you now," says Cook, pleased and flustered, "an' come back whin your sober tomorrow. Here comes the Donnelly's."

From this time on the room becomes a rendezvous for Cook's many acquaintances.

The policeman looks in the door to exchange his good wishes for "bite and sup," the grocery clerk drops in, the ice man calls, and as the new year is ushered in with bells and songs and horns and shouts, Cook's guests are there, to aid in the "send off."—New York Herald.

THE VERY LATEST INVENTION.

Improving the Phonograph.

On the principle of the sounding board, which repeats a sound at so short an interval that the original and the repeated waves impress the ear in unison, a device called the polyphone has recently been applied to the phonograph for the purpose of doubling the volume of sound issuing from that instrument. A phonograph with the polyphone attachment has two horns, each provided with a diaphragm and stylus. Not only is the sound made louder, but its quality is improved.

Make Their Own Equipments.

The men of the fire department of Lincoln, Neb., are setting an example to their fellows in other cities in thrift and economy. At the rear of one of the engine houses a small wagon factory has been established, and here the men spend their leisure hours building, under the direction of the chief, all the wagons, ladders and other equipment needed by the department. Skill as a wagonmaker, a painter or an iron worker is now required of those who wish to become firemen in the Nebraska capital.

"At the solicitation of a friend I used Peruna, and can truthfully say it is a grand tonic and is a woman's friend, and should be used in every household. After using it for a short period I feel like a new person." Ann E. Gridley.

Nearly all our ills are due to catarrh. We are liable to have catarrh of the head, catarrh of the throat, catarrh of the lungs, stomach, kidneys, bladder and pelvic organs. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, for free book.

SOLDIERS' WILLS.

How the English Private Disposes of His Belonging.

How does the soldier killed in battle or fatally wounded, dispose of his property, providing he has any to leave behind him? The list of casualties reported regularly from South Africa and the Philippines lend pertinence to the inquiry. Every English soldier has served out to him when he enlists a little volume which contains, among other things, three blank forms of will which he is at liberty to fill out at his leisure. In a majority of cases, however, he pays no attention to this pocketbook and goes into battle with his will still unmade. After he has been hit by a bullet and begins to realize that his chances of getting home are small, the soldier begins to think more carefully of the loved ones left behind him and of the provisions he has made for their comfort. As a result many queer and pathetic wills have been found upon the bodies of dead soldiers, and in every case the wishes of the testator have been respected. During the Soudan campaign of 1884 the body of one soldier was found on the battlefield of El Teb, who, before death had scrawled with the end of a lead bullet on the inside of his helmet, the words "All to my wife." When an English army invaded Afghanistan one soldier was caught while doing some scout duty and shot down when one of his comrades were in sight. Weeks afterward his body was found lying before a tall rock on which he had written in letters of blood, "I want all to go to mother." In both cases the war department held the wills to be valid, and saw that the proper distribution of the property was made.

Pleasures of Public Life.

It must be an expensive luxury writes a correspondent, to be M. P. for the Louth division of Lincolnshire. The following are taken from the list of donations of R. W. Perks, M. P. for that constituency, during one week: Lincolnshire Nursing Institute, £2 10s; Tetney Primitive Methodist Chapel, £5; Saltfleet foal show, £2; Market Rasen horse and dog show, £5; Salvation Army at Louth, £1; ditto at Bardney, £1; ditto at Market Rasen, £1; North Somercotes Wesleyan Chapel, £2, and smaller contributions to football clubs at Hornastle, Market Rasen, Ludford and Louth.—London Telegraph.

Mexicans to Meet the End of the World.

Several young men belonging to families in Pachuca decided to greet the end of the world announced by Prof. Falb in a royal manner. They therefore hired three flat cars which they adorned with a profusion of Chinese lanterns. The first car was occupied by a splendid piano which was played by Arturo Jimenez; the second car was occupied by an estudiantina, and the third car by an orchestra of well-known amateurs. These cars were followed by a long procession of cyclists with their wheels adorned and all carrying torches. Flowers, confetti and serpentines rained on the merrymakers from the balconies as they passed.—Mexican Herald.

Hazel Brush in Demand.

From the Portland Oregonian: Hazel brush is becoming an important article of export in Clackamas county, and the demand is increasing. Twelve thousand hoop-poles are shipped out every week to British Columbia and other northwest sections, and those engaged in the business state that new orders are constantly being received. Every brewery in the northwest, including Montana, gets its supply of hazel chips from Clackamas county. It takes about 230,000 pounds annually to supply the demand. The chips are used to clarify the beer. Only the largest bodies of the wood are used, after being separated from the knots.

French Rage for Orders.

To the institution of orders, medals and diplomas in France there is no limit. The latest is diplomas for washerwomen. The washerwomen, to be sure, occupy a conspicuous position on the Seine and have played an important part in the life of Paris, especially in revolutionary periods. They are nearly as formidable as the market women. The government has established this new order and awarded twelve medals. The important duty of distributing the diplomas to the prize washerwomen is discharged by the ministry of commerce.

Equality Divided.

During the civil war the law school at Cambridge was presided over by Profs. Parsons, Parker and Washburn. They were divided in their political views, and each did his best to maintain his opinion. Prof. Parker was asked one day: "How do you get along on politics at the law school?" "Nicely," he answered. "We are equally divided." "But how can that be?" continued the inquirer. "There are three of you?" "Easy enough," replied the professor. "Parsons writes on one side and I on the other, and Washburn—he speaks on one side and votes on the other."

L. T. Travis, Agent Southern R. R., Selma, Ga., writes. "I cannot say too much in praise of One Minute Cough Cure. In my case it worked like a charm. The only harmless remedy that gives immediate results. Cures coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis, and all throat and lung troubles.

Petroleum for Paints.

Monsieur Salome, a French artist mixes his colors with pertoleum instead of turpentine and drying oil, and he thinks he has made an improvement. The colors are first ground in oil, and then rendered fluid with petroleum.

The Antiquity of Beds.

Beds were unknown among the ancients, who slept on the floor or on a divan covered with skins. It was in the middle ages that beds first became common, being made of rushes, leather or straw. It is supposed that feather beds were known to the Romans, since men are reviled by one of the Latin poets for their luxury in sleeping upon "feathers." Heliogobalus, the most effeminate of the Roman emperors, possessed an air cushion and an air mattress as early as A. D. 210. In England the better classes began to use feather beds for the first time during the reign of Henry VIII., and in certain districts of Holland and Germany bedsteads are still fitted as they were then, with two feather beds; upon one the sleeper lies, the other being used for covering. The Russian peasant places his bed on the top of the oven for the sake of the warmth given out by the fire.—Philadelphia Times.

Watch the Rush for Fire Extinguishers.

In a wholesale liquor store in New York city a fire started the other day in some alcohol which had been spilled on the floor. Within a few moments the blaze had assumed really serious proportions, and the water that was poured on it only seemed to augment it. A quick-witted employe seized some pint bottles of champagne and hurled them into the flames one after the other, as one would use hand grenades. By the time the tenth one had exploded the trick was done, and the fire engines which arrived then had no work to do. The carbonic acid gas in the champagne had killed the flames.

Cows Who Wear Glasses.

Cattle with spectacles are to be seen on the Russian steppes. The steppes are covered with snow more than six months of the year. The cows subsist on the tufts of grass which crop above the snow, and the rays of the sun on the snow are so dazzling as to cause blindness. To obviate this calamity it occurred to a kind-hearted man to protect the cows' eyes in the same way as those of human beings, and he manufactured smoke-colored spectacles, which could be safely worn by cattle. These spectacles were a great success, and are now worn by 40,000 cattle, who no longer suffer from the snow blindness which once caused such suffering among them.—Collier's Weekly.

Its One Soldier Left Behind.

When Southend, an Essex village in England came to send off to the war its quota of reservists, only one man for the reserve could be found. But a big and excited crowd having assembled at the station, the one man reserve was carried shoulder high onto the platform. Then the band played. As the train was starting the musicians struck up the plaintive farewell air, "Auld Lang Syne," and handkerchiefs were waved and the air rang with the deafening cries of "Goodby!" and "God bless you!" The train at last disappeared outside the station. Then, lo! the reservist to whom they had shrieked farewell was standing on the platform. He had been left behind.

Tallow Candles Medicine.

In France the peasantry still stick to medicines calculated to turn the average doctor's hair gray with horror. Wine is an ingredient of every prescription. In fever cases it always is the predominant one. The French peasant's faith in fermented grape juice is truly beautiful. If his children are stricken with the measles he gives them wine, well sweetened with honey and highly spiced with pepper. For a severe cold he administers a quart of red wine and a melted tallow candle mixed. For scarlet or brain fever he gives eggs, white wine and soot well beaten together.

His Terms Were Accepted.

Gen. Joubert, when he was in New York city a few years ago as the guest of Henry George, told with modesty of his negotiations with the British at Majuba hill, and his eyes sparkled as he recited his reply to the British commander in chief. "It does not compare with these," said the British general, pointing to the decorations on his breast, "to accede to your terms." To which said Joubert, pointing to his riflemen: "And it does not compare with those to offer any others."

Railway for the Philippines.

A 25-mile railway for the Philippines was recently packed in the hold of a steamship at San Francisco. Everything needed for the railroad was sent except the ties, which will be obtained in the islands. It is said that the railway will be used to extend the thirty miles of railroad now controlled by the American troops.

Otter and Eel in Deadly Fight.

An interesting spectacle was seen the other day on the banks of the River Soar, England. A young otter and a huge eel were found in a deadly struggle. The otter evidently had caught the eel, which had retaliated by winding itself tightly around the former's neck. The fight lasted several minutes, the otter eventually freeing itself and making off with part of the eel, which it had bitten in two.

He Wanted His Presents Back.

"Our engagement is at an end. Leave my presence at once, sir, and forever," said the angry girl, stamping her foot.

"Oh, very well," answered the young man calmly. "I'll gladly leave your presence, but I shall take my presents with me."—Stray Stories.

Queer Devices for Use in Warfare.

Now while war is going on the prolific brain of the inventor is busy devising ways in which to speedily annihilate the enemy. One ingenious individual, an Englishman, suggests a mist or fog ball with which to envelop an antagonist in impenetrable darkness. The balls are easily broken spheres containing ammonia and acids, which, on escaping, create a very dense fog, wrapping everything near it in a haze until blown away by the wind! He argues that this would be a most efficacious method of preventing the Boers from aiming at English troops. Another proposes to blind the foe by firing into their midst bullets filled with pepper—thus doing a double good work, both disabling the enemy and increasing the consumption of our colonial produce.

How the Lover Felt.

Extract from a love story in a popular magazine: "His hand no sooner glued his eyes to hers, which were of a sweet violet color, than his heart began to beat with rapidity. Rousing himself with an effort, he possessed himself of her hand and apprised her of his affection, to which she responded in excellent French."

COPYRIGHT 1899 BY COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE

THE delights of an evening spent around a well-lighted reading table are not half understood. An illustrated magazine with its wealth of illustrations, its stories of adventure and love, its descriptions of travel which carry you to the remotest ends of the earth, and its instructive articles for young and old—these are the first requisites for your own enjoyment and the entertainment and proper education of your children.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seems to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal,

Both Together One Year for Only $1

In this way you secure your own home paper and an illustrated magazine at a price that is only about a fourth of what some of the illustrated magazines sell for. For three years The Cosmopolitan has undisputedly claimed that it reached the largest clientele possessed by any periodical, daily, weekly or monthly, in the world. It was The Cosmopolitan which sent Julian Hawthorne to India to let the world know the real horrors of famine and plague. It was The Cosmopolitan which established at its own cost a great Free Correspondence University which now has over 20,000 students on its rolls. It was The Cosmopolitan which offered a prize of $3,000 for the best horseless carriage and prizes for best plans for public baths, and best arrangement of sewer and pipe systems for cities. It was The Cosmopolitan which set the presidents of great schools and universities seriously discussing the defects of existing educational systems. It is The Cosmopolitan whose enterprise is always in the lead in advancing the world's civilization.

Last Days of John Ruskin.

Occasionally we get a little reminder that John Ruskin is still with us, although his working days are over. He now lives at Coniston, a beautiful place in Lancashire, England, where he has decided to spend the remainder of his days, interesting himself in his books, pictures and music. It is said that of late the great philosopher has become strangely silent and uncommunicative, and only on special occasions will he allow his friends to see him. He is now very old and infirm so much so, in fact, that he can no longer attend to his garden, which pastime was formerly one of his greatest delights. John Ruskin, however, has always lived the life of a recluse, more or less, somewhat in the same manner that Thomas Carlyle was wont to do. Therefore one is hardly surprised at hearing that he now rests in seclusion after working for over half a century.

Lake Chelan's Upheaval.

Lake Chelan, in the state of Washington, just east of the Cascade range of mountains, was recently the scene of a strange disturbance. Without warning, the water in the center of the lake, which is some forty miles long and three or four broad, rose to a height of fifteen feet. Immense waves rolled upon the shores, and a large creek emptying into the lake ran dry for three hours. There is an Indian tradition of a volcanic crater having once existed in the neighborhood of the lake.

Fire was discovered in the Jennings restaurant building last Sunday about 11:30 a. m. The fire bell soon called the fire laddies and a big crowd of people to the scene, and the fire was extinguished before much damage was done. The fire started in the ceiling through which a ventilator passed. There was much apprehension for a time that the fire would get a good start and take the entire row, but by cutting into the ceiling the fire was reached and soon extinguished, the damage reaching only $35 or $80—covered by insurance.

At 6 o'clock on New Years day, Rev G M Gates pronounced the words which united Benjamin F Dare and Mabel Ward, in the holy bonds of matrimony. The interesting ceremony was performed at the home of the bride's father, some sixty guests being present. The bridesmaid was Miss Lizzie Dare, sister of the groom, and the groomsman, Mr Cal Hansen. The Argus extends to Mr and Mrs Dare its heartiest congratulations, and with their numerous other friends, wish for them a long, happy, and prosperous life together.

One evening last week a very peculiar accident occured at the W A Veits' farm north of town. A kerosene lamp sitting on a table was about to explode, when Clayton Veits, a 14 year old boy, picked it up and threw it out of the door. Just after leaving the boy's hands the lamp exploded, throwing blazing oil all over the head of a horse that was standing just in front of the door. Wild with fright, the horse ran to the barn followed by Clayton, who wrapped sacks around the animal's head until the flames were extinguished. The horse was badly burned, and lost a part of its ears, but it is a wonder the barn was not burned to the ground.—Humboldt Standard.

It cures coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis, pneumonia, grippe, and throat and lung troubles. Its early use prevents consumption. It is the only harmless remedy that gives immediate results.

An exchange says next year we may expect to read something like the following in the daily papers: "About 10 o'clock this morning a horseless wagon loaded with cowless milk collided with a brainless rider on a chainless wheel. The luckless wheelman was badly injured and being homeless was taken in a horseless cab to the home of the friendless, where his death was painless in an hour or less."

There is surely some retaliatory measure that can lessen the complacency of these Canadians over their "smartness."

"In 1896 a mining party of thirty men started from Chicago for the Northwest territory of Canida, lured thither by tales of a region where the quartz assayed 280 ounces of gold to the ton. This El Dorado proved to be a myth, and after harrowing experiences of starvation, sickness and disillusionment, the survivors are said to be trying to beat their way back to the happy shores of Lake Michigan, where the worst that can happen to one is to be where one can eke out a living in winter time by the healthful and soothing occupation of shoveling snow, which is enough arctic experience for any reasonable individual.

An actress stopped the play recently in a New York theater to allow the conversation in one of the boxes to go on. It was a stern rebuke, but was it undeserved? "Nothing in all my career," said Madame Marchesi, the great Paris music teacher, "has annoyed me more than chatter during my singing." Once when she was singing at the German ambassador's, and the noise had reached its height, she suddenly ceased. The host rushed up. "I wish to be listened to," she said in clear tones, and silence followed. It is doubtful if any of those who had thus trespassed on the artist's rights and on the enjoyment of the other guests, ever repeated the offense.

It is proposed to establish in connection with the Chicago public school system a two years' course in domestic science for girls, to provide for all in the seventh and eighth grades a thorough study of domestic economy, including not merely cooking, but buying hearty and economical foods, arranging them neatly on the table, arranging bills of fare that shall be both cheap and appetizing. The entire care of the house is also to be included in the work, which by its most ardent advocates is known as "home-making." It is advocated from two standpoints, the pedagogical and the sociological. From the first it is considered as a manual training for girls, which shall do for them all that the shop work does for the boys; from the second it is considered a necessary step in the improvement of the living conditions of the masses. For these reasons it has the support of many prominent persons of both classes, and has by them been brought to the attention of the board of education.

Rob Cleverdale's Adventure.

By Seward W. Hopkins.

Copyrighted, 1898, by Robert Bonner's Sons.

CHAPTER V.—(Continued.)

As Rob, dressed in his picturesque Spanish costume, stood on the deck, he thought he had never seen so many villainous-looking men. They would propel the large flat boats to the schooner's side, make them fast and jump aboard. Then the black boatmen and the crew of the "Black Cat" would be busy for a time in transferring from the hold of the schooner to the boats the packages and cases and casks of the contraband cargo. Captain Torrevo was here, there and everywhere, giving loud commands in a language that Rob did not understand, and which would scarcely be understood by any one whose tongue was limited to the precise language of any one country.

Captain Torrevo passed Rob several times without paying him any attention. What was Rob's great surprise, then, when the captain of the "Black Cat" suddenly turned on him with a frightful oath and struck him with a rope's end.

"Will you do nothing?" roared Captain Torrevo, in what appeared a most frightful rage. "Will you stand there and me trying to get unloaded? Get to work there, or I'll kick you into the water!"

Rob was thunderstruck and terribly frightened.

"I'll do anything!" he cried. "Don't strike me! Tell me what you want me to do."

"Get into that boat. Do your share of the work! Help carry the stuff to the cave!"

As Rob, without trying to soften the terrific wrath of his seemingly cruel master, turned to obey, he saw, standing on the shore, a large, black horse. Upon this horse was seated a man of apparently fifty-five years of age. This man was tall, and had a heavy beard.

"GET ON WITH YOU!"

He was dressed in a well-fitting riding suit, with high boots. There was a look of masterful cruelty about him that made Rob shiver.

Rob noticed that the blacks, and the crew of the "Black Cat" as well, shot glances of fear toward the calm and powerful-looking man on horseback. Poor Rob did not know what to do first. All around him were groaning and chattering blacks, and the cruel, sharp words of Torrevo were ringing in his ears.

"Take it! Take it!" said one of the laborers to him, holding out a package. Rob tried to take it from the fellow and put it with others, as he saw the men around him doing, but it was too heavy. He let it fall, and there was the sound of breaking glass. Immediately the captain of the "Black Cat" let out a shrill yell of rage and leaped into the boat. He gave Rob a cut across the shoulders and even on his face with the rope's end he carried. Rob cried out with pain, but Torrevo cursed and struck him again.

"Cub! Good for nothing!" he screamed, seemingly beside himself with rage. "Will you break the captain's bottles? Take that for your clumsiness!"

The schooner was near enough to shore for the man on horseback to hear and see what was going on. He turned a calm, impassive face toward the boat.

"It's that good-for-nothing nephew of mine, Senor Captain," sang out Torrevo. "He would go on a voyage with me, and what good is he, except to steal and he and break things? Break him! Come, take this and see if you can break it!"

Rob tremblingly took the package from the dark hands that held it out to him, and succeeded in getting it in place without a mishap.

In this way, with much roaring and cursing by Torrevo, the boat was loaded, and then started toward the shore. The tall man on the horse now got down on the ground, and stood with a heavy whip in his hand and a malevolent expression on his face. This man was evidently an Englishman or an American. Rob had thought the dark, evil faces on the "Black Cat" dreadful to look at, but there was something so utterly cruel in this man's face that he seemed to make the others gentle by comparison.

"Hurry up, there!" he shouted in English, flourishing his whip. "We are being watched every day now. There may be soldiers here any minute. Get the stuff ashore in a hurry."

The men strained harder, and soon the flat nose of the boat was shoved up on the sand. The men leaped out, each one giving a quick look at the master, as if expecting every moment a cut with the heavy whip.

"Hey, Torrevo, who is this?" he shouted, pointing to Rob.

"That fool of a nephew of mine," shouted back the captain of the "Black Cat." "He is no good, but he would make a trip with me. Whip him if he is lazy."

Rob remembered what Torrevo had said about his appearance as the nephew of the captain of "El Gato Negro," and wondered if he, as Rob Cleverdale, had any more to fear than he was getting as Torrevo's nephew. It seemed to be the object of Torrevo to make him out as stupid and worthless as possible, and to give the Englishman the impression that he hated his nephew.

The men on the boat now began to pick up their burdens, and poor Rob, not one-fifth as strong as one of these fellows, did the same. He unfortunately picked up a package that was too heavy for him, and staggered with it right before the tall, Satanic individual whom all so palpably feared.

In an instant there was a swish, and the Englishman's whip came down on Rob's shoulders.

"Get on with you!" he said. "If you can't do better than that, what good are you?"

Rob, not knowing but an answer would bring him another blow, shut his teeth hard and took up a smaller package. With this, which he could just carry, he fell into line.

There was now a steady line of men going from the shore, where two boats were unloading, over a ridge some few hundred feet off, up to which there was a constant rise. They disappeared over this ridge, and Rob wondered where they took the contraband goods. But he was soon to find out. As part of the endless procession, with dark, shining bodies, before him, and others coming after him, he walked up the slope, and at the summit of the ridge found that there was a steep descent on the other side. And down this there was a swampy place, toward which the men went. They did not go into the swamp, however. Turning one side, they continued till they reached a spot where the side of the hill was almost straight. Here there was a small opening, almost hidden by a growth of trees and bushes. These were being held aside by men while the burden carriers went into the opening. To accomplish this they were compelled to put the burden they carried on the ground, roll or push it in, and then get down on their knees and crawl in themselves. Rob did just as he had seen the others do, and when he again stood upright he found himself in a great cave, almost totally dark, with the men moving like spectres of darkness here and there. After a few minutes he managed to see a little, and then found that the cave he was in was only one of a series of vaulted caverns, leading back from the ridge toward, and perhaps under, the water of the bay. There was a constant slope downward, and Rob judged that the bottom of the cave was at least fifty feet below the river bed. From one of the caverns men now came with torches, and Rob saw that this strange place was a vast storehouse of smuggled goods. Bales of tobacco lined one rock room. Bales of silk and cloth filled another. Here there were casks of brandy and in another place a quantity of liquor in bottles. There was wealth represented there—stolen wealth—for, even if the smugglers had bought the goods honestly, they were stealing it into the country, which was in itself dishonest. And if they would do this, no doubt they would steal it, and Rob did not doubt that the crew of the "Black Cat" were pirates as well as smugglers.

CHAPTER VI.

He felt a thrill of apprehension as he saw the black shadows cast by the blazing torches and heard the grumbling tones of the moving men in that grewsome place. Oh! What hiding places there were among these piles of bales or in those black recesses of rock, where he could hear the constant trickling of water from above!

Shivering, he went the whole length of the place, deposited his burden, and followed the line of spectres out again.

What glad sigh of relief escaped him as he breathed once more the fresh air outside. But there was no time to stop to enjoy it. The procession moved on, and Rob, with trembling limbs and perspiring brow, went back for another load. The boats had brought some casks from the schooner by this time, and these were to be taken into the cave.

It was hard work, and when Rob saw Torrevo standing on shore by the side of the Englishman, his heart gave a bound of fear. What was the mystery of the hatred felt by these men toward himself? He could not understand it. But it seemed certain that they were bent on his destruction; or, perhaps, he was to be henceforth a slave. Perhaps all these dark fellows were slaves. Rob did not know whether there were any slaves in South America now, but these men were slaves in reality, even if they were not such in name. And what would be his own fate?

Again he fell to work with the others, but could not resist sending a look of appeal into the eyes of Torrevo. The captain of the "Black Cat" saw this, and saw also that at the same time the tall Englishman was looking at the boy.

"Curse you!" shouted Torrevo. "I will kill you yet!"

He struck him fiercely, and poor Rob, feeling now certain that the friendship Torrevo had shown on board the schooner was assumed, fell to work with a heart that was like a lump of lead in his bosom.

He helped roll a heavy keg to the opening, and was almost run down by it as it sped downward from the top of the ridge. A great, ugly fellow, half Indian and half negro, caught him in a powerful grasp and swung him out of the way to safety.

"Oh, thank you!" gasped poor Rob.

"Uh! No t'ank!" said the black fellow, with a hideous grin. "Me no want to see kill. Capitang Elvin him kill soon 'nuff."

"Captain Elvin! Is that the man's name?"

"Ho! Yes. Him Capitang Elvin. Him great man. Him chief all de gangs. Him kill you."

"Why does he want to kill me?" asked Rob.

"Im! Me not know. Look out, dat all."

Again Rob went into the dark caverns, doing his best toward his share of the work. But it was an astonishing fact that as soon as they were out of sight over the ridge, no one cared whether he did any work or not. In fact, in the work of placing the casks, barrels and kegs, he was decidedly in the way of the experienced men, and they shoved him aside.

While doing nothing he looked around the caverns, but was sure to follow the men of his gang out when they returned for another load.

Four or five trips he made into the caverns in this way, winning nothing but blows and kicks and curses from Torrevo, no matter how hard he worked.

Paving Stones and Revolutions.

The reasons why another reign of terror was not recently inaugurated in France is thus stated by the Chicago Times-Herald: "One hundred—fifty—twenty-five years ago these things would have set the mobs going. They would be throwing paving stones at one another." Paving stones? Ah, there is the secret of the whole matter. The mobs have been robbed of their ammunition. The people stand ready to hoist the red flag and run riot. But what are the bare hands against races and muskets? The rioter stoops to pick up a paving stone, and his fingers scratch vainly along the smooth surface of the asphalt with which most of the streets of Paris are now paved. Ciel! He is helpless! He straightens up and stares vaguely about him for a moment, and then some commissary of police runs him in. Men and women follow, shouting and shaking their fists, but there are no paving stones for them to hurl. So the Republic continues to stand. It is wonderful! A little bit of asphalt prevents the killing of people by the scores, and history is robbed of whole chapters of bloody details. Vive le tar barrel!"

Evening the Honors Up.

It was at President Hadley's reception that the following bit of conversation was overheard: Dr. Dwight, turning to a prominent young alumnus of Yale, after greeting him with "Hello, classmate," said something about his own very recent return from the country, adding afterward: "By the way, I owe one of the New Haven newspapers a grudge. It printed an item about me some time ago to this effect: 'Ex-President Theodore Dwight has just returned from his summer home at Norfolk.' Now, my name is Timothy, and my summer home is at Litchfield." "Well, that is one of the things, at all events that can be very easily rectified, doctor," said the alumnus pleasantly. "Yes," replied the doctor, with a droll smile, "they might say, and I think it would be satisfactory to me, that Prof. Alfred Hadley has just been elected president of an institution" at Waterbury."—New Haven Register.

Dangerous Friction.

An insurance adjuster was sent to a Massachusetts town to adjust a loss on a building that had been burned.

"How did the fire start?" asked an acquaintance who met him on his homeward trip.

"I couldn't say certainly, and nobody seemed able to tell," said the adjuster, "but it struck me that it might have been the result of friction."

"What do you mean by that?" asked his friend.

"Well," said the insurance man, gravely, "friction sometimes comes from rubbing a ten-thousand-dollar policy on a five-thousand-dollar building."

A Quaker Wedding.

The Elk City (Kan.) Enterprise describes a Quaker wedding which took place in that city the other day. The bridal couple came into the meeting-house and took their seats all alone on the rostrum, while 200 people sat silently on the benches. After a long wait, during which not a sound was uttered, the groom arose and taking the bride by the hand, said: "Friends, in the presence of God and before this assembly I take Marjette Stevens to be my wife, promising with divine assistance to be unto her a faithful husband until death shall separate us." Then the bride in like manner promised to be to him a loving and faithful wife, and the ceremony was over.

DON'T LIKE THE CHANGE TO ROBERTS

Have Resolved to Redeem Themselves at Next Battle and Help to Vindicate Their Commander-in-Chief.

—Face Strong Position.

A London, December 28, dispatch says: The Morning Post has received the following from Mr. Churchill, under date of December 26, telegraphed from Chieveley camp, where he has arrived:

"All ranks have complete confidence in Sir Redvers Buller, and there is a stern determination to succeed next time at all costs. A painful impression was caused by the announcement of the change of commander-in-chief, and the soldiers here are resolved to vindicate their trusted leader.

"The situation, nevertheless, is difficult, the Boer position being one of extraordinary strength, with high hills, lined tier on tier with trenches and galleries, rising from an almost unfordable river and with a smooth plain in front.

"The enemy have all the ranges marked, and many powerful guns dominate the various points of the river, while the drifts are commanded by converging musketry fire from probably 12,000 Boers. There are sixteen miles of wild, broken country before reaching Ladysmith, which demands early relief."

The Boer trench work is so good that it enables the enemy to hold a long line with very few men, and to travel great distances under perfect cover, so as to reinforce any point attacked.

Dispatches from Modder river represent Dutch disaffection in Griqualand West as growing very serious. In some towns the entire Dutch population has joined the Boers.

Anxiety regarding the attitude of the colonial Dutch is steadily growing. They make no effort to conceal their sympathy with the two republics, and the only question now is whether, if the military situation is not changed, they will keep from open rebellion.

FLEE TO THE HILLS.

Complete Rout of Insurgents Near Montalban.

Colonel Lockett, with a force of 2,500 including artillery, says a Manila dispatch of the 27th, attacked a strong force of insurgents in the mountains near Montalban, about five miles northeast of San Mateo. The enemy was completely routed, the Americans pursuing them through the hills, amid which they fled in every direction.

Four Americans were wounded. The Filipino loss was large, resulting from a heavy infantry and artillery fire for three hours into the trenches.

It is supposed the insurgents were those who were driven out of San Mateo on the day General Lawton was killed. They numbered probably a thousand.

A dozen lines of insurgent trenches covered the steep trail through the hills and likewise the valley below, along which the Americans passed.

The main attacking party consisted of the Forty-sixth volunteer infantry, a troop of cavalry and artillery, Colonel Lockett commanding. The rest of the troops separated at different points in an endeavor to carry out Colonel Lockett's plans of throwing his lines around the enemy and thus cutting off retreat. The nature of the country made it impracticable to execute this movement successfully.

SHOCK WAS MOST SEVERE

Earthquake Shock Leaves Desolation behind It

San Jacinto, Cal., is a scene of desolation. People are beginning to recover from the terror inspired by the earthquake which centered there on Christmas morning, and destroyed every building in the town, and definite estimates of the damage wrought can now be made.

At the Saboba Indian reservation a number of squaws had huddled together in an old adobe building and were sleeping off the effects of liquor imbibed at a dance the night before. The heavy walls fell in upon them. Six were killed outright and two died later while a score more are badly injured.

Main street presents a sad appearance. Two-story brick walls were razed to the level of the ground, with thousands of dollars worth of merchandise buried beneath. There is not a business house in town but has suffered. Electric wires are down and some of the power houses have fallen in. The walls of the county hospital, erected recently at a cost of $10,000, are badly damaged.

STRONG PRESSURE USED

Violators of Internal Revenue Law Appeal For Pardon.

An application for the pardon of Joseph Wilkins and Howard Butler, now serving terms in the Moyamensing prison, Philadelphia, for violating the oleomargerine laws, has been made to President McKinley and the attorney general now has it under consideration. All the personal and political pressure wielded by the oleomargerine interests of the west is being used in behalf of the convicted men. For three years the cases were stubbornly contested in the courts. Wilkins and Butler were apprehended by internal revenue agents in the act of removing stamps and other marks from over one hundred packages of oleomargerine in warehouses on the water front in Philadelphia.

BURIED BY A SNOWSLIDE

Accident on the White Pass and Yukon Railroad.

News of a big snowslide on the White Pass and Yukon railroad was brought to Victoria, B. C., by the steamer Tees. A rotary and two engines were buried by the side and after they were shoveled out the rotary ran into a rock, knocking out fourteen of its twenty knives. The train which was behind the snow-bucking outfit was not damaged.

P. Oregon, one of those who endeavored to walk to Skaguay from the snow bound train, was found unconscious with his face and hands frozen. The operator at Glacier reported to Skaguay that the track there was covered for a distance of 350 feet with snow from five to twenty feet deep. Telegraph wires beyond Glacier are down.

GRIGGS TO DECIDE

FORMAL COMPLAINT IS ALREADY FILED

Protest of Shippers Sent to Attorney General—Interstate Commerce Commission Acts in Their Behalf, but Makes no Recommendation.

At Washington Friday the interstate commerce commission, in compliance with the request of the freight shippers and representatives of the commercial interests, transmitted to Attorney General Griggs a transcript of the evidence taken at the hearing last week respecting the new classification of freight made by the official classification committee. The proposed classification is to be made effective on January 1 by all railroads using the official classification. These include more than sixty lines east of the Mississippi and north of the Ohio and Potomac rivers. The petition of the shippers was that the commission should transmit the evidence taken before it to the attorney general, with a recommendation that he institute legal proceedings, by injunction or otherwise, to restrain the railroads from putting the new classification into effect.

To the request of the shippers the commission in part complies. The evidence and arguments are transmitted to the attorney general, but without recommendation.

The letter of transmittal is long, the commission desiring to place the case fairly before the attorney general. It reviews the proceedings which led up to the hearing, the taking of testimony, and the receipt of the protests.

Attorney General Griggs, who is ill, has given no intimation yet as to what action, if any, he may take in the premises. Necessarily he will have to review the testimony before he can reach an intelligent conclusion. In any event, it is said, it will be several days before the matter can be determined.

FIVE MEN TO BE GARROTED

Supreme Court of Porto Rico Inflicts Death Penalty.

The supreme court of Porto Rico, at Ponce, has sentenced five men to be garroted. In October, 1898, twenty men, heavily armed with guns and machetes, robbed a house at Yauco, province of Ponce, and murdered a man named Prudencio Mendez. They also danced around the body with his daughters. Two were under compulsion. Seven of the men were caught, but subsequently one of the prisoners escaped and one died in jail.

At Chillicothe, Mo., a reporter has found a blood-smeared ax in the ruins of the farm house where William O. Thomas and his three children were cremated last Sunday. There appears no room for doubt that Thomas murdered his children and then set fire to the house, afterwards killing himself and falling into the flames. The coroner's inquest disclosed no new intelligence. The bodies were burned beyond recognition.

From a thoroughly reliable source it is reported that the congressman is suffering from paresis.

Blaze at Tremont, Neb., Causes a Loss of Six Thousand.

A fire which started in the rear of D. Gannon's grocery store on Main street at Fremont, caused considerable damage, while the dry goods store of Thad Quinn, directly north of the building, suffered greatly from smoke which poured in the store in clouds. The fire alarm was sounded and the department managed to keep the blaze confined to its starting place and eventually quench it. The fire was directly over a large oil tank in the basement and for a time fear was felt that an explosion might result. Mr. Gannon's damage will be about $1,000, while Mr. Quinn reports that his damage may reach as high as $5,000.

Kruger Believes Great Britain Will Soon Sue for Peace.

Winston Churchill, on arriving at Durban, Natal, after his escape from the Boers, received a tremendous ovation. He says that from conversations with the Transvaal executive at Pretoria he learned that the Boers, began the war with trepidation, but that President Kruger is now confident that Great Britain will soon sue for peace. In the highest Transvaal circles, Mr. Churchill asserts, there is serious talk of compromise, by which Great Britain would cede the territory now occupied by the armies of the two republics, pay an indemnity of 20,000,000 pounds ($100,000,000), and acknowledge the complete independence of the Transvaal.

It Cost Him His Life.

A. J. Bayles, while shucking corn on his farm near McKinley, says a Guthrie, Okl., dispatch, was shot and killed by Charles Thomas, aged fifty years. Bayles, who was about sixty-five years old, married Thomas' twelve-year-old daughter last summer against the father's wishes. Family quarrels have been frequent since. Thomas approached Bayles with leveled Winchester and remarking that they had had trouble enough fired. Thomas escaped to Guthrie, where he was arrested.

Wants Railroads Restrained.

Secretary E. P. Wilson of the national manufacturers' association, at Cincinnati, says that a petition has been drawn up to the United States attorney general asking that the railroads be restrained from raising their freight rates on January 1, on the ground that this proposed advance will violate the Sheridan anti-trust law. This is the result of the conference between shippers and the interstate commerce commission at Washington on the 20 and 21 inst.

Dead in a Rocking Chair.

Mary Beck, aged forty-two, of Ellinwood, Kan., was found by one of her four children dead in her rocking chair, her throat cut and her forehead bruised. One of the children said he had heard his mother say she had killed someone and would kill herself. Her husband has been in the insane asylum for two years, and Mrs. Beck supported her family by following the plow during the day and performing her household duties at night.

Cat's Bite Causes Death.

Abram I. Lefevre, a farmer of Greenland, Pa., aged forty-five years, died from hydrophobia. He was bitten on the hand by a cat about four months ago, but did not feel any effects from the wound until last Saturday, when his arm became stiff. The following Sunday he became violently ill and it was necessary to keep him under the influence of opiates.

Discharges Receivers.

At St. Paul, Minn., Judge Sanborn in the United States circuit court filed an order discharging the receivers of the Northern Pacific railway company. The property and affairs are turned over to the stockholders in the reorganized company, which succeeds the old corporation and bid in its holdings.

A St. Ettiene dispatch says: The coal mine strikers marched in procession to several of the mines where practical work is proceeding, but dragoons stationed at the pit heads protected the workers and no disorder has occurred. The strike has spread to the mines of Rive de Gier, a town in Loire, twelve and one-half miles by rail from St. Ettiene.

MEET WITH A CRASH

Rear End Collision on the Union Pacific.

FLYER STRIKES A FREIGHT TRAIN

One Instantly Killed and Many Injured—Dead Victim Burned to a Crisp in Express Car—Conductor of Train Crazed by the Accident.

The Cheyenne flyer on the Union Pacific railroad crashed into the Boulder Valley train at Brighton, Colo., Friday morning. One man was killed and fourteen person were injured as far as known, as follows:

Killed:

Winfield Randleman, express messenger, Denver, body burned to crisp.

Passengers injured:

H. S. Hooker, Olin, Ia., head badly cut.

Mrs. Margaret Young, Marsfield, Mo., forehead cut.

S. G. Hurst, banker, Brighton, badly cut and bruised.

E. V. Davis, traveling salesman, Denver, head badly cut, back injured, ribs broken.

W. G. Tompkins, traveling salesman for Bradley, Alderson & Co., Kansas City, head badly cut, back injured.

C. H. Payne, Laramie, Wyo., head badly cut, right hand smashed.

Mrs. McCanna, Laramie, bruised.

Ered Laws, brakeman, Denver, right leg cut off.

Michael Regan, section foreman, Denver, head badly cut.

Thomas McGovern, section foreman, Denver, head badly cut.

John Kennedy, Denver, badly cut and bruised.

John Carrington, Denver, head cut.

Frank Sloan, Denver, cut and bruised.

Jerry Flannery, Denver, back hurt.

Conductor McAllister of the Boulder Valley train was crazed by the accident. He attempted to jump into the burning wreckage and had to be forcibly restrained.

The Boulder Valley train left Denver a little late Friday morning, and, as usual, stopped at Brighton, which is the junction for the Boulder Valley line from the main line to Cheyenne. It was here that Banker Hurst of Brighton got on the train just before the collision. The Cheyenne flyer, Union Pacific train No. 3, also left Denver late and in coming into Brighton in the early morning dusk ran into the rear end of the Boulder train, telescoping two or three of the cars and derailing the passenger locomotive. The section gangs from the Denver yards and half a dozen passengers occupied the Boulder train. Two cars on the flyer were burned.

Mrs. Young was in the chair car with six children. None of the children were hurt.

Superintendent Deuel went out on a special train from Denver with Drs. Lemon and Taylor. They also took a lot of stretchers and other supplies. They found all the wounded at the Brighton hotel, being cared for by the citizens. The Brighton hose company was pouring water on the blazing baggage car and had discovered the remains of the dead baggageman.

Superintendent Deuel says he cannot understand why the Boulder train was not on the sidetrack. It had twenty minutes to clear the Cheyenne flyer. The Boulder train consisted of four loaded freight cars and a heavy caboose. Engine No. 815, the big machine hauling the flyer, lies out on the prairie, a total wreck, an evidence of how hard the crash was.

The wounded were brought to Denver about noon and taken to hospitals.

HAVE VIOLATED STATE LAW

Action Begun Against Mississippi Insurance Companies.

Attorney General Nash has created consternation at Jackson, Miss., by filing a bill of information in the Hinds county circuit court declaring that all insurance companies doing business in the state and acknowledging allegiance to the southeastern tariff association have violated the state law regarding trust laws and combines. He asks that their franchises and charters be cancelled and that the companies be prevented from transacting further business in Mississippi. It is estimated that fully $25,000,000 worth of policies are carried by the thirty-one companies named in the bill of information.

Live Stock Perishes in Fire.

At Hastings, J. A. Campbell lost a barn with all its contents, seven horses and five cows, by fire. When discovered the flames had gained such headway that it was impossible to rescue any of the animals. The loss will run over over $1,000, partially covered by a policy for $500. The origin of the fire is not known.

Excitement at Jackson.

Great excitement prevails at Jackson over the discovery of coal. Interested parties are now sinking shafts, and it is generally believed coal in paying quantities has been found.

The dead body of Gus Lenz, a German bachelor farmer living southwest of Eustis, was found in the roadside nine miles southwest. From circumstances which came to light it was evident he had been dragged to death by a runaway team.

Believed to be Insane.

His Leg Broken.

At Norfolk, Charles Kierchoff had a leg broken by getting it caught in a wheel while trying to throw a belt in the sugar factory.

BOERS TAKE ADVANTAGE

Are Not Idle While English Remain Inactive—Fortifying.

A dispatch from Pietermaritzburg dated December 30 says:

Every day reveals some new fact regarding the strength of the Boer position at Colenso. Thanks to the services of continental officers the character of the campaign has changed. We are no longer fighting a foe who relies upon guerilla tactics, but we have to deal with what is rapidly becoming a disciplined army, enjoying the advantages of knowing the country, and of selecting the scene of contest without the burdens of cumbersome commissariat.

The Boers have converted the hill near Colenso into fortresses of immense strength. Everywhere they have splendid trenches, many of them bomb proof. Tramway lines permit the shifting of guns with astonishing rapidity. The main positions are connected with the outlying positions by underground passages and the forts proper bristle with machine guns that command the approaches. Probably mines are laid.

One hears less nowadays about Boer shells not bursting. Observers of the Colenso fight say the Boer shell fire was very effective.

MARRIED A DIAMOND KING

Former Nebraska Girl Tells of Life in the Transvaal.

A Deadwood, S. D., December 30 dispatch says: The parents of Miss Celia Bueter, who is one of Deadwood's girls, have received a letter from the young lady dated at Durban, Natal, in which she states that she has married a diamond king of Johannesburg, South Africa, named W. J. Rees. The letter stated that the writer and her husband had fled with other people from Johannesburg and had taken up their home at Durban. A part of the letter reads:

"We had intended to take a trip to India, but the war came on and we had to flee to this place, leaving all our household goods at Johannesburg, which is now only occupied by a few Dutch women and looting parties. We left a grand piano, worth $900, a few paintings, and odds and ends. Many people had to leave with only the clothing on their backs. The Dutch say that if they lose the day they will burn Johannesburg and blow the mines to atoms. It is all hub-bub and war here."

Mrs. Rees is an artist of considerable renown and is well known in the Black Hills. She was born and reared at Nebraska City, Neb.

MRS. EDDY WINS IN COURT

Judgment Rendered at Boston Against Mrs. Woodbury.

At Boston, Mrs. Josephine Woodbury was adjudged guilty of contempt of court by Judge Braley in the superior court in connection with the case brought against her by Mrs. Mary Eddy, head of the Christian Science church, for alleged criminal libel. Mrs. Woodbury was fined $50, which she paid. The alleged contempt consisted in making public through a Boston newspaper the substance of her declaration in the suit against Mrs. Eddy and in causing to be published certain statements about the case or in submitting to interviews wherein she made certain statements, knowing they would be published.

Blind Man Discharged.

At Baltimore, Md., Franklin B. Livingstone, the blind man, who late on Christmas night strangled his wife, Dora Livingston, and on the following day paid a man a dollar to lead him to the police station, was discharged from custody by Judge Stockbridge. The evidence before the coroner's jury showed that Livingstone had been attacked in the middle of the night by his wife and that he choked her to death to save his own life.

Killed By a Train.

The Union Pacific east bound fast train ran into a team that was attempting to cross the track at Shelton, Neb., killing the owner, Wm. Lippincott, and both horses. It appears Lippincott figured on having enough time to cross. A coroner's jury rendered a verdict holding the railroad guilty of gross negligence in not having a flagman at the crossing.

Cashier Surrenders.

Lewis E. Goldsmith, assistant cashier of the Port Jervis National bank of Port Jervis, N. Y., who is alleged to have robbed that institution of $54,000 on November 14, last, and also to have falsified the bank's books, surrendered himself. Goldsmith left Port Jervis four days before a warrant was issued for his arrest. He waived examination and was held in $10,000 bail.

Passenger Engines Collide.

A Colorado Midland passenger train, north bound, and a Santa Fe freight train had a head-end collision two miles south of Palmer Lake, Colo., Fireman Edgar Jones of the Santa Fe being killed and Engineers Leavitt and Turk being seriously hurt. No passengers were hurt. The cause of the collision is not yet known.

Alcohol for Automobiles.

The majority of motor cars are now driven by petroleum, but a French engineer recommends the use of alcohol instead, and motors are being altered so as to consume it. There is no fear of explosion with alcohol, and it is said to be less costly than petroleum.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.

The residence of John P Price at Smartville was totally destroyed by fire Monday afternoon of this week. Nothing was saved but a trunk belonging to his daughter. The fire is supposed to have started from a defective flue, and the house was almost covered with flames before the fire was discovered. Mr Price and family were all away from home except one daughter. This is a sad loss to Mr P and his family and the sympathies of all go out to them. We understand that there was a small insurance on the property.—Tecumseh Journal.

Today G T Belding, who for twenty years has so acceptably filled the office of county Judge, turns the office over to his successor, F A Barton. Judge Belding has established a reputation as an honest, capable official, and his genial presence will be greatly missed at the old place, and it will require a great effort for Pawnee county people to get accustomed to its absence, but time will no doubt familarize us all to the change but it will not obliterate the many courtesies extended by the Judge. In whatever line of work he engages he will take with him the best wishes of the people of Pawnee county. His successor, Mr Barton, is no stranger to the people of the county, having been identified with the educational interests of the county for many years.

A dispatch from Manila under date of January 1 says:—Aguinaldo's wife, his sisters, three Filipino officers and eighteen other Filipinos surrendered to Major March at Bontoc today. The Filipinos gave up two Spanish and two American prisoners. The first movement of a general southern advance occurred this morning, when two battalions of the Thirty-ninth infantry landed and occupied Cabuyao, on the south side of Laguna de Bay. Two Americans were killed and four were wounded. Twenty-four of the enemy's dead were found in one house. One hundred and fifty prisoners and four six-pounder rapid fire guns were captured. The gunboat Laguna de Bay bombarded the town before the disembarkation of the troops from the Cascoes, which was made under the enemy's shrapnel fire. The enemy evacuated the place before the charging Americans, retreating to Santa Rosa, to which town they were pursued.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C. December 30, 1899. (Special Correspondence) Bryan having announced that he is coming east to make speeches, the people are preparing to make him explain the failure of his predictions as recorded in "The First Battle." He may think he is coming east to talk on the expansion question, but he will find that general interest is centered around the money issue, and that the "enemy's country" is thoroughly loaded with arguments and proofs. The smoke from the factory chimneys of the east will cause William to have a bad cough, and will bring tears to his eyes before he gets through.

One of the populist members from the west has denied the existence of prosperity, and asks why it is that so many people are advertising for work in New York City, if work is so plenty in the country. It would be just as sensible for him to ask why people in Omaha advertise for jobs during the season when the Nebraska farmers are unable to find hands to help gather the corn crop. Many homeless people congregate in the large cities and work at occasional jobs rather than to go to the country where work is plenty. In the meantime those who have places in the city are continually on the lookout for better ones, and the "work wanted" advertisements come largely from the latter class. Here in Washington there are probably more people out of work than there are jobless people in the whole state of Nebraska. Yet an advertisement for men to go out in the woods or down on the plantations to do hard work would not meet with a dozen responses. they are not looking for that kind of work. They have the town fever. This explains why people will be out of work in Omaha, while other people will be vainly hunting for workmen at Arlington, twenty miles away.

The Nebraska congressmen have received their garden seeds from the government, and are ready to send them out on requests being received from the people at home. One of the members states that all requests should get in by the 16th of January, as the supply will be exhausted after that date. This hint should be sufficient to hurry up those who want government garden seeds.

The selection of a candidate for the vice presidency is at present agitating the republicans congregated at Washington. Some time ago it was conceded that a New York man would be chosen, although it was also talked that a Nebraskan on the ticket would add strength in the western states. Since the failure of the New Yorkers to agree on a man there is a little increase in the Nebraska talk, and it is possible that the next vice president may come from west of the Missouri river. The fact that Nebraska has two senators to elect makes this all the more possible. While the electoral vote of our state may not be an important factor in the selection of a president, the possession of the two senatorships is all important, and the contest in Nebraska is sure to receive the utmost attention of both parties, no matter who is on the presidential ticket.

As a member of the committee on "Coinage, Weights and Measures," R D Sutherland has at last an opportunity to learn that very little silver was coined under free coinage and 16 to 1, while an immense amount has been coined since 1873. It is not likely, however, that he will admit of any such state of affairs when he comes back to Nebraska.

DR. ROLLANDS,

Lincoln's Famous Baptist Divine,

Will give his Popular Lecture,

"TANTALUS!"

(UNSATISFIED MAN,)

at the Opera House,

Friday Evening Jan. 5, 1900,

Commencing at 8 O'clock.

Fred St Peter, a stranger who has been stopping in this city for a month or two past and who was arrested a few weeks ago on the charge of making indecent exposure of his person in several parts of the city and given a ten days sentence in the county jail, was released Monday morning. He at once went to the north part of the city and again indulged in his old practices. Marshal Rohrs was notified and proceeded to hunt up the offender, and he was none too soon, for a crowd of indignant citizens were looking for him at the same time. The brute was taken to the city jail where he was held until evening and then turned out with the warning to leave the city at once. On his way to the Mo. Pac. depot he was met by a crowd of men who took him in charge, proceeded to divest him of part of his wearing apparel and applied a good coat of warm pine tar. After daubing his face and applying a goodly quantity to his hair and whiskers, he was turned loose and told to make rapid tracks out of town being threatened with worse punishment if he did not comply at once. He went, and about midnight was last seen at the railroad junction about two miles north of Auburn, where he boarded a freight train. His punishment was none too severe and neighboring towns should keep a sharp lookout for him and pass him along.—Auburn Herald.

His Wife Saved Him.

My wife's good advice saved my life writes F M Ross of Winfield, Tenn. for I had such a bad cough I could hardly breathe, I steadily grew worse under doctor's treatment, but my wife urged me to use Dr King's New Discovery for Consumption, which completely cured me." Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, La Grippe, Pneumonia, Asthma, Hay Fever and all maladies of Chest, Throat and Lungs are positively cured by this marvellous medicine. 50c. and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed. Trial bottles free at S G Wright's drug store.

A special to the State Journal from Humboldt, under date of Jan. 1, says: James H Leatherman, a young farmer, thirty-three years of age, died Sunday afternoon at the home of his father, B Leatherman, near this city. The cause of his death was typhoid fever, from which he has suffered the past month. He was a member of the Odd Fellows, which order will have charge of the funeral services on Tuesday at the Methodist church.

The deceased was a brother of our townsman, Frank Leatherman, who attended the funeral services.

Having a Great Run on Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Manager Martin, of the Pierson drug store, informs us that he is having a great run on Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He sells five bottles of that medicine to one of any other kind, and it gives great satisfaction. In these days of la grippe there is nothing like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to stop the cough, heal up the sore throat and lungs and give relief within a very short time. The sales are growing, and all who try it are pleased with its prompt action.—South Chicago Daily Calumet. For sale by S G Wright, Druggist.

Paul, son of Rev and Mrs J S W Dean died at the home of his parents last Wednesday after a short illness. Little Paul was but five years old when the Angel of Death came and bore him to the arms of him who said, "Suffer little children to come unto Me." Into the happy home where joy had dwelt, this great sorrow has come and the voice of the little fellow has been hushed forever as far as this world is concerned.—Falls City Journal.

It has been demonstrated repeatedly in every state in the Union and in many foreign countries that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a certain preventive and cure for croup. It has become the universal remedy for that disease. M V Fisher of Liberty, W Va., only repeats what has been said around the globe when he writes: "I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in my family for several years and always with perfect success. We believe that it is not only the best cough remedy, but that it is a sure cure for croup. It has saved the lives of our children a number of times." This remedy is for sale by S G Wright, Druggist.

What would have terminated in a serious conflagration was nipped early in the bud one evening last week at the residence of Mr and Mrs Granville Britton, sr. Some ashes were thrown along side the house by Mrs Britton early in the evening and later set fire to the building, and had just started a blaze when the smoke therefrom was detected and an investigation was made and the fire put out. Had the fire been left unnoticed a few moments longer the whole south side of the business portion of town most likely would have been burned.—Elk Creek Herald.

It is hoped every one knowing themselves indebted to the Argus will make an earnest effort to pay up their arrearages. Once in a while the people with whom the editor deals for various articles of necessity in the conduct of a newspaper, get a fool notion into their heads that the editor must pay for what he gets and then it is mighty unpleasant all around.

How to Raise Cain! the second lecture of the Epworth League lecture course will be given at the Opera House next Tuesday night, Jan. 16th, by Dr. C. N. Dawson of Omaha. No one can afford to miss hearing the Dr. on this new and fascinating lecture.

A special meeting of Lafayette W. R. C. was held on Wednesday afternoon for the annual inspection conducted by National Assistant Inspector Alice Linsley of Table Rock. She pronounced the clerical work correctly performed, and her instructions were given in a kindly spirit, showing her a master workman in her perfect knowledge of our order. She left a benediction of L. C. L. and a hope that she may be assigned to us next year.—Cass County Advocate.

An effort is being made to raise funds to purchase a hand pump for the fire department. Dr Covert and Mayor Boyd have circulated a subscription paper, and if enough can be secured in this way it will not be long until Table Rock will have a good fire department. No one questions the value to the town of such an apparatus; the saving at a single fire would easily pay for it, and every citizen ought to put his name on the list for his just proportion of the cost. Don't wait to be asked and urged to do your duty in the matter but go to the above named gentlemen and voluntarily put your John Hancock down for as large a sum as you can, and then be ready to pay it at the first call, for the sooner we have the pump, the more secure our property will be.

The people about town were startled Saturday afternoon by the report of an explosion coming from the K. of P. Hall in the State Bank building, and with the report came the crashing of glass in the building. The building was recently piped for acetyline gas lights, and A C Boyd and John Sutton were trying to locate a leak in the pipe from which gas was escaping. The windows had been opened and the gas allowed to escape from the room before a light was struck. In the east end of the room is a platform six or eight inches high under which the gas pipe ran, and Mr Boyd and Sutton had reached this point in their search for the leak, when the explosion occured; the platform was raised by the force and both men were knocked down, Mr Boyd sustaining a severely sprained ankle which will confine him to the house for some time; Mr Sutton sustained a sprained leg but is not severely hurt. The leak in the pipe was under the platform, which fitted to the floor so closely that the gas was confined under it, and when the lighted lamp reached it, the explosion followed. A fire was started, but a few buckets of water extinguished it and $50 will cover the damage, which was covered by insurance.

A railroad conductor from Washington to Baltimore tells the following: "I found a lady in black grieving profusely. I asked 'my poor madam, can I be of any help to you, and what is the matter?' She replied, 'O conductor, conductor, I have my husband's remains in the brggage car, carrying them to Baltimore to be cremated.' A little further down the car a lady just as handsome as the other, said to me: 'Conductor, what ails that good sister?' 'Madam,' I replied, 'she is carrying the body of her husband to Baltimore to be cremated, and I am surprised at her grief as it is her fourth husband.' Lady No 2 began to weep very loudly, and in great surprise I said, 'Madam you are worse than the other sister. What ails you?' 'O, conductor the Lord is not good. I have trusted to the Lord for years and never had nary husband, and there is a woman with husbands to burn."—Ex.

Spring comes early in the Fashion world, and although snow flakes are yet flying, the dainty garments in The Designer for February begin to hint of Easter and warm weather. Surely a more stylish array for adults and juveniles was never more attractively set forth in colors and in black and white. Prominent among the fashion illustrations is one of a fair lady in colonial costume. The details of the costume may be copied with advantage by those who intend to take part in a Washington Evening at Home, described elsewhere in the magazine. Among other interesting features of this number of The Designer may be particularized The Latest in Window Draperies, Mourning Costumes, Millinery, New Patterns in Knit Lace, Book Notes, Fancywork, Seasonable Novelties in Crochet Work, The Kindergarten at Home, and Cakes of All Kinds. Then there is an excellent continued story, The Evolution of a Contented Woman, a Valentine's Day short story, The Revolt of Mr Hodge, a child's story, Ethel's Silly Secret, Health and Beauty Notes, Household Advice, Floriculture Hints, Points on Dressmaking, Cupid's Dilemma, a short comedy, a brief resume of the topics of the day in Among Ourselves, A Valentine Love Supper, and some musical bits of verse. Rob Cleverdale's Adventure.

By Seward W. Hopkins.

Copyrighted, 1899, by Robert Bonner's Sons.

CHAPTER VI.—(Continued).

The gang he was with had returned for another load. Rob heard them muttering among themselves, and he looked up to see the cause. He was amazed, and felt a thrill of terror rush over him, for there, standing with Captain Elvin and Torrevo, engaged in earnest conversation, was Lemuel Starne.

Now Rob thought surely he would be killed. He thought he now understood some of the hatred he had incurred. Starne, Elvin and the captain of the "Black Cat" were all in one gang. Therefore, if Starne had any reason to wish his death, the others must have the same reason.

There was no way to escape them now. He could not turn back.

When they were taking up their loads Torrevo rushed out and beat Rob with his rope's end so that poor Rob kept his face bent down almost to the ground till he got clear of his tormentor, which was not until he was part way up the ridge.

The boy's heart was broken with grief and terror. What should he do? To continue in this way was simply to be killed. Was there no hope of escape. He went into the caverns again, and this time the black interior seemed to the tortured fellow like a haven of rest. And when the gang turned to leave a sudden inspiration came to Rob. He knew that the last of the cargo was not on its way to the cave. It was possible that he would not be missed if he did not return. With no definite purpose, except to escape the blows and curses of Torrevo, he darted away from the gang and hid in a black recess behind a pile of bales of tobacco.

The men came in with their burdens, and then went out. Those who went out now did not return again. The last of the contraband cargo was in. The last blask fellow had gone. The caverns were as still as death, except for the trickling water on the rocky walls. Rob crouched in his to him almost an entire day.

His limbs ached. His face was sore from Torrevo's blows. His hands had swollen from the excessive labor he had performed. The weariness at last overcame him. First he fought against the drowsiness, then welcomed it, for it brought with it forgetfulness of his troubles. He found some bales of cloth, took them into his hiding place, and lay down upon them. Soon he was fast asleep.

How long the boy slept he did not know. But he awoke at last with a start, and wondered how long he had been there. He left his nook and went toward the entrance to the caverns. Then he made a discovery that made his heart almost stand still.

The entrance had been closed with a great stone.

He was locked in.

CHAPTER VII.

For several minutes Rob stood there in the dark cavern looking at the thin streak of light that came in through a chink by the side of the blockading rock, with a terrible sense of terror. He was literally buried alive.

He did not know how often the smugglers, or pirates, or whatever the gang might be, came to this place. If their visits were limited to such times as the "Black Cat" brought cargoes of smuggled goods, then it was certain that he would be confined there for weeks, and perhaps months, and that meant that he would die there.

When the full sense of the disaster broke upon him, his boyish heart throbbed with fear. As a young and healthy American, he loved life. He loved his mother, and he had looked forward to the day when, having by skill and attention to his uncle's business, won wealth and position, he could make a comfortable home for that dear mother, for which she would not be beholden to any one for charity. To die with this brilliant prospect before him would be hard. But to die in that dark hole, a lingering, painful death by starvation. Oh! it was terrible.

But Rob was a true American boy. After the first few minutes of stupefaction his spirits returned, and he began to think of finding a way out.

He groped about the opening, now so well blocked by the heavy rock, but the largest aperature he could find was simply large enough for him to put his hand through. He could not move the rock an inch.

While thus engaged in his futile efforts the thought came to him that perhaps this was not an accident. Perhaps, after all, Lemuel Starne had recognized him—had told Captain Elvin who he was—and he had been missed, traced to the caverns and locked in to await a terrible death by starvation, or to be kept until they saw fit to release him and kill him some other way. Any way he looked at it, death seemed certain.

With a dull heart Rob left the opening, now, alas! opening no longer, and groped his way in the darkness through the caverns. It was dark as night, and darker. There were no moon and stars in this damp and grewsome place to shed a little light and cheeriness. All was dark and damp and dismal.

In his aimless wanderings, Rob's feet struck against something, and he at once thought of the torches the men had used when they brought in the goods. The thing he had kicked sounded like one of these. He stooped and picked it up. It was just what he thought it was—a torch made of some kind of soft stuff like cotton waste, wrapped on a bar of iron and soaked in oil. The odor from it showed that it had been recently used—probably by the men who had been with him.

But a smothered torch gives no light, and Rob could not feel that he was any better off than before. He had never learned to smoke, and therefore carried no matches. If he only had a match!

Suddenly it occurred to him that he did not have on his own clothes, but the fantastic garments given him by Captain Torrevo, of the "Black Cat." Instinctively he felt in the pockets of his velvet jacket.

First he brought out a package of Spanish cigarettes, which he threw away, not having any use for them. In another pocket—oh, joy! he discovered a box of matches. It was something to wear the jacket of a smoker, after all.

With feverishly trembling fingers, Rob lighted a match and applied it to the torch. In an instant it burst into flame and lit up the gloomy cavern around him. The smoky flame, while it gave light enough for him to see, made the shadows even more terrible. And with the light held above his head Rob gazed with strained eyes into the inky blackness of recesses opening out on three sides.

But Rob had been through the caverns when a dozen such torches had been blazing, and he knew there was nothing there that would harm him. There were no wild beasts. So, bolstering up his courage with this one consoling thought, he began a thorough exploration of the place. From one cave to another he went, closely examining the sides, always on the alert to catch a glimpse of what might be another opening. But he saw none. There were the great stores of contraband goods—enough to make a dozen men rich if sold at fair prices, but nothing that Rob wanted.

To all the rest of his discomfort now came the pangs of hunger. He did not know how long he had slept; therefore he could not judge how long he had been in the caves. But he knew he was very hungry.

He now applied himself to searching for something to eat.

There was plenty of tobacco, easily distinguished by the odor.

But Rob could not eat this. There were casks of liquor, but Rob had never touched a drop of it, and even the bottles of which there were many, did not seem to point to a way to spare him any pain.

He found plenty of bales of stuff, silks, cassimeres and everything in that line that was dutiable. But not a thing to eat.

After traversing room after room and vault after vault, Rob entered a large rock chamber, dry and cool, and there he stood, more amazed than ever.

It was an arsenal. Here were stored hundreds of rifles, pistols, swords, knives—in fact every kind of weapon. And around the sides of the chamber were kegs—probably containing powder—and cases—probably containing cartridges.

Even to Rob's young mind it was evident that this was more than a mere smuggler's resort. All those arms were there for a purpose—he knew not what.

But he could not eat them.

Weary, hungry and disheartened, Rob went back and examined his bed. Finding it clean and dry, he dragged it to the opening, and extinguished his light. Rob's object in getting near the opening was twofold. In the first place, there was a little light there, and it was less grewsome than back in the black recess he had slept in before. In the second place, he would be in the way of any person entering the cave, and could not be overlooked as he might be if he went to sleep in a hidden spot. And Rob had now become so terror-stricken at the gravity of his situation, and the awful prospect of starving to death in that place that he would have welcomed any one—even Lemuel Starne himself, if that worthy had appeared to let him out.

Rob sat on his bale of cloth for a long time, blinking at the little streak of light, and listening to the trickling and dropping of the water in the caverns around him. To his excited imagination it seemed as if this noise was growing louder, and he thought perhaps the roof was breaking, and would let in the water from the river. This meant a speedy death by drowning.

All the events of his past life came up before him. He thought of his mother, and the tears ran down his cheeks. He wondered if his uncle had missed him, and if a search would be made. But he dismissed this hope, for it would surely have been reported that he was lost overboard from the Royal Mail.

The weariness was too much for him at last, and with great sobs shaking him he fell asleep.

Even this time he did not know how long he slept. But he was awakened by hearing some one outside the cave. He sat up and listened intently. There was no mistake about it. Some one was certainly outside.

Rob's heart now beat violently. Was this some wandering native, who would release him from his prison, and enable him to go to Buenos Aires and find his uncle? Or was it Lemuel Starne returned to finish his fiendish work?

The eagerness to get out was greater than fear of Starne, and Rob placed his mouth near the crack and gave a loud "Hallo!"

"Ho!" came in the well-known voice of Captain Torrevo, of "El Gato Negro. "Are you there, after all?"

"Oh, yes! Let me out! Let me out! Please, Captain Torrevo, let me out!"

"You are a jewel!" exclaimed Torrevo in a tone that Rob did not understand. "Be easy."

Rob was now flushed with hope, and looked, expecting to see the great stone roll away, leaving him free. But the noise suddenly ceased. Rob waited a moment longer, and then called again.

"Captain Torrevo! Dear Captain! Let me out, won't you?"

HONEYBEE'S WINGS.

A Microscopic View of One of Nature's Wonderful Schemes.

At a meeting of the New York Microscopical Society the president of the organization exhibited, besides other things, the honeybee's wing, showing the hooklets by means of which the lower of the two wings of the bee is joined to the upper wing in flying thus making them practically a single wing. The upper of the two wings is about half an inch in length, the lower a little shorter. The wings come together where they are joined to the body; they are otherwise separate. When the bee goes into its hive, it folds its wings together, one leaf over the other, so that they will take up less room. When it goes abroad, it spreads its wings and couples them together with the hooks. When looked at under the microscope, the upper edge of the lower wing is seen to be re-enforced as though it had an extra plate or rib stretched along there and to this rib, spaced apart at regular intervals, though they are all contained within a total space of little more than a quarter of an inch, there are attached nineteen or twenty tiny, bony hooks. There is a little thickening at the base of each hook, where nature has strengthened it, and one is inclined to regard the hooks as inset separately and to look for the rivets wherewith they were secured to the plate or rib from which they spring. The lower edge of the upper wing, as looked at under the microscope, is seen to be curled up into a flange or trough. When the bee comes out of the hive, it hooks the hooks on the upper edge of the lower wing into the flange or trough at the lower edge of the upper wing and so makes the two wings practically one.—New York Sun.

Senses of Smell.

The horse will leave musty hay untouched in his bin, however hungry. He will not drink water objectionable to his questioning sniff, or from a bucket which some odor makes offensive, however thirsty. His intelligent nose will widen, quiver and query over the daintiest bit offered by the fairest hands, with coaxing that would make a mortal shut his eyes and swallow a nauseous mouthful at a gulp. A mare is never satisfied either by sight or whinny that her colt is really her own until she has a certified nasal certificate to the fact. A blind horse will not allow the approach of any stranger without showing signs of anger not safely to be disregarded. The distinction is evidently made by his sense of smell at a considerable distance. Blind horses as a rule will gallop wildly about a pasture without striking the surrounding fence. The sense of smell informs him of its proximity. Others will, when loosened from the stable, go direct to the gate or bars opened to their accustomed feeding grounds, and when desiring to return, after hours of careless wandering, will distinguish one outlet and patiently await its opening. The odor of that particular part of the fence is their pilot to it. The horse in browsing or while gathering herbage with its lips is guided in its choice of proper food entirely by its nostrils. Blind horses do not make mistakes in their diet.—Horse and Stable.

Reversible Discomforts.

STATE WINS OTT

Insurance Companies Must Put up Fees Retained.

MUST MAKE GOOD MOORE'S SHORTAGE

Last Official Act of Chief Justice Harrison Is to Decide That the State Can Recover From the Insurance Companies—Other News.

Chief Justice Harrison's last official act as a judge of the supreme court of Nebraska was to hand down an opinion holding that the state can recover from the insurance companies the fees paid to Eugene Moore and retained by him when he left the office of auditor of public accounts. The decision came in the form of a reversal in the case of the state against the Home Insurance company of New York, in which suit the state sought to recover $372 from that company. Judge Holmes of the district court of Lancaster county had decided that the state could not recover.

The decision of Chief Justice Harrison is far reaching, as it is construed to mean that the state will be able to recover from insurance companies the full amount of Eugene Moore's shortage, amounting to over $23,000. Nearly the entire shortage comprised fees paid by insurance companies. The supreme court had previously held that the bondsmen of Eugene Moore were not liable for the shortage on the ground that the fees retained did not belong to the state and that Moore as auditor was prohibited by the constitution from receiving the fees. In the case just decided the court holds further that the constitution also prohibited the insurance companies from paying fees to the auditor.

Insurance companies have paid fees to the state auditor in this state for tweaty years, and not until Eugene Moore's term did any auditor fail to account for the funds. Since the court's holding that the auditor had no right to act for the state or receive such fees all insurance companies have paid fees direct to the state treasurer. Each company after paying fees to the treasurer receives a receipt and by presenting it to the auditor is able to receive the service required.

In prosecuting this suit the state had to meet the assertion that in suing to recover from Moore and his bondsmen the state elected to make the auditor the debtor and therefore could not afterward look to the insurance companies for the money. It was contended by the company in this case that the state's suit against Moore was in fact a ratification of his act in receiving the money. The court holds that no one had authority to ratify for the state.

The court also overrules the contention of the company that if Moore had no right to receive the fees then the certificates issued by him and the services performed by him were void.

Russian Monastic Institutions.

The very reason of their existence was in different forms of superstition, of course, but the root idea of all was retirement from society, in search of some ideal life which society could furnish, and which they believed could be attained by different forms of self-abnegation. Poverty, chastity, obedience, seclusion, perpetual adoration, study and prayer, these were the ideals, but the results of centuries showed the frailty of human nature. Poverty gave way to an itching palm and a disregard to the rights of others, as exemplified by the idea that the world owed them a living. Such severe asceticism also led to all kinds of abuses, which ran from the ravings of a naked monk, forever bearing a heavy chain (as in the case of Basil of Russia), to the austerity of such idiots as Simeon, a Syrian monk, who spent years on the summit of a column sixty feet high.—Architectural World.

Birds Not Afraid of Wasps.

Mr. Murray, a Scottish naturalist, in a paper on the habits of wasps, tells how a blackbird will stand at the side of a hanging wasps' nest and deliberately tear it in pieces in order to get at the larvae, apparently undisturbed by the swarms of angry insects, whose stings instantly put to flight the human curiosity-seeker who ventures near to watch the demolition.

A New Star.

Big resourceful Texas is famed for its great undertakings. The newest and brightest star, which has shot athwart its horizon is the wonderful town of La Porte, located on Galveston Bay midway between Houston and Galveston in the celebrated Coast Country of Texas. A happy trinity of pluck, brains and capital is here found at work building up a great deepwater seaport city. Extensive public work is under way including wharfs, docks and water front shipping facilities. The U. S. Government is soon to deepen the channel, thus enabling the largest ocean vessels to receive and discharge cargoes at La Porte.

Half a Bottle Cured Me

"About thirty years ago I bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor to stop my hair from falling out. One-half a bottle cured me. A few days ago my hair began to fall out again. I went to the medicine shelf and found the old bottle of Hair Vigor just as good as when I bought it."—J. C. Baxter, Braidwood, Ill., Sept. 27, 1899.

Keeps Thirty Years

Ayer's Hair Vigor is certainly the most economical preparation of its kind on the market. A little of it goes a long way. And then, what you don't need now you can use some other time just as well.

It doesn't take much of it to stop falling of the hair, restore color to gray hair, cure dandruff, and keep the hair soft and glossy. There's a great deal of good and an immense amount of satisfaction in every bottle of it.

KAISER IS INCENSED

Orders Sending of Strongly-Worded Protest to England

WROUGHT UP OVER STEAMER SEIZURES

Emperor Learns that Overhauling Is Not Due to Blundering Naval Officers But to Headquarters' Instructions—Demands Reparation.

The seizure of the German Imperial mail steamer General has considerably aggravated the situation at Berlin and the indignation against England is intensified. The government is still earnestly endeavoring to preserve correct official relations, but England will do well to hasten to make the amends honorable to Germany.

On absolutely reliable authority the Associated press learns that Emperor William is now thoroughly aroused by the repeated seizures of vessels, not one of which, he has been assured, is guilty of carrying contraband. He regards the seizures as a high-handed proceeding, which England would not have dared to undertake if the German navy were more powerful than it.

His majesty is said to be particularly incensed, because information has reached him showing that the seizures were not due to the blundering of naval officers, but to strict orders from headquarters, which the officers are merely carrying out. He has, therefore, instructed Count von Bulow, the foreign secretary, to demand exact and full reparation for the outrage done to the German flag.

No answer that is considered satisfactory has yet been received from London, and according to advices at Berlin none is expected for several days yet. The news of Thursday has induced the German government to make a new and more strongly-worded protest to London.

Indignation meetings have been called by branches of the colonial society. The German press, with hardly an exception, thunders against England. Even the semi-official Berliner Post says:

"It cannot be denied that the indignation aroused by the wilfulness of the seizures by British commanders is spreading in wider and wider circles."

BATTLE MUST COME SOON

Ladysmith Cannot Hold Out Much Longer—Buller to Move.

From a source which has many facilities of gaining inside news from South Africa, the Associated press learns that Colonel Pilcher's occupation of Douglas is regarded as merely the first step of General Methuen's carefully matured plans to outflank the Boers. According to this authority it is probable that Colonel Pilcher, in conjunction with General Babington's force from the Modder river, will proceed to the rear of those intrenchments, which now prevent General Methuen from proceeding to Kimberley. Colonel Pilcher has only about forty miles to travel before he achieves this end, and if this understanding is correct an attack by General Methuen and a determined effort to relieve Kimberley may be expected any day.

There is a deepening sense of anxiety respecting Ladysmith, whence most disheartening reports of the prevalence of sickness are received. General White reported a list of nearly twenty deaths from enteric fever and dysentery and seventy-one serious cases in the hospital. Dr. Jameson has all he can do in that fever nest. It is evident that the garrison cannot hold out long, and that Sir Redvers Buller will not allow many days to pass before striking a blow.

Since Commandant General Joubert's return to the front the cannonade of Ladysmith by the Boers has been much livelier. Between December 18 and December 29 four shells killed one officer and thirteen men and wounded thirteen officers and eleven men.

REVIVAL OF MUD VOLCANOES

Peculiar Result of a Recent Earthquake Shock in California.

Reports received at San Diego, Cal., from the back country show that the recent earthquake was the cause of a number of strange happenings. The mud volcanoes on the desert near the Colorado river have become active after a long rest and are now spouting mud again. The natural gas wells near Yuma are also in working order since the heavy quake. They have been lighted and the glare at night can be seen for many miles.

A correspondent from Moosa writes that a number of fissures were made in the ground at that place, twenty or more feet in length.

Will Fight With Boers.

Two hundred and sixty men have signed an agreement at Butte, Mont., to go to South Africa and serve in the Boer army. They are Irish-Americans German-Americans and French-Americans. Only men between twenty and forty and without anyone dependent on them were enlisted.

FOR REFORM IN SPELLING

Chicago University Will Adopt the New System.

The university of Chicago will use and advocate the new spelling. By a vote of twenty to eighteen the university congregation placed itself on record as favoring the use of the reformed spelling adopted by the national educational association. The vote implies the use of reform spelling in a number of magazines and papers issued under the auspices of the university.

Advance Put Into Effect.

Railroads belonging to the eastern trunk line pool have put in active operation the new freight tariffs involving an advance of 20 to 25 per cent in rates. Merchants of Chicago, not discouraged by the refusal of Attorney General Griggs to institute injunction proceedings to prevent the introduction of the new rates, are determined to continue their opposition.

Plague at Manila.

A case of what appears to be well authenticated bubonic plague has been discovered in Manila.

CONGRESSIONAL CHAT

Not Easy to Settle.

United States Ambassador Choate visited British Premier Salisbury at the foreign office for the purpose of making the first official representations on the subject of the Delagoa bay flour seizures. Mr. Choate received no definite reply, as the premier informed him that the British government had not yet arrived at any decision as to whether or not foodstuffs were contraband of war. But Lord Salisbury assured Mr. Choate that the commercial rights of the United States would be equitably considered and that a decision in this important matter would be received as soon as possible. The interview was brief.

Boers Willing to Treat.

There is reason to believe that the Transvaal government has only recently requested this government to use its good offices to bring an end to its war with Great Britain, says a late Washington dispatch. The proposition came through the American consul at Pretoria. No answer has been given by the state department and unless Great Britain intimates that she is desirous of the president exercising his good offices there is reason to believe that he will not comply with the Boer request.

Plums for First District.

Two more plums have fallen to First district parties. Rufus Clark, son of W. H. Clark of Lincoln, gets a $75 a month appointment in the house. FREE MEN AGAIN

Rescue Effected of the Entire Gilmore Party.

WERE LONG HELD BY THE INSURGENTS

Morrissey Among the Missing—Lincoln Boy Supposed to Have Been Killed—Otis Reports Success On the Island of Northern Luzon.

After a silence of several days General Otis is able to notify the war department of the complete success of the military operations in northwest Luzon, the main object of which was the rescue of the American prisoners whict the insurgents took with them in their flight.

The following was received from Gen. Otis Friday: "Colonels Hare and Howe have just arrived from Vigan, northwest of Luzon with all the American prisoners. Their successful pursuit is a remarkable achievement. Generals Schwan and Wheaton are now with separate columns in the Cavite province. The affairs in Luzon, north of Manila, are greatly improved."

In the absence of a detailed statement from the admiral as to the personality of the prisoners the officials of the navy department have prepared the following statement, which, although believed to be correct, is subject to amendment by Admiral Watson:

Captured from the Yorktown's boat and believed to have been released: Lieutenant J. C. Gilmore, William Walton, chief quartermaster, born in Manheim, Germany; John Ellsworth, coxswain, born in Portsmouth, N. H.; Lyman Paul Edwards, landsman, born in Peru, Ind.; next of kin, L. B. Edwards, father, Mexico, Ind.; Paul Vandoit, sailmaker's mate, born in France; Silvio Brizolez, landsman, born in San Francisco; Albert Peterson, apprentice first class, born in Oakland, Cal.; Fred Anderson, landsman, born in Buffalo, N. Y.

The United States navy has taken possession of another island in the east. The news of the seizure was contained in the following dispatch:

On December 21 Wentzbaugh, commanding the Albany (a little gunboat) hoisted the flag on Sibutu island, and Dato provided and raised the pole. Natives and North Borneo authorities pleased. WATSON.

The island lies at the southwestern angle of the boundary lines of the quadrangle including the Philippine group. It is probably, but not positively, outside of the line, and lies very near the coast of Borneo, commanding the principal channel between that island and the Philippines. The sultan of Jolo, whose group is close to the island, is believed likely to claim jurisdiction over it, and as his authority is recognized by the native tribes on the north coast of Borneo and vicinity, it is believed that this claim is well founded. It is probable that at his instance the naval officer commanding the gunboat moved.

"That shippers be requested to present their statements in writing, and that public notice of this hearing be given through the press."

PLAN A SUGAR BEET PLANT

Colorado May Have One Costing a Million and a Half.

It has been announced at Santa Fe railroad headquarters in Chicago that the American Beet Sugar company had contracted for the establishment of a sugar beet plant at Rocky Ford, Colo., in the Arkansas valley. The plant will be next to the largest in the world, and will have a capacity greater than the combined capacities of the plants in Nebraska. It will cost about $1,500,000, and will have an annual capacity of 18,000 tons of refined sugar, using 100,000 tons of beets. Farmers in the valley adjacent to Rocky Ford have arranged to plant 80,000 acres of beets the coming season, from which it is expected that a profit of $40 an acre will be derived. The land is almost in the heart of what a few years ago appeared on the map as the "Great American Desert." Irrigation has made it one of the most fertile places in that section of the west. It is said that the sugar beet plant will distribute something like $1,500,000 annually to farmers and employes. Is is said two more large plants will be established in the Arkansas valley within two or three more years.

N. S. HARWOOD DEAD.

Stricken With Apoplexy and Does Not Rally Therefrom.

N. S. Harwood, for nearly thirty years a leading lawyer and banker of Lincoln, and well known all over the state, suffered a stroke of apoplexy at 5 o'clock Friday evening and died three hours later without regaining consciousness. He received a similar but lighter stroke nearly three months ago, but rallied from it and was going into his work again with accustomed energy, forgetting the warnings of his physicians in his enthusiasm for his professional duties. When the fatal stroke came he was going down the stairs to enter the bath rooms at Eleventh and P streets. He fell on the steps and became unconscious. Within an hour he was removed to his home at 1618 L street. He sank rapidly and at 8:10 breathed his last.

Writ of Habeas Corpus Desired by Military Authorities.

At Omaha United States District Attorney Summers received instructions from Washington to make application in the federal court for a writ of habeas corpus in the case of Corporal Fair and Private Jodkens, in jail at Papillion by order of the state court. Judge Howard bound them over in the sum of $1,000 to the district court. They could not give bond. It is understood that the war department directed that this action be taken. The men are charged with shooting a deserter, who was not on a military reservation at the time he was shot. They were acquitted by the military court-martial. The question of state rights is involved.

Says Peruna, the Catarrh Cure, Gives Strength and Appetite.

Hon. W. N. Roach, United States Senator from North Dakota.

Hon. W. N. Roach, United States Senator from North Dakota, personally endorses Peruna, the great catarrh cure and tonic. In a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Company, at Columbus, Ohio, written from Washington, D. C., Senator Roach says:

"Persuaded by a friend, I have used Peruna as a tonic, and I am glad to testify that it has greatly helped me in strength, vigor and appetite. I have been advised by friends that it is remarkably efficacious as a cure for the almost universal complaint of catarrh."

Senator Roach's home address is Larimore, North Dakota.

Peruna is not a guess, nor an experiment; it is an absolute, scientific certainty. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. Peruna has no substitutes—no rivals. Insist upon having Peruna. Let no one persuade you that some other remedy will do nearly as well. There is no other systematic remedy for catarrh but Peruna. Address the Peruna Medicine Company, Columbus, Ohio, for a free book on catarrh, written by Dr. Hartman.

A BOSTON MAN PLEASED.

In conversation with some friends, a prominent Boston man told of his sufferings from rheumatism and nervousness, and one of his friends gave him some advice, which will be mentioned later, and which has proven to be of incalculable value.

To successfully action the advice, it was necessary to make a trip of over 2,000 miles, but he undertook it, and now thanks his friend for the advice, as he finds himself fully relieved of his old trouble and has returned to his home feeling able to cope with his business demands, a new man.

The advice given was to go to "Hot Springs," South Dakota, and there take the baths, and enjoy the finest climate of any health resort in America.

If this man was satisfied after making a long trip, those residing within a few hundred miles and similarly afflicted can certainly afford to try it, or rather can't afford to neglect to try it.

President McKinley has created a military department in Alaska, with Col. S. M. Randall in command.

A Methodist preacher at Lima, O., got into a fight with his tailor and gave him a thrashing in a manner that would make McCoy green with envy.

How many of your new year resolves have already been broken? So many that you are discouraged and inclined to let the old ship sink? Success is simply triumph over difficulties and if you keep up the fight through 1900, new years of 1901 you may be crowned victor, even if the outlook is gloomy today.

Many people suppose there is no penalty attached to mailing a letter wrapped in a newspaper, photograph or package of merchandise. This is a mistake and the postoffice department is looking very closely after such matters. Parties who are trying to evade the payment of two or three cents in postage are liable to make such an act cost them at least $10.—Beaver City Tribune.

The Jacksonian club of Omaha, gave a banquet at the Paxton hotel Monday evening at which Billy Bryan, A. J. Weaver and several other prominent fusionists spoke. The Argus editor was in Omaha at the time and the fragrant fumes of genuine Old Kentuck were wafted to him as he stood out in the drizzling rain in the street and gazed on the throng on the inside. Fred Hassler was present and got as much enjoyment out of it as if a new fusion paper in Pawnee City had never been dreamed of.

The largest land deal ever made in the county was consummated December 25, whereby David Jack came into possession of the 320-acre farm of D. T. Hanks, near Brock. This is regarded as the best all-purpose farm in the county. The consideration was $17,500 or 55 per acre. The sale was made by W. B. Harman, who through his experience as farmer, and in dealing in farm lands and securities is regarded as the best judge of farm lands in Southeast Nebraska. David Jack is an old settler of this county, and he certainly knows the value of Nemaha county land and has faith in the future of the county.—Auburn Post.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C, January 8, 1900. (Special Correspondence) Nebraska people who are searching for figures regarding the finances of the nation may find some information in the following which are taken from the monthly statement of the public debt issued December 30th:

On that day the debt, less cash in the treasury, amounted to $1,134,300,007, a decrease for the month of $5,791,824. This decrease is largely accounted for by the purchase of bonds during the month.

The interest bearing debt is $1,026,772,320.

Debt on which interest has ceased since maturity, $1,208,500.

Debt bearing no interest, $389,911,640.

Total, $1,417,895,400. This amount however, does not include $686,979,403 in certificates and treasury notes outstanding which are offset by an equal amount of cash on hand.

The cash in the treasury is classified as follows: Gold, $798,072,027; silver, $497,200,739; paper, $64,598,670. Deposits in national banks depositaries, disbursing officers' balances, etc., $88,184,805. Total, $1,048,005,041, against which there are demand liabilities outstanding amounting to $764,410,508, which leaves a net cash balance on hand of $283,595,433.

This debt statement is a pretty good showing, and the reduction of the debt during December especially commends itself to the public. In reading the figures, however, it surely occurs to the minds of certain Nebraska statesmen that it would be a good thing for the government to print and issue $1,174,300,007 in irredeemable paper currency, pay off the public debt with it and start with a new page on the ledger. This is a good nut to crack for the Dawson county financiers who believe in legislating value into irredeemable money.

The Louisville Courier Journal has no use for the Vanlandinghams of the present decade, and in a recent issue prints the following editorial, which should come straight home to some Nebraskans:

"The noisy Aunties are now declaring that the blood of Gen. Lawton is upon the hands of the expansionists. Gen. Lawton, who was an out-and-out expansionist, left his own opinion to a different effect: If he wrote shortly before his death, the so-called anti-imperialists would honestly ascertain the truth on the ground and not in distant America, they, whom I believe to be honest men misinformed, would be convinced of the errror of their statements and conclusions and of the unfortunate affect of their publications here. If I am shot by a Filipino bullet it might as well come from one of my own men, because I know from observations, confirmed by captured prisoners, that the continuance of fighting is chiefly due to reports that are sent out from America."

Unpatriotic men like William Goebel Bryan should ponder long on the last words of the noble hero, Gen. Lawton. It is the fight in the rear that is prolonging the trouble. Veto messages and proclamations by statesmen of the Poynter order are responsible for the death of many noble men. F. A. HARRISON.

G. H. Appleton, Justice of Peace, Clarksburg, N. J., says, "DeWitt's Little Early Risers are the best pills made for constipation. We use no others." Quickly cure all liver and bowel troubles

FROM LINCOLN.

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. 8, 1900. Editor Argus:—Last week was one of great activity in the political circles of this city and state, owing to the meetings held by the state central committees of the three silver organizations and the conference held by members of the populist national committee. Your readers are, no doubt, pretty well informed already upon the results of these meetings. The three state conventions were set for March 19, which is W. J. Bryan's fortieth birthday. These conventions will merely select delegates to the several national conventions, leaving the nomination of candidates for state offices till July or August.

The national populist committee conference was attended by J. W. Breidenthal of Kansas, A. Rozelle of Missouri, T. M. Patterson of Colorado, J. B. Weaver and W. H. Robb of Iowa, W. E. Bray of Oklahoma, and J. A. Edgerton of Colorado, secretary of the national committee. J. H. Edmisten, who is chairman of the state committee and a member of the national committee, was also present. He is spoken of as a probable successor to Senator Marion Butler as national chairman of the populist party.

A meeting of the national committee is being arranged to be held at Lincoln on February 22. On that date, it is expected that the time for holding the national convention will be fixed. There is little doubt that this will be on the same date and at the same place as the democratic and silver conventions, and it is thought that none of these will occur till after the national republican gathering has been held. Sentiment among populists and democrats alike in Nebraska is largely in favor of Kansas City as the proper place.

The republican state committee will meet at the Lindell hotel in this city on February 7. The date of the state convention will then be set and plans laid for the ensuing campaign. The fight in Nebraska this year promises to be a pretty one if Mr Bryan is the candidate for president, as now seems certain. The republicans can be expected, of course, to avail themselves of every chance to defeat Bryan in his home state, while the fusionists will undoubtedly put forth every effort to carry the state for him by a good majority.

The traveling men's banquet held here last week was attended by nearly 250 guests, among them being Mr. Talcott of Table Rock. Your correspondent was detailed to take in this affair and write it up, but he was too sleepy to attend and prevailed upon another person to go in his place. Banquets are all right for people who do not have to work the next day, but for those who do it is ordinarily better to seek slumber than to stay up all night and eat a lot of things which it will take all of the next day to digest.

The annual convention of the state teachers' association, held here during Christmas week was one of considerable interest though not so well attended as former gatherings have been. There was quite a contest over the election of a president, resulting in the choice of President Perry of Doane college at Crete, as a compromise candidate.

Among those who attended the association was Superintendent C. R. Atkinson of Edgar, with his wife and niece, Miss Margaret McLucas of Fairbury. Professor and Mrs. Atkinson are getting along nicely in their new location. They entertain some very warm remembrances of Table Rock. A number of teachers from Table Rock and Pawnee county were also in attendance but your correspondent did not see more than two or three of them.

Judge Holcomb has been a member of the Nebraska supreme court since last Thursday. There is a good deal of talk as to who will be chosen to succeed D. A. Campbell as clerk of the supreme court, but the probable selection is hard to guess. J. H. Edmisten and Lee Herdman, secretary of the democratic state central committee, are the leading candidates and the contest between them is more or less party one. Fred Shepherd, a young lawyer of Lincoln, is most prominently mentioned as a third candidate.

The new auditorium is nearly finished. The first convention to be held in it will be that of the national creamery buttermakers' association from February 19 to 22.

With sincere regards, I remain
Very truly yours,
ELLIS E. WOLFE.

It has been demonstrated repeatedly in every state in the Union and in many foreign countries that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a certain preventive and cure for croup. It has become the universal remedy for that disease. M V Fisher of Liberty, W Va., only repeats what has been said around the globe when he writes: "I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in my family for several years and always with perfect success. We believe that it is not only the best cough remedy, but that it is a sure cure for croup. It has saved the lives of our children a number of times." This remedy is for sale by S G Wright, Druggist.

This week will probably witness the return of John Trompen to his ancestral home at Hickman, where every prospect pleases, and only man is vile. Mr Trompen has been saddened by the scenes of misery he has witnessed while serving distress warrants, and he has concluded to establish a hermitage and spend the balance of his life in meditation and prayer. He will earn enough money to buy locusts and wild honey by leasing out his feet for use as bill boards, and that is all he will need.—Walt Mason.

S G Wright guarantees every bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and will refund the money to anyone who is not satisfied after using two-thirds of the contents. This is the best remedy in the world for la grippe, coughs, colds, croup and whooping cough and is pleasant and safe to take. It prevents any tendency of a cold to result in pneumonia.

The Miles will case, which is occupying the attention of the district court at Falls City, is proving a theme of intense interest. Miles, was a millionaire, and a contest is on over the will, a later one claimed to have been made. A detective on the stand Tuesday swore to much crookedness prevailing in securing the testimony in regard to the second will, his evidence involving prominent attorneys in the deal. The result will be looked for with interest.

The second of the Epworth League lectures was given at the opera house on Tuesday evening by Dr. C. N. Dawson, pastor of the Walnut Hill M. E. church, Omaha, whose subject was "How to Raise Cain." The doctor kept his audience laughing most of the time for nearly two hours and even then the people were not tired. Cain was the first boy, and the lecturer's subject was how to raise the boy. And while there was much of the humorous, there was also a practical side presented, with thoughts which put in practice would be of benefit to the boy. Dr. Dawson would be sure of a crowded house on coming again to Table Rock.

Walter Loch, one of the best known and most prominent citizens of Pawnee county, lies stricken with paralysis at his home southwest of the city. On last Monday Mr. Loch was in his barn talking with some friends and feeling ill went to the house and sat down in a chair. Soon after his family noticed something wrong and approaching him found that he was unable to speak. He was at once put to bed and Dr. Anderson, of this city, summoned. When the doctor arrived it was found that Mr. Loch had had a stroke of apoplexy which brought on paralysis of the right side, and ever since the patient has been partially unconscious and unable to utter a sentence. Mr. Loch is 71 years of age and has been a prominent figure in the county for a great many years. He was elected county commissioner six years ago, filling the office in a creditable manner. His many friends throughout the county will be shocked to hear of the calamity which has befallen him, but pray that he will recover and become strong again. At this writing he is still unconscious.—Pawnee Republican.

The work of building a new dry house, and other improvements has been in operation at the Table Rock Clay Company's plant, for some weeks, and when spring opens up, the company will be better equipped for making its celebrated paving and building brick than ever before.

"I am indebted to One Minute Cough Cure for my health and life. It cured me of lung trouble following grippe." Thousands owe their lives to the prompt action of this never failing remedy. It cures coughs, colds, croup, bronchitis, pneumonia, grippe, and throat and lung troubles. Its early use prevents consumption. It is the only harmless remedy that gives immediate results.

A north and south railroad through Table Rock has been much talked about during the past two or three months, and other towns through which the mooted road is said to run has been as greatly exercised over the prospects as has Table Rock, but there is little tangibility about the matter: railroad men with whom we have talked, know nothing of the proposed line and assert that the work of raising and moving the A & N tracks, has given rise to the rumor in regard to a new road. A gang of civil engineers was here a few weeks ago and made a survey for a side track for the Table Rock Clay company and stakes were set out beyond the line necessary for this work, and this has by some been construed to mean the new road. Table Rock can stand a road of the kind and grow fat and prosperous over it, but the Argus advises its readers to not credit every flying rumor, for railroads are not built in a day.

If you need a heating stove, don't pass until you get our prices and see our stoves. Thanking you one and all for past favors.

Rob Cleverdale's Adventure.

By Seward W. Hopkins.

Copyrighted, 1898, by Robert Bonner's Sons.

CHAPTER VIII.

There was no answer, and Rob's heart sank again. Torrevo was in the plot against him, too, and had simply come to satisfy himself that Rob was in his deadly prison.

After a short time—perhaps fifteen minutes—when Rob had given up all hope, he heard a greater noise outside.

"Now!" he hear Torrevo say in a voice of command. "All together."

There came to Rob the sounds of men grunting as if straining at an effort, and suddenly the stone rolled away, letting in a flood of daylight. There stood Torrevo and a half dozen of the men from the "Black Cat" whom he had brought to move the rock—a job too great for one man to accomplish.

"My jewel! My jewel!" exclaimed Torrevo, in an extravagance of ecstasy, grasping Rob and hugging him. "You did that well! You did that well! By the saints, you did that well!"

This was a sudden change again. Rob wondered what kind of a man Torrevo was to brutally strike him one hour and hug him and call him a jewel the next.

"I don't understand!" he said. "I didn't think you were my friend."

"Not your friend! Indeed, what do you call the man who lets you out of that place?"

"Yes, but that rope's end!"

Captain Torrevo burst into a boisterous laugh.

"Oh, that! Why, didn't you understand? If I had treated you with kindness Elvin would have asked questions. And, when Starne came I clubbed you well, so that you would not raise your face for him to see it. Ho! We did it well! But for that we would both be dead now."

"Did they miss me?" asked Rob.

"No, thank me for that, too. I cursed you and said I had sent you on board the schooner. They went away, and I set sail for the mouth of the river. Then, when they had time to get far away, I came back. I knew where to find you. Oh! You are wise enough. But come on board. You must be hungry."

"I am starving."

Torrevo led the way back to the river, where the boat from the "Black Cat" was waiting. They were soon on board, and a substantial meal was at once set before Rob, who did full justice to it. Captain Torrevo sat near him smoking while he ate.

"I tell you, it was a close shave," said the captain. "When I saw the young man I thought it was all up. But I clubbed you well, did I not?"

"I should say so," said Rob, shrugging his shoulders, which still ached from the drubbing. "But what is the meaning of it all?"

"The meaning of it—the meaning of my part of it is this: For some reason or other, Starne wanted you to die. If he or Elvin knew I saved your life either one would kill you and me. They stop at nothing. I don't know why Starne wanted to kill you, but I know enough not to let him kill me."

"Who are these men?"

"Well, Elvin—Richard Elvin, the captain—is the chief of the Independents. That is a party opposed to everything in the present government. He is the boss of the smugglers, is rich, lives in Buenos Ayres, and is constantly conspiring in some way against the government, as well as getting richer in every way he can. The secret of his wishing your death must be connected with your relationship to Horton."

"But who is Lemuel Starne?"

"He isn't Lemuel Starne at all. He is Lemuel Elvin, the captain's son."

"But he hates me."

"Perhaps not. He may simply want to get you out of his way."

"But how can I be in his way?"

"I don't know. I am not in their secrets."

"Is Elvin so cruel as to kill a boy of my age just because his son hates me?"

"Captain Elvin will kill anybody he wants to get rid of. He is the most suspected and the most feared of all men in Buenos Ayres. But he is so crafty that the government cannot catch him."

"But you! Why do you stick to a man like that?"

"Oh! I! Because it is to my advantage. You see, young senor, we are not all in favor of this government of ours. I did something once that brought me in disfavor. I was to be shot. I escaped, with the help of Elvin, and turned—well, I became the captain of the 'Black Cat.' Richard Elvin owns me body and soul. Now, you know why I am afraid to let him know I saved your life."

"But of course the danger is over now," said Rob. "You can take me to Buenos Ayres and let me find my uncle. Then your danger will end."

Captain Torrevo looked at Bob with wide-open eyes. It was as if he thought Rob had taken leave of his senses.

"Take you to Buenos Ayres! Take you to Buenos Ayres! What! Why, my danger would just begin. As long as I can keep you here with me and make Elvin think you are my nephew, I am safe. But once let you to get to Buenos Ayres, and Elvin would have my life in an hour."

"But I would not tell that you saved me."

Torrevo shook his head.

"No, no. It will not do," he said. "You must give that up. You are one of the crew of 'El Gato Negro' now. You must so remain. What! It is not a bad life. You see the world. We live on the best. What more do you want?"

"I want to reach my uncle."

Torrevo turned on him savagely.

"See here!" he said in a tone that could not be mistaken. "I am not quite so bad as Elvin or as Starne. I saved you twice. But if you think I am going to run my head in a noose to take you to your uncle, you are mistaken. You stay here, do you understand? Obey me and you will get along. But try to play me false and I will kill you before Elvin has a chance to kill me."

Rob looked at him appealingly. There was no mercy in the dark and now scowling countenance. He strolled on deck and gave sundry orders. The dark crew sprang to work, the anchor was raised, and sails spread. The "Black Cat" headed down the river.

"Where are we going? Where are you taking me?" asked Rob, who had followed Torrevo on deck.

"To Rio de Janeiro," said Torrevo, calmly. "We go to get another cargo of rum and tobacco."

Rob stood helplessly, with beating heart, sorrowfully watching the waves made by the "Black Cat" as she gathered headway.

Was he never to find his uncle? Was he never to see his dear mother again? Was he to live and die a prisoner among these outlaws?

There was no answer to his frantic thoughts.

He was on his way to Brazil. What disasters might not befall him before he ever saw Buenos Ayres, or even New York, again—if, indeed, he ever saw either?

"Go get some sleep," said Torrevo, now losing his severe manner. "You need sleep; go get it."

Rob did not dare disobey even so simple a command. So he went to his cabin, and on the comfortable bed sobbed himself to sleep once more.

THERE WAS NO MERCY IN THE SCOWLING FACE.

CHAPTER IX.

The journey to Brazil lasted about two weeks, and passed without any noteworthy incident. Of course Rob was sorrowful over his gloomy prospects, but he was wise enough to hide his feelings when Captain Torrevo was near him, and not to make any attempts to escape. Indeed, there was no possibility of escape. Rob might, if he felt so inclined, jump overboard, but they were far out at sea, and to commit so foolhardy an act was simply to leap to his death. So Rob bided his time, took things as easily as he could, and waited till the schooner should have returned to Argentina to try and reach his uncle.

In truth, Rob's condition on board the "Black Cat," after that one burst of passion from Torrevo, was not hard. The captain exacted no arduous tasks from him. He was well fed, and had he been there willingly he would have found much to enjoy in the novel situation.

The swarthy crew treated him with a friendliness born of their fear of Torrevo, and their respect for Torrevo's friends.

So, by the time the "Black Cat" came to her anchorage at an obscure spot near the wharfage at Rio de Janeiro, Rob was in a tranquil state of mind.

It was evident that Torrevo had made this trip many times before. He knew all the ropes, and no sooner had the schooner made anchor than he was ashore visiting his old cronies and arranging for a fresh cargo to be carried to the cave on La Plata.

On shipboard Torrevo drank copiously, but was never under the influence of the liquor he drank. But Rob found that when free from the necessity of maintaining discipline among his crew he gave free license to his appetite. Thus it happened that when the fresh cargo was ready to come aboard, Capt. Torrevo was hopelessly and maudlin drunk. He staggered to where Rob stood on deck, carrying a blank paper in his hand.

"See here, boy," he said, striving to maintain his equilibrium and speaking thickly, "I can't do this. Old Elvin demands a full tally. He's no fool, Elvin. See, his people here are not to be trusted. And he don't trust me. You'll have to do this."

"What is there to do, captain?" asked Rob, somewhat afraid of the blackeyed drunkard.

"Why, you fool! Mark down what comes aboard. See, now?"

"Oh, yes. I'll do that. You go to bed."

"That's a good boy," said Torrevo.

With implicit confidence in the young American he went to his cabin.

Rob procured a pen and ink from the captain's room and, taking a convenient position on deck, making a table of a square chest, he carefully jotted down in a clear, firm hand each article as it was brought on board and lowered into the hold. There were bales of tobacco and bales of silk. There were casks of rum and hundreds of bottles of wine. There were more rifles and more ammunition—enough, Rob thought, for an army. All these, in proper order, and with each separate quantity specified, Rob noted in his tally.

This took all of two days. By the time the loading was finished Torrevo had slept off his drunkenness and the "Black Cat" set sail again for the south.

Rob had done a simple act, but it was destined to have great influence on his future, as also upon Torrevo's. Had Torrevo foreseen the result of that spree he would undoubtedly have restrained himself and remained sober.

At last, after three weeks' voyaging, the "Black Cat" reached her anchorage in the little bay. One of the crew was sent ashore by Torrevo, and Rob learned that this method was used to notify Captain Elvin when the "Black Cat" arrived with a contraband cargo. In a few hours the tall, ugly Englishman reached the place on horseback, and was followed by the same gang of swarthy laborers Rob had seen before. Rob was in constant fear lest Lemuel Starne—or Lemuel Elvin—should also come and recognize him. But the younger man never came there unless on urgent business with his father, and Rob was safe this time.

THE CHRYSANTHEMUM.

Thought Worthy of a Show All to Itself in 1830.

The National Chrysanthemum society was instituted just fifty-three years since, in 1846, says the Saturday Review. The flower which it has taken under its patronage, upon whose aggrandizement it has bestowed so successfully such patient and ingenius care, has been established among us only a little over a century. The first time it was thought worthy of a "show" all to itself was in 1830. Fancy if one of those early patrons could have dropped in at the exhibition recently and seen what his favorites had attained to! Surely he would have thought himself translated. The very generic name of the plant, the "golden flower," at first so pertinent, has lost its distinctiveness. There are golden chrysanthemums still, it is true; yellow blossoms incomparable for purity and brilliance, but what of all these other colors not less brilliant and pure, these rich damasks, royal purples, flushed pinks, this dazzling white that puts a snowdrift to shame, at last actually a bloom that is just sea green? Color, size, form, growth, all have undergone a change that half a century ago it entered into no man's heart to conceive. And the end is not yet, it may be; the last wonder has not yet been revealed to us; so limitless in its possibilities and potency is that "affectation of Men to gratifie the Pleasure of their Eyes, inciting them to push on things to more and more Perfection."

The Spectacle Habit.

"It is a singular and grotesque fact," said an eye specialist of New Orleans to a Times-Democrat man, "that a great many uneducated people get into the spectacle habit without any need whatever for wearing glasses. Take for instance, a man whose eyes become a little inflamed from exposure to the sun or some other cause. His sight is all right, and what he really needs is a soothing lotion of some sort to allay the irritation of the membrane. Very frequently, however, he will imagine that he requires a pair of spectacles, and will buy them at the cheapest place he can find without the slightest regard to the suitability of the lenses. In nine cases out of ten it is almost impossible for him to see through the things, but he will wear them as much as he can, believing that his eyes are being benefited. Such instances are astonishingly common among the poorer classes, and the peddlers who go through the country districts always carry several dozen cheap 'specs' in their packs. They find a ready sale. I have had several country people come to me for treatment who were wearing glasses that contained only one lens. They would explain that they took the other one out so they could see to get around. When they were fitted with proper lenses they were very much surprised to find they could see better through them than with their natural eyes. The wearing of spectacles in some remote rural districts amounts almost to a superstition—when people arrive at a certain age they believe they ought to put them on, regardless of their actual vision."

WAS CRUEL PARENT

Evidence in the Nelson Murder Case at Kearney.

REASON WHY SON KILLED HIS FATHER

Incensed at Abuse of Small Brother, He Clubbed the Old Man to Get Even—Did Not Intend to Kill—Coroner Investigating Murder.

The coroner's jury has been impaneled and at present is investigating the murder of C. M. Nelson, which occurred November 5, and which was unearthed Sunday last, when his body, minus the head and one arm, was found in a ravine about 200 yards from his home.

But three persons have been examined, the two sons of Nelson and S. A. Grahnt, an uncle of the murdered man's wife. The youngest son told of the manner in which his brother had killed his father, and how they had taken away his body after the deed had been done. It is claimed that the father had always treated the boys in a very brutal way, that a day seldom passed when one was not knocked down and beaten. In the short time before Nelson was killed he had knocked his seven-year-old son down with a club, and threatened the older one.

The deed was committed at the water tank about dark, when Nelson and his oldest son were doing the evening work. The son was watering a cow, when his father came down to where he was, and upon stooping over was struck upon the head with a fork handle and killed instantly.

The son says he did not intend to kill his father, but was mad because his small brother had been beaten, and wished to even up things by returning the blow. When he found that his father was dead he procured a rope and tied it around his feet, harnessed a horse, as he says, and dragged the old man over the hill and covered him up. The boy says Grahnt was present when the crime was committed and knows all about it. This Grahnt denies, and he is trying to prove that when the deed was done he was in a saloon in Kearney.

Coroner Dr. Bennett explained to the jury from a medical standpoint the left side of the skull found near Nelson's house, and showed that the head had been eaten off by pigs, as also was the arm. Several witnesses were called to testify that Grahnt was in town at noon and dusk, when the deed was committed, and was therefore not a party to the tragedy. The coroner's jury rendered a verdict that C. M. Nelson came to his death by being hit head with a pitchfork in the hands of his son, Theodore Nelson.

District court will convene January 23, at which term Nelson will be tried.

Coroner Bennett of Buffalo county had a number of men out at Nelson's farm hunting for the arm and remainder of the head that was missing when the body was found. Ten small pieces of bone were found, all of which belonged to the skull. Part of them were in the hog lot and the remainder around the barn. The search will be continued until the whole body is found.

TRAINS MEET AT A SIDING

Collision of Burlington Passengers at Atlanta.

Passenger trains Nos. 1 and 2 collided at Atlanta Monday. Fortunately no one was seriously injured. Atlanta is the passing point, and it is difficult to find out just how it happened that the two engines collided on the main track near the entrance of the siding. The engine of No. 7 was derailed and the pilot smashed on the other train. The passengers were shaken up quite lively and some of the train men and mail clerks received minor cuts and bruises. W. P. Server, who travels for Fairbanks, Morse & Co., fared the worst of the passengers, as he was thrown up against a chair, striking the arm with his side. No. 1 was run back to Holdrege and the train was delayed while the wreck was cleared up, which took some five or six hours. The east-bound train was backed up to Oxford and run around by Red Cloud to Hastings.

Will Ask for Mandamus.

County Attorney Shields of Douglas will go before the supreme court next week when it convenes, and ask for a writ of mandamus to compel Allyn Frank to comply with the law regarding the fees of the district clerk's office. If the supreme court can be persuaded to take original action in the case the delay incident to appeal proceedings can be avoided and the constitutionality of the law quickly determined.

Farmer Drops Dead.

While loading hogs into a wagon, Henry Hall, residing four miles east of Bladen, dropped dead. Mr. Hall has been afflicted with heart trouble, which, however, was not thought to be of a serious nature. He was a well-to-do and highly respected farmer. He leaves a wife and several children.

Sneak Thieves at Orleans.

Orleans has been infested with some light-fingered gentry for the past few nights, many residences having been entered and occupants disturbed, with slight losses reported so far. The residence of A. M. Beersford was entered and $39 taken from the pockets of Mr. Beersford's trousers. The residence of Thomas Lorimer was entered with no loss; also the cellar of W. R. Beddes. There is no clue to the perpetrators so far. The citizens are being aroused and effort will be made to bring the culprits to justice.

STATE CANNOT PAY FARE

Claims of Soldiers Are to Await Legislative Action.

Adjutant General Barry hears occasionally of a member of the First Nebraska volunteers who did not come home with his regiment from San Francisco and who wants the state to reimburse him for the railroad fare he paid. The state secured subscriptions and thus made up a purse to pay the fare of the entire regiment. A few members of the regiment came home before it started and some came straggling home afterward. The soldiers as a rule did not make application to be carried free, when the regiment moved, and for this reason they were left out of the accounts. The accounts were closed and the remainder of the state's fund was returned to the subscribers.

Before the accounts were closed provision was made for the return of the soldiers who were unable to return with the regiment on account of wounds or sickness. General Barry has issued a telegraphic order for transportation for Lieutenant Wadsworth of Beatrice, who was a member of company B, Fullerton. Lieutenant Wadsworth is now in the general hospital at the Presidio. He was wounded in the leg and his injuries were of such a serious nature that several surgical operations had to be performed. He is now able to travel and will come home.

MAHER PREPARED TO FIGHT

Claims to Have a Thousand Men Ready to go to Africa.

John G. Maher of Chadron, who is reported to be raising a regiment in this country to go to the Transvaal in aid of the Boers, when questioned in relation to the story guardedly confirmed the published statements. It is understood that he has the names of 1,000 men who are ready to go to the Transvaal as soon as means can be raised to transport them thither.

The plan is to embark them as citizens emigrating to that land to go in to farming or the mines, and thus avoid interruption by the federal authorities under the requirements of international law.

It will take about $200 per man to take them thither, and steps are said to be under way in New York, Chicago, Omaha and other cities to raise the money. The applicants are not by any means all Irishmen, as there are Americans, Germans, Swedes and other nationalities among them, and some young women have even written for the privilege of going along as nurses.

HIS EMPLOYER THE TARGET

Manuel Peebles Fires a Shot at A. J. Peterson.

At Lincoln Manuel Peebles fired a shot through a window at A. J. Peterson, proprietor of the Washington hotel, about supper time Wednesday evening. The shot was wild, the bullet lodging in the window casing and doing no damage. Peebles fled and has not been seen since.

The story of the affair told to the police indicates that Peebles had been drinking considerably before he fired at Peterson. He had been working at the hotel for some time for very small wages. Wednesday he wanted some money to get a shave and pay his laundry bill. This was given him. Then he asked for a quarter to buy a drink with and was refused. This angered him and he made threats against the proprietor, Mr. Peterson, showing a revolver and remarking that it would "smoke before morning." When the shot was fired Mr. Peterson was in the kitchen. The shot came from the outside.

Found Wandering in Sand Hills.

A demented Norwegian, probably sixty years of age, was found wandering among the sand hills a few miles south of Ainsworth. Word was sent to Sheriff Curry, and he brought the man in. The man was declared insane and the sheriff ordered to take him to the asylum at Norfolk. Later word was received that there was no room in the asylum and that the authorities would refuse his admittance. Just what will be dono is not decided. The patient gave his name as Hans Hansen and his age as forty-nine. He is smooth-faced, has long yellow, unkempt hair, is about five feet five inches in height and weighs about 120 pounds. Nothing can be gleaned farther and where he came from or who he is cannot be ascertained.

Appeals to Supreme Court.

Gordon Leroy Davis, a sixteen-year-old boy of Omaha, recently secured a judgment for $2,000 against a firm of candy manufacturers, Kopp, Kreibus & Co., for whom he had been working. His arm was injured by a pulley and belt which he had been ordered to adjust. He claimed the firm was liable and the jury gave a verdict in his favor. The firm has appealed the case to the supreme court.

Unique Flooring in London.

An interesting feature of the London coal exchange is its floor. It is constructed of inlaid wood, arranged so as to represent the mariner's compass. Woods of many kinds went to the making of the pavement, among them being black ebony, English oak of various hues, white holly, elm (both English and American), red and white walnut and mulberry. Some of the slabs of wood, of which there are altogether 4,000, have interesting historical associations. One piece, forming the haft of the dagger represented in the city corporation arms, is a portion of a tree planted by Peter the Great when he worked as a shipwright at Deptford.

The Origin of "Tips."

Few people know the origin of the word "tip." It comes from the old coffee houses, of which, I believe, Offley's, in Henrietta street, Covent Garden, was the last survivor. At the door of these coffee houses was a box made usually of brass, with lock and key. It has engraved upon it the letters "T. I. P." (observe the stops between each letter). "To insure promptness." Customers, as they passed out, dropped a coin in for the waiters. Hence the word "tip."—London Globe.

Who are injured by the use of coffee. Recently there has been placed in all the grocery stores a new preparation called GRAIN-O, made of pure grains, that takes the place of coffee. Children may drink it with great benefit. 15 cents and 25 cents per package. Try it. Ask for GRAIN-O.

Whaling by Electricity.

It appears that electricity is to be used in killing whales. A dynamo is to be placed on a whaling ship. A big reel of insulated wire will be carried in a boat when a whale is sighted. One end of the wire is connected with the dynamo and at the other end will be a hard rubber stick attached to a piece of metal twenty-four inches long and one inch in diameter, sharpened at the end to penetrate the flesh of the whale. When near the big fish the harpooner will throw the barb. When it strikes the whale a connection will be formed with the dynamo, the whale will get the shock of ten thousand volts and will be dead in a second.

Late Battle of Ladysmith the Worst of the War.

LOSS ON BOTH SIDES VERY HEAVY

English Killed and Wounded Close to a Thousand—Boers More Than Double —The Announcement Made by a London Newspaper, Etc.

A London, January 12 special says: It is learned that in the attack on Ladysmith last Saturday, January 6, the British losses were fourteen officers killed, thirty-four wounded and over 800 non commissioned officers and men killed or injured. The Boer losses, we hear, are estimated at between 2,000 and 3,000.

The vanguard of the Sixth division is waiting at Table bay until the arrival of Lord Roberts. H. M. S. Fearless seized the bark Maria L., which arrived at Port Elizabeth Saturday from the Argentine with sulphur.

A dispatch from Pietermaritzburg, dated January 8, says:

"Private advices from Ladysmith dated January 2, says that rations of bread and meat are plentiful and the garrison had not then touched the "bully" beef and biscuit supplies. Luxuries are scarce in Ladysmith, but the hospitals are well supplied with milk and the horses are in good condition."

The Standard has the following dispatch dated Monday from Frere camp:

"Our patrols have searched both flanks of the Boer position. They found a large camp five miles east of Colenso, evidently in anticipation of a British attempt at a turning movement."

A Lorenzo Marques January 10th dispatch says: Inspection of travelers bound to the Transvaal is revived under an old law. No one will be allowed to proceed unless he declares before his consul that he has no intention of fighting for the Boers.

The text of his reply, which is an exhaustive exposition of the management of that branch of the treasury finances under his administration, relating to national bank depositories, contains about 9,000 words, which is supplemented by special reports from department officials relative to special inquiries in the resolutions, including copies of over 1,000 letters on the subject under consideration.

FIRE IN A SCHOOL BUILDING

Good Work of Teachers Alone Prevents Loss of Life.

Fire destroyed the Milan, Mich., public school Thursday. There were 300 pupils in the school buildings, and the fire obtained a good headway before it was discovered. The children became panic-stricken and but for the work of Preceptress Clara Eayes, of Adrian and Prof. C. H. Marrack loss of life might have resulted. Two pupils, Edith Cavenaugh and Emma Bentley, were badly burned and may die. Miss Eayes, after helping to get out the children, was compelled to jump from a window. She was not seriously injured. The building was valued at $10,000.

More Banks Designated.

The secretary of the treasury has closed the second group of banks which have deposited bonds and asked to participate in the temporary deposits of internal revenue funds. This group contains about seventy-five banks and represents about $10,000,000 in bonds deposited, making approximately $27,000,090 in all. The secretary's offer has been open since December 18 and it is not now expected that any additional banks will be designated.

TRAGEDY IN BOYD COUNTY

Insane Farmer Shoots a Neighbor and Then Himself.

Reports of a murder and suicide near Spencer, in Boyd county, Friday, have reached O'Neill. The victims of the tragedy are M. Nelson and M. Jacoby, farmers and neighbors. Jacoby, who is a member of the county board of supervisors, went to the home of Nelson, and with little provocation, it is claimed, shot the latter, killing him instantly. He made his escape, but was later found dead on the premises, having shot himself through the head.

It cannot be learned that the men quarreled, as they were always supposed to be friendly. A farmer who knows both men says he thinks Jacoby was insane. Both men are said to have been well-to-do and respected.

A Butte special says that M. H. Jacoby is the new fusion commissioner of Boyd county, living east of Butte. Reports of the tragedy show that he went across the road to Milton Nelson's and talked pleasantly and asked him to come to Butte with him. They went behind a shed, out of sight of Nelson's twelve-year-old boy to look at some stock, and as they came back Jacoby pulled a revolver, shot Nelson through the head, then ran fifty yards and blew out his own brains, both dying immediately. Two letters found on Jacoby stated that he had been accused of getting money wrongfully and of having another family. Both were denied by him in the letter which is dated the 7th. The men were highly respected. At the coroner's inquest, a verdict was rendered that Nelson was killed by Jacoby who was insane.

In June last the child went to a field where Kornstett was plowing, and was not seen again until two days later, when she was found in an abandoned well. She was taken out unconscious and died within a few hours. When arrested the youth admitted having thrown the child into the well after having brutally attacked her.

BULLER ADVANCES

Sends Word to London of a Forward Movement.

MOVE PROBABLY MEANS A BATTLE

English Can't Go Far Without Running Across Enemy—Ladysmith Is in Bad Straits—Garrison Kept Being Decimated by Disease.

A London, January 13 4 a. m. special says; Buller's twenty-eight words announcing his forward movement of Thursday is interpreted as meaning that he had passed around the western end of the Boer line of Colenso and is now several miles behind them, and within fourteen miles of General White's outposts at Ladysmith. The Boers, a few days ago, had forces with guns at Springfield, where General Buller dates his dispatch. These commandos have been obviously dislodged, either by fighting or by maneuvers, the Boers retiring across the Tugela as General Buller advanced.

From General Buller's dispatch, coupled with the fact that unofficial intelligence from the seat of war has virtually ceased since Monday, the deduction is drawn that important operations are in progress, as he cannot move far without going against the Boer entrenchments.

The death lists, from enteric fever and dysentery at Ladysmith, averaging from eight to ten daily are considered more serious than the 420 casualties of Saturday's fight, as they indicated the frightfully unsanitary condition of the beleaguered town. A letter from Ladysmith, dated December 7, says that even then ninety out of 540 men in the battalion of which the writer was a member were sick with dysentery or enteric fever, and according to a dispatch to the Daily Chronicle, dated January 8, the patients and attendants in Tombi camp where the hospital is, then numbered 2,800.

The war office this morning received the following dispatch from General Buller, dated Springfield, Thursday, January 11, at 9:20, evening: "I occupied the south bank of the Tugela river at Potgieter's drift this morning and seized point. The river is in flood. The enemy is strongly entrenched about four and a half miles to the north."

Apart from the definite news that General Buller has commenced a second attempt to cross the Tugela river, the only official news this morning is the list of casualties among the British officers in the fight at Ladysmith, Saturday, January 6, showing thirteen killed and twenty-seven wounded.

Banker Is Shot.

Maj. John F. Stone, one of the most widely known lawyers in Oklahoma and president of the People's bank of Kingfisher, was shot and killed at Crescent City, twelve miles west of Guthrie, by J. E. Walcher, who afterward made his escape. Walcher had mortgaged property to Stone to secure a loan and later mortgaged the same property to the Capital National bank of Guthrie, for which he was arrested and is still under bond. The shooting of Stone followed his attempt to foreclose on the goods.

Policeman Kills Burglar.

Fleeing to escape arrest on a charge of robbery and almost at the door of his home, John Burke was shot and instantly killed at Chicago by Policeman Joseph L. Tischart. The policeman had trailed three highwaymen for almost half a mile and surprised them as they were sharing their loot in an alley. Burke's companions escaped.

Fire at Colorado Springs.

The entire business portion of Colorado Springs was threatened by a fire which broke out in the May clothing store. Aided by a high wind, the flames spread rapidly, but they were controlled after three buildings were destroyed. The total loss is estimated at $150,000.

Get $15,000.

The McGinnis bank at Owensville, Ind., was entered and the safe blown open, the explosion completely wrecking the building. It is rumored that about $15,000 was taken, but the bank officials refuse to give any information. The burglars escaped on a handcar.

To Sell the Collateral.

At a meeting of the Boston clearing house association it was voted to sell the collateral held as security for the $3,500,000 in clearing house certificates issued to the Globe National bank before its collapse.

Soldier Indicted.

At New York the grand jury found an indictment for assault in the first degree against Willis Rosser, who shot Mr. Slater. Rosser, while a soldier, recently killed a man in San Francisco and was tried and acquitted.

GENERAL BATES IS MOVING

Americans Hard to Check and Many Towns are Taken.

General Otis has made a report to the war department in regard to the military operations in Luzon, south of Manila, showing a capture of several towns and a large number of prisoners with arms and ammunition. The message is as follows:

Manila, Jan. 12.—Continued operations by Bates' command south of Manila, with the Thirty-seventh and Thirty-ninth regiments at Calamba, commanded by Bullard. On January 1 Bullard, with two battalions of the Thirty-ninth, attacked a force of insurgents in the vicinity, driving the enemy and capturing the town of Cabayuo, and on the following day Binan. Enemy's loss, thirty killed, large number wounded, twenty prisoners captured; three Americans slightly wounded.

CHICAGO RIVER PURIFIER

Good Effect of Drainage Canal on a Murky Stream.

Ten days have elapsed since the waters of the Chicago river were turned into the drainage canal through a narrow sluiceway with a capacity of only sixty thousand cubic feet a minute. The waters of the river have been so purified that a sample of water taken from the river at Wells street was pronounced by chemists to be fit for drinking, after being boiled. It is better water than has been obtained many times from the city intakers out in Lake Michigan.

INSURGENTS MAKE A STAND

Colonel Bullard Has Stubborn Engagement, but Wins.

A Manila, January 11, dispatch says: Colonel Bullard, with the Thirty-ninth infantry, moving in three columns from Calamba, with two guns, attacked ten companies of insurgents, strongly entrenched on the Santa Thomas road. They resisted stubbornly, making three stands. Twenty-four of the rebels were killed and sixty prisoners were taken. The Filipinos retreated, carrying their wounded toward Lake Taal. One American was killed and two officers were slightly wounded.

Women Burned to Death.

Mrs. Mary Theobold, aged fifty-eight, was burned to death, and her daughter, Lucinda, aged twenty-eight, was perhaps fatally burned at their home in Louisville, Ky. Miss Theobold was filling a lamp in front of a stove. An explosion followed, setting fire to her clothing. In attempting to save her daughter Mrs. Theobold's clothing took fire and before assistance arrived she had burned to death.

Indicted and Hurried Away.

Max Deitring, the alleged embezzler from Springfield, Ill., was arrested by Sheriff C. M. Wood of Sangamon county, Illinois. The sheriff left for the east with his prisoner. The prisoner was hurried away to avoid the service of a writ of habeas corpus. Deitring's attorney says the proceedings are illegal.

December Exports.

Exports from the United States for December were $67,783,500, as against $93,494,868 for December, 1898. For the twelve months the exports amounted to $712,031,925, as against $789,995,103 for the twelve months of 1898.

To Clean Stained Whitegoods.

Put half an ounce of salts of tartar into a bottle with half an ounce of sal ammoniac, add half a pint of warm water and shake the bottle until the salts and the sal ammoniac have dissolved. Stretch the stained portion of the fabric over a small basin and pour some of the liquid over it. If the stain has been recently made it will soon disappear, but if the linen has already been washed it will probably be necessary to repeat the process several times, and the fabric should be very gently rubbed now and then. When the mark is no longer visible rinse the linen at once in hot water and then wash it well with soft soap and hot water and let it dry in the sun.

Great Britain's Locomotives.

There are 19,914 locomotives at work on the railways of the United Kingdom, and each of these on an average runs 19,096 miles in a year, and earns for this £4,573, so that each mile the locomotive runs its gross receipts are about 4s 9d. Like the human factor in all industries, the locomotive today is doing more than that of ten years ago, but, unlike the human factor, engines are now earning less; the 15,924 locomotives then on the railway each ran 19,035 miles and earned £4,929 per annum. If, therefore, we take the cost of an average locomotive at £2,700, it is found that she earns in gross receipts her total cost in seven months, but the profits are quite another matter.

Amazing Longevity.

Instances of amazing longevity are by no means uncommon in Russia, but the case of the brothers Kovalenko, aged respectively 112, 118 and 120 years, is certainly very remarkable even for that country. The three brothers have lived in the same place all their lives, and are still strong and healthy. The eldest, Michael, is of the same age as was Moses at his "passing," and of him, as of that old world worthy, it can be truly said that "his eye is not dimmed nor his natural force abated." The ages are perfectly authentic, for the Russians always have their papers, in which the date of their birth is officially entered, and without which they cannot reside in any part of the empire.

A New Sea Port.

There is a lusty young city growing up down in Texas which is attracting widespread attention. It is La Porte, located at the head of Galveston Bay. It is being made the great seaport of the Gulf of Mexico, the meeting place of rail and water ways for the vast commerce of the west. The saving to western shippers via this export outlet will run into millions annually. The city has the most magnificent natural port on the southern coast of the United States and one of the best in the world. The U. S. government is completing a deep water channel through the bay to the gulf, which will soon bring the largest ocean liners to La Porte docks and wharfs.

Cows Who Wear Glasses.

Cattle with spectacles are to be seen on the Russian steppes. The steppes are covered with snow more than six months of the year. The cows subsist on the tufts of grass which crop above the snow, and the rays of the sun on the snow are so dazzling as to cause blindness. To obviate this calamity it occurred to a kind-hearted man to protect the cows' eyes in the same way as those of human beings, and he manufactured smoke-colored spectacles, which could be safely worn by cattle. These spectacles were a great success, and are now worn by 40,000 cattle, who no longer suffer from the snow blindness which once caused such suffering among them.—Collier's Weekly.

Lake Superior and the Rainfall.

Lake Superior appears to exercise a greater effect upon the annual amount of precipitation of rain and snow near its shores than any other of the great lakes. The average precipitation in a year is about eight inches greater on the southern than on the northern side of Lake Superior. Lakes Erie and Ontario also show more precipitation on their southern than on their northern shores, but the difference is only three inches annually. In the case of Lakes Huron and Michigan, it is the eastern shores as compared with the western which get the largest precipitation, but the difference is not great.

MURDEROUS MICROBES

Breeding and Feeding in Human Intestines.

A New Powerful Germ Destroyer Discovered—How Microbes Are Killed While You Sleep.

Millions of microbes, bacteria, ptomaines, disease-germs of every kind live and breed and feed in the stomach and bowels.

For their propagation it is only necessary for the liver and intestines to become lazy and operate irregularly.

Modern science has been at work to find a means of killing microbes, and the most successful germ destroyer of all is Cascarets Candy Cathartic. They slaughter bacteria wherever they find them, are antiseptic, stop sour stomach, make the liver lively, the blood pure, the bowels regular, everything as it should be.

Go buy and try Cascarets to-day. It's what they do, not what we say they'll do, that proves their merit. All druggists, 10c, 25c, or 50c, or mailed for price. Send for booklet and free sample. Address, The Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago, Montreal, Can.; or New York.

This is the CASCARET tablet. Every tablet of the only genuine Cascarets bears the magic letters "C C C." Look at the tablet before you buy, and beware of frauds, imitations and substitutes.

Kaiser Pleased with a Boy's Tenacity.

The German kaiser had the other day a curious adventure with one of his numerous godchildren. Every seventh boy in the same family, if the parents are in humble circumstances, is named after and educated at the expense of the kaiser. On the kaiser's arrival at Remscheid, one of these godchildren was deputed to offer him a bouquet. The small boy, however, at the last minute utterly refused to part with the flowers. The kaiser, however, only laughed and patted him on the head, and said, "Yes, when a German once lays his hands on anything he does not readily give it up," and ordered fifty marks to be given to the obstinate youngster.

The Table Rock Argus.

F. H. TAYLOR, Publisher.

The new free silver paper at Pawnee City is said by leading fusionists to be assured. It's editor is to be a Mr Williamson who hails from Missouri, and hot times may now be expected, at our county capital. We understand the new paper is to be started out with a guaranteed circulation of 600.

As we read our exchanges of the past two weeks, we notice many write-ups of the home town, and on all of these the prevailing thought is that the past year was the most prosperous ever witnessed and these write-ups were not confined to republican papers, but were in papers of every political complexion.

Our army losses in the Philippines covering the whole period back to the beginning of hostilities with Spain are 364 killed, 203 died of wounds and accidents, 783 died of disease, and 1892 wounded. The total is 3242, or about one-third of the British losses from bullets, disease and captures in South Africa.—St Louis Globe Democrat.

The Argus has received the World-Herald Year Book for 1900 and it is a cyclopedia of statistics and history of real value for the office, home or farm. If you want a reference book we advise you to get it. It will be mailed to you direct from the World-Herald office for 25 cents, or you can leave 25 cents with the Argus editor and he will get for you.

The impeachment proceedings against Treasurer Maurer terminated last week by an unanimous acquittal of the charges preferred against him. The lawyers in the case hurled such endearing epithets as "liar," "scoundrel," "thief" etc. at each other, and Col. Colby one of the prime instigators of the move, refused to make an argument until apologies were made, and as they were not forthcoming the eloquent Colby did not make his speech.

The county commissioners at their meeting Tuesday, January 2d, counted the money on hand with the county treasurer and on deposit in the several banks. They found that the county had a cash balance on hand of $35,142.61. Of this amount $12,500 was in gold on deposit with the Farmers National bank, the estimated weight of which was 46 pounds, considerably more than a man would care to hold out at arm's length. Treasurer Strunk will finish his settlement with the commissioners this week, when a detailed statement will be published.—Pawnee Republican.

WHAT IT IS ABOUT.

The following succinct statement of the causes of the war in South Africa is made by the Interior, of Chicago, the organ of the Presbyterian church. Six principal points are involved in the arbitrament precipitated by the formal declaration of war by the Boer government. They are:

First—Taxation without representation. The British government demanded for British subjects that this should be rectified. This was what was meant by the diplomatic controversy over the "franchise". The Boers finally made the concession that five years of residence and the oath of allegiance to the Boer republic should entitle an outlander to vote. But this concession was placed under limitations which practically nullified it. It was not an honest offer. The imperial government demanded a five year limit to political incompetency, and that the ballot should not be subjected to any nullifying conditions. This the Boers refused, unless the British government should renounce suzerainty. The latter refused to discuss that question and the Boers then withdrew the offer.

Second—Trial by jury. British subjects are not allowed a trial by a jury of their peers, as under the laws of all English-speaking peoples. A British subject under the Boer oligarchy must be tried by a jury of Boers.

Third—Education. In the public schools the English language is not allowed. As the population of Johnnesberg is twenty English to one Boer this was a virtual exclusion of English children from the schools. The imperial government demanded, on behalf of British subjects, that the two languages should stand on an equality —English speakers to have the same benefits as those exclusively given to the Dutch. This was refused.

Fourth — Municipal government. There are only about 1,000 Boers in Johannesburg to 23,000 outlanders. The Boer government clung to its exclusive right to govern the English city without the consent of the governed.

Fifth—Extortionate taxation. Before the English discovered and developed the Kimberley and Witwatersrand mines the total income of the Boer government was about six million dollars. It is now four times that amount, or a levy upon the outlanders of $19,000,000 per annum, the expenditure of which the taxpayers are allowed no voice.

Sixth—Slavery. Though this does not appear in the diplomatic discussion, it has effected the sentiments of British subjects toward the Boers. The natives are practically enslaved by them. They call it "apprenticeship," but native youths are held to work and labor without compensation during the most effective period of their lives, namely, till the age of twenty eight. After that age they are held to service by terrorism in many, if not most, instances. This is highly repugnant to the British constitution, whose glory has long been that no slave can tread on British soil. The earth emancipates him the instant he stands upon it.

These are the issues upon which the Transvaal and the Orange Free State have thrown down the gauge of battle. The contention was not over the right of the Boers to self-government. That the imperial government has never questioned nor made any attempt to circumscribe. The demand of the English is that Englishmen within the limits of the British empire shall have equal enjoyment of that right with all others. If that had been conceded, the imperial government would have left the people of the Transvaal to settle all matters of domestic concern to suit themselves.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C. January 13, 1900. (Special Correspondence) One of the vital questions before the present Congress is the attitude of the southern states toward the Negro vote. One proposition has been offered in connection with the census enumeration, which will hereafter base the representation in Congress the number of votes recorded in each state, instead of on the total population. If this go through it will either compel the states to allow the colored citizens to vote, or it will cut the representation of these states to about one-half what they now have. The debate on this question, a small part having already been made, promises to be red hot, as the southern democrats are united in the idea that Negro suffrage ought not to be allowed.

That a man is a silver-tongued does not always mean that he is sagacious. This government, right or wrong. This was shown a few days ago in the senate, when one of the Aguinaldo members was howling about the "unauthorized war" Senator Stewart of Nevada said in reply:

"The legislation increasing the regular army to 65,000 and authorizing a volunteer force of 35,000 men, and three regiments to be organized in the Philippines was for the expressed purpose of prosecuting the war and suppressing the insurrection in the islands. The war under the authority of Congress has been carried on for about eleven months, until it is too late to inquire how the United States became involved in it. If the inquiry had been made in February last it might have been pertinent, but now, after my country has been engaged in war under authority of the legislative and executive branches of this government, and after thousands of precious lives have been sacrificed and millions expended under the authority of the war-making power, it is my country's war, and the origin or motive of the war cannot now be questioned, the lives sacrificed and the money expended to prove that the war was wicked in its origin."

Compare this patriotic stand with the sentiments recently expressed by Bryan. The question is, how are the fusionists all going to be able to stand on a tagal platform in the coming campaign?

From a perusal of old books and documents in the national library one learns that even the great Thomas Jefferson was a little mixed on his finance and commercial ideas, and was quite liable to change his mind. One hundred and twenty years ago he wrote and published the idea that it would be better for the United States to abandon the sea entirely, and to allow all foreign goods to be carried in foreign ships. Thus, he said, in case of foreign war we would have no property on the high seas to be damaged. In the meantime, he thought it would be best for the American people to all engage in agricultural pursuits, allowing manufacturing to be done elsewhere.

A few years later Jefferson was a rampant expansionist. As the saying is, he became "land hungry," and could not wait for congress to act before he commenced to add to the territory of the United States.

It is well known now that, his latter idea of increasing the domain was a good one, while his theory of the country crawling into a hole in the matter of commerce and trade was the veriest bosh. No doubt he came to that conclusion himself before he left the presidential chair.

In the meantime Senator Allen has so far forgotten the Jeffersonia teachings that he has introduced a bill in the present Congress "to Encourage the Employment of the American Merchant Marine."

The February Delineator.

Within the year the love story of Mr. and Mrs. Browning has become public property and endeared these two poets to all who believe in the uplifting power of human affection. America, too, has had in the literary world a similarly beautiful story, of which but little is known and practically nothing has been published. The life of Nathaniel Hawthorne and his wife was most pure and devoted in all its relations. This hitherto unpublished romance is delicately treated in the February number of The Delineator, under the title "A Romancer's Love Story." It is illustrated with Mrs Hawthorne's picture, reproduced by permission from a family portrait. The aspect of this delightful woman is almost unknown to American women.

If we may judge by the frequent conversations on the subject among women, there is today a marked revival of interest in embroidering—both in colors and in white, always a fascinating and beautiful employment. In recognition of this development, The Delineator—now in its 55th volume—introduces in the February number some dainty specimens of colored embroideries in an artistic plate, supplemented by designs and working instructions for the details.

Our lady readers will, no doubt, hail with great pleasure this initial instalment of the new department, which would seem to cap the efforts of the publishers of The Delineator to make this charming magazine a delight to its patrons. It will be well worth the while of any woman educated in needlework, who may not be a subscriber, to secure a copy of the February issue (15 cents; any newsdealer).

It is the only harmless remedy that gives immediate results. Cures coughs, colds, hoarseness, croup, pneumonia, bronchitis and all throat and lung troubles. Its early use prevents consumption.

Walter Cox who haa been a B. & M. brakeman running from Table Rock to Lincoln for three or four years, and who has made his home in this city during that time, drew his pay on Friday and on Saturday morning was missing, leaving his wife here, to face an indebtedess of nearly $300, owed to various business men about town. Mrs. Cox went to Tecumseh Sunday and returned on Monday, when attachment papers were served on her, for the household effects She settled with those pushing the suits by giving notes with a Tecumseh gentleman as security and on Tuesday took her goods to Tecumseh. She claims to know nothing of her husband's whereabouts.—Walt had the reputation of being a good railroad man, had steady work, and with a few months of economy on his part would have paid his indebtedness and won the esteem of everybody, but, apparently he "wasn't built that way!"

The modern and most effective cure for constipation and all liver troubles—the famous little pills known as DeWitt's Little Early Risers.

TO THE PUBLIC: In order to correct a misunderstanding which seems to exist in the minds of the public, in regard to Elder W. B. Green severing his relation as pastor of the church at Table Rock; I feel it justice to both Elder Green and the church, to make the following explanation. Elder Green began his labors for the church in May 1899, and continued for thirty-two Sundays, for which the church paid him $9.60 per Sunday, amounting to $307.20, which he he has received and receipt for in full. In August, Elder Green expressed a desire to resign and go into Evangelistic work. In December he handed in his resignation, which was of his own free will. The church did not ask him to resign. The church and pastor severed their relation on good terms, as was proven by the church presenting him with an overcoat for a Christmas present. There is not a member in the church, who does not wish Elder Green success and prosperity in new field of labor, Evangelistic work. Now, I hope this will vindicate Elder Green and the church against the charges done, gossip has brought against them, viz.: keeping their pastor on starvation wages, and then turning him off. W. L. CRISLER, Church Clerk.

Mrs. J. H. Iron, of Galena, Ks., was in the city last week visiting friends. Her daughter, Mrs Mary Talcott, of Tecumseh, also spent a few days here. Mrs. Iron was a former resident of Pawnee City.—Pawnee Republican.

The case against Walter Layton, J. E. Keiser and L. H. Quimby, charged with keeping intoxicating liquors for sale, was on for preliminary hearing before Judge Barton in county court last Friday. Quimby was discharged, but the other two were held to the district court in bonds of $500.

Having a Great Run on Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Manager Morton, of the Pierson drug store, informs us that he is having a great run on Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He sells five bottles of this medicine to one of any other kind, and it gives great satisfaction. The sales are growing, and all who try it are pleased with its prompt action.—South Chicago Daily Calumet. For sale by S G Wright, Druggist.

Dr. Shepherd will deliver the fourth of the Epworth League lecture course at the opera house on next Thursday evening. His subject will be Jonathan and John, and will no doubt prove one of the most interesting numbers of the course. Revival meetings will begin at the M. E. church next Sunday morning conducted by Evangelist Potter, of Atlantic, Iowa, one of the leading evangelists of the west. The smallpox in the vicinity of DuBois is apparently of a more virulent form than that which prevailed in Table Rock last summer. The dread disease is not in the town, but in the country in Richardson county, and day before yesterday a man named George Cope, who lived with his brother-in-law on a farm three miles from the village, died. Rumor has it that Richardson county physicians who were called upon to look after the cases, refused to attend, and it was hard work to get people enough present to properly bury the deceased.

I desire to thank the townsmen of our city who so generously contributed of their money as well as labor in the erection of my new domicile in which I am again made comfortable. Especial thanks is due Messers Lane and Cotton for brick furnished, for the construction of the building and to Messers Eb Decker, Den Patchin and Art Brown for their untiring efforts in the construction of the same. A progressive crokinole party was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. J. Wood, on Thursday evening of last week. Some forty guests were present, and the event proved one of the most interesting of the season. Refreshments were served and it was up in the wee small hours of the night, when the guests took their departure. CHAPTER IX.—(Continued.)

The unloading began at once, and Captain Elvin took from the hand of Torrevo the tally Rob had made in Brazil.

He looked at it with a keen scrutiny, then his sharp eyes searched Torrevo's face. But he said nothing then.

Rob was compelled by Torrevo to do his part in the unloading the same as before, but this time Torrevo did not beat him. Somewhere, deep down in that outlaw's heart, there was a tender spot, and Rob had found it.

When the cargo was all safely stowed away in the cave, the very dampness of which made Rob shudder at the memory of his former experience, Captain Elvin called Torrevo one side.

"Who wrote this?" he asked, thrusting the paper under Torrevo's nose.

"Why?" asked Torrevo, to gain time. He did not know what was coming.

"Because I want to know," answered Elvin. "This is not your writing. There is not one of your gang that can write like this. Who did it?"

"My nephew," said Torrevo, holding himself up proudly, as if to let Elvin see that there were educated people in his family, and he was proud of the fact. "When we loaded at Rio I was ill. I could not take the tally, and I set my nephew at it. He did it very well, as you see."

"Very well, indeed. And what is the name of this nephew of yours?"

"Ricardo Torrevo—the same as my own."

"'M. 'M. He does not look like you. Where did he get his light complexion?"

"From his mother, Senor Captain. She was an American lady."

"'M. 'M. And how does he stand? Is he with us? Can he be trusted?"

"With our lives. That boy is true as steel. Oh, you need not fear him, captain. I would not take him on the 'Black Cat' if I did not trust him."

"How much does he know—about our plans, I mean?"

"All that I know. I am not in the secret correspondence, captain."

"No—you drink too much. But, if this nephew can be trusted, I can make good use of him."

Torrevo stared.

"Good use, captain?"

"Yes, bring him here."

Rob still wore the Spanish outfit, as Torrevo had ordered him to do. In fact, his own clothes had been thrown away at sea. That much danger of recognition had been done away with.

"Ricardo," said Torrevo, when Rob had answered his call, "Capt. Elvin speaks well of your work."

"Where did you learn to write?" asked Elvin.

"At school in New York," replied Rob, unthinkingly.

"'Tis so," said Torrevo, quickly. "His mother spent most of her time there, and Ricardo went to the American schools."

Elvin nodded.

"You come with me, Ricardo," he said. "I need a penman like you."

Rob's heart beat faster, and Torrevo stood aghast. If Elvin took Rob away from him, what might not happen? By a word the young American might let out the secret, and then it would be all up with him and Torrevo.

"Get whatever you have on board," said Elvin, "and come along."

Torrevo and Rob went back to the schooner.

"I don't know what this means," said Torrevo, anxiously. "But I warn you. You are my nephew. If you let out the secret of your escape from drowning your life won't be worth a peso; and I will lose mine as well. Now, remember what I say. You are Ricardo Torrevo. Remember your name, and do not allow Elvin to suspect. Keep out of the young one's sight. If Lemuel sees you he may know you. If he does, you are a dead man. Do you hear?"

"Yes," said Rob. "I will be careful."

"And if anything does occur—anything that you cannot help—and you think you are in danger, come here at once. I shall remain here with the schooner for some time, till I know that all is safe. Of course, I won't tell Elvin that. But you will find me here, if you need to escape in a hurry."

Rob thanked the peculiar captain of the "Black Cat," and with the few things he had on board, most of which Torrevo had given him, he rejoined Elvin.

CHAPTER X.

The Englishman saw that the rock was securely placed at the opening of the cave, and then ordered Rob to follow him. He rode off towards the interior, and paid no further attention to the young fellow trudging behind him.

They traveled in this way for several miles, and at last came to an old estate on the plain. There was a stone house, one-storied, with many windows and wide porticos. Elvin turned into the avenue that led from the rough and little traveled road, and dismounted at the door of this house. There was little about the place that indicated it to be occupied. The land was not cultivated. There were men about the stables, and one came forward and took the Englishman's horse. The captain then strode in at an open door.

Rob found the place comfortably furnished, but there was nothing about it, even with its interior comfort, that betokened the presence of a family. In fact, this out-of-the-way place was simply the headquarters of Richard Elvin and the gang of conspirators of which he was the leader.

They passed into a large room, and the Englishman called for supper. This was soon spread, and Rob ate heartily, for he was hungry after his long and hurried tramp. He was also excessively weary, and the captain noticed this.

"What's the matter?" he asked. "Are you played out?"

"Yes, captain," said Rob. "I walked fast after your horse."

"Well, go rest yourself. Tomorrow you will have plenty of work."

The plan of the house was commodious, even though it was but one story high. Rob was shown to a comfortable room, in which was a bed and other necessaries, and even luxuries, of a bedroom. This room opened off from a larger one, which seemed to be a sort of library or office. There were other rooms like Rob's, all arranged on two sides of a great hall. Three only opened from the office.

THEY TRAVELED SEVERAL MILES.

Rob was not slow in obeying the captain, and after bathing his aching limbs with cool water he went to bed. He was weary enough to sleep, notwithstanding the new dangers that confronted him. And he did fall asleep and remained in a doze for several hours. He awoke some time in the night, hearing voices outside in the office. The light of the moon came in through the one window of his room, and Rob was enabled to see. He lay there without trying to listen, but suddenly became aware that a voice he knew was speaking. It was Lemuel Starne.

"Yes," Starne was saying, "it was a lucky thing for me I got rid of that American cub when I did. Why, if he had ever reached old Horton, it would have been all up with me. And just as I am getting on so well, too. I have gained the old man's confidence, and am well on to that of the girl's. It would be a fine thing, after I work up my case, ingratiate myself with Horton and marry Elsie, to have the old fool leave his wealth to that young cub and leave me out in the cold. No, no. If I win any, I must win all. Some day old Horton will die, and then we shall control the wealth of South America. It was a most fortunate thing that I heard of his coming. It enabled me to meet him at Rio and chuck him overboard."

"What did Horton say about it?" asked Elvin.

"Oh, he was stricken with grief. But that will wear off. Elsie, the little fool, is crying yet. And she never saw the cub. Well, I'll take that out of her."

"Are you sure no one suspected you?"

Starne laughed harshly.

"Suspect me? Why, I was the most grief-stricken of the lot. When I reported the thing to the captain of the steamer I could scarcely control myself for weeping. And I've been assuaging Elsie's grief and comforting the old man ever since."

"When you are his son-in-law you can do it better."

"Oh, world's better."

Both laughed.

Rob lay quietly listening to this diabolical conversation. It made the mystery clear to him at last. Starne was trying to win the hand of his cousin Elsie, to get David Horton's fortune. And he wanted it all. That was the reason he threw Rob overboard—to get him out of the way and leave the path clear for his own plots and plans. Rob clenched his fists and shook with rage at this shameless story. Then fear overcame the rage, and he trembled with apprehension. Truly, he was in a bad fix now. In the very house with his enemy. Oh! if Starne would only leave before morning.

"What about the letters?" asked Starne, after a few moments of silence, in which Rob could distinguish the clinking of glasses.

"I suppose you came to write them," answered Elvin.

"Yes."

"Well, I have done better than that. It seems that Torrevo had a nephew with him who was educated in New York. He wrote the tally of the last cargo, and did it so well that I brought him here to write the letters. The plans are ripe now, and we must hurry."

"True enough. But was it safe to bring a stranger into it?"

"He is only a boy. And at any rate it was safer than for you to write them. You must not be known in the thing at all. There is always the possibility of failure, and if the revolution does not succeed, then you will have Horton's money to fall back on. You must not be known even as my son. I would advise you not to come here again, unless something important brings you."

"Just as you say. Had I better stay tonight?"

"No. Get back before daylight, and no questions will be asked. Don't run any risks. The stake you are playing for is worth all the caution you can use. Horton must be worth twenty millions."

"Forty, if a cent. And it will all be mine some day, and a lovely bride in the bargain."

"Well, be careful. I will have the notices sent out in cipher tomorrow, and by the following day the first steps will be taken to overthrow this hateful government."

"Hateful! I should say so."

Rob could now hear the preparations for departure, and soon a horse passed his window. Lemuel bade his father goodnight and rode away.

"I'll show them how to write letters tomorrow," said Rob to himself, as he clenched his fists again. "Perhaps Mr. Lemuel Elvin Starne won't come out so big as he thinks he will. Oh! wasn't it lucky that Torrevo made me write that tally? Now I can save my uncle and Elsie from the worst villain that ever lived."

It looked so easy to Rob. But there were difficulties of which he was entirely ignorant—difficulties that would blanch his cheek and make his heart almost stop beating when he learned them.

But at least his resolution was good, and proved the nobility of his soul.

GREAT MAN'S TENDER HEART.

An Incident of Lord Lawrence's Sea Voyage to India.

Lord Lawrence, viceroy of India, was a blunt man of action, impatient of contradiction, and thoroughly self-reliant. Yet, like many of the truly great, he had a heart as tender as a woman's. The night on which he started from London to govern India, he gathered all his family in the drawing room and made each child repeat a favorite hymn to him. His youngest son, 10 years old, nestled in his father's arms. Suddenly the strong man burst into tears. "I shall never," he cried, "see Bertie a child again!" It was not of the hardships before him, or of his own death he thought, but of the fact that Bertie would not be a child to him on his return. On board the steamer with the governor-general of India was a lady with her infant child. She neglected the baby, which revenged itself by crying day and night. The passengers complained in language more forcible than polite. "Stewart, throw that baby overboard!" was petulantly shouted from sleepless berths. At last Lord Lawrence, seeing that the child was left motherless by its own mother, took it on his knee. For hours he would hold it, showing it his watch and anything that would amuse it. The child took to the great, strong man and was always quiet when he held it. "Why do you, my lord," asked one of the relieved passengers, surprised to see the governor-general of India playing nurse to a crying baby, "why do you take such notice of that child?" "Because, to tell you the truth," answered Lord Lawrence, with a merry twinkle in his eye, 'that child is the only being in the ship who I can feel quite sure does not want to get anything out of me."—Pastimes.

A STRANGE ROMANCE.

That Connects New York of To-Day With Ezypt of 3,000 Years Ago.

A strange romance of history, connecting one of the oldest of lands and civilizations with the youngest of great nations and the most advanced system of government, finds its setting in New York. Three thousand years ago Egypt was one day thrown into a state of excitement by the birth at the imperial palace, of a princess of the royal line. Not alone was there rejoicing at the advent into the world of a future queen, but the father of the infant, the great Thothmes III., caused to be begun the hewing of an immense obelisk out of solid rock to commemorate the event. Years went by and the maiden blossomed into beautiful womanhood, while the obelisk was being worked upon by hundreds of skilled toilers. When it was at last finished and set up before the royal palace at Heliopolis she spent days in watching the strange hieroglyphics being cut upon it. Nearly all that we know of the history of the world has occurred since then, and yet today, after a lapse of thirty centuries, the body of that Egyptian princess, perfectly preserved, lies in state in the museum in Central Park, and not 200 feet away stands the hoary obelisk as if keeping guard over her remains. Thousands of miles from their former home, these reminders of the glory of dynasties now but a half-forgotten tradition of the remote past are strangely reunited. The obelisk is generally known as "Cleopatra's needle," while the mummy of the princess, whose name was Nofert, rests on a sarcophagus in the museum.

Not in His Line.

"So your neck pains you?" said the physician. "Yes, terribly," wailed the patient. "Sorry, sir, but I can't help you. I'm not a specialist in rubber."—Detroit Free Press.

RETAIN OLD HANDS

State Board of Agriculture Adjourns Its Meeting.

BOARD ACCEPTS THE OLD GROUNDS

President Bassett Announces Personnel of New Board of Managers—Session of State Farmers' Institute—Other Nebraska News.

The meetings of the state board of agriculture were sandwiched in with meetings of the state farmers' institute Wednesday. The board of agriculture met in the morning and elected officers, deferring the business session relating to the state fair till evening. The state farmers' institute held a morning, afternoon and evening session, at which many topics were discussed.

The board of agriculture re-elected all the officers. The list for the next year is; President, S. C. Bassett, Gibbon; first vice president, L. A. Beecher, Neligh; second vice president, E. McIntyre, Seward; secretary, Robert W. Furnas, Brownville. A. C. Peterson of Ashland was elected as member of the board to take the place of Senator M. L. Hayward.

President Bassett said that he believed the society would get the $4,000 appropropriation from the state which the society needs to pay premiums. Arrangements were completed for state fair grounds and the old grounds were accepted.

The state fair will be held the first week in September. An interesting session of the farmers' institute followed the board meeting.

THE MISSING MAN FOUND

Hamilton Stafford said to be in a Pennsylvania Town.

Mrs. Hamilton Stafford of Cortland has received a letter from her sister-in-law in Erie, Pa., dated January 12, saying that Mr. Stafford arrived there that day. He had been nine days on the road to Erie, and was out of money when he arrived. The letter does not state how he came to be out of money, as he started from Lincoln with something over $75. It says nothing either regarding his physical or mental condition.

Stafford left Lincoln on January 3, and since that time and until the letter was received nothing had been heard of him. It was believed that he had met with foul play. He was in Lincoln that day transacting some business. He paid a note of $24 to one man and was known to have more than $100 with him when he left home. He left his team in Smith's barn on R street. His disappearance was a sensation in police circles, and the suspicions of the officers might have led to an arrest within a day or two.

RIOT IN SCHOOL ROOM

Teacher at Cortland Defends Himself Vigorously.

A riot between the boys in the grammar room of the Cortland public schools and the teacher, J. G. Ludlam, occurred just after the morning recess Wednesday. There has for weeks been bad feelings between teacher and pupils. It seems to be mutually understood that this was the day hostilities were to be declared. Fred Young, a boy sixteen years old and the teacher had trouble, and a fight ensued. The scholar was badly whipped, first by the teacher's fist and later by a rawhide. Other scholars joined, as the teacher expected, but the pedagogue fought manfully and held his own with the aid of the rawhide. A number of the patrons have withdrawn their children. Arrests may follow.

No Place Like Home.

Lured from their homes by the blandishments of two tramps, who promised them money, and with visions of the pleasures of a great city, Frank and James Brown, two brothers, aged twelve and ten years respectively, appeared at the police station in Omaha and asked to be sent to their home near Deloit, Ia. The little fellows were cold and hungry, having walked the streets the greater part of one night, and they had come to the decision that running away from home was not so much fun after all.

Gift of a Lincoln Woman.

The ladies of St. Mary's Episcopal church at Nebraska City for some time past have been creating a fund to purchase a pipe organ and have about $500 on hand. They have been most agreeably surprised by Mrs. A. J. Sawyer of Lincoln, who has sent them a fine reed organ of the best make, which will be placed in position and used for the first time on the 28th inst. The gift is highly appreciated by the members of the church.

The famous old battle-scarred frigate Saratoga, now the schoolship of the Pennsylvania nautical school at Philadelphia, left for its annual cruise in West Indies with seventy-five boys, of whom twenty-five are now recruits.

The strike of the rod mill workers at Beaver Falls and Braddock, Pennsylvania, is on in full force. At Beaver Falls only three men reported and the rod mill could not be operated. The officials have asked for police protection, but there has been no violence.

The opening of Norfolk's new auditorium occurred with a good attendance of Norfolk people. The play presented was "Hamlet" by Walker Whiteside and his company. The building and its appointments are all that could be desired and such as would be creditable to a much larger city than Norfolk.

A large number of farmers living in the brakes of Turkey creek, fifteen miles southwest of Wilcox, organized a wild dog hunt and killed a number of wild canines which have for a time been infesting that region. A resolution looking toward separate schools for boys and girls from the fourth grade up through the high schools is to be introduced before the Chicago board of education. The new scheme will be based largely upon that in operation in the public schools.

TAKEN TO JAIL FOR SAFETY

An Indiana Murderer Is Threatened With Lynching.

A Petersburg, Ind., Jan. 15 dispatch says: Frank Percell and two companions, who are in jail at that place, are in imminent danger of being lynched on account of the killing of William Riss of Arthur, Ind., by Percell.

Riss was returning home from a party with two young men when he was met by Percell and two companions. Percell asked if the party was over, and being told that it was, drew his revolver and shot Riss in the eye, killing him instantly.

Percell and his companions were arrested and hurried away by officers to save them from the friends of the victim, who threaten to lynch them.

NEBRASKAN KILLED BY CARS

O. A. Putman of Washington Claimed as His Home.

A man killed by the cars a few miles from Washington D. C., recently, has been identified as O. A. Putman, a former Nebraskan. According to the story of the one or two associates of Putman he came to Weshington a year ago. He claimed to have a large cattle ranch in Nebraska, and said the blizzard of a year ago caused the death of most of his cattle. He claimed to have relatives in Nebraska and also at Topeka, Kan. At times he was considered flighty. The deceased was an old soldier and the Grand Army is looking after the funeral arrangements.

ORDERS RELEASE OF REESE

Federal Judge Thayer Says He Is Wrongfully Detained.

Judge Thayer in the United States court of appeals at St. Louis rendered a decision in the case of John P. Reese, a member of the United Mine Workers of America, who is now in jail at Fort Scott, Kansas for contempt of court, ordered his release. The contention of Reese, that the injunction under which he was imprisoned for addressing striking miners, did not apply to him, was upheld by Judge Thayer.

Judge Thayer rules that while a court may punish for any act that might be construed as an objection to the execution of the laws, it has no right to impose a penalty where independent or individual rights are involved. It was contended by counsel for defense that as the injunction did not include any save those who were citizens of Kansas, he could not be held amenable to it. It was chiefly on this point of non-jurisdiction that the case was submitted.

SOUGHT TO KILL THE JUDGE

Sensational Situation in Federal Court at St. Paul, Minn.

A St. Paul, Minn., Jan. 16 dispatch says: James Welch made a desperate attempt to assassinate Judge William Lochren of the federal court. Welch had a damage suit against the Northern Pacific for being thrown off a train at Mandan, N. D. After a trial lasting three days Judge Lochren last Friday took the case from the jury and delivered a verdict for the defendant. Welch appeared at Judge Lochren's chambers and leveled a revolver at the judge's head. Court Crier Conway, standing by, without hesitation jumped onto Welch and bore him to the floor. Welch was then overpowered and disarmed. He was locked in the judge's room until he might be arrested and jailed. But befor the arrival of the officers he smashed out a window and jumped from the second floor to the ground and escaped. He was arrested later. Welch is a partial paralytic thirty-three years old.

Youthful Smokers.

Charney, in the course of a scientific trip through Mexico and Central America, in 1880, became the guest of a family in the state of Tobasco. Not only did the father and mother smoke almost constantly, but the five children, two of them girls under 5, puffed away on big cigars. Their father assured his guest that smoking did not hurt the children a bit. According to other travelers, cigars are given as rewards for diligence in Mexican schools. In Paraguay in 1892 Forgues saw children of 5 or 6 smoking long cheroots. In his opinion, the whole race has been physically ruined by tobacco.

Plague is Under Control.

The steamer China has arrived at San Francisco from the orient via Honolulu. The China did not dock at Honolulu, but anchored off that port, the Hawaiian mail being carried out to the liner on tugs. Up to January 8 there have been nineteen new cases of the plague. The disease is now thought to be well under control of the health authorities.

"Prince Alberts" in the Congress.

The preponderance of "Prince Alberts" in this congress is a matter of general comment. "One would almost think a Prince Albert was the uniform of your house of representatives, don't you know," remarked a young lady of decidedly English accent, as she looked down on the slow-moving, black-clad figures on the floor.—Washington Star.

Alcohol for Automobiles.

The majority of motor cars are now driven by petroleum, but a French engineer recommends the use of alcohol instead, and motors are being altered so as to consume it. There is no fear of explosion with alcohol, and it is said to be less costly than petroleum.

The Craving for Stimulants

Has lately attracted a great deal of attention. The use of them seems to be increasing. This clearly shows an exhausted condition of the nerves and blood, which may be remedied only by strengthening the stomach. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will do this for you. It cures dyspepsia, constipation and nervousness.

Spasmodic charity is a poor substitute for the genuine article which endureth forever.

Seaport of the South.

It has long been evident that the rapidly increasing movement of grain and merchandise towards the southern seaboard would demand an increase of shipping facilities on the Mexican Gulf. The most promising seaport city is La Porte, at the head of Galveston Bay. Peculiar natural advantages surround LaPorte, notably its being the fartherest inland seaport on the Gulf, having high dry land with perfect drainage and the purest artesian water, a climate unsurpassed in the south and an attractive city site. The American Land Co., 188 Madison street, Chicago, is interested at LaPorte and announces the first general sale of property will be held Feby. 14-17, 1900.

The news that 60,000 American soldiers have crossed the Pacific; that, if necessary, the American Congress will make it 100,000 or 200,000 men; that, at any cost, we will establish peace and govern the islands, will do more to end the war than the soldiers themselves. But the report that we even discuss the withdrawal of a single soldier at the present time and that we even debate the possibility of not administering government throughout the archipelago ourselves will be misunderstood and misrepresented and will blow into flame once more the fires our soldiers' blood has almost quenched.

"THE BLOOD OF OUR SOLDIERS."

Mr. President, reluctantly and only from a sense of duty am I forced to say that American opposition to the war has been the chief factor in prolonging it. Had Aguinaldo not understood that in America, even in the American Congress, even here in the Senate, he and his cause were supported; had he not known that it was proclaimed on the stump and in the press of a faction in the United States that every shot his misguided followers fired into the breasts of American soldiers was like the volleys fired by Washington's men against the soldiers of King George his insurrection would have dissolved before it entirely crystalliezd.

The utterances of American opponents of the war are read to the ignorant soldiers of Aguinaldo and repeated in exaggerated form among the common people. Attempts have been made by wretches claiming American citizenship to ship arms and ammunition from Asiatic ports to the Filipinos, and these acts of infamy were coupled by the Malays with American assaults on our Government at home. The Filipinos do not understand free speech, and therefore our tolerance of American assaults on the American President and the American Government means to them that our President is in the minority or he would not permit what appears to them such treasonable criticism. It is believed and stated in Luzon, Paney, and Cebu that the Filipinos have only to fight, harass, retreat, break up into small parties, if necessary, as they are doing now, but by any means hold out until the next Presidential election, and our forces will be withdrawn.

All this has aided the enemy more than climate, arms, and battle. Senators, I have heard these reports myself; I have talked with the people; I have seen our mangled boys in the hospital and field; I have stood on the firing line and beheld our dead soldiers, their faces turned to the pitiless southern sky, and in sorrow rather than anger I say to those whose voices in Ameriea have cheered these misguided natives on to shoot our soldiers down, that the blood of those dead and wounded boys of ours is on their hands, and the flood of all the years can never wash that stain away. In sorrow rather than anger I say these words, for I earnestly believe that our brothers knew not what they did.

THE FILIPINOS ARE CHILDREN, UTTERLY INCAPABLE OF SELF-GOVERNMENT.

But, Senators, it would be better to abandon this combined garden and Gibraltar of the Pacific, and count our blood and treasure already spent a profitable loss, than to apply any academic arrangement of self-government to these children. They are not capable of self-government. How could they be? They are not of a self-governing race. They are Orientals, Malays, instructed by Spaniards in the latter's worst estate.

They know nothing of practical government except as they have witnessed the weak, corrupt, cruel, and capricious rule of Spain. What magic will anyone employ to dissolve in their minds and characters those impressions of governors and governed which three centuries of misrule has created? What alchemy will change the oriental quality of their blood and set the self-governing currents of the American pouring through their Malay veins? How shall they, in the twinkling of an eye, be exalted to the heights of self-governing peoples which required a thousand years for us to reach, Anglo-Saxon though we are?

Let men beware how they employ the term "self-government." It is a sacred term. It is the watchword at the door of the inner temple of liberty, for liberty does not always mean self-government. Self-government is a method of liberty—the highest, simplest, best—and it is acquired only after centuries of study and struggle and experiment and instruction and all the elements of the progress of man. Self-government is no base and common thing, to be bestowed on the merely audacious. It is the degree which crowns the graduate of liberty, not the name of liberty's infant class, who have not yet mastered the alphabet of freedom. Savage blood, oriental blood, Malay blood, Spanish example—are these the elements of self-government?

We must act on the situation as it exists, not as we would wish it. I have talked with hundreds of these people, getting their views as to the practical workings of self-government. The great majority simply do not understand any participation in any government whatever. The most enlightened among them declare that self-government will succeed because the employers of labor will compel their employees to vote as their employer wills and that this will ensure intelligent voting. I was assured that we could depend upon good men always being in office because the officials who constitute the government will nominate their successors, choose those among the people who will do the voting, and determine determine how and where elections will be held.

The most ardent advocate of self-government that I met was anxious that I should know that such a government would be tranquil because, as he said, is anyone criticised it the government would shoot the offender. A few of them have a sort of verbal understanding of the democratic theory, but the above are the examples of the ideas of the practical workings of self-government entertained by the aristocracy, the rich planters and traders, and heavy employers of labor, the men who would run the government.

PEOPLE INDOLENT—NO COMPETITION WITH OUR LABOR.

Example for decades will be necessary to instruct them in American ideas and methods of administration. Example, example: always example—this alone will teach them. As a race their general ability is not excellent. Educators, both men and women, to whom I have talked in Cebu and Luzon, were unanimous in the opinion that in all solid and useful education they are, as a people, dull and stupid. In showy things, like carving and painting or embroidery or music, they have apparent aptitude, but even this is superficial and never thorough. They have facility of speech, too.

The three best educators on the islands and at different times made to me the same comparison, that the common people in their stupidity are like their caribou bulls. They are not even good agriculturists. Their waste of cane is inexcusable. Their destruction of hemp fiber is childish. They are incurably indolent. They have no continuity or thoroughness of industry. They will quit work without notice and amuse themselves until the money they have earned is spent. They are like children playing at men's work.

No one need fear their competition with our labor. No reward could beguile, no force compel, these children of indolence to leave their trifling lives for the fierce and fervid industry of high-wrought America. The very reverse is the fact. One great problem is the necessary labor to develop these islands—to build the roads, open the mines, clear the wilderness, drain the swamps, dredge the harbors. The natives will not supply it. A lingering prejudice against the Chinese may prevent us from letting them supply it. Ultimately, when the real truth of the climate and human conditions is known, it is barely possible that our labor will go there. Even now young men with the right moral fiber and a little capital can make fortunes there as planters.

But the natives will not come here. Let all men dismiss that fear. The Dutch have Java, and its population, under Holland's rule, has increased from 2,000,000 to more than 20,000,000 people; yet the Java laborer has never competed with the laborer of Holland. And this is true of England and Germany, of every colonizing, administering power. The native has produced luxuries for the laborer of the governing country and afforded a market for what the laborer of the governing country, in turn, produced.

In Paluan the natives are primitive. In Sulu and Mindanao the Moros are vigorous and warlike, but have not the most elementary notions of civilization. For example, they do not understand the utility of roads. Nothing exists but paths through the jungle. I have ridden for hours in Sulu over the most primitive paths, barely discernable in the rank grass. They have not grasped the idea of private and permanent property in land, and yet there is no lovelier spot, no richer land, no better military and naval base than the Sulu group. In Paluan, Sulu, and Mindanao the strictest military government is necessary indefinitely. The inhabitants can never be made to work, can never be civilized. Their destiny cannot be foretold. But whether they will withstand civilization or disappear before it, our duty is plain.

OUTLINE OF THE PLAN OF GOVERNMENT NEEDED IN THE PHILIPPINES: "SIMPLE AND STRONG."

In all other islands our government must be simple and strong. It must be a uniform government. Different forms for different islands will produce perpetual disturbance, because the people of each island would think that the people of the other islands are more favored than they. In Panay I heard murmurings that we were giving Negros an American constitution. This is a human quality, found even in America, and we must never forget that in dealing with the Filipinos we deal with children. And so our government must be simple and strong. Simple and strong! The meaning of those two words must be written in every line of Philippine legislation, realized in every act of Philippine administration. A Philippine office in our Department of State; an American governor-general in Manila, with power to meet daily emergencies; possibly an advisory council with no power except that of discussing measures with the governor-general, which council would be the germ for future legislatures, a school in practical government. American lieutenant-governors in each province, with a like council about him; if possible, an American resident in each district and a like council grouped about him; frequent and unannounced visits of provincial governors to the districts of their province; periodical reports to the governor-general; an American board of visitation to make semi-annual trips to the archipelago without power of suggestion or interference to officials or people, but only to report and recommend to the Philippine office of our State Department; a Philippine civil service, with promotion for efficiency; the abolition of duties on exports from the Philippines; the establishment of import duties on a revenue basis, with such discrimination in favor of American imports as will prevent the cheaper goods of other nations from destroying American trade; a complete reform of local taxation on a just and scientific basis, beginning with a tax on land according to its assessed value; the minting of abundant money for Philippine and Oriental use; the granting of franchises and concessions upon the the theory of developing the resources of the archipelago, and therefore not by sale, but upon participation in the profits of the enterprise: the formation of a system of public schools everywhere with compulsory attendance rigidly enforced; the establishment of the English language throughout the islands, teaching it exclusively in the schools and using it through interpreters, exclusively in the courts; a simple civil code and a still simpler criminal code, and both common to all the islands except Sulu, Mindanao, and Paluan; American judges for all but smallest offenses; gradual, slow, and careful introduction of the best Filipinos into the working machinery of the government, no promise whatever of the franchise until the people have been prepared for it; all this backed by the necessary force to execute it; this outline of government the situation demands as soon as tranquility is established. Until then military government is advisable.

ENGLISH OR DUTCHS SYSTEM IMPOSSIBLE—PROTECTORATE IMPRACTICABLE.

We cannot adopt the Dutch method in Java, nor the English method in the Malay states, because both of these systems rests rest on and operate through the existing governments of hereditary princes, with Dutch or English residents as advisors. But in the Philippines there are no such hereditary rulers, no such established governments. There is no native machinery of administration except that of the villages. The people have been deprived of the advantages of hereditary native princes, and yet not instructed in any form of regular, just, and orderly government.

Neither is a protectorate practicable. If a protectorate leaves the natives to their own methods more than would our direct administration of their government, it would permit the very evils which it is our duty to prevent. If, on the other hand, under a protectorate, we interfere to prevent those evils, we govern as much as if we directly administer the government, but without system or constructive purpose. In either alternative we incur all the responsibility of directly governing them ourselves, without any of the benefits to us, to them, or to the archipelago, which our direct administration of government throughout the islands would secure.

KIND OF AMERICAN OFFICIALS NECESSARY.

Even the elemental plan I have outlined will fail in the hands of any but ideal administrators. Spain did not utterly fail in devising—many of her plans were excellent; she failed in administering. Her officials as a class were corrupt, indolent, cruel, immoral. They were selected to please a faction in Spain, to placate members of the Cortes, to bribe those whom the Government feared. They were seldom selected for their fitness. They were the spawn of Government favor and Government fear, and therefore of Government iniquity.

The men we send to administer civilized government in the Philippines must be themselves the highest examples of our civilization. I use the word examples, for examples they must be in that word's most absolute sense. They must be men of the world and of affairs, students of their fellow-men, not theorists nor dreamers. They must be brave men, physically as well as morally. They must be as incorruptible as honor, as stainless as purity, men whom no force can frighten, no influence coerce, no money buy. Such men come high, even here in America. But they must be had. Better pure military occupation for years than government by any other quality of administration. Better abandon this priceless possession, admit ourselves incompetent to do our part in the world-redeeming work of our imperial race; better now haul down the flag of arduous deeds for civilization and run up the flag of reaction and decay than to apply academic notions of self-government to these children or attempt their government by any but the most perfect administrators our country can produce. I assert that such administrators can be found.

There is one in Cuba now who, with the words "Money is not everything," refused $30,000 a year as president of a corporation that he might continue the work of our race in the regeneration of Santiago, and thus announced and typified the new ideal of the Republic, which pessimists declared had become sordid and base. And among our 80,000,000 we have thousands like him. Necessity will produce them.

OUR ADMINISTRATORS MUST BE EXAMPLES.

I repeat that our Government and our administrators must be examples. You cannot teach the Filipino by precept. An object lesson is the only lesson he comprehends. He has no conception of pure, orderly, equal, impartial government, under equal laws justly administered, because he has never seen such a government. He must be shown the simplest results of good government by actual example in order that he may begin to understand its most elementary principles.

Such a government will have its effect upon us here in America, too. Model administration there will be an example created by ourselves for model administration here; and our own example is the only one Americans ever heed. It is not true that charity begins at home. Selfishness begins there; but charity begins abroad and ends in its full glory in the home. It is not true that perfect government must be achieved at home before administering it abroad; its exercise abroad is a suggestion, an example, and a stimulus for the best government at home. It is as if we projected ourselves upon a living screen and beheld ourselves at work. England to-day is the home of ideal municipal governments. Well, England's administration of Bombay did not divert attention from Glasgow, and Glasgow is to-day is the model for all students of municipal problems. England's sanitary regeneration of filthy Calcutta made it clearer that Birmingham must be regenerated, too, and to-day Birmingham is the municipal admiration of all instructed men. England's miracle is Egypt, surpassing the ancient one of turning rods into serpents because the modern miracle turns serpents into men, deserts into gardens, famine into plenty—England's work in the land of the sphinx has solved its profound riddle, exaulted not England only, but all the world, by its noble example, and thrilled to the very soul every citizen of Great Britain with civic pride in the achievements of the greatest civilizing empire of the world. "Cast thy bread upon the waters and after many days it shall return unto you." "With what measure ye mete, it shall be meted to you again."

DOMINANT NOTES OF OUR FIRST AND SECOND CENTURIES.

Mr. President, self-government and internat development have been the dominant notes of our first century; administration and the development of other lands will be the dominant notes of our second century. And administration is as high and holy a function as self-government, just as the care of a trust estate is as sacred an obligation as the management of our own concerns. Cain was the first to violate the divine law of human society which makes of us our brother's keeper. And administration of good government is the first lesson in self-government, that exalted estate toward which all civilization tends.

Administration of good government is not denial of liberty. For what is liberty? It is not savagery. It is not the exercise of individual will. It is not dictatorship. It involves government, but not necessarily self-government. It means law. First of all, it is a common rule of action, applying equally to all within its limits. Liberty means protection to property and life without price, free speech without intimidation, justice without purchase or delay, government without favor or favorites. What will best give all this to the people of the Philippines—American administration, developing them gradually toward self-government, or self-governwent by a people before they know what self-government means?

TRUE INTERPRETATION OF DECLARATION OF INDEPENDENCE.

The Declaration of Independence does not forbid us to do our part in the regeneration of the world. If it did, the Declaration would be wrong, just as the Articles of Confederation, drafted by the very same men who signed the Declaration, was found to be wrong. The Declaration has no application to the pretent situation. It was written by self-governing men for self-governing men.

It was written by men who, for a century and a half, had been experimenting in self-government on this continent, and whose ancestors for hundreds of years before had been gradually developing toward that high and holy estate. The Declaration applies only to people capable of self-government. How dare any man prostitute this expression of the very elect of self-governing people to a race of Malay children of barbarism, schooled in Spanish methods and ideas? And you, who say the Declaration applies to all men, how dare you deny its application to the American Indian? And if you deny it to the Indian at home, how dare you grant it to the Malay abroad?

PHRASE "CONSENT OF THE GOVERNED" MISUNDERSTOOD.

The declaration does not contemplate that all government must have the consent of the governed. It announces that man's "inalienable rights are life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness; that to secure these rights governments are established among men deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed; that when any form of government becomes destructive of those rights, it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it." "Life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness" are the important things; "consent of the governed" is one of the means to those ends.

If "any form of government becomes destructive of those ends, it is the right of the people to alter or abolish it," says the Declaration. "Any forms" includes all forms. Thus the Declaration itself recognizes other forms of government than those resting on the consent of the governed. The word "consent" itself recognizes other forms, for "consent" means the understanding of the thing to which the "consent" is given; and there are people in the world who do not understand any form of government. And the sense in which "consent" is used in the Declaration is broader than mere understanding; for "consent" in the Declaration means participation in the government "consented" to. And yet these people who are not capable of "consenting" to any form of government must be governed.

And so the Declaration contemplates all forms of government which secure the fundamental rights of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness. Self-government, when that will best secure these ends, as in the case of people capable of self-government; other appropriate forms when people are not capable of self-government. And so the authors of the Declaration themselves governed the Indian without his consent; the inhabitants of Louisiana without their consent; and ever since the sons of the makers of the Declaration have been governing not by theory, but by practice, after the fashion of our governing race, now by one form, now by another, but always for the purpose of securing the great eternal ends of life, liberty, and the pursuit of happiness, not in the savage, but in the civilized meaning of those terms—life according to orderly methods of civilized society; liberty regulated by law; pursuit of happiness limited by the pursuit of happiness by every other man.

CONSTITUTIONAL POWER TO GOVERN AS WE PLEASE.

Senators in opposition are estopped from denying our constitutional power to govern the Philippines as circumstances may demand, for such power is admitted in the case of Florida, Louisiana, Alaska. How, then, is it denied in the Philippines? Is there a geographical interpretation to the Constitution? Do degrees of longitude fix constitutional limitations? Does a thousand miles of ocean diminish constitutional power more than a thousand miles of land?

The ocean does not separate us from our field of duty and endavor—it joins us, an established highway needing no repair, and landing us at any point desired. The seas do not separate the Philippine Islands from us or from each other. The seas are highways through the archipelago, which would cost hundreds of millions of dollars to construct if they were land instead of water. Land may separate men from their desire, the ocean never. Russia has been centuries in crossing Siberian wastes; the Puritans crossed the Atlantic in brief and flying weeks.

If the Boers must have traveled by land, they would never have reached the Transvaal; but they sailed on liberty's ocean; they walked on civilizations untaxed highway, the welcoming sea. Our ships habitually sailed round the cape and anchored in California's harbors before a single trail had lined the desert with the whitening bones of those who made it. No! No! The ocean unites us; steam unites us; electricity unites us; all the elements of nature unite us to the region where duty and interest call us. There is in the ocean no constitutional argument against the march of the flag, for the oceans, too, are ours. With more extended coast lines than any nation of history; with a commerce vaster than any other people ever dreamed of, and that commerce as yet only in its beginnings; with naval traditions equaling those of England or of Greece, and the work of our Navy only just begun; with the air of the ocean in our nostrils and the blood of a sailor ancestry in our veins; with the shores of all the continents calling us, the great Republic before I die will be the acknowledged lord of the world's high seas. And over them the Republic will hold dominion, by virtue of the strength God has given it, for the peace of the world and the betterment of man.

WORDS OF EMPIRE EXPRESSLY IN CONSTITUTION.

No; the oceans are not limitations of the power which the Constitution expressly gives Congress to govern all territory the nation may acquire. The Constitution declares that "Congress shall have power to dispose of and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory belonging to the United States." Not the Northwest Territory only; not Louisiana or Florida only; not territory on this continent only, but any territory anywhere belonging to the nation. The founders of the nation were not provincial. Theirs was the geography of the world. They were soldiers as well as landsmen, and they knew that where our ships should go our flag might follow. They had the logic of progress, and they knew that the Republic they were planting must, in obedience to the laws of our expanding race, necessarily develop into the greater Republic which the world beholds to-day, and into the still mightier Republic which the world will finally acknowledge as the arbiter, under God, of the destinies of mankind. And so our fathers wrote into the Constitution these words of growth, of expansion, of empire, if you will, unlimited by geography or climate or by anything but the vitality and possibilities of the American people: "Congress shall have power to dispose of and make all needful rules and regulations respecting the territory belonging to the United States."

POWER IMPLIED TO GOVERN AS WE PLEASE.

The power to govern all territory the nation may acquire would have been in Congress if the language affirming that power had not been written in the Constitution. For not all powers of the National Government are expressed. Its principal powers are implied. The written Constitution is but the index of the living Constitution. Had this not been true, the Constitution would have failed. For the people in any event would have developed and progressed. And if the Constitution had not had the capacity for growth corresponding with the growth of the nation, the Constitution would and should have been abandoned as the Articles of Confederation were abandoned. For the Constitution is not immortal in itself, is not useful even in itself. The Constitution is immortal and even useful only as it serves the orderly development of the nation. The nation alone is immortal. The nation alone is sacred. The Army is its servant. The Navy is its servant. The President is its servant. This Senate is its servant. Our laws are its methods. Our Constitution is its instrument.

This is the golden rule of constitutional interpretation: The Constitution was made for the people, not the people for the Constitution.

Hamilton recognized this golden rule when he formulated the doctrine of implied powers. Marshall recognized it when he applied that doctrine to constitutional interpretation in McCullough vs. Maryland. Congress recognized it when it provided for internal improvements. The Supreme Court of the Republic recognized it when it confirmed the act of Congress in making the promissory note of the Republic legal tender for debts. Washington recognized it when he sent the nation's soldiers to suppress local riot in 1794; and Lincoln, the soul and symbol of the common people, recognized the doctrine of implied powers in every effort he made to save the nation. There is no power expressed in the Constitution to charter a bank; and although the subject was familiar to the framers of the Constition, who still remained silent on it, Marshall said that this power was implied. There is no power expressed in the Constitution to make internal improvements; and although it was a subject painfully before the framers of the Constitution, who yet remained silent upon it, Congress said it is implied.

There is no power expressed in the Constitution, but almost the reverse, to make anything but gold and silver legal tender for payment of debts; the Supreme Court declared it is implied. There is no power expressed in the Constitution to maintain order in a State with the nation's soldiers unless the State first calls for aid; Washington, Lincoln, and Cleveland said it is implied. The legislative, the executive, and the judicial departments of our Government have recognized and confirmed the doctrine of implied powers, by which alone the Constitution lives, the people make progress and the Republic marches forward to its imperial destiny. "The letter killeth; but the spirit giveth life."

By the same reasoning that Hamilton, Marshall, Washington, and Lincoln employed we could infer our power to do the work of administering government in the Philippines as the situation may demand, even if that power had not been affirmed in express words. We could infer it from the purpose of the Constitution to "provide for the common defense and promote the general welfare" of the nation and the power given Congress to make laws to secure these ends. For the archipelago is a base for the commerce of the East. It is a base for military and naval operations against the only powers with whom conflict is possible; a fortress thrown up in the Pacific, defending our western coast, commanding the waters of the Orient, and giving us a point from which we can instantly strike and seize the possession of any possible foe.

MAY GOVERN UNDER ANY FORM WE PLEASE.

The nation's power to make rules and regulations for the government of its possessions is not confined to any given set of rules or regulations. It is not confined to any particular formu'a of laws or kind of government or type of administration. Where do Senators find constitutional warrant for any special kind of government in "territory belonging to the United States." The language affirming our power to govern such territory is as broad as the requirements of all possible situations. And there is nothing in the Constitution to limit that comprehensive language. The very reverse is true. For power to administer government anywhere and in any manner the situation demands would have been in Congress if the Constitution had been silent; not merely because it is a power not reserved to the States or people; not merely because it is a power inherent in and an attribute of nationality; not even because it might be inferred from other specific provisions of the Constitution; but because it is the power most necessary for the ruling tendency of our race—the tendency to explore, expand, and grow, to sail new seas and seek new lands, subdue the wilderness, revitalize decaying peoples, and plant civilized and civilizing governments over all the globe.

For the makers of the Constitution were of the race that produced Hawkins, and Drake, and Raleigh, and Smith, and Winthrop, and Penn. They were of the great exploring, pioneering, colonizing, and governing race who went forth with trade or gain or religious liberty as the immediate occasion for their voyage, but really because they could not help it; because the blood within them commanded them; because their racial tendency is as resistless as the currents of the sea or the process of the suns or any other elemental movement of nature, of which that racial tendency itself is the most majestic. And when they wrote the Constitution they did not mean to negative the most elemental characteristic of their race, of which their own presence in America was an expression and an example. You cannot interpret a constitution without understanding the race that wrote it. And if our fathers had intended a reversal of the very nature and being of their race, they would have so declared in the most emphatic words our language holds. But they did not, and in the absence of such words the power would remain which is essential to the strongest tendency of our practical race, to govern wherever we are, and to govern by the methods best adapted to the situation. But our fathers were not content with silence, and they wrote in the Constitution the words which affirm this essential and imperial power.

THE WHOLE QUESTION ELEMENTAL.

Mr. President, this question is deeper than any question of party politics; deeper than any question of the isolated policy of our country even; deeper even than any question of constitutional power. It is elemental. It is racial. God has not been preparing the English-speaking and Teutonic peoples for a thousand years for nothing but vain and idle self-contemplation and self-admiration. No! He has made us the master organizers of the world to establish system where chaos reigns. He has given us the spirit of progress to overwhelm the forces of reaction throughout the earth. He has made us adepts in government that we may administer governments among savage and senile peoples. Were it not for such a force as this the world would relapse into barbarism and night. And of all our race He has marked the American people as His chosen nation to finally lead in the regeneration of the world. This is the divine mission of America, and it holds for us all the profit, all the glory, all the happiness possible to man. We are trustees of the world's progress, guardians of its righteous peace. The judgment of the Master is upon us. "Ye have been faithful over a few things, I will make you ruler over many things."

What shall history say of us? Shall it say that we renounced that holy trust, left the savage to his base condition, the wilderness to the reign of waste, deserted duty, abandoned glory, forget our sordid profit even, because we feared our strength and read the charter of our powers with the doubter's eye and the quibbler's mind? Shall it say that, called by events to captain and command the proudest, ablest, purest race of history in history's noblest work, we declined that great commission? Our fathers would not have had it so. No! They founded no paralytic government, incapable of the simplest acts of administration. They planted no sluggard people, passive while the world's work dalls them. They established no reactionary nation. They unfurled no retreating flag.

GOD'S HAND IN ALL.

That flag has never paused in its onward march. Who dares halt it now—now, when history's largest events are carrying it forward; now, when we are at last one people, strong enough for any task, great enough for any glory destiny can bestow? How comes it that our first century closes with the process of consolidating the American people into a unit just accomplished, and quick upon the stroke of that great hour presses upon us our world opportunity, world duty, and world glory, which none but a people welded into an indivisible nation can achieve or perform?

Blind indeed is he who sees not the hand of God in events so vast, so harmonious, so benign. Reactionary indeed is the mind that preceives not that this vital people is the strongest of the saving forces of the world; that our place, therefore, is at the head of the constructing and redeeming nations of the earth; and that to stand aside while events march on is a surrender of our interests, a betrayal of our duty as blind as it is base. Craven indeed is the heart that fears to perform a work so golden and so noble; that dares not win a glory so immortal.

Do you tell me that it will cost us money? When did Americans ever measure duty by financial standards? Do you tell me of the tremendous toil required to overcome the vast difficulties of our task? What mighty work for the world, for humanity, even for ourselves, has ever been done with ease? Even our bread must we eat by the sweat of our faces. Why are we charged with power such as no people ever knew, if we are not to use it in a work such as no people ever wrought? Who will dispute the divine meaning of the fable of the talents?

Do you remind me of the precious blood that must be shed, the lives that must be given, the broken hearts of loved ones for their slain? And this indeed is a heavier price than all combined. And yet as a nation every historic duty we have done, every achievement we have accomplished, has been by the sacrifice of our noblest sons. Every holy memory that glorifies the flag is of those heroes who have died that its onward march might not be stayed. It is the nation's dearest lives yielded for the flag that makes it dear to us; it is the nation's most precious blood poured out for it that makes it precious to us. That flag is woven of heroism and grief, of the bravery of men and women's tears, of righteousness and battle, of sacrifice and anguish, of triumph and of glory. It is these which make our flag a holy thing. Who would tear from that sacred banner the glorious legends of a single battle where it has waved on land or sea? What son of a soldier of the flag whose father fell beneath it on any field would surrender that proud record for the heraldry of a king? In the cause of civilization, in the service of the Republic anywhere on earth, Americans consider wounds the noblest decorations man can win, and count thd giving of their lives a glad and precious duty.

Pray God that spirit never fails. Pray God the time may never come when Mammon and the love of ease shall so debase our blood that we will fear to shed it for the flag and its imperial destiny. Pray God the time may never come when American heroism is but a legend like the story of the Cid, American faith in our mission and our might a dream dissolved, and the glory of our mighty race departed.

And that time will never come. We will renew our youth at the fountain of new and glorious deeds. We will exalt our reverence for the flag by carrying it to a noble future as well as by remembering its ineffable past. Its immortality will not pass, because everywhere and always we will acknowledge and discharge the solemn responsibilities our sacred flag, in its deepest meaning, put upon us. And so, Senators, with reverent hearts, where dwells the fear of God, the American people move forward to the future of their hope and the doing of His work.

Mr. President and Senators, adopt the resolution offered, that peace may quickly come and that we may begin our saving, regenerating, and uplifting work. Adopt it, and this bloodshed will cease when these deluded children of our islands learn that this is the final word of the representatives of the American people in Congress assembled. Reject it, and the world, history, and the American people will know where to forever fix the awful responsibility for the consequences that will surely follow such failure to do our manifest duty. How dare we delay when our soldiers' blood is flowing? [Applause in the galleries.]

PROBLEM OF THE PHILIPPINES

The Question of the Hour.

Conclusions Arrived at After Extended Personal Investigation—Sen. Beveredge's Great Speech Delivered in the Senate January 9, 1900.

The secretary read the joint resolution (S. R. 53) defining the policy of the United States relative to the Philippine Islands, as follows:

Be it resolved by the Senate and House of Representatives of the United States of America in Congress assembled, That the Philippine Islands are territory of the United States; that it is the intention of the United States to retain them as such and to establish and maintain such governmental control throughout the archipelago as the situation may demand.

Mr. BEVERIDGE. Mr. President, I address the Senate at this time because Senators and Members of the House on both sides have asked that I give to Congress and the country my observations in the Philippines and the far East, and the conclusions which those observations compel; and because of hurtful resolutions introduced and utterances made in the Senate, every word of which will cost and is costing the lives of American soldiers.

Mr. President, the times call for candor. The Philippines are ours forever, "territory belonging to the United States," as the Constitution calls them. And just beyond the Philippines are China's illimitable markets. We will not retreat from either. We will not repudiate our duty in the archipelago. We will not abandon our opportunity in the Orient. We will not renounce our part in the mission of our race, trustee, under God, of the civilization of the world. And we will move forward to our work, not howling out regrets like slaves whipped to their burdens, but with gratitude for a task worthy of our strength, and thanksgiving to Almighty God that He has marked us as his chosen people, henceforth to lead in the regeneration of the world.

PHILIPPINES COMMAND THE PACIFIC.

This island empire is the last land left in all the oceans. If it should prove a mistake to abandon it, the blunder once made would be irretrievable. If it proves a mistake to hold it, the error can be corrected when we will. Every other progressive nation stands ready to relieve us.

But to hold it will be no mistake. our largest trade henceforth must be with Asia. The Pacific is our ocean. More and more Europe will manufacture the most it needs, secure from its colonies the most it consumes. Where shall we turn for consumers of our surplus? Geography answers the question. China is our natural customer. She is nearer to us than to England, Germany or Russia, the commercial powers of the present and the future. They have moved nearer to China by securing permanent bases on her borders. The Philippines give us a base at the door of all the East.

Lines of navigation from our ports to the Orient and Australia; from the isthmian canal to Asia; from all Oriental ports to Australia, converge at and separate from the Philippines. They are a self-supporting, dividend-paying fleet, permanently anchored at a spot selected by the strategy of Providence, commanding the Pacific. And the Pacific is the ocean of the commerce of the future. Most future wars will be conflicts for commerce. The power that rules the Pacific, therefore, is the power that rules the world. And with the Philippines, that power is and will forever be the American Republic.

VALUE OF CHINA'S TRADE.

China's trade is the mightiest commercial fact in our future. Her foreign commerce was $285,738,300 in 1897, of which we, her neighbor, had less than 9 per cent, of which only a little more than half was merchandise sold to China by us. We ought to have 50 percent, and we will. And China's foreign commerce is only beginning. Her resources, her possibilities, her wants, all are undeveloped. She has only 340 miles of railway. I have seen trains loaded with natives and all the activities of modern life already appearing along the line. But she needs, and in fifty years will have, 20,000 miles of railway.

Who can estimate her commerce then? The statesman commits a crime against American trade—against the American grower of cotton and wheat and tobacco, the American manufacturer of machinery and clothing—who fails to put America where she may command that trade. Germany's Chinese trade is increasing like magic. She has established ship lines, and secured a tangible foothold on China's very soil. Russia's Chinese trade is growing beyond belief. She is spending the revenues of the Empire to finish her railroad into Pekin itself, and she is in physical possession of the imperial province of Manchuria. Japan's Chinese trade is multiplying in volume and value. She is bending her energy to her merchant marine, and is located along China's very coast; but Manila is nearer China than Yokohama is. The Philippines command the commercial situation of the entire East. Can America best trade with China from San Francisco or New York? From San Francisco, of course. But if San Francisco were closer to China than New York is to Pittsburg, what then? And Manila is nearer Hongkong than Habana is to Washington. And yet American statesmen plan to surrender this commercial throne of the Orient where Providence and our soldiers' lives have placed us. When history comes to write the story of that suggested treason to American supremacy and therefore to the spread of American civilization, let her in mercy write that those who so proposed were merely blind and nothing more.

RESOURCES AND IMMENSE SIZE OF THE ISLANDS.

But if they did not command China, India, the Orient, the whole Pacific for purposes of offense, defense, and trade, the Philippines are so valuable in themselves that we should hold them. I have cruised more than 2,000 miles through the archipelago, every moment a surprise at its loveliness and wealth. I have ridden hundreds of miles on the islands, every foot of the way a revelation of vegetable and mineral riches.

No land in America surpasses in fertility the plains and valleys of Luzon. Rice and coffe, sugar and cocoanuts, hemp and tobacco, and many products of the Temperate as well as the Tropic zone grow in various sections of the archipelago. I have seen hundreds of bushels of Indian corn lying in a road fringed with banana trees. The forests of Negros, Mindanao, Mindoro, Paluan, and parts of Luzon are invaluable and intact. The wood of the Philippines can supply the furniture of the world for a century to come. At Cebu the best informed man in the island told me that 40 miles of Cebu's mountain chain are practically mountains of coal. Pablo Majia, one of the most reliable men on the islands, confirmed the statement. Some declare that the coal is only lignite; but ship captains who have used it told me that it is better steamer fuel than the best coal of Japan.

I have a nugget of pure gold picked up in its present form on the banks of a Philippine creek. I have gold dust washed out by crude processes of careless natives from the sands of a Philippine stream. Both indicate great deposits at the source from which they come. In one of the islands great deposits of copper exist untouched. The mineral wealth of this empire of the ocean will one day surprise the world.

I base this statement partly on personal observation, but chiefly on the testimony of foreign merchants in the Philippines, who have practically investigated the subject, and upon the unanimous opinion of natives and priests. And the mineral wealth is but a small fraction of the agricultural wealth of these islands.

And the wood, hemp, copra, and other products of the Philippines supply what we need and cannot ourselves produce. And the markets they will themselves afford will be immense. Spain's export and import trade, with the islands undeveloped, was $11,534,731 annually. Our trade with the islands developed will be $125,000,000 annually, for who believes that we can not do ten times as well as Spain? Consider their imperial dimensions. Luzon is larger and richer than New York, Pennsylvania, Illinois, or Ohio. Mindanao is larger and richer than all New England, exclusive of Maine. Manila, as a port of call and exchange, will, in the time of men now living, far surpass Liverpool. Behold the exhaustless markets they command. It is as if a half dozen of our States were set down between Oceanica and the Orient, and those states themselves undeveloped and unspoiled of their primitive wealth and resources.

Nothing is so natural as trade with one's neighbors. The Philippines make us the nearest neighbors of all the East. Nothing is more natural than to trade with those you know. This is the Philosophy of all advertising. The Philippines bring us permanently face to face with the most sought-for customers of the world. National prestige, national propinquity, these and commercial activity are the elements of commercial success. The Philippines give the first; the character of the American people supply the last. It is a providential conjunction of all the elements of trade, of duty, and of power. If we are willing to go to war rather than let England have a few feet of frozen Alaska, which affords no market and commands none, what should we not do rather than let England, Germany, Russia, or Japan have all the Philippines? And no man on the spot can fail to see that this would be their fate if we retired.

PHILIPPINE CLIMATE.

The climate is the best Tropic climate in the world. This is the belief of those who have lived in many Tropic countries, with scores of whom I have talked on this point. My own experience with tropical conditions has not been exhaustive; yet, speaking from that experience, I testify that the climate of Iloilo, Sulu, Cebu, and even of Manila, greatly surpasses that of Hongkong. And yet on the bare and burning rock of Hongkong our constructing race has builded one of the noblest cities of all the world, and made the harbor it commands the focus of the commerce of the East. And the glory of that achievement illumines with a rarer splendor than that of Waterloo the flag that floats above it, for from Hongkong's heights civilization is irradiating all the Orient. If this be imperialism, its final end will be the empire of the Son of Man.

Yet fifty years ago this English outpost of empire was a smooth and treeless mountain, blazing like a ball of fire beneath the tropic suns. The Philippines are beautiful and rich, with the healing seas pouring round and through them and fanned by a thousand winds. Even in the hottest season, under severest conditions, I found the weather tolerable and often delightful; and in Luzon, Panay, Cebu, Negros, and Sulu I have been in the sun and rain without protection from either for hours at a time, traveling from place to place on horseback, on foot, or in a boat, rising at dawn, retiring at midnight, week after week, without injury to health.

General MacArthur, commanding, a force which had been fighting continuously for three months and which was under fire practically every hour, was in excellent health every time I saw him at San Fernando, our extreme front. General Lawton, that perfect soldier, whom I have seen ride, order, plan, and execute all day, and then ride, order, plan, and execute all night, until the Tagals named him "the soldier of the night," told me that his health was perfect. General Otis, that devoted servant of the Republic, who toils ceaselessly, does not fall ill, not grow weary, not complain. I could give the names of scores of our officers and describe their feats of endurance witnessed by me that would have taxed their strength even in America. Yet they do not succumb. I have seen correspondents exert themselves in all kinds of weather without food or sleep in a way that would prostrate them in the hottest days of our summer in Chicago or New York. Major Hoyt, chief medical officer with MacArthur, told me that San Fernando is as healthy as the average American town. The European business men of Cebu, Iloilo, and Manila work as hard and as many hours a day as those of New York, and a finer body of physical manhood can not be gathered at random in America. This proves that this garden of the seas is not the sweltering, steaming, miasmatic swamp that it has been described.

CHARACTER OF THE PEOPLE—AGUINALDO.

It will be hard for Americans who have not studied them, to understand the people. They are a barbarous race, modified by three centuries of contact with a decadent race. The Filipino is the South Sea Malay, put through a process of three hundred years of superstition in religion, dishonesty in dealing, disorder in habits of industry, and cruelty, caprice, and corruption in government. It is barely possible that 1,000 men in all the archipelago are capable of self-government in the Anglo-Saxon sense.

My own belief is that there are not 100 men among them who comprehend what Anglo-Saxon self-government even means, and there are over 5,000,000 people to be governed. I know many clever and highly educated men among them, but there are only three commanding intellects and characters—Arellani, Mabini, and Aguinaldo. Arellano, the chief justice of our supreme court, is a profound lawyer and a brave and incorruptible man. Mabini, who, before his capture, was the literary and diplomatic associate of Aguinaldo, is the highest type of subtlety and the most constructive mind that race has yet produced. Aguinaldo is a clever, popular leader, able, brave, resourceful, cunning, ambitious, unscrupulous, and masterful. He is full of decision, initiative, and authority, and had the confidence of the masses. He is a natural dictator. His ideas of government are absolute orders, implicit obedience, or immediate death. He understands the character of his countrymen. He is a Malay Sylla; not a Filipino Washington.

These conclusions were forced upon me by observing the people in all walks of life in the different islands, and by conversations with foreign merchants, priests, mestizos, pure Filipinos, and every variety of mind, character, and opinion from San Fernando, in Luzon, on down through the entire archipelago to the interior of Sulu. These conversations were had informally at dinner tables, on journeys, and the like, and always under conditions favorable to entire frankness and unreserve. Their chief value is that they are the real opinions of their authors and not prepared and guarded statements. I will read to the Senate salients points from a few of my notes of these conversations, reserving the names of the persons interviewed, except that of Pablo Majia, of Cebu, who was assassinated a week after I met him, and whose fate I will not risk bringing down on others. Their names and residences are here in this book, and will be gladly given to any Senator or to the Senate in executive session. The conversations themselves, of course, are many of them quite extended. I give here only the brief extracts, which may be helpful to a correct understanding of the subject immediately in hand.

One of the principal merchants of the Philippines and the far East said, among many other thiugs:

The whole country is incalculably rich. With only ordinary good government commerce would be immense. Spanish rule was corrupt, but commerce accustomed itself to the conditions and flourished in spite of them. So rich is the country that commerce will survive any situation, however bad, if it is only fixed and certain. The people are incapable of self-government. The few exceptions are no examples of the masses. For years to come a very strong government will be necessary. The climate is very good. I have lived here eighteen years, and my health was never better.

One of the principal business men of the Philippines and the far East said:

I have no fault to find with the climate. My health is very fine. Business here is large as it is, but a hint of what will be under a good government. I think it folly to talk of giving the natives any part in the government. They are incapable. Of course there are, possibly, half a dozen who might be capable, but I doubt the result of such an experiment, even with the best. Anything but a strong government at first will result in disaster. Do not put courts into their hands at all, except the minor and village courts, of course. You might give them municipal self-government in the smaller municipalities, but even then only under careful supervision.

The most eminent educator in the Philippines, of very wide information about the people and the country, said:

It is a most marvelous country. The climate is the ideal tropical climate of the world. Also, it presents every variety of climate. Only a moderate distance from Manila, in the province of Benguet, there are oaks, pines, frost, and you must use blankets at night. It is the richest and most variegated portion of the earth's surface. My health has always been good. You must introduce a strong, decisive, and pure government. The natives might possibly be permitted to take a practical part in municipal affairs.

Self-government is out of the question. I fear the insurrection will last for months. The natives are like bull-dogs—they get mad, and then want to fight, no matter whether right or wrong. You cannot successfully deal with them by gentle means; they absolutely misunderstand such treatment. While in arms they must be fought, fought ceaselessly and remorselessly. Otherwise they will keep it up forever.

The most eminent scientist of the far East, better informed on the Philippines and their people and more experienced in the whole situation than any man now living, said:

The climate is the best tropical climate in the world. My health is excellent and has been for years. Nearly everything can be raised in the islands. Also nearly all climates can be had in the various altitudes practically accessible. It will take a long time to prepare the people for self-government. Certainly they are not so now. I think everything must for years be firmly controlled by the Americans.

One of the large planters and business men of the interior of Luzon, a pure Filipino, with intimate relations with the insurgents:

It is hard to say how long the contest will last. The very common people care little about the matter, but have been told and believe many bad things about the Americans. What Filipinos want is to govern themselves. No, of course, they do not know anything about government except that Spain gave them, which was most corrupt. If you gave those islands a government where justice would be administered freely and without price, property protected, and free speech secured, you ask me if the common people would be satisfied. I do not know.

The common people do not know what they want. Are they capable of self-government—of voting intelligently? What difference does that make? They would vote just exactly as the better classes say. I employ several hundred men. Well, I expect and would see to it that they have the same opinions I have. Humph! it would be impossible otherwise. What the Filipino leaders talk about and insist upon is a guaranty. By this they mean Filipinos to have exclusive government in the islands, the United States to keep a fleet here to protect that government and the islands generally in every possible situation, and this agreement witnessed by a third nation strong enough to compel the United States to carry out its contract. The people are not capable of self-government, but the leaders are, or will be after some practice; so it is just the same thing.

A pure Filipino, a physician, a man of wealth, in the interior of Luzon—one of the most intelligent men of the many I met and talked to:

It is hard to say how long this struggle will continue. The leaders say they want independence; the common people probably want so-called. To be definite and particular, they probably do not know what they want. No, they are not capable of self-government. If you give them pure government, free speech and all that, they would not understand and appreciate it at first; would not believe it, as it were.

But when, after a while, three or four years, say, they come to understand your good intentions and actually experience good government, there will be no trouble. Oh, yes; the islands are marvelously rich. After good government is once in operation, they will pay their way many times over. My people are not a bad people; they don't understand; they are children yet.

The principal British merchant of Iloilo said:

The climate is simply splendid, even here on the sea. A very short distance inland you must have fire every night. I have been here more than twenty years, and my health is and always has been most excellent. The only time I ever felt heat badly was in New York last September. It goes without saying that the country is enormously rich. Its resources have not yet even begun to be developed. Vast as commerce is or was, it is only a suggestion to what may be. The natives are a kind, affectionate people when properly treated. They are suspicious, though, and once aroused, very obstinate. Surely they are capable of self-government in municipal matters. Further than that I think it not safe to go at present. The common people probably do not understand the meaning of self-government as we do.

There is no doubt that they would be completely dominated by their leaders. I should think it a very risky business to put the courts in the hands of the natives, even if you allow them a large measure of self-government otherwise. You see, they do not understand the just and pure administration of law through courts. How should they? The whole secret of your success will be to adopt some definite plan, stick to it, govern justly and firmly, be patient, do not expect everything in a day, and very gradually and wisely introduce them into the government. But all will fail if you send any but pure and incorruptible men here.

A highly educated and bright Spanish mestizo, claiming to be pure Filipino, employed in Iloilo, said:

No one can tell when the fighting will cease. It all depends upon what Aguinaldo says. The common people have absolute faith in him. His order among those now in rebellion in this island would be promptly obeyed. The common people say they are fighting for their independence. They mean by this the right to manage their own government; make and execute their own laws. Their ideas of a proper relation between the Philippine Islands and people of the United States is that of a protectorate. The leaders absolutely control the people. A man of property expects his working people to have the same opinion as he has. I do myself.

It is, perhaps, true that the masses do not understand what self-government means. I think that that there are enough capable and educated men among our people to control government, but I do not believe that the great mass of the people are at all fitted for self-government now and will not be for a long time. You should have uniform laws over the entire archipelago. If you have one thing at one place and another at another place, each will think and say that the other is better treated, and you will have constant and serious disturbance. Already the people of this island are very angry because Negros is given a United States constitution. That is a profound mistake. Don't experiment. Select your plan and execute it. English ought to be myde the one langu2e of the island.

A rich planter of Panay, pure Filipino, but moderate in views, said:

The common people have no opinions and are not capable of voting. If the Filipinos established a government, of course the property and educated class would, beyond doubt, run such government. Not more than 25 per cent of the people are fitted to take part in the selection of public officers. The people are at present incapable of self-government, though they might be intrusted with purely municipal affairs. Establish precisely the same laws through the archipelago. English should be universally taught. The common people know and care nothing about self-government or any other government. They are principally interested in simply living. Self-government can only mean government by the upper classes.

A prominent but very conservative business man of Panay:

You may be a long time subduing this insurrection. The people are not yet capable of self-government in the archipelago. It is well, though, to trust them with municipal administration, provided everything is under your final supervision. The proposition to have the same commercial laws everywhere is to plain for argument. The climate is not bad at all. You see that for yourself. It is very cool here, you see, this evening. My own health has been excellent, and is now. There is very little sickness among the English here.

A leading mestizo of Negros:

The island of Negros is far ahead of any other island in the culture of its people. Our chief desire now is to get utterly away from Spanish customs, laws, and traditions. I think we are quite capable of self-government under American protection. If the Philippine islands are made into a Federal system we would expect to be one of the States. Certainly we can manage the local affairs of the island. Exclusive of the savages of the mountains, I should say that 4 or 5 per cent of the people are now capable of intelligently voting.

I think the voting should be by those who own property, can read and write, or are established householders and heads of families, with definite residences. I would find out who should vote by having a committee in each town make a list and then notify the men chosen. Certainly I would expect the common people to follow the advice of the leaders and vote for whom the leaders said. I should think my own employes would take my view of a situation. If you give us a government under the justice and administered without corruption or delay, property protected without a fee, free speech insured, commercial language provided, the people will be satisfied.

Spain did none of this, but the reverse. That is, and was our complaint. English should be immediately made the language of the whole archipelago. I do not think the same political laws should prevail throughout the islands. One place should have laws adapted to it; another, laws adapted to it. The reason for this is that the people of the various islands are of different degrees of culture. Of course, though, I think the whole archipelago a commercial unit.

Pure Filipino and large planter of Negros:

I have working for me about 400 men. They are good, average examples of the common people of the island. I should say that not over 3 or 4 per cent of them are capable of self-government or in any true sense understand the term. If the ballot were given them, or even if it were restricted to those 3 or 4 per cent, I should expect them to vote as the leaders might indicate. I think the English language should be immediately adopted throughout the entire archipelago. It would simplify matters incalculably. No, I do not believe the same laws should prevail everywhere. We of Negros are more cultivated than in Panay. We deserve better laws.

Very large planter and influential man of Negros, claiming to be pure Filipino, but with some Chinese blood:

The climate is most excellent. The wealth of these islands is beyond imagination. We have only begun to develop our resources. For example, we have not touched our minerals practically. Lands you see yonder are really better for agricultural purposes than this low, flat coast land. No, it is not yet occupied, and the title to it is still in the government.

I have several American plows. They do good work. We do not use more because they are not brought to us. The native plow has served our purpose and our inertia makes it inconvenient to change. Effort is necessary. Yes; enterprising agency would sell many plows. I have several carriages made in America. I have from 1,000 to 1,500 men working for me. Of these practically all are capable of self-government. Would they vote as I wished? Most assuredly they would. By all means make English the language of these islands as speedily as possible. It will increase commerce and get us further away from the old and hated regime.

I regard these islands as a commercial unit, and think uniform laws should prevail throughout the archipelago. Your young men could come here and buy land and soon get enormously rich. You need not fear that we leaders would be able to control elections. The government itself would nominate all the officers or candidates; so you see, the people would have to vote for good men. What would I do if any man spoke against or criticised the government? Why, anyone rising against the government would be tried and shot if condemned.

Pablo Majia, pure Fillpino, rich, able, honest, and moderate. He was stabbed to death in Cebu, and this is why I withhold the names of the others:

I do not think anyone could ask for a better climate than this. It is much better than Hongkong. The resources of this island have not begun to be developed. Our coal is very good, much better than Japan coal. There is copper too, on this island, not yet worked. I am sorry to say that very few of our population are capable of self-government.

Of course the wealthy and educated classes are entirely competent to run the government. I do not expect nor desire any government except one founded on and directed by America. Oh, yes; to such extent as the ballot may be given, there is no doubt that we of the upper classes can control. I employ 100 men now—in good times more. All these would vote as I say.

An educator of Cebu, who has lived among the Filipinos for twenty-five years, and one of the ablest men I ever met:

For general health and for all human conditions I consider this climate unexcelled in the world. When I left Europe twenty-five years ago and came here my health was wretched. Here I am never ill. The resources of these islands are simply marvelous. Think of the agricultural richness of Negros! Think of the mineral wealth of Cebu. For 40 miles this chain of mountains back of us is one continuous coal mine. The coal is excellent. It is far better than the Japan coal. And there are very rich copper deposits over yonder; nobody ever worked them yet. There is gold here, too.

Here, I will make you a present of this gold dust; it was scooped up from one of our streams here. It proves the existence of very heavy deposits at the point from which these fragments were washed down. In another Island there are very rich gold deposits. Let me present you with this nugget. It was picked up just as you see it. I have seen nuggets from there as large as your thumb—pure, solid gold. Why are they not worked? Oh, we have been so far out of the world, you know, the world has forgotten us. And, then, the strange apathy of the Spanish Government and people. But that is all good luck for you. These people are not capable of self-government. That ought to be apparent to any thoughtful person. They are strangely childish. They do not themselves understand clearly what they are fighting for. Independence to the common people means anarchy, or, rather, socialism.

To the upper classes it means rule and domination. If the ballot were placed in the hands of people, they would vote as their leaders said. It would be well to make English the language of all the islands—but, dear me, what a fearful time you will have teaching it. Why, my dear friend, we have been teaching them Spanish for three hundred years—working hard, too—and yet they speak it very badly even now. They are not bright; really, they are stupid. They resemble very much the caribou. They learn with great difficulty. Come into the islands with practical common sense, not scholastically, theoretically, or experimentally. The islands can be made a great blessing to you, and you to them, and they also can be made a great curse.

A gentleman living in Sulu and who has spent his entire life in various tropical countries said:

The resources of these islands are not even guessed. This land we stand on grows cocoa, sugar, rice, coffee, and hemp, and all of the finest quality. As to the health the conditions are perfect. I am thoroughly acquainted with Asiatic and Pacific Tropics, and I consider this the ideal climate of them all. I hope you are not contemplating such a thing as self-government for the archipelago. It would be a hideous mistake. They are utterly incapable of participating in government.

May be in some places municipal government, might, to a limited extent, be put in the hands of the more competent natives, but even then, I fear, it would work badly. But government of the archipelago by natives would mean continuous civil war. I want you people to succeed, but you will ignominiously and frightfully fail if you put up a weak or a half-hearted government here. I have spent my life here, in Borneo, Java, Straits Settlements, and other such places, and I know this people thoroughly. You have a glorious opportunity here and you must not ruin it.

I will close these few extracts, which are a fair sample of a great number of others, all of which I am willing to submit to the Senate at any time, by reading a few suggestions made to me by the first statesman of the far East, who had had practical experience with similar problems. In the course of a long interview he said.

You must establish government over the islands, because it is incalculably to your interest in the future, and because, if you do not, another power will undoubtedly take them, involving the world in a war for which you will be responsible.

As to the form of government, you should have a governor-general of great ability, firmness, and purity; under him subofficers of districts, and under them still lower officials, for the municipalities, all appointed by their superiors and not chosen by the people. You should employ the ablest natives in the Government service in some way so as to enlist them on your side. The courts are the most important consideration of all. Don't put the natives in charge of them whatever else you do. In the armed forces, don't give any native superior position for a long time. Don't do too much for them in the beginning. Do it gradually, as the years go by. I think your course is clear. Don't treat with them until you defeat them. You must do that. You can not treat and fight.

Make English the language of the courts, schools, and everything else. Let me impress on you the necessity of conferring your benefits on them quite gradually. If you give them too much they can not appreciate nor understand nor rightly use it, and it will thus be thrown away, but if you give them the blessing of free institutions gradually, you furnish a source of constant gratitude. In the other way you expose yourself at the beginning, and besides fail in your good intentions.

WE WILL HOLD IT FAST, AND HOLD IT FOREVER.

Here, then, Senators, is the situation. Two years ago there was no land in all the world which we could occupy for any purpose. Our commerce was daily turning toward the Orient, and geography and trade developments made necessary our commercial empire over the Pacific. And in that ocean we had no commercial, naval, or military base. To-day we have one of the three great ocean possession of the globe, located at the most commanding commercial, naval, and military points in the eastern seas, within hail of India, shoulder to shoulder with China, richer in its own resources than any equal body of land on the entire globe, and peopled by a race which civilization demands shall be improved. Shall we abandon it? That man little knows the common people of the Republic, little understands the instincts of our race, who thinks we will not hold it fast and hold it forever, administering just government by simplest methods. We may trick up devices to shift our burden and lessen our opportunity; but they will avail us nothing but delay. We may tangle conditions by applying academic arrangements of self-government to a crude situation; their failure will drive us to our duty in the end.

MILITARY SITUATION—OTIS DEFENDED.

The military situation, past, present, and prospective, is no reason for abandonment. Our campaign has been as perfect as possible with the force at hand. We have been delayed, first, by a failure to comprehend the immensity of our acquisition; and second, by insufficient force; and, third, by our efforts for peace. In February, after the treaty of peace, General Otis had only 3,722 officers and men whom he had a legal right to order into battle. The terms of enlistment of the rest of his troops had expired, and, they fought voluntarily and not on legal military compulsion. It was one of the noblest examples of patriotic devotion to duty in the history of the world.

Those who complain do so in ignorance of the real situation. We attempted a great task with insufficient means; we became impatient that it was not finished before it could fairly be commenced; and I pray we may not add that other element of disaster, pausing in the work, before it is thoroughly and forever done. That is the gravest mistake we could possibly make, and that is the only danger before us. Our Indian wars would have been shortened, the lives of our soldiers and settlers saved, and the Indians themselves benefited had we made continuous and decisive war; and any other kind of war is criminal because ineffective. We acted towards the Indians as though we feared them, loved them, hated them—a mingling of foolish sentiment, inaccurate thought, and paralytic purpose. Let us now be instructed by our own experience.

This, too, has been Spain's course in the Philippines. I have studied Spain's painful military history in these islands. Never sufficient troops; never vigorous action, pushed to conclusive results and a permanent peace; always treating with the rebels while they fought them; always cruel and corrupt when a spurious peace was arranged. This has been Spain's way for three hundred years, until insurrection has become a Filipino habit. Never since Magellan landed did Spain put enough troops in the islands for complete and final action in war; never did she intelligently, justly, firmly, administer government in peace.

At the outbreak of the last insurrection, in August, 1896, Spain had only 1,500 Spanish soldiers in all the Philippines, and 700 of these were in Manilla. In November of that year she had only 10,000 men. The generals in command of these were criticised and assailed in Spain. It is characteristic of Spain that the people at home do not support, but criticise their generals in the field. The Spanish method has always been a mixed policy of peace and war, a contradiction of terms, an impossible combination, rendering war ineffective and peace impossible. This was Compo's plan. It was Blanco's plan. Those who would make it our plan will inherit Blanco's fate and failure.

TRUE MILITARY POLICY.

Mr. President, that must not be our plan. This war is like all other wars. It needs to be finished before it is stopped. I am prepared to vote either to make our work thorough or, even now to abandon it. A lasting peace can be secured only by overwhelming forces in ceaseless action until universal and absolutely final defeat is inflicted on the enemy. To halt before every armed force, every guerrilla band, opposing us is dispersed or exterminated will prolong hostilities and leave alive the seeds of perpetual insurrection.

Even then we should not treat. To treat at all is to admit that we are wrong. And any quiet so secured will be delusive and fleeting. And a false peace will betray us; a sham truce will curse us. It is not to serve the purposes of the hour, it is not to salve a present situation, that peace should be established. It is for the tranquility of the archipelago forever. It is for an orderly government for the Filipinos for all the future. It is to give this problem to posterity solved and settled; not vexed and involved. It is to establish the supremacy of the American Republic over the Pacific and throughout the East till the end of time.

It has been charged that our conduct of the war has been cruel. Senators, it has been the reverse. I have been in our hospitals and seen the Filipino wounded as carefully, tenderly cared for as our own. Within our lines they may plow and sow and reap and go about the affairs of peace with absolute liberty. And yet all this kindness was misunderstood, or rather not understood. Senators must remember that we not dealing with Americans or Europeans. We are dealing with Orientals. We are dealing with Orientals who are Malays. We are dealing with Malays instructed in Spanish methods. They mistake kindness for weakness, forbearance for fear. It could not be otherwise unless you could erase hundreds of years of savagery, other hundreds of years of Orientalism, and still other hundreds of years of Spanish character and custom.

OUR EFFORTS TO SECURE PEACE.

Our mistake has not been cruelty; it has been kindness. It has been the application to Spanish Malays of Methods appropriate to New England. Every device of mercy, every method of conciliation, has been employed by the peace-loving President of the American Republic, to the amazement of nations experienced in Oriental revolt. Before the outbreak our general in command appointed a commission to make some arrangement with the natives mutually agreeable. I know the members of the commission well—General Hughes, Colonel Crowder, and General Smith—moderate, kindly, tactful men of the world; an ideal body for such negotiation. It was treated with contempt.

We smiled at intolerable insult and insolence until the lips of every native in Manila were curling in ridicule for the cowardly Americans. We refrained from all violence until their armed bravos crossed the lines in violation of agreement. Then our sentry shot the offender, and he should have been court-martialed had he failed to shoot. That shot was the most fortunate of the war. For there is every reason to believe that Aguinaldo had planned the attack upon us for some nights later. Our sentry's shot brought this attack prematurely on. He arranged for an uprising in Manila to massacre all Americans, the plans for which, in a responsible officer's handwriting, are in our possession. This shot and its results made the awful scheme impossible. We did not strike till they attacked us in force, without provocation. This left us no alternative but war or evacuation.

WORK OF THE COMMISSION.

The patience of our peace-loving President was not even then exhausted. A civil commission was sent to Manila, composed of the president of one of our great universities, a distinguished diplomat and an eminent college professor who had special knowledge of the country and people and also General Otis and Admiral Dewey. These men exhausted the expedients of peace, and always were met with the Malay's ready evasion, the Spaniard's habitual delay. I am personal witness that no effort was neglected by our commission to assure the Filipino people of our good intentions and beneficent purposes. The commission entertained the mestizos of Manila in a way that would have honored the Senate of the United States; the brown faces of the common people sneered. The commission treated natives, accustomed to blows, with kindest consideration: the agents of Aguinaldo told tales of our pusillanimity to the ignorant rural masses. This remarkable man sent so-called commissions, ostensibly to treat, but really to play with ours. His commissions were composed of generals in uniform. The populance gaped in open admiration when they appeared in Manila. Our representatives of peace talked to them, argued with them, entertained them; the people were impressed with their importance. President Schurman even rode with them through the city. The masses were confirmed in their reverence for their brothers who were thus honored and distinguished. Then the be-spangled representatives of the Malay dictator return to their lord, and the sole effect of these pacific efforts was to make 250,000 natives in Manila think that the only way to win the respect of the American Republic is to fight it.

No, Senators, the friendly methods of peace have been thoroughly tried. The only to make peace more difficult. The Oriental does not understand our attempt to conciliate. Every effort of our commission which did its work at Manila so earnestly, so honestly, so thoroughly, and which, with Americans or Europeans, would have so brilliantly succeeded, only delayed the peace it attempted to hasten. There is not now and never was any possible course but ceaseless operations in the field and loyal support of the war at home.

A Mile a Minute.

Sixty miles an hour is the merest commonplace to the mind of the up-to-date railroad man, but it means other things besides those described that are wonderful to the outsider. It means a steam pressure of twenty tons on each piston head every tenth of a second. It means that up in the cab the fireman is throwing into the furnace two-thirds of a ton of coal every hour; one engine burns coal faster than ten men can mine it. It means two quarts of oil every hour to keep her journal box greased and everything running smoothly.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucus lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucus surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

A Great Lake.

In his article on "Climbs in the Andes in 1898," in the Alpine Journal, Sir Martin Conway tells us that Lake Titicaca is fourteen times as large as the lake of Geneva and lies at an altitude of 12,600 feet above the level of the sea. A mountain railway finds its way up to this great lake, and the passengers are transferred to a steamboat if they wish to cross Titicaca.

I Had a Bad Cough

"I had a bad cough for six weeks and could not find any relief whatever. I read what a wonderful remedy Ayer's Cherry Pectoral was for coughs and bought a bottle. Before I had taken a quarter of it my cough had entirely left me."—L. Hawn, Newington, Ont., May 3, 1899.

Quickly Cures Colds

Neglected colds always lead to something serious. They run into chronic bronchitis which pulls down your general health and deprives you of sleep; or they end in genuine consumption with all its uncertain results.

Don't wait, but take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral just as soon as you begin to cough. A few doses will cure you then. But it cures old colds, too, only it takes a little more time. We refer to such diseases as bronchitis, asthma, whooping-cough, consumption, and hard winter coughs.

If you've just taken cold a 25 cent bottle is all you'll need. For harder cases a 50 cent bottle is better. For chronic troubles, and to keep on hand, the $1.00 bottle is most economical.

RUMOR THAT THE BATTLE IS ON.

Wounded Said to Be Arriving on Every Train—Losses Thus Far Confined to English Troops, But Confirmation Lacking—Much Activity on Both Sides.

A London, January 19 special says: The war office has issued the following:

"From Buller, Spearman's camp, January 18:

"One field artillery, Howitzer battery and Lyttleton's brigade are across the Tugela at Potgeiter's drift. The enemy's position is being bombarded by us.

"Five miles higher up Warren has crossed the river by a pontoon eighty-five yards long. He hopes his force will, by evening, have advanced five miles from the river to his right front. The enemy is busily entrenching."

From Roberts, Capetown, January 18:

"Gatacre reports that 300 men of all ranks have been moved from Bushman's hoeck to Hoperberg, and the Seventy-fourth field battery and one company of mounted infantry from Sterkstroom to Bushman's hoeck. Otherwise there is no change."

At midnight the war office announced that it had no further news for publication. When questioned with regard to the rumored British victory and the relief of Ladysmith the officials replied that they had received no information to bear out either feature of the rumor, and were inclined to think that serious fighting must precede the relief of the town.

A special dispatch from Durban, dated Wednesday, says:

"Advices from Potgieter's draft, dated yesterday (Tuesday), say that Sir Charles Warren has arrived within seventeen miles of Ladysmith, and that British wounded are arriving at Mooi river field hospital by every train from the front, indicating that there has already been severe fighting.

"Neither report has yet been confirmed."

Spearman's Farm, Natal, Jan. 18.—10 a. m.—General Lyttleton's brigade, with a Howitzer battery, crossed the Tugela river at Potgieters drift, on Tuesday, January 16. The water rose above the waists of the men. The Boers fired two shots and then recalled their forces to the trenches, the passage being uninterrupted. The British advanced in skirmishing order, and the small kopjes on the summits were occupied by 6:30 p. m. During the night it rained heavily.

WHEELER DEPRIVED OF SEAT

Alabama Must Re-elect the General to Congress.

If General Joseph Wheeler expects to return to Washington to take a seat in congress without further formality it looks as if he would meet with disappointment. Inquiry has been made since the announcement that he has been relieved from further duty in the Philippines and it is found that there is general agreement on both sides of the house that it has been clearly shown by the examination of the case of Low and other precedents that he has forfeited his right to a seat in congress, and that the only thing open to him is to go back to his district and seek re-election if he desires to continue service in congress.

KILLS WIFE FOR A BURGLAR

Hillsboro, Ills., Man Makes a Terribly Fatal Error.

Edward Moore, an employe of the Hillsboro Coal company at Hillsboro, Ill., mistook his wife, Rose C. Moore, for a burglar and killed her. Moore and a friend named Lannigan were playing checkers. Moore says he thought his wife had retired. Hearing a noise at the kitchen door he entered his wife's bedroom, never noticing her absence, securing his revolver and, seeing a form in the kitchen fired, the ball entering the brain of his wife. Moore is almost frantic with grief. The coroner's jury is conducting an inquest.

One of the attorneys is sanguine that not only will the unpaid Omaha exposition employes get their money in full, but also small creditors will have a whack at the balance of $45,000, which, he thinks, can be realized on the assets of the exposition company and from suits against stockholders after other resources have been exhausted.

He once saved the life of Commodore Matthew G. Perry, who had been ambushed by twelve Mexicans. He served on the Kearsage, the brig Somers, the frigate Congress and the sloop of war John Adams. He was on the Kearsage when Admiral Schley was a lieutenant on the same warship. After leaving the navy Hughes resumed his business of sailmaking and continued it until old age interfered.

COMMITTEE AGAINST HIM.

Unanimous in Opinion that Roberts is a Polygamist—Divided on Procedure.

The special committee of the house of representatives to investigate the case of Brigham H. Roberts of Utah reached a final conclusion. Of the polygamous status of Mr. Roberts the committee was unanimous and agreed upon a formal statement of facts. On the question of procedure to be adopted the committee was divided.

The majority, consisting of all the members except Littlefield of Maine, and De Armond of Missouri, favored exclusion at the outset. Messrs. Littlefield and De Armond will make a minority report favorable to seating Roberts on his prima facie rights and then expelling him.

PEOPLE RIPE FOR ANARCHY

Serious State of Affairs Prevailing in Venezuela.

A Paris, January 18 dispatch says: A dispatch from Caracas is published saying anarchy prevails in Venezuela. Owing to their refusal to advance the government money the directors of the banks of Caracas and Venezuela, including a Frenchman, M. The representations of the French charge d'affaires, it is added, have been disregarded and the French colony at Caracas energetically demands that the French Atlantic squadron be dispatched to the coast of Venezuela.

BLOW AT LIBERTY

Senator Hale Waxes Eloquent in Behalf of Boers.

THE AMERICANS ARE WITH THEM

Passionate Denial of Claims of Great Britain—Spoke With Unusual Force, Decisiveness and Earnestness—Held Close Attention.

A speech, sensational in its interest and international in its importance, was delivered in the senate Friday by Mr. Hale (rep., Me.) The occasion of the utterances was the simple question whether a resolution introduced by Mr. Allen (populist, Neb.) calling for information as to the recognition by this country of diplomatic representation of the Transvaal republic should be directed to the president or to the secretary of state. Mr. Hale made the question the text of an impassioned speech, in which he declared that nine-tenths of the American people sympathize with the Boers in their gallant struggle for liberty against one of the greatest powers in the world. He declared that "the war which Great Britain is waging is the most fell blow at human liberty that has been struck in the century."

He denied that the American people were in sympathy with Great Britain in the South African war to stamp out the liberty of a people," and when Mr. Balfour, in the house of commons, made such a statement "he should be met with some disclaimer from this side of the Atlantic." He declared that the English people themselves were not in favor of the war, "which had been brought on by a sharp cabinet minister engaged with gold speculators."

Mr. Hale spoke with unusual force, decisiveness and earnestness, even for him, and his passionate eloquence claimed the closest attention of every listener.

The resolution, which previous to Mr. Hale's speech had caused a sharp colloquy between Mr. Allen and Mr. Spooner (republican, Wis.) was passed finally as amended.

PINAR DEL RIO PROSPERING

General Wood Much Pleased With Evidence of Progress.

General Wood at Havana expresses himself as well pleased with the result of his visit to the province of Pinar del Rio. He says he found the tobacco in good shape, although sugar was not so far advanced as it should be, owing to the expensive machinery necessary. He found no evidence of any suffering among the people, there being work enough, apparently, for all.

General Wood congratulated General Lee on the "magnificent showing" made by the section of the island under his jurisdiction.

ROUSING THE BRITISH LION

Passage of the Nicaragua Bill Regarded as Unfriendly Act.

A London dispatch says: According to advices from Washington, a canvass of the senate and house of representatives has placed it beyond dispute that congress will not only pass the Nicaraugua canal bill, but will pass it in a form directly at variance with the Clayton-Bulwer treaty.

This is a statement of decidedly serious importance, and we hesitate to believe that the United States government will commit itself to a course which this country would have to regard as unfriendly.

NOT TO GIVE UP PRACTICE

Chicago Brokers Bound to Deal in Puts and Calls.

Nearly 200 brokers on the Chicago board of trade met to devise measures to continue trading in puts and calls, despite the strong stand taken against it by President Warren and the new board of directors. It was decided to continue the trade in privileges outside the jurisdiction of the board, and for that purpose a put and call market, to be known as the miller's exchange, was provided for.

Postpones Injunction Case.

The hearing of the motion for a preliminary injunction in the case of the city of St. Louis against the sanitary district of Chicago, the object of which is to prevent the operation of the drainage canal, has been put off by Judge Kohlsaat at Chicago until February 3, pending the decision of the United States supreme court on the similar matter which has been presented at Washington.

The Tension Relieved.

The political and financial crisis, involving tension between the bank of Venezuela and the government, has apparently passed. It is now understood that the bank directors who were arrested had become politically involved. President Castro has assured United States Minister Loomis that money would not be demanded from foreigners.

The report that a French squadron has been ordered to Caracas is denied.

Smallpox in Marshalltown.

Several cases of smallpox of a mild form have developed at Marshalltown, Pa., in a house occupied by negroes in the central part of the city. Two other families in different wards are reported affected. Strict quarantine regulations are being enforced and there is little apprehension of the disease spreading.

Extends the Time.

Secretary Root has issued an order extending the time for the foreclosure of mortgages on property in Puerto for a period of six months.

As a result of a drunken carousal, Mrs. Ida Sible and Mrs. Mary Blizzard were so badly scalded by falling into a vat in the dye house of the South Chester, Pa., Manufacturing company that they died. William Bell and N. Thomas, who escorted the women to the place, were arrested but were released after the coroner had investigated the affair.

Martin Bergen, a member of the Boston baseball team, shot and killed his wife and two children, and then himself at his home in north Brookfield.

MUST TREAT ALL ALIKE

Interstate Commerce Commission Rules Against a Railroad.

The interstate commerce commission in an opinion of Commissioner Clements announces its decision of the case of the Savannah bureau of freight and transportation and others against the Louisville and Nashville Railroad company and others.

The carriers' rates on sugar and other commodities from New York to Chipley and various other stations in Florida and their rates on bacon and other commodities from Savannah to such stations in Florida are not found to be unlawful.

The commission rules that a carrier cannot lawfully establish and maintain an adjustment of rates which in practice prevents shippers on its line from availing themselves of a principal market, which they have long been using and confers a substantial monopoly upon a new market in which, for reasons of its own, it has greater interest.

Another ruling is that when a carrier makes rates to two competing markets which give the one a practical monopoly over the other it goes beyond serving its fair interest, and disregards the statutory requirements of relative equality as between persons, localities and particular descriptions of traffic.

UNVEIL WEBSTER STATUE

The statue occupies a position on Scott Circle, but prior to the actual unveiling the ceremonies of presentation and acceptance were held at the Lafayette opera house.

JOHN PAUL JONES' REMAINS

Proposal to Remove Them From Paris to This Country.

The secretary of the navy will send to congress the latest information in the possession of the office of naval intelligence. The naval attache at Paris is still prosecuting his investigations and expresses confidence that he will be completely successful in the end.

GERMAN PRESS MORE CALM

Regarding Steamer Seizures With Less Passion.

The German press adopts a more quiet tone regarding the seizures of German vessels by warships, printing with satisfaction extracts of a similar tenor from London papers. Owing to the prospect of a speedy settlement satisfactory to Germany interpellation is expected to be calm and non-sensational.

The Berliner Tageblatt is informed from St. Petersburg that Russian statesmen are trying to get the support of the French cabinet for calling an international congress to revise maritime law and to clarify the idea of contraband.

Indian Boys Escape.

Columbus, Neb., are on the lookout for a number of Indian boys who have escaped from the Genoa industrial school. The officers have already captured four of them and ten others are still at large. The boys range in age from eleven to eighteen years. The latent wildness lurking in the blood of the young red men probably impelled them to seek an escape from the restraining influences of the school, otherwise there was no dissatisfaction felt.

Dr. Flippen Charges Assault.

Dr. C. A. Flippen, a colored physician practicing medicine at Henderson, Neb., formerly located at Lincoln, has sworn out a complaint against George Fast, charging assault and threats to do bodily injury, and also against Jacob Fast, a brother, whom he charges with carrying concealed weapons. The Fasts are pioneer farmers and well to do Russians living near here.

Caused Horse to Run Away.

J. Ames, a man sixty-five years old, took one of his granddaughters out for a ride at Fairmont after school. They were overtaken by a man who undertook to run by them with a feather renovating wagon which so frightened Mr. Ames' horse that it became unmanageable and ran away, throwing both the occupants out of the buggy. Mr. Ames and the girl are badly hurt.

Weather Still Too Rough.

A St. Johns, Newfoundland, dispatch says: The weather is still too rough to make it possible to get any additional information regarding the wreck at St. Mary's bay and the fishermen fear two or three days must elapse before the sea will moderate sufficiently to enable them to reach the bodies.

Six More Deaths.

A dispatch from Honolulu states that there have been six more deaths from bubonic plague. This makes a total of twenty-eight deaths since the outbreak.

WOMEN OF THE UNITED STATES

Regard Peruna as Their Shield Against Catarrh, Coughs, Colds, Grip and Catarrhal Diseases.

MRS. BELVA A. LOCKWOOD, LATE CANDIDATE FOR THE PRESIDENCY.

Mrs. Belva Lockwood, the eminent barrister, of Washington, D. C., is the only woman who has ever been a candidate for the Presidency of the United States. She is the best known woman in America. As the pioneer of her sex in the legal profession she has gathered fame and fortune. In a letter to The Peruna Medicine Company she says:

"I have used your Peruna both for myself and my mother, Mrs. Hannah J. Bennett, now in her 88th year, and I find it an invaluable remedy for cold, catarrh, hay fever and kindred diseases; also a good tonic for feeble and old people, or those run down and with nerves unstrung." Yours truly, Belva A. Lockwood.

Catarrh may attack any organ of the body. Women are especially liable to catarrh of the pelvic organs. There are one hundred cases of catarrh of the pelvic organs to one of catarrh of the head. Most people think, because they have no catarrh of the head, they have no catarrh at all. This is a great mistake, and is the cause of many cases of sickness and death. A MINNESOTA FARMER

Does Well in Western Canada.

Virden, Man., Nov. 18, 1899.

Hon. Clifford Sifton, Minister of the Interior, Ottawa, Canada—Sir: Thinking that my experience in Manitoba might be both useful and interesting to my fellow-countrymen in the United States who may be looking to Manitoba and the northwest with the intention of settling there, I have much pleasure in stating that through information received from Mr. W. F. McCreary, immigration commissioner at Winnipeg, I was induced to visit Manitoba in February, 1898. When I called upon Mr. McCreary he spared no pains to give me all the information, etc., in his possession, the result of which was that I came here with a letter of introduction from him to the secretary of the Virden Board of Trade. That gentleman provided me with a competent land guide, and, although there was considerable snow on the ground, I had no difficulty in selecting three homesteads for myself and sons. Having made the necessary homestead entries at the land office in Brandon, I returned to my home in Lyon county, Minnesota, and came back here in May following, accompanied by one of my boys, bringing with us two teams of horses, implements, etc. Our first work was to erect a temporary shanty and stable, after which we broke and leveled seventy-five acres and put up thirty tons of hay. I went back to Minnesota about July 20, leaving my son here. I returned in October, bringing my family with me. I found that the land we had acquired was of good quality, being a strong clay loam with clay subsoil. Last spring I sowed 100 acres in wheat and fifty acres in oats and barley. (Seventy-five acres of this grain was sowed on "go-back" plowed last spring.) My crop was thrashed in October, the result being over 2,700 bushels of grain in all. Wheat averaged fifteen bushels per acre and graded No. 1 hard, but that which was sown on land other than sod ("go-back") went twenty four and one-half bushels per acre.

To say that I am well pleased with the result of my first year's farming operations in Manitoba does not adequately express my feelings, and I have no hesitation in advising those who are living in districts where land is high in price to come out here, if they are willing to do a fair amount of work. I am ten miles from Virden, which is a good market town, and nine miles from Hargrave, where there are two elevators. This summer I erected a dwelling house of native stone and bought a half-section of land adjoining our homesteads, for which I paid a very moderate price. There are still some homesteads in this district, and land of fine quality can be purchased from the Canadian Pacific Railway company at $3.50 per acre on liberal terms. Good water is generally found at a depth of from fifteen to twenty feet. I have 175 acres ready for crop next year.

The cost of living here is about the same as in southern Minnesota. Some commodities are higher and others lower in price, but the average is about the same. I remain, your obedient servant. (Signed.)

A dispatch from Pawnee City to Monday's State Journal says:—There is considerable excitement in the southeast part of the county in the vicinity of DuBois about smallpox. There are several cases of the disease just across the county line in Richardson. Two doctors of DuBois have seen the cases and pronounce it smallpox. The doctors refuse to visit the cases again and the citizens of the village have requested the officials of Richardson county to care for the cases and take proper means to prevent the spread of the epidemic which they have refused to do. The county attorney, on request of the citizens of DuBois, has communicated with Gov. Poynter as to what method to pursue. The governor has replied that he will request the secretary of the state board of health to visit the locality at once with instructions to take proper measures to care for the cases and prevent its further spread.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C. January 20, 1900. (Special Correspondence) There is one object that has interested the people of the United States for years, and that is building of a canal across the Isthmus of Panama. This is pretty certain to be provided for by the present Congress. President McKinley has expressed an anxiety to see the canal put through, and almost every member of Congress is also in favor of it. The bill appropriating $140,000,000 to build the canal has been favorably reported, and is likely to be adopted without serious division.

The new canal, which will be under American control, will make a direct waterway from the eastern and southern coast to Hawaii, China, Japan, Australia and the Philippines, and means much for the commercial interests of the country. With a north and south railroad to the Gulf the people of Nebraska and other western states will have competitive lines to bid for their products which are to be shipped to the Orient. Since the United States reaching out into the land across the Pacific, the need of the Isthmus canal is more apparent, and it remains for the republican administration to push it through.

The financial bill is still before the senate, with a prospect of another week of debate. Senator Allen has not yet talked on the bill, and it is said that he is to close the debate. Washington papers intimate that he will take two or three days to finish his remarks.

It has been noticed that every time the Philippine question comes up in senate, as it does once or twice a day, Senator Allen takes no part, but often slips out to the cloak room to wait for the storm to pass. Since his speech made last winter, in which he upheld the war and denounced the Filipinos as "worse than Sioux Indians," he has no anxiety to go on record as opposed to the war this winter.

The effort being made in Nebraska to bind the pop party hand and foot and turn it over to the democrats is attracting much attention in the east, and the activity of Senator Allen in the work is causing much comment. The suspicion is abroad that Allen has his eye on the presidency. It is thought that a deal has been made whereby Allen is to take a leading part in delivering the pop party this year, under the promise that he may be the democratic candidate for president in 1904. There may be something in this, as the bills the Senator has been introducing of late indicate that he is trying to attract attention in localities outside the borders of Nebraska.

In the present session a number of bills have been introduced directly effecting Nebraska, but it is very doubtful if any of the appropriations for new buildings will get through. The intention of Congress is to be economical in appropriations, and the great number of new buildings that are asked for by the various states are out of all reason, In declining to grant the universal demand, there is little chance for the Nebraska bills. Where a demand is too large, often nothing is granted. This rule, it is believed, will apply to two or three special pension bills from Nebraska, where the applicants have insisted on receiving an amount larger than usually given in such cases.

F. A. HARRISON.

FROM

Lincoln, Neb., Jan. — Editor Argus:—Lincoln is — town this week. There is very little going on, except in a business way, and the people seem desirous of resting up awhile after having finished the work of entertaining the visitors from over the state who have been here at different times since Christmas. During the three weeks just ended, there were conventions of the state historical society, the state dairymen's association, and the state horticultural society, several mutual insurance meetings, and miscellaneous other gatherings. The series is not quite exhausted yet, for the state press association meets on Tuesday and Wednesday of this week.

The principal topic of state interest now seems to be the proceedings of the board of transportation, which has undergone much criticism of late. The World-Herald and other papers are conducting a vigorous attack on the board for what they term its inactivity and they are even charging that its members have purposely refrained from taking steps to correct railroad abuses because of passes held by them and through their susceptibility to other improper influences. On the other hand, there are many who believe the transportation board has acted wisely and conservatively in laying a foundation for state regulation of the railroad, express, telegraph, and telephone rates which the people have to pay.

My own opinion, if I may be permitted to express it, is that the board of transportation has done pretty nearly everything within its power so far to protect the people from exorbitant charges, considering that its authority was not recognized to any extent by the railroads until a recent supreme court decision firmly established its standing and authority. It is a question whether any board can regulate railroad matters and others akin to them in such a way as to alleviate to any considerable degree the multiplying evils which the present business conditions of the country are bringing forth.

There is a good deal of interest here concerning the reported smallpox cases in Richardson county, near DuBois. Governor Poynter has authorized a member of the state board of health to take whatever steps are necessary to the prevention of the spread of the disease. The governor is of the opinion that prompt and effective measures should be used to suppress the malady before it has gained a foothold.

The Table Rock people up here are getting along nicely. Joe Hanna is now a full fledged dentist, with a luxuriant black beard. He has lately formed a partnership with Dr. Messler, formerly of Falls City, and the two have their office in the new Richards block.

The location of the new library building, for whose construction Andrew Carnegie has donated $75,000, is proving to be a source of considerable disagreement. Some want it on the postoffice square, while others would like to have it removed several blocks from the business section of the city. One citizen advocated placing it in the intersection of two streets in the southern part of town. D. E. Thompson has offered to donate one site or purchase another and deed it to Lincoln whenever the city signifies that either location will be accepted. I remain very truly yours,

ELLIS E. WOLFE.

It has been demonstrated repeatedly in every state in the Union and in many foreign countries that Chamberlain's Cough Remedy is a certain preventive and cure for croup. It has become the universal remedy for that disease. M V Fisher of Liberty, W Va., only repeats what has been said around the globe when he writes: "I have used Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in my family for several years and always with perfect success. We believe that it is not only the best cough remedy, but that it is a sure cure for croup. It has saved the lives of our children a number of times." This remedy is for sale by S G Wright, Druggist.

Thomas Smiley, father of Conductor William Smiley who runs on 89 and 90, between Lincoln and Concordia, died at the home of the latter in Concordia, last Sunday afternoon aged 74 years. The cause of his death was pneumonia. The remains passed through here Monday enroute to Elk Creek, where interment was made. Conductor and Mrs. Smiley have the sympathy of a large number of friends in this city.—Wymore Wymorean.

His Wife Saved Him.

My wife's good advice saved my life writes F M Ross of Winfield, Tenn., for I had such a bad cough I could hardly breathe, I steadily grew worse under doctor's treatment, but my wife urged me to use Dr King's New Discovery for Consumption, which completely cured me." Coughs, Colds, Bronchitis, La Grippe, Pneumonia, Asthma, Hay Fever and all maladies of Chest, Throat and Lungs are positively cured by this marvellous medicine. 50c. and $1.00. Every bottle guaranteed Trial bottles free at S G Wright's drug store.

Our school directors are to be congratulated on their choice of a Principal of the city schools. That he has done more for our schools, our scholars, and our little city in general, than any other man ever brought here, no one will deny. Prof O'Connel is not only an educator of superior merit and ability, but he has also fine musical talent. He has voluntarily added a course in music to the regular studies of the schools, which promises to become a most popular feature. His ability as a lecturer was demonstrated at his recent lecture on The Philippine Islands, a subject with which he is perfectly familiar, having been a member of the famous "Fighting First" Nebraska regiment which saw such hard service there. As a gentleman and a scholar, an untiring and conscientious worker, Prof. O'Connel merits naught but praise.—The Palisade Press.

W. S. A. Banquet.

The third annual banquet of the Table Rock W. S. A. was held at the opera house on Thursday evening of last week, and report gives it first place in the history of social affairs of the association; covers were laid for one hundred guests and each place was occupied. The program was of a high literary order as may be seen from the following:

Lines for the annual W. S. A. banquet Jan. 18, 1900, by Mary E. Howe.

O tune your lyre, I hear the sisters say,
Sing of our former deeds, our present state,
Let not the olden memories pass away,
But to our listening ears the tale relate.

Sing of our workers who have gone from sight
Who in those higher realms of truth sublime
Where now they dwell in robes of purest light
Still cherish thoughts of their own earthly time.

The deeds they wrought we never can forget,
The hours we passed in converse and in song,
The motives high when we together met,
The zeal for good that moved our ranks along

To aid the needy, bless the household band,
To help in all that womanhood requires,
To serve with heart and voice our native land
And seek to higher build its altar fires.

These were our aims and though but few remain
Of those who in our "Woman's Club" first met,
Our earthly loss is their eternal gain,
And fondest thoughts of them are with us yet.

We hear the bells of 1900 sound
So soft and clear upon the waiting air,
A jubilee, glorious and profound,
To thrill the "listening nations" everywhere

O year of promise and of hope divine,
The year by poets sung and prophets told,
The treasures of eternal youth are there,
For riches of the soul are never old.

May peace soon dawn upon the troubled waves
By agent and by passion rolled afar,
And o'er the land the wide Pacific laves
May every eye behold the Morning Star.

Tonight we look upon this gladsome feast,
Where all the sisters and the brothers meet,
Our members are by many a score increased
And every one we joyously would greet.

Through all the year unbroken is our band,
For equal rights our labors all will give
In converse and in study hand to hand,
We strive to bless the world wherein we live

We do not work for riches or for fame,
We care not for the pomp of fashion's sway,
We know on high is registered each name
There to abide while ages pass away.

So now let happiness fill every heart,
And merry greetings everywhere be heard;
My lyre would gladly all its hopes impart,
"Hail and farewell" its first and closing word

Status of Woman at the Beginning of the Nineteenth Century.

Paper read by Mrs. E. E. Linn at the W. S. A. banquet Jan. 18, 1900.

Married women at this time had no legal existence, so completely was the wife and all her belongings owned and controlled by the husband that she was said to be "dead in law." The Common law, then in force in England and the United States, held husband and wife to be one, and that one the husband. Not only did he control her property, but he selected the food and clothes for herself and children, decided upon the education and religion of the children, and to a very great extent controlled her freedom of thought, speech and action, for if she disagreed with him, or in any way offended him, he had the legal right, supported by public opinion, to punish her, provided in whipping he use a stick no larger than his thumb. If very poor she might labor to support the family, but he collected and used her wages. Kind, loving husbands, then as now, made companions of their wives, but from a brutal, cruel, husband, there was no release but death as public opinion was such that a woman had better bear any amount of abuse and tyranny than to seek relief by divorce, and as late as 1847 there were only 2 cases on record in England of women applying for divorce, and very few in the United States In 1805 in Sheffield market England, a man sold his wife as a cow, for a guinea, and in Knares borrough a man sold his wife for a sixpence and a quid of tobacco. The daily newspapers spoke of these occurences as becoming too common. A frequent method of punishment for scolding women in those days was by fastening them to a board and dipping in the river. In no country could a married woman will her property to any one at her death, as all her possessions passed into her husbands hands at marriage. While the married woman was legally dead unmarried women and widows were made to wish they were really so, not being credited with brains sufficient to transact any business, some male friend must manage their property, if fortunate enough to have any, if not they were dependent on the nearest male relative for support as it was considered a disgrace for a woman of the upper or middle classes to earn money. Not a college in the world was open to women and very few public schools and in these girls were discouraged from attempting anything beyond reading, writing and elementary arithmetic. In Boston girls were permitted to attend school when there were not boys enough to fill the seats. The daughters of the wealthy had private tutors or were educated in convents or private boarding schools, in the merest rudiments of learning. Good manners, polite address, music and dancing were the only accomplishments considered necessary. Gregory's "Legacy to My Daughters" a book recommended as a safe rule of conduct in all private boarding schools, said: "If you have any learning keep it a profound secret, especially from the men, who look with a jealous and malignant eye on a woman of great parts and cultivated understanding." Roseau of France, taught that woman should be educated with the sole idea of caring for, loving, pleasing and consoling the men and rendering their lives as easy and agreeable as possible." Mary Wolstencraft plead for larger opportunities and education for women, but she was called a "hyena in petticoats," and any woman who expressed dissatisfaction with the conditions of women at once became the target of ridicule and scorn for both sexes. In 1809 but seven occupations were open to women. In 1814 women sometimes taught school in summer when the schools were small and pupils mostly girls; they were paid about one third the wages paid male teachers. As late as 1840, $1 a week and board round was considered good wages for a woman. In 1826 a high school was started in Boston for girls and though it was full all the time and, an alarming success so great was public opposition that it closed, in less than two years. About this time the Grimke sisters of South Carolina, indignant at the wrongs heaped upon the Negro, freed the slaves and came north to plead their cause. Abbie Kelly began speaking about the same time. They were rotten egged, mobbed and persecuted but the cause grew and in 1833 the Female Anti-slavery Society of Philadelphia was formed and it is believed to be the first female organization in the world. Time and space will permit but a hint at the pitiful, ludicrous and cruel opposition woman has met in her efforts to clean and purify the physical and spiritual world but she is surely gaining ground and as Dr. Dawson said about a certain class the other night. The men had better clean up, or die and that soon.

Having a Great Run on Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

Manager Massin, of the Pierson drug store, informs us that he is having a great run on Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. He sells five bottles of that medicine to one of any other kind, and it gives great satisfaction. In these days of la grippe there is nothing like Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to stop the cough, heal up the sore throat and lungs and give relief within a very short time. The sales are growing, and all who try it are pleased with its prompt action.—South Chicago Daily Calumet. For sale by S G Wright, Druggist.

The state press association held its annual meeting at Lincoln Tuesday and Wednesday of this week. The Argus man was afflicted with an abscess on that portion of his anatomy made tender by recollections of his mother's slipper, last week, hence an accumulation of work this week kept him from attending the meeting.

The revival meetings inaugurated at the M. E. church on Sunday morning, conducted by Evangelist Potter, is attracting large audiences. Mr. Potter is an earnest worker, an interesting speaker, and holds the attention of his audiences. There is a large choir, with orchestra accompaniment, under the leadership of Rev. Parker, which adds much to the interest of the meeting. The meetings will continue each evening of this week and next, and perhaps longer. Next Sunday afternoon at 3 o'clock Mr. Potter will speak to men and boys at the church to which all men and boys over the age of 14 are urged to attend.

Hon. C. S. Wood was in Kansas City last week and while there bought twenty-six head of registered Galloway cows, which arrived here last Friday and are now at Mr. Wood's farm north of town. In the purchase are representatives of the greatest families, including Highland Marys, Dotty Dimples, Charming Matildas, Fanny Magnolia, and others. Most of the cows have been bred to Cliff of Nashua, at the head of the Lowood herd. At the head of his herd Mr. Wood has a splendid bull, and in a few years he expects to have one of the finest and largest herds of Galloway cattle in the west. Among stockmen the Galloways are fast becoming prime favorites for all purposes, being good milkers, and large enough to make profitable beefers. The Galloway hide is already worth 20 to 30 per cent more than others for fur purposes and the development of that industry will enhance their value still further.

For the last 32 years it has been customary for the Kerns family to hold a family re-union on Jan. 27th., that being the anniversary of Grandma Kerns birth, and last Saturday being her 85th birthday, relatives and friends to the number of 81 gathered at the old home to celebrate the happy event. For the first time in many years all of Grandma's children were present, all being members of this community except Geo. D. Kerns, of Kansas City, who with wife arrived here Friday afternoon. Of course, the event of the day was the dinner which was excellent in every respect delighting both the eye and the palate, the table decorations being beautiful bouquets of ferns and carnations. Souvenir cards bearing a bunch of violets tied with lavender ribbon, inscribed with appropriate quotations were placed at each plate, the floral decorations and souvenir cards being presented by Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Kerns. Although Grandma has passed the four score mark, her mind is is bright and active as if she has seen but half that number of years, and, though she has not been enjoying the best of health this winter, her friends rejoice in the fact that she is daily improving and bids fair to live to celebrate many more happy birthdays.

Rob Cleverdale's Adventure.

By Seward W. Hopkins.

Copyrighted, 1896, by Robert Bonner's Sons.

CHAPTER XI.

On the following morning Rob rose weary and aching from a bed on which he had tossed in wakefulness since he had heard the words of Lemuel Starne. Capt. Elvin nodded to him when he stepped out into the large room, and at once led the way to the dining-room.

"Eat heartily," he said. "You have a day of hard work before you."

It seemed to Rob that every bone in his body ached from the excessive exertion of his walk the day before. But he was so thoroughly aroused to the necessities of his situation that he grimly bore it without a word, and fell to on the breakfast as if he was really a happy boy.

Breakfast over, Capt. Elvin lighted a cigar and offered one to Rob.

"Thank you, sir, I don't smoke," said Rob.

"Not smoke! A nephew of Torrevo not smoke!"

"But I was not always with my uncle Ricardo," said Rob.

"True. Boys in New York do not learn to smoke as early as they do here. Well, Ricardo, come. Let's get to work."

The Englishman led the way to the office again, and pointed to a desk on which there were paper and writing materials.

"That is your place," he said. "You are young for this trust, but Torrevo spoke highly of you. He said you could be trusted. But, after all, I am not going to trust you far. You will know the names of the men you write to, and that is all. Now, I will give you three forms of letters. They are in cipher, and no one except those who receive them can read them. Then I will give you a list of names for each form. Now, take your pen and write this down."

"I am ready sir," said Rob, dipping his pen in the ink.

"The blue flag waves," said Elvin. "Have you got that?"

"The blue flag waves," repeated Rob, writing it down.

"I will go on. The blue flag waves. La Plata smooth and friends find easy sailing. Splendid anchorage in Black Cat bay. Three days from this a storm is expected. Cover your house well."

"I have that down, sir," said Rob.

"Very well. Mark that form number one."

"It is marked number one, sir."

"Now another. Are you ready?"

"Ready, sir."

"Write these letters, one after another, and write them very plainly."

"Yes, sir," said Rob.

"FWFSZUIJOHJTSFBEZ ZPVXJM MBUPPDFBTTFNCMFZPVSMPSDFT BOEKPJONFIFSF."

This was a terrible jumble to Rob, who knew nothing about writing in cipher.

"Got that all down?" asked Elkin.

"Yes, sir."

"Read them over."

Rob repeated the letters.

"Correct," said Elvin. "It is an easy cipher, but none of the letters will get into the hands of the government, and even if one did, I don't think there is any one who would bother to make it out. Now take this down."

"I am ready, sir."

"Loyalty to loyalty, and Black Cat sends greetings."

"Is that all, sir."

"That's all. You will sign to each letter you write the name Vin. You understand, it is the last syllable of my own name."

"Yes, sir."

"Now, here are three lists of names. You have the first letter marked number one. Did you mark the cipher number two?"

"Yes, sir."

"The short one is number three. These lists of names are numbered one, two and three. You will send a letter of each number to every person named in the list bearing the same number. Do you understand that?"

"Yes, sir."

"Here are envelopes. There are stamps. Do it all up in good shape, and perhaps in a week or two you will have something to remember this occasion by."

Rob thought he would, too, if his own plans did not fail.

Elvin stood over him while he studied the names on the lists.

List number one was made up of names and addresses in cities of South America, most of them being in Argentina. Some were even in New York, a few in London and Paris. There were about 300 in all. List number two, or those to whom the cipher was to be sent, were men in the republic, most of them with some kind of a military title. Rob's curiosity was aroused at this, and he resolved to read the cipher, if possible. There were about a hundred of these names. List number three, to whom the "Loyalty" letter was to be sent, were scattered all over the world, but most of them were civilians in South American countries.

It was clear to Rob that he had more than one day's work before him. He began at once. He was methodical in habit, and as he wrote a letter from form number one he would address an envelope from list number one, and then check off that name. Elvin watched him do this a few times, and then, with a satisfied nod of his head, he walked out.

Of course, letter number one was not clear to Rob. It was evidently a form previously agreed upon among the conspirators, to be sent under certain conditions. Rob soon had it word for word in his memory, and wrote the letters rapidly. But it took him till late in the afternoon to finish list number one. He had stopped for lunch, but ate alone. Capt. Elvin did not return.

It had begun to grow dark, and Rob felt tired of the work. So he gave it up for the day and wandered around to look at the place. Capt. Elvin appeared for supper and looked over the letters Rob had addressed. Rob noted with pleasure that he did this carelessly and did not see half of them.

"You finished number one?" said the captain.

"Yes, sir. I got tired, and left the others till morning."

"That's all right. You did well. I could not do it. I could not sit down and write an hour at a stretch to save my life."

Rob had a good night's rest, and after his breakfast the next morning tackled number two. The captain went off again, and Rob's curiosity had grown so that now, while he was fresh, he felt like reading the cipher. But it was a mystery. Such a meaningless lot of letters he never saw before. Turn and twist them as he would he could make nothing of them. Suddenly it occurred to him that these letters did not spell the message at all. They must, then, stand for other letters in the alphabet. How was he to learn what they stood for? He took the first sentence, FWFSZU, and so on, meant absolutely nothing, and could not be made to spell anything. Starting with A, the first letter of the alphabet, Rob tried to make F stand for it. But there was no way to fit the same rule to F, and make sense. This would be ARA. It might lead to something. But when he had gone through the sentence he found it would not do, and began on B. He kept this up, with all the ingenuity his young head was capable of, and tried C and D. He began to despair of reaching it, when he tried E.

ELVIN WATCHED HIM DO THIS.

The first five letters gave the word "Every."

With his heart beating faster now, Rob kept on his way. Each letter of the simple cipher really stood for the letter that came before it in the alphabet. And when he had studied it all out, the message read as follows:

"Everything is ready. You will at once assemble your forces and join me here."

This meant something, surely. It meant that a revolutionary army was to assemble under Richard Elvin and make an attack on the forces of the government. This means, perhaps, ruin to his uncle in Buenos Ayres. And if his uncle was killed, perhaps Elvin would take all his property and wealth.

With his heart filled with boyish courage, Rob wrote the letters in cipher as he had been ordered to do. Then he addressed envelopes from list number two.

The message in form number three meant nothing to him. The nearest he could come to a guess was that it informed the persons to whom it was sent that the "Black Cat" had brought another cargo of contraband goods. But what had loyalty to do with smuggling? No, it was another revolutionary message, and the "Black Cat" had perhaps been taken as the symbol of the revolutionists.

Fortunately, Elvin remained away, and Rob had an opportunity to carry out the design he had formed. He wrote a letter to his uncle.

"Dear Uncle David," he wrote, "I was not drowned when I was thrown overboard from the Royal Mail. I was picked up by a smuggler, and am now a prisoner among some men who are smugglers, and also conspirators against the government of Argentina. The head man's name is Richard Elvin, and he thinks I am the nephew of Torrevo, the captain of the schooner that picked me up. If he knew I was writing this, he would kill me. The man who threw me overboard was Lemuel Starne, the same one who is trying to marry my cousin Elsie. He is a scoundrel. He is really the son of Elvin. He comes here, and I am afraid he will recognize me. So, as soon as I get this off with a lot of letters I am writing to other conspirators, I am going to slip out of the window and go back to the schooner 'Black Cat.' Captain Torrevo told me to come back if I was in danger, and I think I am. I could have gone last night, but I wanted to finish the job they set me at, so that I could get this letter off to you. There are three kinds of letters I am writing, and I can only read one. That is the very one that seems hardest to read. It is in cipher, but I made it out. It is being sent to several generals and colonels and captains in Argentina, and says: 'Everything is ready. You will at once assemble your forces and join me here.—Vin.' The name Vin means Elvin. 'Here' means a house at a spot called Black Cat Bay. If I get back to the schooner I will be safe until Elvin finds me. But I hope you will come after me, or send someone. I warn you against Lemuel Starne, whose name is Elvin. He is trying to get Elsie and your money. He tried to kill me to prevent me from reaching you. Please try and get me away from these men. I am afraid they will kill me yet. Your loving nephew,

"ROB CLEVERDALE."

Rob addressed an envelope to "David Horton, Buenos Ayres," and slipped the letter, folded neatly, into it. Then he placed this among the letters of number one, that he had written the previous day and which Elvin had looked over.

GARFIELD AND MR. MOODY.

They Looked Alike and Had the Same Gift of Captivating Friends.

"There was a striking resemblance between the late Mr. Moody and President Garfield," said a New Orleans newspaper man the other evening. "Garfield was the taller of the two, but otherwise they were strangely alike. They had the same massive frame, the same suave, smiling cast of features, the same enthusiastic temperament, the same facility for anecdote, and the same effect of sincerity in everything that they said or did. Their style of oratory was almost identical and both possessed the gift of captivating people at first sight. One of Mr. Moody's most ardent admirers, for instance, was A. C. Wheeler, the well known New York dramatic critic, who writes under the nom de plume of 'Nim Crinkle,' and it would be impossible to imagine two men more utterly dissimilar. Wheeler is a veteran Bohemian and a maker of polished phrases; a student, a dreamer, a poet, and a noted after-dinner wit. In appearance he is thin, frail, and a trifle sardonic—in every way the antithesis of the evangelist, yet the warmest friendship sprung up between them, lasting uncooled to the end. I interviewed Mr. Moody several times," continued the speaker, "on the last occasion about three years ago, and I asked him among other things, what preparation, if any, he made for his longer public addresses. 'Why, I jot down a memorandum of a string of stories,' he replied, with one of his characteristic, boyish laughs. Then he explained that he mapped out his general line of argument in advance, thinking up some striking anecdotes with which to clinch each successive point. That was all done mentally, and the only notes he made were a few catch words on a card to remind him of the stories in case any of them should slip his mind. He showed me one of these memoranda, and I have often regretted that I did not ask him for it as a souvenir. It was simply a string of words unintelligible to anybody except himself—for example, 'ocean greyhound,' 'battle of Waterloo,' 'coral reef insect,' 'first locomotive,' 'breaking in new boots'—those are a few I remember. Each was a cue to one of his inimitable little tales."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

The Midshipmen's Trick.

One bitterly cold, dark night in the beginning of 1855, when we were at anchor off Sebastopol, and the decks and rigging were covered with snow, the officer of the watch, a lieutenant we all disliked, told us midshipmen to warm ourselves by sweeping a gangway along the quarterdeck, where he could walk up and down, says Sir Edmund Varney in the Contemporary. While we were doing this he went below to have a cup of cocoa; so we arranged a ridge of hard snow two or three feet away from the top of the hatchway, calculating that when he came up and put his foot on the firm, hard deck he would take the next step with confidence. This was exactly what happened. Coming up from the bright light of the cabin, he took his second step gaily in the darkness, tripped over the snow and fell on his nose, to our great joy. Whether or not he suspected that the trap had been set on purpose for him we never knew. He directed one of the men to remove the snow ridge. Perhaps he thought it as well to say nothing to us, because he had no right to order us to sweep away snow, and he had no business to go below and drink cocoa when officer of the watch.

Engaging Frankness.

Edith—There is one thing in particular that I like Mr. Tactin for. He is so frank, you know. He always tells me of my faults without the least hesitation. That was the agreement I caused him to make. Bertha—Do you mean to say that you do not get angry with him? Edith—Never. Bertha—Tell me some of the faults he has found in you. Edith—O, he hasn't found any yet. When I ask him to name them he always says that I am faultless.—Stray Stories.

ROBERTS IS OUSTED

House by Overwhelming Vote Refuses to Seat.

THE MAJORITY PLAN IS APPROVED

Scheme to Swear in and then Expel Abandoned—Excluded Member Says He Can Go Back to Utah With a Light Heart—Other News.

The case of Brigham H. Roberts, the Mormon representative-elect from Utah, which has occupied so much of the attention of the house since the assembly of congress, was decided Thursday by the adoption of a resolution to exclude him by a vote of 278 to 50. The exact language of the resolution was as follows:

"That under the fact of circumstances of the case Brigham H. Roberts, representative-elect from the state of Utah, ought not to have or hold a seat in the house of representatives, and that the seat to which he was elected is hereby declared vacant."

The amendment to expel Mr. Roberts without seating him, offered by Mr Lacey, was ruled out on a point of order, and the house only voted upon the resolution of the majority and minority of the committee. The latter, to seat and then expel Mr. Roberts, was defeated, 81 to 244. An analysis of this vote shows that 170 republicans, seventy-two democrats and two populists voted against, and seventeen democrats, six republicans, two populists and two silver republicans for it.

The majority resolutions, to exclude Mr. Roberts and declare the seat vacant, were adopted, 278 to 50. The affirmative vote was divided as follows: Republicans 164, democrats 98, populists 4, and the negative vote democrats 47, silver republicans 2, populists 1.

There were over a score of speakers and the closing speeches on each side were particularly able. Mr. Lanham of Texas closed for the majority and Mr. DeArmond of Missouri for the minority.

Mr. Roberts was present throughout the day and only left the hall after the result of the last vote had been announced. As he did so he gave out a statement justifying his retention of his plural wives on the ground that his moral obligation was more binding upon his conscience than technical obedience to statutory law, and saying that there was little excuse for the extraordinary efforts to crush a system already abandoned and practically dead. He said he was a martyr so a "spasm of prejudice." He would not, he said, attempt to run for congress again, although he would go back home with a light heart, confident of the future.

MANY PEOPLE ARE CURIOUS

Heavy Advance Demand for Rev. Sheldon's Christian Daily.

A Topeka, Kan., dispatch says: The immediate and extraordinary response of the public to the announcement in the Associated press on Monday morning of the "Sheldon edition" of the Capital is indicated by the fact that Mr. Sheldon and the Daily Capital have been deluged with telegrams and letters from all parts of the country asking for information regarding the proposed plans for a Christian daily newspaper. Among the dispatches received was one from New York containing an order for 10,000 copies of each issue during the week. Another order by telegraph asked for 5,000 lines of advertising space.

The first subscription order, which came within twelve hours of the announcement of the plan in the Associated press, was from Nebraska for 100 copies of each issue.

Mr. Sheldon said that while he would receive no compensation for his services, it had been stipulated in the original understanding with the Capital Publishing company that, should the receipts exceed the expenditures of the edition, a large part of the proceeds would be devoted to missionary and philanthropic work.

POINT OF VANTAGE TAKEN

British Troops Secure Spion Kop After a Heavy Loss.

The war office at London has just issued the following dispatch from Spearman's camp, dated the 25th:

"General Warren's troops last night occupied Spion Kop, surprising the small garrison, who fled. It has been held by us all day, though we were heavily attacked, especially by a very annoying shell fire.

"I fear our casualties are considerable and I have to inform you with regret that General Woodgate was dangerously wounded.

"General Warren is of the opinion that he has rendered the enemy's position untenable. The men are splendid."

The jubilation over General Warren's achievement, in capturing Spion kop Wednesday night is chastened by the realization that his success is only provisional, as it appears clearly from General Buller's dispatch that the Boers fully recognize the strategical importance of Spion kop and at the time his message was sent off they had not abandoned the hope of recapturing the position.

FREMONT HEMP MILLS OPEN

Force of Sixty-five Employed in Working Up Crop.

The hemp mill operated by the Nebraska Binder Twine company at Fremont, has reopened with a full force of men after a few months of enforced idleness, following a disastrous fire. The day gang will for the present consist of thirty-five men and the night shift will have thirty. Both numbers are apt to be enlarged soon. The company's plant, since readjusting, is thought to be a very complete one for the business. The main building is 50x100 feet, two stories, with steel roof.

Mrs. Ray is now living in Arizona.

Thieves Not Yet Apprehended.

The robbery of the meat markets at Campbell, Hildreth and Wilcox still remains a mystery. Some are inclined to the opinion that someone more proficient than local talent did the work. The citizens of Wilcox are thoroughly aroused over the matter of so much thieving and if the perpetrators are discovered they will be accorded scant courtesy by the citizens of Wilcox.

The United States circuit court of appeals at New York has affirmed the decision of Judge Lacombe, dismissing the habeas corpus proceedings in the case of Former Captain Oberlin M. Carter, of the United States engineers, convicted by court martial of frauds in connection with the Savannah river and Cmberland Sound improvements. Carter is a prisoner at Ft. Williams, N. Samoan Girls Want Husbands.

Apia seems to be pretty well supplied with some exceedingly beautiful and well-educated half-caste girls, who who would make excellent wives for the right sort of young men. Many of these girls are daughters of well-to-do parents, and not a few would be able to start out nicely as far as funds and good looks were to be counted. These girls are all unwilling to marry native husbands, and therp are certainly not enough foreigners to go round. Generally Samoan and half-caste girls make excellent and faithful wives, unlike the natives of Spanish-American countries, they hold their good looks for many years.

Where Quinine Is Good.

Dr. Crosse in an article in the "Lancet" on blackwater fever incidentally calls attention to the fact that it is not wise for those who have an idiosyncrasy against quinine or who suffer from even slight albuminuria to go to malarious climates. He believes that in the more malarious districts at least five grains of quinine should be taken a day to prevent chronic malarial poisoning. This he considers necessary in addition to ordinary precautions in regard to exposure to chills, wet and the sun, and as to moderation in eating and drinking.

Those Armored Trains.

Armored trains, which are taking such an important part in the present campaign, usually consist of a powerful engine, three iron trucks, a water tank and a passenger car. The sides are raised six feet, with three quarter-inch boiler plates, and perforated with horizontal slits for the accommodation of rifles and Maxims. Each vehicle is capable of holding 50 or 60 men easily.

Artificial Sight.

An inventor has perfected an electrical appliance, which he claims will enable the blind to see. This will bring much happiness to those who have defective eyesight. Another great discovery will bring happiness to those whose stomachs have become deranged, is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It is a certain cure for indigestion, dyspepsia, malaria, fever and ague.

Handshaking.

It may be noticed that the handclasp is vanishing. Men and women do not shake hands as often as they did. The custom is said to have had its origin in the desire of savages upon meeting to show each other that they were without weapons. And in the opinion of many it is a relic of savagery in every sense of the word. Physicians have inveighed against it lately, declaring that the hand-shake is responsible for the spread of disease. In this attack they at least practice what they preach, and the carefulness with which a surgeon prepares his hands and surgical instruments before and after an operation is evidence that the danger is a real one. Handshaking is the only contact of flesh that takes place between ordinary acquaintances, and hence it must be the only means by which many cases of disease could have been spread.—Chicago Tribune.

Plenty of Time.

Years ago Joaquin Miller, journeying on foot, was overtaken by a countryman, who took him on his wagon and gave him a long ride. Tired, at length, of conversation, the poet took a novel from his pocket and pored over it long and silently. "What are you reading" said the countryman. "A novel of Bret Harte's," said Mr. Miller, "Well, now, I don't see how an immortal being wants to be wasting his time with such stuff." "Are you quite sure," said the poet, "that I am an immortal being?" "Of course you are." "If that be the case," responded Miller, "I don't see why I should be so very economical of my time."

Deep Water Ports.

The growing interest in deep water seaports and cheap transportation by water, gives added importance to the building up of the city of La Porte, Texas. The high, dry ground of La-Porte is in direct contrast with the greater portion of the Mexican Gulf Coast. Marshes, malaria and fevers are unknown. La Porte is to be formally "opened" and introduced to the public February 14 to 17, when it is expected a great crowd of Northern and Texas people will be on hand to inspect the much talked of new seaport of the Gulf. So great is the interest shown that the American Land Co., 188 Madison St., Chicago, acting as Northern Manager, is deluged with letters of inquiry.

TOO HOT TO HOLD

General Warren Abandons Position Captured.

THE FIRE OF BOERS WAS TOO FIERCE

Had Range of Hill and Used It to Advantage—London Plunged in Gloom—Otherwise Cheerful News Fails to Dispel Dark Forebodings.

A dispatch from London, dated January 27, at 4 a. m., says: Seven days of fighting have left the main Boer position intact, and General Buller's army 706 weaker, according to the official casualty lists, which seemingly do not include the Spion kop losses as those last forwarded do not mention General Woodgate's wounding.

England is possessed with a depressing sense of failure, although not a word of criticism of her generals and soldiers is uttered. Not much effort is made to place a happy construction upon General Buller's bare eighteen words telling of the retirement from Spion kop, and there is an uneasy impression abroad that worse news is yet to come. At one of the military clubs tonight the statement passed from one member to another that the war office had received an unpleasant supplementary dispatch from General Buller, which was being held up for twelve hours.

Spencer Wilkinson, in the Morning Post, writes as follows of the Spion kop losses:

"This is a serious matter, and an attempt will not here be made to minimize it, for no greater wrong can be done to our people at home than to mislead them about the significance of the events of the war. The right way is to tell the truth as far as we know it."

The war office has just posted the following dispatch from General Buller, dated at Spearman's camp, Tuesday, January 23, noon.

"General Warren's garrison, I am sorry to say, I find this morning had in the night abandoned Spion kop."

Six officers and eighteen non-commissioned officers and men were killed. Twelve officers and 142 non-commissioned officers and men were wounded, and thirty-one men are missing.

It appears that the Boers had a better range on the British troops when they occupied the hill. Its capture was conspicuously easy. A galling fire was poured upon Warren's forces night and day. Being unable to advance further he temporarily withdrew to shield his troops from the hail of iron and lead which was reducing his command. His men fought gallantly throughout.

Another advance is being planned.

Although England's nerves are severely tried, her nerve is absolutely unshaken, and probably nothing that can happen in South Africa will change in the slightest degree her intentions. She will continue to receive bad news, if it does come, with dignity, and will maintain her determination to win at last.

SCHWAN'S ACTIVE CAMPAIGN

Different Columns Move on Towns and Capture Them.

A part of General Schwan's column, consisting of six companies, with some artillery, drove a force of 500 insurgents from their entrenchments at San Diegoo, near San Pablo, last Sunday. The enemy officially reported that they lost sixty-seven killed and many wounded. Our casualties were one killed and fourteen wounded, the injuries in most cases being slight.

Another battalion, while executing a flank movement, came upon a hundred other rebels in an entrenched position, and routed them, killing fifteen. The Americans had two wounded.

General Schwan moved against Majayjay, Laguna province, on Tuesday. He found its position almost impregnable, but, by lowering men down the steep river banks by ropes, flanked the enemy and drove them out. A part of his command proceeded to Santa Cruz, killing six insurgents.

General Wheeler and his daughter left Wednesday on the transport Warren for San Francisco, via Hong Kong and Guam.

BRINGS INTERESTING SUIT.

Claim that Goods Sent From Puerto Rico Are Not Dutiable.

A suit has been entered in court at Boston by the Amos-Pearson Tobacco company of Lowell, Mass., against the United States with a view of recovering duties paid upon tobacco imported from Puerto Rico, and it raises the very important question whether Puerto Rico is to be considered a part of the United States. The federal courts will in all probability be obliged to determine the issue. The company alleges that the duties imposed upon it were illegal on the ground that Puerto Rico is a part of the United States and that duties could not therefore be levied upon goods or articles sent from one part of the United States to another.

Cheyenne Strike Settled.

The strike of the boiler makers and machinists in the Union Pacific shops at Cheyenne has been settled by the company granting the man 34 cents an hour. The men struck for 35 cents and were out a month, finally agreeing to return to work with the understanding that a settlement would be made.

Cigarmakers Locked Out.

HUNG TO TELEGRAPH POLE

Colorado Mob Makes Short of a Murderous Convict.

News has just been received at Denver, Colo., of the capture of Reynolds and Wagner, the escaped convicts, and the subsequent escape of Wagner. Reynolds is the man charged with killing Night Captain Rooney of the Colorado penitentiary at Canon City, and Wagner is said to have held Rooney while Reynolds stabbed him.

Night Captain of Police Conner, at Florence, assisted by Policeman Powell made the capture on the bridge of the Florence and Cripple Creek railroad near Florence. When word was sent to Canon City of the capture a special train with several guards and a bloodhound were dispatched to the scene. In the meantime Captain Conners had started overland with Reynolds.

Immediately on receipt of the news at Canon City the fire bells began to ring and the town went out en masse.

Reynolds was taken from the officers when they reached Canon City and hanged to a telegraph pole just outside the penitentiary walls.

VACANCIES IN UNIVERSITY

Ten Professors Resign by Request or Voluntarily at Cincinnati.

Last week President Ayers of the Cincinnati, O., university announced that vacancies in nine professorships at Cincinnati university had been declared, and the trustees sustained him at a subsequent meeting. All the assistants of these nine professors go with their chiefs. The only full professors not included in the edict were Myers of history, Brown of English and Benedict of philosophy and their assistants. Professor P. V. N. Myers has since resigned as professor of history, making the tenth vacancy in the regular chairs. Professor Myers was not asked to resign, but was urged to remain. In an open letter to the trustees he says he cannot remain under the circumstances, as it would compel his approval of what he terms "the professional assassination of those with whom he has been associated over nine years."

Naval Bill Finds Favor.

The German Bundesrath adopted the the naval bill. The measure provides for the doubling of the present number of battleships, and the construction of six large and seven small additional cruisers. The preamble anticipates that the scheme will be completed by 1916 at an annual increase of expenditures of 11,000,000 of marks, which sum is to be raised by loans without any fresh taxation.

To Advance Price of Tires.

Official notice has been issued by the Diamond and Goodyear Rubber companies of Akron, O., of an agreement made with Theodore A. Dodge of New York, owner of patents on single tube bicycle tires. The agreement will result in an increase in the price of tires of about 50 per cent.

Magnificent Canal Planned.

A canal is to be built about the grounds of the Pan-American exposition to be held in Buffalo in 1901. In the construction of the canal it will be necessary to remove 180,000 cubic yards of earth, for the canal will be nearly two miles in length, and it will be not less than forty feet in width and from three feet six inches to four feet in depth. This magnificent waterway will skirt the entire exposition grounds, and on either side of it there will be beautiful walks thirty-five feet in width. One of the ideas that the architects had in mind was the beauties of the ensemble at night, when the magnificently illuminated building would cast variolored reflections upon the limpid waterway. It is the intention of the management to construct at short distances along the canal stopping places at points of interest, and to run on the canal a large number of beautiful craft, so that the visitors may visit the buildings of the exposition either by land or water, for all of the buildings will have an entrance on either side.

Where the Pennies Go.

What becomes of all the pennies? A superficial answer might be that we spend them, as in truth we do, but did you ever stop to consider the enormous quantities of the little copper coins turned out by the Philadelphia mint every year? The figures are really appalling in their magnitude. There are at present about 1,000,000,000 cents in circulation, and yet the mint is compelled to turn out nearly 4,000,000 a month to keep up the supply.

Washington's Negro Population.

Although not generally known, it is nevertheless a fact that Washington, the fourteenth city of the union in point of population, contains the greatest negro population of them all. There are more negroes in Washington than in any other city of the union, not exceeding the great cities of St. Louis, Baltimore and New Orleans, all situated in former slave states, and excepting New Orleans, with more than double its population. There are nearly three times as many black people in Washington as St. Louis. Washington contains more than double the number of negroes counted among New York's 3,500,000.

Stockingless German Soldiers.

Great attention is paid in the German army to the condition of the soldiers' feet. The German infantry soldier wears no stockings. He rubs his feet with lanolin or vaseline, which is rendered antiseptic by the presence of a little admixture of salicylic, carbolic acid or camphor, and then envelops them in a piece of flannel. This lessens the friction between boot and foot considerably and thus prevents the formation of boils.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I am so grateful for the benefit derived from the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I wish you to publish this testimonial that others may know the value of your medicine. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it worked like magic. I feel that your medicine has been of inestimable benefit to me."—Miss ADELE WILLIAMSON, 196 N. Boulevard, Atlanta, Ga.

Wild With ECZEMA

Hands and Limbs Covered with Blisters and Great Red Blotches. Scratched Until Almost Wild. Burned Like Fire. Sleep Impossible. CUTICURA Remedies Bring Speedy Relief and a Permanent Cure at a Cost of Only $2.

I was a sufferer for eight years from that most distressing of all diseases, Eczema. I tried some of the best physicians in the country, but they did me little good. The palms of my hands were covered and would become inflamed; little white blisters at first would appear, then they would peel off, leaving a red, smooth surface which would burn like fire and itch; well, there is no name for it. On the inside of the upper part of both my limbs great red blotches, not unlike hives, would appear, and as soon as I became warm the burning and itching would begin. Night after night I would lie awake all night and scratch and almost go wild. I heard of CUTICURA REMEDIES, got them and gave them a thorough trial, and after a few applications I noticed the redness and inflammation disappear. Before I had used one box there was not a sign of Eczema left. I can truthfully assert that $2.00 worth of CUTICURA REMEDIES cured me. There has been no sign of its return anywhere upon my body since I wrote you I was cured, nearly four years ago. Hardly a month passes but what I receive a letter or some one calls and wishes to know how I got cured, if I had Eczema bad, and if the cure has been permanent, etc., etc. I always take pleasure in enlightening them the best I can.

The agonizing itching and burning of the skin, as in eczema, the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair and crusting of the scalp, as in scalled head; the facial disfigurement, as in pimples and ringworm, the awful suffering of infants and the anxiety of worn-out parents, as in milk crust, tetter, and salt rheum—all demand a remedy of almost superhuman virtues to successfully cope with them. That

Cuticura

Remedies are such stands proven beyond all doubt. No statement is made regarding them that is not justified by the strongest evidence. The purity and sweetness, the power to afford immediate relief, the certainty of speedy and permanent cure, the absolute safety and great economy, have made them the standard skin cures and humor remedies of the civilized world. The treatment is simple, direct, agreeable, and economical, and is adapted to the youngest infant as well as adults of every age. Bathe the affected parts with hot water and CUTICURA SOAP to cleanse the surface of crusts and scales, and soften the thickened cuticle. Dry, without hard rubbing, and apply CUTICURA OINTMENT freely, to allay itching, irritation, and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and lastly take CUTICURA RESOLVENT to cool and cleanse the blood. This sweet and wholesome treatment affords instant relief, permits rest and sleep in the severest forms of eczema and other itching, burning, and scaly humors of the skin, scalp, and blood, and points to a speedy, permanent, and economical cure when all other remedies and even the best physicians fail. CUTICURA TEA BET, price $1.25; or, CUTICURA SOAP, 25c., CUTICURA OINTMENT, 50c., CUTICURA RESOLVENT, 50c., sold throughout the world. Dr. Sheldon, author of "In His Steps," will run the Topeka Capitol one week, in the way he supposes Jesus would run it, and now Ed Howe, of the Atchison Globe, wants to fill Dr. Sheldon's pulpit while the latter runs the paper. The doctor is to have a chance at the newspapers and Howe wants a chance at the preachers.

Goebel, the democratic claimant of the Kentucky governorship is in a critical condition, and his death is momentarily expected. He was the victim of an unknown assassin's malice, having been shot while walking through the capitol grounds at Frankfort, on Tuesday A farmer named Whittaker was arrested, but few believe he is the guilty man while Goebel lay, in a dying condition, the democratic legislative contest board reported that he was the duly elected governor of Kentucky, there is intense excitement prevailing at Frankfort, and on Wednesday morning Governor Taylor declared a state of insurrection existed and adjourned the legislature, but the solons refused to be adjourned, and the state militia has taken a hand in the game. What the outcome will be cannot be predicted at this time.

The shooting of Goebel in Kentucky is to be regretted. Human life is precious, and as civilization advances becomes more and more sacred; but there are some things for which human life is sacrificed; and the pity is that political prejudices will be carried to such extremes that only the shedding of blood will end the strife and teach emphatically the lesson that the rights of men to cast a ballot must not be tampered with, and that the voice of a majority of the people cannot be set aside at will to meet the demands of partisanship. Kentucky is not the only state where law and right have been trodden under foot to secure patty triumph, and the tendency to carry out political schemes in this way must be stopped, even if the life-blood of citizens is the penalty.

PARDON TO REBELS.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 29.—(Special Dispatch to The Inter Ocean.) It was learned today from official sources that the President intends to issue within the next thirty days his Philippine proclamation extending amnesty to the insurgents, and denouncing as outlaws and bandits all who do not avail themselves of its terms. This determination was reached after several conferences with the Secretary of War and other members of the Cabinet.

The proclamation has not yet been drafted, but the general terms of its provisions have been fully discussed, and it is announced that it will contain a declaration of the end of the insurrection in the islands. This will be followed by a grant of amnesty to all insurgents who lay down their arms within a specified time. The time has not yet been decided upon, but the President believes sixty days sufficient, and this meets the approval of the Secretary of War.

The proclamation will declare that, owing to the termination of the insurrection, all persons who do not avail themselves of its terms within the time given will be treated as outlaws and bandits. For some time the President has had under consideration an announcement of the termination of the rebellion, but has been waiting for a complete disintegration of all the Filipino forces.

Reports from General Otis do not show that any organized rebellion exists in the northern part of Luzon, and recent reports indicate that the only opposition found now is in the island south of Manila. General Schwan has been sent to conquer the enemy in this section, and has been meeting with surprising success. He has pursued the insurgents without abatement, and has inflicted severe defeats in every engagement, and the American forces in Cavite and Batangas provinces have reduced the Filipino organizations to mere roving bands of only a few hundred men.

The campaign under General Schwan is to be pushed with renewed vigor, and it is the intention of the President to issue his proclamation on the completion of the Schwan expedition. War department officials are of the belief that General Schwan will succeed in pacifying Cavite and Batangas provinces within a few weeks and that General Otis will be able to report the complete pacification of the islands within less than thirty days.

There is much comment among army officers about the absence of news regarding Aguinaldo, and it is believed by some that he may have succeeded in escaping from the island entirely. General Otis has not mentioned him in any report since he was being pursued by Major March's battalion in the mountains toward Bayombong.

An Editor's Life Saved by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

During the early part of October, 1899, I contracted a bad cold which settled on my lungs and was neglected until I feared that consumption had appeared in an incipient state. I was constantly coughing and trying to expel something which I could not. I became alarmed and after giving the local doctor a trial bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the result was immediate improvement, and after I had used three bottles my lungs were restored to their healthy state.—B. WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C. January 27, 1900. (Special Correspondence) The Roberts case, which has taken up so much time of Congress, is at last finished, and by this time the Utah member is ready to go back to the bosoms of his three growing families. It must be remarked and remembered by Nebraskans that of the fifty members who voted in favor of Roberts every one was a democrat. The three democratic leaders, Richardson, Bailey and DeArmond led the fight in favor of the polygamists. The party will now sing low about the "Sultan of Sulu."

During the progress of the debate on the Roberts case the galleries were full of those waiting for a chance to get in. In the body of the house it was noticed that the republican members were all present, while the democratic side was most of the time practically deserted. There was all the time among the leading democrats an inclination to stand up for the Mormon, no doubt for the reason that they want Utah to stay in line for Bryan.

In the senate there are two members who are confirmed nuisances. One is Pettigrew of Dakota, who gets up on every opportunity and injects a speech or a resolution in favor of the Filipinos, or against some American institution. He has a whining voice, talks through his nose, and is as insignificant as he is troublesome. The other nuisance is Windy V. Allen, who while he towers above all other democratic members intellectually and physically, has been spoiled by praise he has received and considers it his duty to make a speech on every possible occasion. He spends much of the time out in the lobby, and goes to lunch while session is in progress. Often he strides in from the lobby and a moment later injects himself into a debate on whatever is before the senate, without seeming to stop to find out what it is about. Last Thursday he came in while a motion was pending to fix the time for adjournment over Sunday, and at once commenced a long-winded harangue on free coinage.

The news that the people of Nebraska have on deposit in the banks fifty million dollars happily supplements the official report that the people of the United States gained five hundred million dollars in their trade with foreign nations last year. An eastern man remarked yesterday that "some of that balance of trade seems to have found its way into the Nebraska banks, and it is no wonder that Bryan has droped the calamity cry in his own state and come east to talk about something else.

If a Nebraskan should come to Washington he would look in vain to see the ordinary wagons. He would see everything hauled in big two-wheeled carts. Occasionally he would see big hay wagons drawn by four horses, the driver always rides one of the animals. Out in the fields he would find farmers shucking corn from the shock and hauling it to markets in sacks. In fact he would find so many curious things, that it would take the whole of some future letter to describe them.

F. A. HARRISON.

A Mother's Duty to her Children.

Paper read by Mrs. Nellie Boyd at the Mother's Meeting Jan. 26.

This is one of the most important subjects for discussion. To be a true mother. How much it implies! I wonder how many of us mothers realize how much there is in our full duty to our children, and if we did really know, how many of us would do it.

A mother's full duty is to so train her children that they may become the best men and women possible for them to be. How shall she do this? It seems to me that her first duty begins before marriage. It is this: to see that in choosing her companion for life she choose one who will be a good father to her children (should she be fortunate enough to have any) a man of good health and good habits. Health because the health of the child depends largely upon the health of the parents. Habits, because the habits of the parents are apt to be inherited or learned by the child. "Like father like son."

"Childhood is like a mirror catching and reflecting images. One impious or profane thought uttered by a parent's lip may operate on the young heart like a careless spray of water thrown upon polished steel, staining it with rust which no after scouring can efface."

It is the mother's duty to keep herself in good health. How can a sickly overworked mother expect to have strong healthy children? The questions of heredity and parental culture are so thoroughly discussed now that women are much more enlightened than were our mothers. I have heard mothers mourn that if they had only known the effects of over work, their children, who died in infancy, might now be living.

Mothers duties are sacred—they should not be neglected. A mother's health means much to her family. Invalid mothers cannot properly perform their duties to their children.

I have often thought how badly some little ones would fare if God in his wisdom had not implanted so deeply in the woman's heart, the mother love which thrills her through and through when awakened by the first cry of the new-born babe. There is nothing on this earth like mother love. Mother love forgives, forgets, believes in, endures when all others forsake. Yet many mothers love not wisely. They cannot refuse their children what they know is not for their good, things that in after years the children, realizing their mother's weakness, blame her for, causing her much sorrow.

How often we hear mothers say they will be so glad when their children are old enough to take care of themselves, to be out of the way, to keep out from underfoot.

Mothers! Mothers stop and think! Will there ever be a time when the dear little innocent babes, with their sweet, pure, lives will cause us less worry than they do now? Mothers let us enjoy our babes before they are old enough to bring sorrow to our hearts. Let nothing cause us to neglect our duty to them—society, friends, politics, husbands or even writing papers for the W. C. T. U. should not interfere with our duty to our children.

The most important duty of a mother is the care of her child. All other duties are secondary. I do not mean that a mother should make a slave of herself for that is not at all necessary. I think it pays however for the mother to have almost constant supervision over a child for the first 3 or 4 years of its life. If one has help let it be about the house work. Do not trust your child to young girls unless you know how it is taken care of in your absence. I saw not long ago a girl of twelve or fourteen years, leading a little tot. It did not walk fast enough to suit the girl so she dragged it along by its little arm giving it an occasional jerk, and scolding it when the child cried. Of course there are many children who can be trusted with the little ones. There is so much difference in children some require so much watching. It pays to watch, too. One saves many bruises falls, burns, cuts and perhaps noise by constant watchfulness. It takes time and patience for the busy mother but it means happiness to the children After they grow older they will repay the mother for her self-denial, at least we hope they will.

It is a mother's duty to know how to dress her children properly and to know what to give them to eat to keep them strong and healthy. It is her duty to teach them the laws of health. It is her duty when they are old enough to teach them the laws concerning sex and the recreation of the race, and not allow them to first learn them from the lips of vulgar schoolmates. Children 5 or 6 know as much now as did children of 12 or 15, 20 years ago.

It is her duty to make home the happiest place the children can find. It is her duty to oversee their amusements and reading. It is her duty to know something of their associates. But there are so many, many duties that I cannot begin to enumerate them.

One more item and I will close. It is a true, mother's duty, and one of the most important to train her child from early infancy in religious life, both by teaching and by example.

It will require much tact, wisdom, patience and common sense for a mother to know her whole duty and do it, but great will be the reward of the faithful mother.

W. C. T. U.

The Union met with Mrs. Mary Andrew the 26th, nine members and one visitor present. Mrs Gates who had arranged a symposium on "the Mother's duties" was sick and unable to be present. Mrs Linn had a brief paper on "The Mother's Duty as a Citizen," Mrs. Jennings gave a good talk on "The Mothers Duty as a Christian" and Mrs. Boyd read a paper "The Mothers Duty to her Children." An interesting discussion followed and the meeting adjourned to meet at the call of president with Mrs. Jennings after the revival meetings close. Mrs. Andrew, Mrs. Bessie McCasland and Mrs. Jennings were elected delegates to the County convention which will be held at Violet next week.

Beginning Thursday night with a Praise service conducted by Mrs. Fulton, music, recitation, conference. What to do next? Why? Short address by president. Business and very interesting program for Friday with a Matron's Contest in the evening.

DO YOU WANT A CALENDAR?

The biggest—and best—calendar ever issued by an American railroad is now being distributed by the Burlington Route. It has twelve sheets, one for each month of the year. On each sheet is a striking illustration of some feature of the Burlington's service or of the territory reached by its lines—the government fast mail running at full speed; a tourist car on its way to California; engine 1391, the largest passenger engine in the world; a library car; a compartment sleeper; the Burlington station at Omaha; a dining car; a monster freight train; Estes Park, Colo., the plunge bath at Hot Springs, S. D., Yellowstone Falls, etc. The drawings from which the pictures were made are by Louis Braunhold, of Chicago, and cost several hundred dollars.

The size of the calendar is 22x28. The dates are in big type which can be read at a distance of 50 feet. For business offices the Burlington calendar is simply invaluable. Purchased in large quantities, the calendars cost the Burlington Route 27 cents apiece. With postage, packing, etc., they represent an investment of about 35 cents. Our price is 25 cents—10 cents less than cost. Write for one; stamps will do. If it is not satisfactory, send it back and your money will be promptly refunded. J. FRANCIS, General Passenger Agent, Omaha, Neb.

There is no better medicine for the babies than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Its pleasant taste and prompt and effectual cures make it a favorite with mothers and small children. It quickly cures their coughs and colds, preventing pneumonia or other serious consequences. It also cures croup and has been used in tens of thousands of cases without a single failure so far as we have been able to learn. It not only cures croup, but when given as soon as the croupy cough appears, will prevent the attack. In cases of whooping cough it liquefies the tough mucus, making it easier to expectorate, and lessens the severity and frequency of the paroxysms of coughing, thus depriving that disease of all dangerous consequences. When Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Wood lived near Lovilla, Iowa, a few years ago, their nearest neighbors were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Spencer, whom they greatly liked. They have been horrified to learn that within the past few days the Spencers lost their reason over religious matters, and conceived the notion that they must sacrifice their little one-year-old baby to the Lord, and in carrying out their idea, the father held the child out in the cold until it froze to death and the father's hands and feet were badly frozen.

The revival meetings conducted at the M. E. church by Evangelist Potter, have been attracting large audiences each evening. Mr. Potter is an earnest, convincing speaker, and is doing the church much good, in bringing it up to a higher spirituality, and many who have heretofore given little heed to living the Christian's life, are today giving it serious thought. The meetings will continue each evening this week and will close on Sunday evening. Sunday morning services will be held as usual at the M. E. and Presbyterian churches. In the afternoon, Rev. Parker will address a men's meeting at the Methodist church and Rev. Potter a woman's meeting at the Presbyterian church.

The funeral of Mrs Esterbrook, wife of Rev. F. M. Esterbrook, was held in the chapel of the Wesleyan University Monday afternoon, January 29, conducted by Chancellor Huntington and the pastor of the church at University Place. The chancellor preached the sermon from Romans 8:18. Mr Esterbrook was pastor of the M E church at this place twenty-one years ago.

As St. Peter walked down the golden street on his way to work he met the Recording Angel and the two stopped for a chat. The Recording Angel seemed sad and when St. Peter asked him the reason he replied: "The trouble is that I am overworked. I have been working night and day making my balance for the month of January and as I had over 367,679,0786,345,234 broken New Year's resolutions to post, I am pretty near worn out." And he departed for his office and St. Peter went on his own way to the golden gate.—Falls City Journal.

An appropriation to a public library is not an expenditure; it is an investment, which returns the largest dividends. It improves the quality, and thereby increases the value of the city's product; it attracts the best class of immigrants; it raises the standard of living; it serves as a school of manners; it gives to men and boys profitable employment for their leisure hours, and is thus a saving influence in many a life, which becomes a profit instead of a burden, a blessing instead of a curse to the community. In ways innumerable does the public library return to its supporters many fold the cost of its maintenance; and no other agent for social advancement can appeal with more assurance to public enterprise and private philanthropy.

Smallest Diamonds Usually Best.

There are more perfect small diamonds than there are perfect large ones, and where a man gets together a collection of perfect diamonds he is most likely to have a collection of small ones. Thus the diamonds owned by Americans are not, as a rule, so large as the ones owned in Europe. Artificial light enables the European diamond wearer to wear his big stones that are not altogether perfect.

WESTERN CANADA.

Crop Prospects and Climate About Edmonton, N. W. T.—Interesting Letter from Mrs. S. A. Brigham, Late of Mason City.

The following extracts from an interesting letter to the Mason City (Ia.) Republican, written by Mrs. S. A. Brigham, late of that place, but now of Ross Creek, Alberta, Canada, so nearly describe most of the districts of Western Canada that we take pleasure in presenting same to the attention of our readers:

Ross Creek, Albert, N. W. T., Canada, Aug. 7, 1899.

Editor Mason City Republican—Dear Sir: We are located in the Beaver Hills, 30 miles from Ft. Saskatchewan and 50 miles from Edmonton. To the east of these is an immense area of bottom lands, which furnishes abundance of hay for the settlers. It is dotted with small lakes, the largest of which is called Beaver Lake, 16 miles in length.

The Beaver Hills are covered with small green willows which are easily gotten rid of before breaking up the land. Here and there poplar, birch and tamarack trees abound. Small meadows are numerous. The soil in these hills is much richer than the bottom lands, being a kind of black leaf mould. There is no tough sod to break, and it is very productive. Wheat, oats and barley do finely and vegetables are the finest that can be grown. Potatoes especially are large and solid, easily producing from 200 to 300 bushels per acre, and best of all never a "taty bug" to wrestle with. Wild fruit, strawberries, gooseberries, saskatoons (or pine berries), raspberries and cranberries, are found in the hills. Small tame fruit does finely, the red and white currants in my garden are as large again as common sized ones.

We have long days during the months of June and July, one can see to read many evenings until 10 o'clock in the twilight. Some nights less than 3 hours of darkness, and the birds are singing at 2 o'clock. Then again, it rains so easily. You look toward the west and see a little cloud coming up, a gentle shower follows, the sun shines forth again, and in a little while you forget it has rained.

Cyclones are unknown here and the thunder and lightning is very light. We had two storms this summer accompanied with wind and hail, but nothing to lodge the grain. The average heat is about 78 degrees. We had three or four days in July at 90. The nights are always cool.

The winter season is one of great activity. All the fencing is gotten out then and logs for the farm buildings. By paying 25 cents you are granted a permit at the land office to cut logs upon vacant lands. The roads are good and smooth, for the snow never drifts, not even around the buildings, and this is a great saving of time to the farmer. Hay is hauled from the bottom lands all winter long, and a man can work outside every day as far as the weather is concerned. There are cold snaps when it reaches 40 and 48 below zero, but the lack of wind prevents one realizing it and the mountains 150 miles west of us are a great protection. Our neighbors are mostly Canadian, Scotch, Swede, and we have a nice sprinkling of people from the states. The creeks abound in small fish.

We are now in the midst of haymaking (Aug. 7). Wheat will not be cut until early September, this being a little later season than common, but the crop will be immense. I send you a sample of wheat and barley—its height is almost even with my shoulders, average 50 inches. New comers lacking binders can hire their grain cut for 75 cents per acre. Prairie chickens are here by the thousands.

The water is good. We have a fine well 15 feet deep. In the creeks the water is soft and of a yellowish color.

Now for the drawbacks (we have them), but nothing very serious. The mosquitoes are simply abominable, especially after a shower. Then again, we are surrounded with bachelors; we have no less than 18 single men in this neighborhood, on matrimony bent. When a feminine gender of any age between 14 and 40 visits these hills we pity her, so great is the demand for her company.

In conclusion, if the remainder of our loved ones were here with us, we should better enjoy life on Ross Creek, and unless the unexpected develops, consider this will be a pretty fair place to end our days.

MRS. S. A. BRIGHAM.

Quick Disembarkation.

A remarkable piece of disembarkation work was accomplished when the Hawarden Castle reached Cape Town recently. Her troops, which numbered 1,700 men, together with stores, ordnance and rations for 14 days, were landed and entrained in 10 hours.

Rob Cleverdale's Adventure.

By Seward W. Hopkins.

Copyrighted, 1899, by Robert Bonner's Sons.

CHAPTER XII.

When his task was finished Rob was very nervous. He did not know how these letters were going to reach the post. There was no station near Elvin came riding in—he had been to Buenos Ayres—about supper time, and came in where Rob was, still wearing his high boots and carrying his whip. Rob shuddered as he thought of what that whip would do if Elvin discovered the letter to his uncle.

"Finished?" asked the Englishman, looking at the neat rows of letters Rob had arranged.

"Yes, sir."

Elvin took up some of the last ones, and looked them over. He nodded, and went to his own room. He had not touched the letters among which was hidden the one to David Horton.

"Now, if it only gets into the post safely!" said Rob to himself. "But how is it going to be done?"

No more was said about the letters that night, and Rob did not dare put his plan to escape into execution. He was so eager to have that letter off safely that he resolved to remain another day and watch events. And he knew that if he escaped before the letters were mailed Elvin would suspect something and examine them all. So he slept that night again in the little room off the office.

The next morning at breakfast Elvin called a man who was working in the stables. He was a short, ugly fellow, almost black.

"Govino," said Elvin, "you see those letters in there on the desk?"

"Me see plenty," he said. "Many letters."

"Saddle a horse and ride to Dolores. Go to the postoffice and see Negora. Negora is with us, and will send the letters without allowing the fact to become known. Do you understand?"

Govino went out and saddled a horse, and then came in and got the letters. Rob breathed freely when he saw the man ride off, for even if he did read the names on the envelopes, it was not likely that he would know that Horton was not to receive one. And perhaps he could not read anything.

Elvin remained all that day around the place, and Rob found no opportunity to get away. He feared every moment that Lemuel Starne would return and recognize him. And now, when there was such hope of rescue, he did not want Starne to know who he was—and to be killed when everything was going along so well. He was glad when night came and he retired to his room. It was a warm night, and while his door was open and the lights still burning, and while Richard Elvin sat just outside, smoking, he opened his window. Elvin heard it, but suspected nothing.

"WHERE IS HE?" HE GASPED, SEIZING ELVIN'S ARM.

Then Rob put out his light, shut his door and pretended to go to bed.

That night about twelve o'clock the furious hoof-beats of a rapidly ridden horse sounded near the house. Some one leaped from him and thundered at the door. A moment later Lemuel Starne, with white face and panting bosom, stood before the astonished Richard Elvin.

"Where is he? Where is he?" he gasped, seizing Elvin's arm.

"Where is who? What's the matter with you? What's happened?"

"Where's this fine penman of yours? Where's that lovely nephew of Torrevo who was educated in New York?"

"Indeed. What the mischief has got into you? Are you mad?"

"No, but you are. Do you know what you've done?"

"I generally know pretty well. To what special act do you refer?"

"I refer to your excellent, private secretary," gasped Starne, almost choking with rage. "That cub! That—that—where is he?"

"In bed, I tell you!" roared Elvin.

"What about him?"

"He is no more the nephew of Torrevo than I am. He is the nephew of David Horton. He is the very cub I threw overboard from the Royal Mail. He was a good private secretary. He read your fool cipher and sent the whole story—about me—and all—to Horton. He wrote a letter of his own, and sent it along with yours."

Richard Elvin quivered with emotion.

"Has Horton seen it?" he managed to gasp.

"No. I caught it just in time. I'll tell you about it later. But where is he now? I will make sure of him now. I'll kill him within the next two minutes."

With trembling finger Richard Elvin pointed toward the door of Rob's room.

"In there!" he whispered.

With an oath Starne drew a knife from under his riding coat and leaped toward the door of Rob's room. He flung it open. He stood there with the knife in his hand, stupefied with amazement. The window was open. The room was empty.

The boy he was to kill in the next two minutes was not there to kill.

CHAPTER XIII.

For once in his life, Richard Elvin was staggered.

"He's gone!" yelled Lemuel Starne. The elder man made no answer.

"He's gone!" shouted Starne again. "Don't you see what a fool you've been?"

Richard Elvin was at all times quick to resent a taunt.

"Fool!" he echoed. "Why have I been a fool? The boy may be outside."

"Yes—a good way outside," replied Starne, in disgust.

"Well, what do you mean, anyhow? You come here like a bellowing bull, rush around to stab people, and howl at me for being a fool. What have you learned?"

With a sneer of bitterness too deep for words Starne drew a folded letter from his pocket.

"Read that," he said.

It was Rob's letter to his uncle. With trembling fingers Elvin held it and read it through. He returned it to Starne without a word.

"Why don't you speak?" demanded the son. "How do you feel, now that your foolishness has upset the whole scheme?"

"But has it?" asked Elvin. "I certainly thought the fellow was all right. How did you get this letter?"

"Why, since it became known—or supposed, as this indicates—that Rob Cleverdale was lost overboard and drowned, old Horton has been so broken in spirits that he can scarcely attend to business. He had to have someone near him whom he could trust—and that someone was myself. More and more have I worked into his confidence. Of late he has not been feeling well, and I have attended to all his correspondence. In the last mail yesterday this letter came. I opened it with many others. You can imagine my feelings when I read it. Of course I said nothing to Horton about it, but came directly here to find that cub and finish him. But now, with the same stupidity that has marked your course in the matter from the first, you have let him escape."

"Perhaps no harm has been done. You got the letter and no one else has seen it."

"But if he sent one to Horton, why not to the president or anyone else?" asked Starne.

"I don't think so. He wrote that to his uncle to bring him to the rescue. No, I think we are still safe. I was blind, that I admit. But Torrevo swore he was his nephew. Torrevo, then, must be a traitor."

"Where did Torrevo find him? I am sure there was no craft near when I threw him overboard. Still, I might have been mistaken. The 'Black Cat' sails swiftly, and it was a dark night. She would have no lights showing."

"I don't understand it," said Elvin. "Torrevo brought him here—to the Bay—and wore a picturesque Spanish garb. He seemed to look upon Torrevo as his uncle. Torrevo certainly treated him like a nephew, for he beat him unmercifully with a rope's end. He said the boy insisted upon being one of the crew of the 'Black Cat.'"

"But it is certain that Torrevo lied, for no one but Horton's nephew could have written that letter."

"True. Stay! The first time the boy came to Black Cat Bay, Torrevo beat him. This time he did not. It may not be the same boy."

"It was the same boy. Torrevo is no doubt playing a deep game. I think I can see through the whole thing. The 'Black Cat' happened to be near when I threw the boy overboard, and picked him up. He told Torrevo who he was, and Torrevo agreed to help him. Of course, knowing our power, Torrevo would not dare do anything while that power existed. It was agreed between them to have the cub remain with Torrevo till an opportunity arose to warp Horton what was going on. This would place Torrevo in the light of being true to Horton and the government, and if we failed, he would not be punished. He would be rewarded for his aid. This is clear enough to me. It was a put up job."

"But how could it be? Torrevo did not suggest the boy to do the writing. I did. I saw the tally of the last cargo. The boy did it at Rio, I suppose while Torrevo was drunk."

(To be Continued.)

HE WILL TRY AGAIN

Buller's Army Attempting to Relieve Ladysmith.

THE GARRISON HEARS HIS GUNS

Reported that He Has Recrossed the Tugela—Boer Forces are Active—Massing Near Ladysmith and Planting New Guns.

A London dispatch of February 5 says:

Although there is no actual confirmation of the report that General Buller has recrossed the Tugela on a third desperate attempt to relieve Ladysmith, it is known that the war office has received several South African dispatches which have not been published and if the advance is an actual fact, the secret is being well kept.

There are newspaper dispatches in plenty from Spearman's Camp up to Sunday, but there is no hint that an advance has been begun and it is assumed, in some quarters here, that Lord Dundonald's reconnaisance in the district of Hungerspoort may be the only foundation for the statement that General Buller has started.

On the other hand dispatches from Ladysmith rather indicate that the advance is in operation by reporting heavy firing on Friday and Saturday, from the directions of Potgieters drift and Colenso.

A dispatch to the Daily Chronicle from Ladysmith, dated yesterday, says:

"A report has reached us that a brigade has crossed the Tugela.

"The reports that the Boers are reconcentrating around Ladysmith are also an indication that preparations are being made to resist General Buller, or for an attempt to re-attack upon the garrison in anticipation of his advance. The fact, however, that no firing has been reported under yesterday's date, either from Ladysmith or Spearman's Camp might be interpreted to mean either that the attempt had failed or that General Buller had merely made a demonstration on Friday or Saturday.

"Various rumors are current. One says that General Buller is again attacking Spion kop from the side of General Lyttleton's camp. Another is that he received information from the owner of Spion Kop farm and crossed by fords further west than Trichard's drift. The military authorities in London think it more likely that the crossing would be made east of Zwarts kop. Speculation, however, is useless. The public can only wait in patience, and it may be said also, in trepidation. Nor is the feeling of anxiety much relieved by the possibility that General Buller has been considerably reinforced since the disaster at Spion kop.

BOTH SIDES ARE SINNERS

Bribery Infections in Ranks of Montana Men.

The defense in the case of Senator Clark of Montana before the senate committee on privileges and elections has begun the presentation of its side of the controversy. The first half of the first day was given to three witnesses for the memorialists, after which Thomas T. Lyons, county attorney for Jefferson county, was put on the stand by Mr. Faulkner in Mr Clark's behalf.

His testimony was rather startling in several respects. He brought Representative Campbell, one of the attorneys for the prosecution, into the controversy as an active participant in the case, saying that Mr. Campbell had promised him $5,000 to testify in the case against Mr. Clark in this prosecution. He had previously been a worker for Mr. Clark and said that he acted in this matter at the instance of C. W. Clark, playing the part, as the witness put it, "of a Whiteside on the side." Accordingly, he said, he had visited Mr. Campbell. After hearing his proposition to testify that several members of the legislature had been to his knowledge bribed, Mr. Campbell had agreed to pay him the sum mentioned for the evidence, afterward agreeing to doubt it. Mr. Lyon also related that he had seen Mr. Campbell and also Attorney General Nolan since his arrival in Washington.

Horsethieves Near Ceresco.

Some time during a recent night a team, buggy and harness was stolen from J. H. Kennedy, a farmer living four miles west of Ceresco. There is no clue to the identity of the thief.

French Concessions in China.

A yellow book has been issued at Paris dealing with the successful negotiations for obtaining from the Chinese government an extension of the French concession at Shanghai. The documents show that the chief opposition came from Great Britain, which country regarded the extension as an encroachment on its sphere of influence in the Yang-Tse valley. Lord Salisbury, in view of the French agreement of 1896, finally waived opposition in exchange for certain privileges for British subjects.

Two Miners Killed.

A premature explosion of a blast at the Lincoln, Ill., coal mine wrecked two pits and buried several diggers. Thomas Evans was found dead under the debris and George Warnisher is probably fatally injured. Both are miners.

Children Burned to Death.

The house of George Winans, at Bountonville, Westchester county, N. Y., was destroyed by fire in the absence of the parents and four of Winan's children, whose ages ranged from two to eight years, were burned to death.

Many Tons of Hay Burned.

While Nathan Dodd, a farmer, was driving into Fairmont recently he saw fire climbing up the end of a hay stack belonging to Mr. Armeman. He got help and fought the fire and kept it from spreading to other hay stacks near by but a large oat straw stack and eight or ten tons of hay was destroyed. How the fire started is a mystery.

One word of good advice to touch the heart at a suitable season with a kindly reason, will do more good than a whole lecture.

WILLIAM GOEBEL IS DEAD.

Collapse Came at 6:45 P. M., Saturday, February 3.

The bullet fired by an unknown assassin last Tuesday morning ended the life of William Goebel at 6:45 Saturday evening, at Frankfort, Ky. The only persons present at the death bed were Mr. Goebel's sister, Mrs. Braunacker and his brother, Arthur Goebel, who had been in constant attendance at Mr. Goebel's bedside, and Dr. McCormack.

Justus Goebel, another brother, who had been hurrying from Arizona as fast as steam would carry him in a vain hope of reaching his dying brother in time for some token of recognition, arrived forty minutes too late. Oxygen was frequently administered to the dying man in an effort to keep him alive until his brother's arrival, but in vain. The train on which Justus Goebel was traveling was delayed several hours from various causes.

SALOONS OF IOWA REOPEN

Rehearing and Stay Granted by the Des Moines Court.

In the case of West vs Illinois, in which the supreme court of Iowa rendered a decision that closed most of the saloons in the interior towns of Iowa, a petition for rehearing was filed by the attorneys for the saloon men. The petition was accompanied by a motion for an order staying the force of the earlier decree until the rehearing can be argued. On consideration of this motion the court granted the stay and issued an order to that effect. This places the question in exactly the same condition as before the decision was made and the saloons were nearly all opened within a half hour of the court's action. Notice was wired to other places and saloons promptly reopened in the "drouth-stricken" towns. The petition for rehearing will probably be argued at the May term of the court. Meanwhile the saloon men will secure new petitions of consent, so that if the final decision is against them they can file their new petitions and resume business without interruption. It is believed by lawyers that the final decisions will be adverse to the saloons, but that the court grants the stay in order to enable the liquor dealers to have a reasonable time to comply with the law by filing new petitions.

SAYS HE TRIED TO BRIBE

Accusation is Made Against Suspect Whittaker.

Constable Harrod, the officer who took Harland Whittaker, the alleged assassin to Louisville, has given out what is regarded as evidence pointing to the accused man's guilt. Harrod says that Whittaker, while en route to Louisville, told that he had some $5,000 at home which he would give to be allowed to escape. The officer also says that Whittaker contradicts the statement of Captain Davis, in whose company he was found when arrested. Davis insists that Whittaker was sitting in a room adjoining Governor Taylor's office when the shot that felled Senator Goebel was fired. Constable Harrod says that Whittaker asserts that he was on the third floor of the building.

Harland Whittaker, who was arrested at Frankfort shortly after the shooting of William Goebel and who is suspected of being concerned in the crime, is still in the county jail at Louisville. He is in the front part of the building on the second floor and occupies a room with a number of government prisoners from the mountains.

Whittaker seems to be very glad to stay in jail just now while suspicion is turned in his direction.

He still maintains his innocence.

Wants $16,000.

William Martin, a former employe of the manufacturing department of the Grant Paving company, Omaha, has brought suit against that company for $16,000 damages for injuries received while attending to his duties. Martin was in the habit of starting the furnace fires with kerosene. One morning he made the mistake of pouring gasoline into the furnace instead of kerosene, the cans being similar, and was frightfully burned.

Interesting Question.

In the bigamy case in which Clarence E. Baxter, an employe of the Cudahy Packing company at South Omaha, is defendant, which is now being tried before Judge Gordon, an interesting question has arisen as to the race to which Mrs. Baxter No. 1 belongs. The plaintiff plainly has negro blood in her veins and unless she can prove that she is less than one-fourth negro the marriage is not binding under the laws of Nebraska, and in that case the charge of bigamy will be dismissed.

At Springfield, Ill., the jury in the Sangamon circuit court brought in a verdict of not guilty in the case of Charles Ballington, charged with the murder of his wife, Margaret Ballington. Ballington, who was partly intoxicated, shot and instantly killed his wife on the night of July 3, at their home in that city.

LIFE WAS A FAILURE

MAD ILL HEALTH FOR TEN YEARS

Despondent Over Poor Success in Business, He Ends His Earthly Existence by Shooting Himself With a Revolver—Nebraska News.

Charles F. Burnet of Ravenna committed suicide at Shelby by shooting himself in the temple with a revolver. For about a week he solicited members for the Ben Hur lodge without success. He went to his room in a private house and in the evening the owners found him dead. He left a note giving his body to the Omaha medical institute with instructions that after using they give it proper burial and a headstone. He said his life had been a failure for ten years, during which he had an incurable bowel complaint. He was thirty years old and unmarried. He said all his business had been unsuccessful and that was the day of his last act. His brother in Ravenna wired to hold the body until his arrival.

REVENUE PRODUCING LAW

Reciprocal Insurance Act to Be Enforced Strictly.

Auditor Cornell has decided to enforce the reciprocal insurance law. During the last three years he has made an effort to enforce this law and as a result has collected about $50,000 under its provisions. The law applies only to life insurance companies. It is estimated that a strict enforcement will bring in fees to the state amounting to from $50,000 to $65,000 each year. The auditor is now receiving application from all companies doing business in the state for renewal of licenses. The companies are required to file an annual statement and secure a renewal of license at the beginning of each year. All life insurance companies will be notified that unless they pay the reciprocal tax due no license will be granted. In this way it is believed the law can be enforced.

The National Life Insurance company of Montpelier recently paid a fee of $504.79 to the state treasurer of Nebraska at the request of the auditor. Nearly all of this fee became due because of a law in Vermont taxing companies 2 per cent on gross premiums. Nebraska has no such law but as Vermont has a law of that kind, the fee must be paid. The law known as the reciprocal law provides that a company from another state must pay the license fees required by the laws of Nebraska and as much more as the license fees of its own state are in excess of license fees of the state of Nebraska. The object of this law is to exact from companies of other states as much as the laws of such other states would require of Nebraska companies entering such states.

Considerable disturbance may be made over the law, but Auditor Cornell is determined to follow it strictly. Deputy Insurance Clerk Price has secured copies of the laws of all the states in the country and is prepared to tell each company just how much must be paid.

Finds Remains in Coffin.

Sheriff Lancaster of York has returned from Henderson, where he had been investigating the alleged grave robbing. He found that the matter was considerably overdrawn, and many wierd stories were the result of the affair. Nichols is a brother-in-law of Goosen who says that there was no intention of removing the remains. The object in examining the grave was to convince young Goosen that his mother's remains were unmolested. The remains were found in the coffin.

Two Fatalities at a Fire.

The five story building at Michigan avenue and Randolph streets, Chicago, occupied by Sprague, Warner & Co., one of the largest wholesale grocery houses in the west, was partially destroyed by fire, and the loss will reach several hundred thousand dollars. William Fleming, a fireman, was fatally injured by falling from the third story.

Boy Seriously Injured.

At Tecumseh, Neb., Dick Eaton, the son of W. F. Eaton, was kicked in the forehead by a horse. The shock was very severe and the flesh considerably lacerated, but it is believed no further injury resulted.

Calls For Resignation.

Governor Tanner has called for and received the resignation of Zion K. Wood as trustee of the asylum for feeble minded at Lincoln, Ill. Mr. Wood is a republican and lives at Mt. Pulaski. The governor declines to talk about the dismissal, saying he is not prepared to give out the particulars. An investigation has been held and it is surmised that the trouble lies in the letting of contracts for the new buildings which have been provided for by appropriation by the last legislature, but which have not been commenced yet.

Alleged Elopers Detained.

Marshal Ilgenfritz of York received a telegram from Farnumsville, Ia., requesting him to arrest or detain Bert McDonald and Jessie McClean, an alleged eloping couple from that city, whose destination was Avoca, Neb. The couple are not married, but declare that they will be sooner or later.

THE OLDEST MAN IN AMERICA

Tells How He Escaped the Terrors of Many Winters by Using Peruna.

Mr. Isaac Brock, born in Buncombe Co., North Carolina, March 1, 1789.

Says: "I attribute my extreme old age to the use of Peruna."

Isaac Brock, a citizen of McLennan county, Texas, has lived 111 years. He now lives with his son-in-law at Valley Mills, Texas.

In speaking of his good health and extreme old age, Mr. Brock says:

"After a man has lived in the world as long as I have, he ought to have found out a great many things by experience.

"One of the things I have found out to my entire satisfaction is the proper remedy for ailments that are due directly to the effects of the climate.

"During my long life I have known a great many remedies for coughs, colds, catarrh and diarrhea. I had always supposed these affections to be different diseases, but in reading Dr. Hartman's books I have found out that these affections are the same and that they are properly called catarrh.

"I had several long sieges with the grip. At first I did not know that Peruna was a remedy for this disease. When I heard that la grippe was epidemic catarrh, I tried Peruna for la grippe and found it to be just the thing.

"As for Dr. Hartman's remedy, Pe-ru-na, I have found it to be the best, if not the only, reliable remedy for these affections. It has been my standby for many years, and I attribute my good health and extreme old age to this remedy.

Very truly yours,

Isaac Brock.

The Prime Minister Won.

A former governor of the Australian colonies tells of a curious experience he once had with a long-headed prime minister. The latter brought in a certain measure, calculated to make the government popular with the working classes, although it affected a foreign power so much that representations were made to the imperial authorities on the subject. A dispatch was accordingly sent out to the governor to veto the bill. He sent for the premier. "I'm sorry, old man," said his excellency, "but I've just got orders from home, and I shall have to block that bill." The premier replied, "Look here, governor, I don't care a hang about the imperial guvment or about the queens, as far as the thing is concerned, and what's more, I don't care a hang about you. I've made up my mind to get that bill through, and I'll bring it through." The governor, who was politic, asked the "old man" to have a drink, and dropped the subject. The measure in question became a law in due course.

"Phrases of Affectionate Greeting.

There is a tender sweetness about one of our common phrases of affectionate greeting, simple and unobtrusive as they are, which falls like dew upon the heart. "Good night!" the little one lisps it as she toddles off to bed. Sisters and brothers exchange the wish; parents and children, friend and friend. Familiar use has robbed it of its significance to some of us; we repeat it automatically, without much thought. But consider. We are as voyagers put off from time to time upon an unexplored sea. Our barques of life set sail and go onward into the darkness; and we, asleep on our pillows, take no such care as we do when awake and journeying by daylight. Of the perils of the night, whatever they may be, we take no heed. An unsleeping vigilance watches over us; but it is the vigilance of one stronger and wiser than we, who is the eternal good. Good and God spring from the same root and are the same in meaning. "Good-bye" is only "God be with you." "Good night" is really "God night," or "God guard the night." It would be a churlish household in which these genial forms of speech were ignored or did not exist. Alike the happy and the sorrowful day by day say "Good night!"—American Hebrew.

Boston's Bird Hospital.

Boston has a bird hospital and boarding house, run by a woman, who is house staff, visiting staff, matron and housekeeper, all in one. There are more canaries in the wards than any other birds. The troubles which all them most are of the lungs, and they have all the ills of this kind which afflict the human race. Consequently they have to be fed on soft food mostly. It would naturally be supposed that parrots would suffer chiefly from sore throat, but as a fact these birds seem to be especially hardy in all parts of their body which aid in producing raucous sounds. When folk go away to their summer homes they leave their pets at this house to be cared for until they return.

British Troops Fight in Plain Dress.

Nothing in the military line is more gorgeous than a British guardsman in his shining cuirass and burnished helmet. One likes to picture them going into battle thus splendid. They do not do that sort of thing at all, however. In South Africa they wear cork helmets and khaki uniforms, for all the world like other troops.

THE NERVES OF WOMEN

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieves the Suffering from Overwrought Nerves.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I am so grateful for the benefit derived from the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I wish you to publish this testimonial that others may know the value of your medicine. I was suffering such tortures from nervous prostration that life was a burden. I could not sleep at all and was too weak to walk across the floor without aid. The disease had reached a condition where my heart was affected by it, so that often I could not lie down at all without almost suffocating. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it worked like magic. I feel that your medicine has been of inestimable benefit to me."—MISS ADELE WILLIAMSON, 196 N. Boulevard, Atlanta, Ga.

Thin, Sallow and Nervous

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was thin, sallow and nervous. I had not had my menses for over a year and a half. Doctored with several physicians in town and one specialist, but did not get any better. I finally decided to try your medicine, and wrote to you. After I had taken three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and three of Blood Purifier, my menses returned, and I feel as well and strong as I ever did, and am gaining flesh."—MISS LENA GAINES, Visalia, Tulare Co., Cal.

MILLIONS OF WOMEN USE CUTICURA SOAP exclusively for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and healing red, rough, and sore hands, in the form of baths for annoying irritations, inflammations, and chafings, or too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes, for ulcerative weaknesses, and for many sanative antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women, and especially mothers, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. No amount of persuasion can induce those who have once used it to use any other, especially for preserving and purifying the skin, scalp, and hair of infants and children. CUTICURA SOAP combines delicate emollient properties derived from CUTICURA, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients and the most refreshing of flower odors. No other medicated or toilet soap ever compounded is to be compared with it for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair, and hands. No other foreign or domestic toilet soap, however expensive, is to be compared with it for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Fire destroyed a million and a half dollars worth of property in St Louis last Sunday.

Liberty, in Gage county, has been having smallpox, and at Armour, in this county, there have been three or four cases, one death having been reported at the latter place, but this is without foundation, the Mr. Pyle reported dead, is still alive.

Sewall, who was Bryan's running mate in 1896, predicts Bryan and McKinley's nomination in 1900, and says Mr. Bryan will be beaten worse than he was before. Mr. Sewall believes in the administration policy in the Philippines. It would not be surprising to have Billy himself come out in support of the administration before the campaign is over.

Large catches of fish have been quite common since the ice went out of the river. In the pockets and coves a haul with a seine will often suit the most greedy fisherman. Several of the local fishermen have from 300 to 400 pounds which they took to the inland towns to sell. Some of the fish were of large size, J. W. Winterbottom catching one that weighed between fifty and sixty pounds, and several were caught of almost that weight. About 1,000 pounds were taken to Hiawatha, Monday.—Rulo Reporter.

The Burlington is equipping its passenger locomotives with the new electric headlight. Several of the engines running between Burlington and Chicago now have the electric headlights, and within the next few weeks others will be equipped with them. The electric headlight can be seen a distance of seven miles on a straight track. The electricity is manufactured by a little dynamo between the stack and headlight for the cab and tender. The miniature electric light plant on each engine is examined by an electrician at the end of each run. The incandescent lights which are provided for the cab and tender are sufficiently shaded so as not to blind the engineer and fireman.

Probably no other society in the United States, with the exception of the Masonic, has so large a number of distinguished public men enrolled as members as has the Modern Woodmen. Heading the list is Hon. W. J. Bryan, of Lincoln, Neb. The Head Consul of the society is Lieut. Gov. Northcott, of Illinois, and other distinguished members are Gov. Stanley, of Kansas; Gov. Poynter and Senator Allen, of Nebraska, and Gov. Lind, of Minnesota. Besides, there are over forty Woodmen members of the present United States congress, and in the last Illinois legislature the society was represented by fifty-five Woodmen members.—Beaver City Tribune.

William Goebel died at 6:45 p. m. on Saturday. The only persons at the bedside when he expired were his sister, Mrs. Brannacker, and his brother, Arthur, both of Cincinnati. His brother, Justus, from Arizonia, ran a thrilling race with time and the grim reaper from his far-away home. By special and regular trains he reached Louisville shortly after 2 o'clock and boarded a regular train for Frankfort, due there at 7:30, when he ran breathless to the Capitol Hotel, he was met at the door by Jack Chinn, whose tear-stained face and trembling lips told the story. When the death of Gov. Goebel became known women in the hotel corridors broke into tears. The streets were crowded, but good order prevailed, and at 10 o'clock there seemed no danger of trouble.

It had been a trying day, this last one. In the morning Mr. Goebel appeared better, but soon he had a bad spell and spit up a quanity of phlegm and blood. After this he weakened perceptibly. For a short time he lost consciousness, then he rallied. He opened his eyes and looked around the room inquiringly. One of the nurses leaned over, and he asked for Jack Hendrick. As gently as possible he was told that no one could be admitted to see him, but he insisted, and said he had something of great importance to tell Hendrick. At last it was decided to admit Mr. Hendrick. When he came in Mr. Goebel smiled faintly, and grasped his hand. "Jack" he said, "it looks dubious. I'm afraid I'll have to give up." This was the first time he had even intimated that he believed he would not get well. They talked for twenty minutes. About 2 o'clock the patient sank rapidly, and word was sent to the hotel lobby that he was dying. Instantly the hum of conversation ceased, and the many who had been trying to solve the existing situation and discussing the movements of the day, gathered in little knots about the stairways leading to the second floor, on which the room of the dying leader was located. The sufferer rallied, but only slightly He sank back again, and at 5 o'clock unconsciousness came. Heart beats became fainter, respiration harder and harder, until at 6:45 the heart ceased to beat altogether.

An Editor's Life Saved by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

During the early part of October, 1898, I contracted a bad cold which settled on my lungs and was neglected until I feared that consumption had appeared in an incipient state. I was constantly coughing and trying to expel something which I could not. I became alarmed and after giving the local doctor a trial bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the result was immediate improvement, and after I had used three bottles my lungs were restored to their healthy state.—B. On Saturday evening, a large number of Earl's young friends met at his home to bid him good bye, and wish him success in the new home to which he was going.

The Table Rock Telephone company held its annual meeting at the bank on Monday evening. The old board of directors was re-elected: W. C. Fellers, president; C. J. Wood, secretary; C. H. Norris, treasurer; A. E. Lane and B. W. Ballou. Sixty-five phones are now in use and the prospects are fine for filling the entire board—100—by next fall.

"I think I would go crazy with pain were it not for Chamberlain's Pain Balm," writes Mr. W. H. Stapleton Herminie, Pa. "I have been afflicted with rheumatism for several years and have tried remedies without number, but Pain Balm is the best medicine I have got hold of." One application relieves the pain. The fourth number of the Epworth League lecture course was given at the opera house last Thursday evening by Dr Shepherd, of Nebraska City, and greatly pleased the audience. Dr. Shepherd is a favorite with Table Rock people and in "Jonathan and John" he appeared at his best. He is an orator of great ability and one of the most wonderful word painters in Nebraska. The next lecture of the course will be by Dr. Wharton, of Lincoln, on Friday, March 2, whose subject will be "That Preacher's Boy."

Hubbard Savory was convicted of murder in the first degree at Falls City, and the Falls City Journal gives the following account of his attempt at suicide, The prisoner was returned to the county jail and once more locked in his cell, Deputy Sheriff Hansell occupies the upper part of the jail, and about three o'clock Thursday afternoon Mrs. Hansell heard a sound like a heavy body falling in the cell beneath and at the same time heard the sound of a man groaning, She immediately sent for Sheriff Hossack who was in the district court room. The sheriff came at once and unlocking the door entered the cell where he found Savary lying on the floor with blood issuing from his nose and mouth. Investigation proved that he had attempted to hang himself to the bars overhead with a handkerchief. It is supposed that in his struggles the improvised rope broke and the noise made as he fell to the stone floor attracted the attention of Mrs. Hansell. A physician was summoned and while Savary's injuries were found to be of a serious nature, it is not thought that they will prove fatal.

Not Man's, Not Woman's, but Humanity's Century.

That must be the Twentieth Century which no man knows when it begins. Man's century was what is usually known as the Dark ages. Woman never had a century and never will because she knows man needs developing and protecting and will never be so selfish as to keep the responsibilities and burdens to herself. Humanity's Century has been detained in its coming for several reasons. Several centuries ago men built a castle called government. In laying the foundation they only used what they thought was the strongest material, using muscle as the standard of course they were not to blame: People are frequently not responsible for what they do not know. Well this castle proved to be top sided and totery like. It took the men quite a while to discover what was the matter, but finally they commenced experimenting. Girls had not been permitted to study Geography because it was indelicate but now they not only gave them the opportunity to study the surface of the earth but by degrees let them delve beneath the surface among the rock and in the heavens they traced the sun, moon and stars, and they really tried to balance their castle with a column of women voting at school elections. Soon another column was built by allowing women to vote in a few cities and they have even tried the experiment of allowing the women in part of the rooms in the castle to vote. One reason the men could not see plainer just what was needed was because of the clouds of tobacco smoke and veils of Kl g Bacchus which surrounded their vision.

Churches have met the same difficulty in their castle building. They wanted all humanity included in their castle so they sent their missionaries using what they supposed was the strongest material, but after several years of work they also commenced experimenting and sent home for the women to come and help them. Men were elected as church officers, their wives as assistants and the husbands were given credit for the work done by their wives and did the voting in the official meetings. The veil of prejudice rose and the castle of Christianity had almost been perfectly balanced.

And then what a time the social castle has on its tipping, toppling foundation The good brothers wanted the fair sisters kept in their protected homes and was sure they were not needed in their clubs, lodges and other orders; but even here something was found lacking, incomplete so very timidly and with misgivings they invited the women to come and meet with them once in a while after the goat had been securily locked away and bring with them a clothes basket full of that which pleased the palate. And then they actually allowed the woman to organize Auxiliaries under the laws and supervision of their orders. They are yet experimenting by a few of the lodges being so liberal as to take in both persuasions.

The castle of education has led to be patched and pillared in the same tedious way. And that castle of finance! How it has tried both in the State and the home to get along on its one sided foundation with out any props, but piece by piece the foundation is being built evenly, equal pay for equal work filling in one place, married women allowed to own and will property wedging in another. And in the Twentieth Century all will be complete, men and women stand side by side and the castles stand on solid foundations. What God has joined together let no man put asunder

"After doctors failed to cure me of pneumonia I used One Minute Cough Cure and three bottles of it cured me. It is also the best remedy on earth for whooping cough. It cured my grandchildren of the worst cases," writes Jno. Berry Loganton, Pa. It is the only harmless remedy that gives immediate results. Cures coughs, colds, croup and throat and lung troubles. It prevents consumption. Children always like it. Mothers endorse it.

It quickly cures coughs, colds, croup, asthma, grippe and throat and lung troubles. It is the children's favorite remedy. Cures quickly.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C. February 3, 1900. (Special Correspondence) One question which interests Nebraska farmers as much as any other is the price of binder twine, and the writer has made a thorough investigation of the Manila hemp controversy, in order to throw some light on the matter of prices. The records show that up to the 31st of last August the shipments from the Philippines for the preceeding twelve months has been almost as large as usual, but that after that time Aguinaldo made an effort to stop all the hemp commerce from the smaller ports, so that during the succeeding four months there was considerable falling off. In the meantime the dealers had raised the prices. When the war department issued directions to Otis to use all haste in opening the hemp ports, a number of dealers protested, notably among them being a Chicago firm which does a great deal of business in Nebraska. However, the department went right ahead, and got the commerce of the ports started up again as quick as possible.

In the meantime it is learned that 85 per cent of the binding twine used by the farmers is made from sisal grown in Mexico, and it is the dealers in this article who have succeeded in booming prices on a pretence of a shortage of fibre from Manila. The officials here have taken the matter up in the past two months, to see if renewed shipments from Manila will not drive the prices back to a reasonable figure.

As the matter stands, it is quite possible that some of those who have encouraged the insurgents to keep on the warfare are largely interested in the Mexican sisal speculation.

For some time Senator Allen has been anxious to score a point against the administration on the Boer question, and the culmination was a resolution asking if the representative of the Boer republic had not been refused recognition here. The answer came back that no person from the Boer republic had ever been sent here, that England is enjoying a sort of a protectorate there in Africa, on the same plan as Bryan's Philippine idea.

Dave Mercer has just been selected as the congressional committeeman from Nebraka. He has held the position several terms.

Congressman Burkett has learned that one of his constituents at Lincoln was after his position. Being asked about it, Burkett said his duties here, and the interests of his district prevented him from bothering with home politics. He believed a republican congressman right to go right on doing his duty, allowing the people at home to decide as to his fitness for re-election. The Burkett idea is one that no populist official holder would think of adopting.

A Night of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from Pneumonia before morning," writes Mrs. S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of Consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her." This marvellous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung Diseases. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at S. G. Wright's drug store.

Take Nine Towns.

Manila, Feb. 5.—Brigadier General Kobbe's expedition in the islands of Luzon, Leyte and Samar has occupied permanently and garrisoned nine towns with the Forty-third and Forty-seventh regiments. This has placed on the market 180,000 bales of hemp.

Five thousand insurgents armed with rifles, and over 5,000 armed with wooden swords, bows and arrows, were encountered during the entire trip. The troops killed seventy-five natives, eleven of whom had rifles. The others were villagers, armed with wooden swords.

The American loss was one man killed and nine men wounded.

The Americans captured $9,000 in gold, the enemy's money, and forty muzzle-loading brass cannon. At Calbagog, Samar the enemy evacuated the town, the Americans chasing, fighting and scattering them to the mountains.

At Cathaalogan, Lukban, the Tagalog general, fired the place with kerosene just before the Americans landed and then fought with cannon and rifles from the hills encircling the town for two hours. When the Filipinos were driven out the Americans did their best to save the town, fighting the fire for several hours. Thirty stone and sixty others houses in the business portion were consumed. The soldiers prevented the fire from spreading.

John Darr, Pottsville, Pa., says, "I never used anything as good as One Minute Cough Cure. We are never without it. Quickly breaks up coughs and colds. Cures all throat and lung troubles. Its use will prevent consumption. Pleasant to take it.

A special to Tuesday's State Journal from Tecumseh, says:—James Davey, the nine months' old twin son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Davey, died today, the result of being accidentally burned. The mother stepped out of the house a moment, leaving the babies on the floor in charge of an older child. The latter presumably stepped on a match and ignited the clothing of little James. Before the mother could be warned and return to the house and smother the flames the child's back and head were frightfully burned and so great a surface of its skin destroyed that it was impossible to save its life.

DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is unequaled for piles, injuries and skin diseases. It is the original Witch Hazel Salve. Beware of all counterfeits.

The new Methodist church at Graf has been completed and will be dedicated, Sunday, February 11, at 10:30 o'clock. Elaborate preparations are being made for the event and the service will be very impressive and interesting.

There is no better medicine for the babies than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Its pleasant taste and prompt and effectual cures make it a favorite with mothers and small children. It quickly cures their coughs and colds, preventing pneumonia or other serious consequences. It also cures croup and has been used in tens of thousands of cases without a single failure so far as we have been able to learn. It not only cures croup, but when given as soon as the croupy cough appears, will prevent the attack. In cases of whooping cough it liquefies the tough mucous, making it easier to expectorate, and lessens the severity and frequency of the paroxysms of coughing, thus depriving that disease of all dangerous consequences. DO YOU WANT A CALENDAR?

The biggest—and best—calendar ever issued by an American railroad is now being distributed by the Burlington Route. It has twelve sheets—one for each month of the year. On each sheet is a striking illustration of some feature of the Burlington's service or of the territory reached by its lines—the government fast mail running at full speed; a tourist car on its way to California; engine 1891, the largest passenger engine in the world; a library car; a compartment sleeper; the Burlington station at Omaha; a dining car; a monster freight train; Estes Park, Colo., the plunge bath at Hot Springs, S. D., Yellowstone Falls, etc. The drawings from which the pictures were made are by Louis Braunhold, of Chicago, and cost several hundred dollars.

The size of the calendar is 23x36. The dates are in big type which can be read at a distance of 50 feet. For business offices the Burlington calendar is simply invaluable. Purchased in large quantities, the calendars cost the Burlington Route 27 cents apiece. With postage, packing, etc., they represent an investment of about 35 cents. Our price is 25 cents—10 cents less than cost. Write for one; stamps will do. If it is not satisfactory, send it back and your money will be promptly refunded. J. Francis, General Passenger Agent, Omaha, Neb.

Friday morning Dr. Wilson was called to DuBois to see Dr. J. R. McColm, the smallpox patient. When he arrived at DuBois he was informed that he was too late as the patient was dead, and he did not see him at all. A sad condition of affairs was revealed. Dr. McColm contracted the disease while attending David Cope, the victim who died several weeks ago; he was confined to his home, and his family—consisting of wife and three children—were removed to a small house adjoining: an immune was employed to take care of him, but no physician was permitted to see him; Dr. Jackson carried his prescriptions to the "dead line," where he was met by the nurse who reported to him the condition of the patient; a few days before the death Byron Cole of Table Rock was employed to assist in caring for the sick man, and the impression had gone abroad that the attack was light and the patient was getting better, but on Friday morning Mr. Cole reported him in a dangerous condition and asked that a physician be called to see him; Dr. Wilson was sent for, but the patient died before he arrived, and Dr. McComb's life was offered up for a people who would not permit him to have medical attendance during his illness. Dr. Wilson, accompanied by Dr. Jackson, visited the wife of the deceased and found her under the delusive hope that her husband was better, and when the physicians broke to her the fact of his death, it is no wonder that utter dispair filled her heart and mind and that she was prostrated. The case is sad beyond the power of words to portray and wherever the circumstances become known the spontaneous sympathy goes out to the stricken wife and fatherless little ones. Dr. Jackson, the local physician, was willing to visit Dr. McColm, but the local authorities would not permit him to do so. No other cases are reported in DuBois.

A special from Tecumseh to yesterday's State Journal, says:—A deplorable accident occured here yesterday, in which the life of an innocent child was lost. Helen Kazda, the five-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Martin Kazda, was scalded to death. M. O. Anderson leaves today, Thursday, for his future home in California. Mr. Anderson has been sheriff of Pawnee county two terms and connected in some capacity with the sheriff's office for the past fifteen years, during which time he won the good will of all by his courteous treatment of those having business dealings with the office. The funeral of William Philpott, the Hemboldt boy who was killed near Manilla on the 5th of February, 1899, by a Phillipino bullet while on guard at the water works, and whose remains were sent home for burial, occured on Friday afternoon. The remains arrived from the east on Wednesday afternoon, and members of his regiment acted as guards over the body from that time until the funeral. The deceased was a member of company F. The pall bearers were members of company F and were Champ Wright, Walter Stocton Scipio Stringfield, O A Ross, Fred Gilbert, James Downs, Grant Boyd, Ira Johnson. In the firing squad were Roy Patchin and Paul Pangburn, company C recruits. The funeral services were held in the Presbyterian church.

The special meetings conducted at the M. E. church for two weeks by Evangelist Potter, of Atlantic, Iowa, under the auspices of the M. E. and Presbyterian churches, closed last Sunday evening. In his sermons, Mr. Potter scored professed Christians, whose backbones were too weak to permit them to "work at their trade," and each night the building was crowded with people. A splendid Union choir, under the direction of Rev. Parker, added much to the interest of the meetings. While the number of conversions was small, the awakened spirituality of the church will result in great good, so that the value of the meetings cannot be measured by the visible result, today. Rev. Potter made many friends here, and there are many who would like to have him return at some time in the future. The free will offerings amounted to about $60.

The authorities have been doing some street improvement at Wood River that has been much needed.

Wolves have been prowling about Inland lately, but so far no one has been sharp enough to get a pelt.

Dances and revival services at Bancroft have lately been carried on at the same time and with equal enthusiasm.

The Ponca Gazette is soon to print a special edition illustrating the progress, advantages and industries of the town.

Nebraska City policemen are putting a stop to the custom among the boys of jumping on and off moving trains.

The Nebraska telephone company is putting in a local exchange at St. Edward. There are over thirty subscribers.

The American Beet Sugar company at Grand Island recently received three carloads, or 600 bags, of beet sugar seed.

Evening skating parties with the young people of Firth were very much in evidence during the recent cold snap.

William Hawley Smith will be the drawing-card at the county teachers association meeting to be held in Wahoo April 6.

The town board of Wood River has bought twelve new street lamps and there will be no more stumbling around in the dark.

Horse raising is one of the flourishing industries of Buffalo county. Good animals are bringing better prices than for many years.

Principal Ira Lamb of the Nelson high school has resigned because of the protests made against him by the students of the school.

Gordon boasts the finest hose team in the northwest, and the Journal is urging the city dads to equip it with a hook and ladder truck.

Citizens of Wausa have a flour mill project under consideration. Oakland parties will build the mill if they can secure a suitable bonus.

A number of farmers living near Diller are contemplating removal to Idaho. The opinion is expressed that any farmer who leaves this state expecting to find a better is either insane or shamefully misinformed.

The Wausa Herald utters this good advice: Stand up for your home town first, last and all the time. This is true patriotism. We have no use for the man who is everlastingly running down his own town and neighbors. Oust him.

The Talmage Tribune man, who was a boy once, evolves the following: One of the best things about a boy is that he will experiment and find out things for himself, and no person whom he has reason to think has deceived him once will ever have much influence with him again.

From the way horse buyers are scouring the country in search of horses, says the Hooper Sentinel, it looks as though it would be wise for the farmers to hold their good stock. The South African war is creating a big demand for the better class of horses and mules, and that is already making quite a scarcity in the markets.

Cats and dogs are being slaughtered in Wood River, by boys, for their hides, so it is reported. One editor mourns the loss of a large thomas cat, and we understand that several dogs of more or less value have come up missing of late.

Rob Cleverdale's Adventure.

CHAPTER XIII.—(Continued.)

"Drunk! Not a bit of it. Did you ever see Torrevo drunk? I did not. I tell you it was a put up job. Torrevo knew you always looked at the inside voices and tally, and he played this little game for you to see how well the boy wrote. He knew your anxiety to get the work done well would do the rest. But what's the use standing here talking? He's gone, and getting farther away every minute."

"We must follow—but in which direction?"

"In which direction? Why, in what direction would he go but toward his ally, Torrevo, the traitor? He has gone back to the 'Black Cat.'"

"He may have gone toward Buenos Ayres."

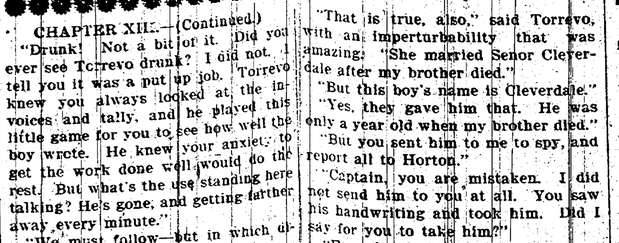
"Not he. What could he do there? I tell you, the bargain included the safety of Torrevo. The boy has gone back to join Torrevo, and the 'Black Cat' will sail for Buenos Ayres with these two precious fellows on board.

"I will order horses. We can reach the 'Black Cat' before morning. They will not sail till then. We may even overtake the boy."

Now that his stupor was over, Elvin could think and act quickly. He realized the danger in which he and his son stood as long as this intrepid and intelligent young American was alive and at large. He ordered horses to be saddled, and, after a drink to brace their nerves, father and son sat out on their errand—two men, to run down and kill a boy.

There was a moon, and the way was easily made. The horses were put to their utmost, and mile after mile was covered, but no Rob was seen.

Suddenly Starne drew up and called to Elvin.



"BY JOVE, THAT'S TERREVO!"

"Hist!" he said. "There is a man coming this way on foot."

Elvin reined in his horse and sat looking in the direction indicated by Starne.

"By Jove!" he exclaimed. "That's Torrevo!"

And Torrevo it was, making his way on foot from the "Black Cat" to Elvin's headquarters.

CHAPTER XIV.

Elvin and Starne rode toward him slowly.

"Be ready for treachery," said Starne. "Have your pistol in your hand. This fellow must be up to mischief."

Torrevo saw them coming, but walked on as if he feared nothing. Even had he stood in fear of his life there was no place to hide.

"Well," said Elvin, maintaining an outward coolness he did not feel. "What are you doing here? I thought you were to go to Montevideo."

"True, Captain Elvin. I am going. But I thought perhaps my nephew would be done with his new duties by now, and, as he has become very valuable on board, I am taking a walk out to your place to get him."

"Your nephew! Ha! That's good. And have you not seen that dear nephew of yours tonight?"

"I have not, captain. Else why would I be walking out to see him now. I have not been near your place this night."

"No! And neither has he. Look here, Torrevo, what is this game you are playing?"

"Game? What game? What do you mean?"

Torrevo's black eyes glistened with suspicion as he looked from one to the other. He readily saw that something unusual had happened, and from their words he believed they had discovered Rob's identity and his own duplicity.

"You know well enough what I mean. You are a traitor."

"That is what the judge said when I was convicted. That was five years ago."

"Yes, you were a traitor to your friends then, and you are a traitor to your friends now. Did you think you could hoodwink us? I knew that boy was Horton's nephew."

"So did I" said Torrevo, stolidly.

"But you told me," said Elvin, looking with rage, and made worse by Torrevo's coolness; "you told me that he was your own nephew."

"Certainly—and so he is."

Both Elvin and Starne stood aghast at this. This was the most monumental cheek they had ever seen.

"He is Horton's nephew and mine also," said Torrevo, as if it was a matter of no importance. "You see, captain, Horton's sister married my brother."

"Liar!" shouted Starne. "Horton had but one sister. She is now in New York, and her name is Cleverdale."

"That is true, also," said Torrevo, with an imperturbability that was amazing. "She married Senor Cleverdale after my brother died."

"But this boy's name is Cleverdale."

"Yes, they gave him that. He was only a year old when my brother died."

"But you sent him to me to spy, and report all to Horton."

"Captain, you are mistaken. I did not send him to you at all. You saw his handwriting and took him. Did I say for you to take him?"

"Enough of this talk!" exclaimed Starne. "You have told us a pack of lies. I know that Horton's sister was never married but once, and that time it was to Cleverdale. Torrevo, you are a traitor and you must pay the penalty. Where is that boy?"

"That is what I was going to ask you. You took him. I want him back. He is very valuable to me on the schooner."

"You will never see the schooner again!" shouted Starne.

Torrevo's quick eye saw the gleam of a pistol. He had none himself, but in the twinkling of an eye he had produced a long knife, and sprang upon Starne. Starne was still in the saddle, and all Torrevo could do was to slash at his legs. Starne aimed and sent a bullet into Torrevo's heart.

"One traitor less," he said, calmly, as Torrevo fell on the ground dead. "What a glorious liar that fellow was. He would have been worth something if he could have been trusted."

"But we are in a fine fix!" said Elvin. "The 'Black Cat' was due at Montevideo in two days to bring over General Quesada. Now we have no one to take command. We must have Quesada."

"I'll bring Quesada. The crew of the Black Cat' know me, and will obey me. I shall be missed in Buenos Ayres, but that won't matter. We will be masters there in less than a week. I will take the 'Black Cat' after Quesada. You lead my horse back. But you must find that boy."

"He must have gone toward Buenos Ayres."

"No, he will try to find the 'Black Cat.' Torrevo's anxiety proves that there was an agreement between them whereby the boy was to return. Torrevo's own safety depended on his keeping the boy with him and sharing the glory when we were all captured."

"It looks so. Well, I will have men out after him in the morning. He may even now be on the 'Black Cat.' If so, you will know what to do with him."

"Will I not!" replied Starne, with an evil laugh. "I'll kill him with his eyes open and looking at me."

The two men parted, Starne going on foot toward Black Cat Bay, and Elvin returning to his headquarters, leading Lemuel's horse.

But where was Rob Cleverdale, while Elvin, Starne and Torrevo were looking for him in vain?

He was on his way to the "Black Cat," as Starne suspected, but, being ignorant of the road, he had gone a little out of his way, and thus missed Torrevo.

Early in the evening, when Elvin thought he had gone to bed, the courageous young American had slipped out of the window, which was not more than five feet from the ground, and had fortunately chosen a moment when there was no one around to see him. Finding all clear, he had shaped his course as well as he knew how, for Black Cat Bay, and started off on a run. He kept up this gait for some time and then rested. There was no sight of pursuers, so he trudged on again, keeping the direction, as he thought, straight to the river. But he did not travel as straight as he thought he did. He made quite a detour to the north, thus missing Torrevo, but toward morning reached the river a short distance above the bay. There was an island, quite a mountain, out in the river, which could be seen from the entrance to Black Cat Bay, and Rob could see it from the point where he met the river. From its position he knew he was too high up, and went down toward the anchorage.

Nobbs—"What is it?"

Mrs. Nobbs—"Her name is Wowse."

TAKING HIS TIME

Governor Taylor Refuses To Be Coerced.

HE WILL NOT SIGN THE AGREEMENT

Demands at Least Another Day To Consider—Must Repeal Goebel Law—Concessions Made at Louisville Considered Insufficient.

A Frankfort, Ky., dispatch says unless some action regarding the Louisville agreement is taken by Governor Taylor Friday or Saturday, or some word sent to them concerning his intentions, the democrats will proceed upon the hypothesis that he does not intend to take any action, and will go ahead with the organization of their state government at Louisville. A conference was held last night in the Capital hotel, at which Governor Beckham, Senator Blackburn, S. J. Shackleford and John K. Hendrick were present. The delay of Governor Taylor in declaring himself regarding the Louisville agreement was discussed at length, and it was agreed by all present that in their opinion the democrats had waited long enough. One day more will be allowed for some intimation from Governor Taylor, and if it is not forthcoming a state government will be organized at Louisville.

Governor Taylor has announced that he had taken no action regarding the agreement, and that there was no possible chance of his doing so soon. It is practically certain that the agreement will not be accepted by Governor Taylor as it stands. He desires more specific promises regarding the repeal of the Goebel law, and a decision in the gubernatorial contest by a separate vote of two legislative houses. To this last the democrats say they will not agree. Regarding the repeal of the law they claim that no mention was made of a repeal in the Louisville conference. Governor Taylor holds the view at present that Governor Goebel was never legally seated and will demand a new vote on the matter before he will consent to abandon his seat under any circumstances.

Not a democratic member of the house was in Frankfort to attend the funeral, and Governor Beckham, General Castleman and a few other democratic leaders returned to Louisville to take matters in hand there.

The application for a permanent injunction restraining Governor Taylor from interfering with the sessions of the legislature in Frankfort and from convening at London was not heard at Georgetown as originally intended. The matter went over.

BULLER ABLE TO HOLD ON

British General Retains His Grip on the Position Taken.

A cable dispatch received in London from Spearman's camp, under Thursday's date says: Buller holds his position. Relief is certain.

A London February 9 dispatch says: All the messages from the observers with General Buller throw a phrase or two about "the strength of the Boer positions" and the "difficulties of General Buller's work," but they do not carry events beyond Tuesday evening.

Their last slender narratives leave the British advance on Vaal krantz, in the center of a semi-circle, where the troops are exposed to the Boer artillery on both sides and in the center. The fighting continued until 9 Tuesday evening, and almost without doubt Wednesday, as the Boers would certainly not like to leave this wedge into their lines unmolested. It is also inferred that General Buller must either continue his advance or retire. The heaviest fighting appears to have been on Tuesday. General Buller's 233 casualties are mentioned as having occurred before noon Tuesday. Large lists are consequently expected for the rest of the day. The casualties already reported bringing the total British losses during the war to 10,241 killed, wounded and captured.

Neck Broken by Fall.

Charles Walker of University Place, was thrown from a buggy and had his neck broken while returning from Ashland. Death resulted almost immediately.

Mr. Walker is a painter, who came to University Place last fall to visit his sister, Mrs. J. W. Bradsby. The prospects for work influenced him to prolong his visit. In company with his brother-in-law, Will Bradsby, and a friend, Fred Treueax, he was returning from Ashland when the team either became frightened at something at the roadside or the cold weather had made them spirited, and they started on a run.

Ask Detail of Warships.

Senator Penrose introduced a resolution in the senate requesting the president to detail so many naval vessels as in his judgment may be necessary to maintain a strict neutrality and maintain our commercial rights in Portugese waters in South Africa during the progress of the British-Boer war.

To Raise Governor's Salary.

The lower house of the Iowa legislature passed the bill by Santee for raising the salary of the governor from $3,000 to $5,000. This is in addition to perquisites of $1,100 which are now enjoyed and not be interfered with under the proposed measure.

DEMOLISHED A STREET CAR

Wild Missouri Pacific Engine Causes a Wreck.

A Missouri Pacific east-bound engine ran into a north-bound street car at the 27th street crossing at Lincoln, Neb., Wednesday evening and demolished the car. No one was injured. The track was blockaded for more than an hour, and the outgoing passenger train was delayed until the wreck was cleared away. The street car was in charge of Motorman Ed Bohanan. In approaching the crossing of the tracks the speed of the car was slackened by a snowdrift and just as it reached the centre of the tracks the fuse in the motor blew out. Motorman Bohanan, knowing that the Missouri Pacific train was about due, ran west along the railroad track to flag it, leaving Conductor Schneiver to put in the fuse. The trolley was left on the wire in order to keep the car lighted, so that it might be seen by the approaching train. When Motorman Bohanan neared Twenty-sixth street he saw a wild engine coming at a speed that he estimates at fifty miles per hour. He tried to flag it, but he says the engineer paid no attention to him and did not even whistle until he had passed the crossing. The snow was blowing and drifting and at that time it was impossible to see a great distance ahead. Conductor Schneiver saw the approaching engine and yelled to the passengers in the car to leave it at once. They did so, and the conductor had just left his car when the engine struck it, carrying it up on top of the engine and reducing it to splinters. The engine carried it for another block before it stopped, and when the stop was finally made the track ahead of the engine was blocked by the wreckage from the car.

INDIANS MURDER A FAMILY

Accuse Members of Witch Craft and Shoot Them Down.

Word has been received at Victoria, B. C., by department of Indian affairs and by the police authorities of fresh troubles among the Indians of Upper Liard. Seven members of a Scotch-Indian family named McTavish are said to have been murdered. There was an epidemic of scurvey last fall and the story was started among the Indians that the McTavishes had caused it by witchcraft. A council was held, the McTarrishes condemned and a night attack planned for their destruction. Setting fire to the McTavish home, the savages shot their victims as they attempted to escape the flames, only one of the family of eight succeeding in reaching the shelter of the forest and ultimately the Gasca Trading company's store at Laketown.

Constable Stewart, with two men, started out at once, under the guidance of the sole survivor of the hapless family, to arrest the murderers and the trio have not yet returned. Commissioner Porter of Telegraph Creek has sent an effective posse to take energetic action in the case.

DIRECT VOTE FOR SENATORS

The Minority Report Submitted on the House Bill.

A minority report has been made to the national house on the bill for the election of senators by the people. It concurs with the principle of the bill, but urges direct elections without awaiting legislative approval for the change of system as proposed by the majority. The report states that there is a wide-spread public demand for the election of senators, in part impelled by a "sense of a righteous indignation aroused by accusations of alleged methods sometimes employed by gentlemen whose ambitions lead them to seek a seat in the United States senate."

Under such circumstances Messrs. Rucker and Zeigler, who sign the report, says the time has come when the exalted position of the United States senator shall not be open to the suspicion of being purchasable.

SHOOTS HIS FATHER-IN-LAW

Affray at Waterloo, Neb., Which May Result Fatally.

At Waterloo, Neb., Thomas Barton fatally shot his father-in-law, Mr. Hively. Barton and his brother-in-law, Dave Hively, were fighting in the street. Barton pulled his revolver and fired at Dave, but just at this instance the elder Hively stepped between them and received the bullet at the side of the nose. The doctors say that Hively cannot live. Barton has been put under arrest.

It is said that the quarrel between him and Dave Hively was due to the charge that Barton had been beating his wife, formerly Emma Hively. Barton has lived at Waterloo about three months, being a peddler of nostrums. Hively is an old man with no present occupation.

Burglars at Alma, Neb.

Burglars entered the dwelling of J. B. Billings at Alma and secured two gold watches and pocketbooks containing papers of A. A. Billings. They also entered the dwellings of H. J. Hill and E. L. Willitts, securing little of any value. There is no clue as to who the thieves are.

New Normal Schools.

The house committee on normal schools surprised the Iowa assembly by agreeing almost unanimously to report for passage the caucus bill to establish three new state normal schools, in the northwest, southwest and southeast parts of the state. It was supposed the bill had little chance to be reported. The normal school lobbyists, representing towns that want the institutions, are flocking in to labor with members.

HE SUES THE RAILROADS

Attorney General Asks $55,000 for Violations of Board's Orders.

Attorney General Smyth has filed suit in the Nebraska supreme court to recover the penalty for a violation of an order issued by the board of transportation. The total amount asked from three railroads is $55,000, being at the rate of $5,000 for each violation. The supreme court assumed original jurisdiction in this matter and gave permission for the attorney general to docket the suits. The suits are supposed to be brought under the statue of 1897 which provides a penalty of from $500 to $5,000 for each violation of an order of the board. This statute also provides that the attorney bringing such suits shall receive 10 per cent of the amount recovered, together with a fee of $50, and that such suits shall be instituted by the attorney general or by some attorney under his direction. As the attorney general is prohibited by the constitution from receiving anything in addition to his salary, this statute cannot apply in his case.

Judgment for $25,000 against the Burlington road is asked for, the same amount against the Elkhorn road and $5,000 against the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha road. The names of five shippers who have shipped live stock over the Burlington since January 11 are given in the petition, the same number is given in the petition in the case against the Elkhorn road and the name of one shipper is given in the case of the Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha road.

The attorney general contends that notice of the board's order requiring the car load rate restored was served on all the roads in 1897, but he does not charge that the roads violated the order until after the order was served again last month. The names of the shippers over the Burlington who have paid the rate per hundred pounds since January 11 are H. P. Schmidt, Friend; D. S. Long, Bradshaw; Adams & Cline, Bradshaw; W. G. Melson, Hartwell; Buck & Son, Crete.

FUNERAL OF FRANK GLOVER

Fitting Observance at York for the Dead Soldier.

The funeral of Frank A. Glover, company A, First Nebraska regiment, U. S. V., was held at York. This is the third time funeral services have been held for the dead boy. Aside from the services at the first interment at Manila, memorial services were held at York last summer.

In honor of the occasion all the banks and business houses and county and city offices were closed during the hour of the services, which were held at the Methodist church. The floral offerings were profuse. A special choir furnished the music. Chaplain Mailley delivered the sermon, local pastors assisting.

Will Be Sued for Damages.

The Lawrence county board of health with headquarters at Lead, S. D., has taken a hand in the vaccination matter. An order has been passed unanimously making vaccination compulsory with everybody in the county, with the seven-year proviso. No pupil will be admitted in any school in the county unless the order is complied with. The nearness of cases of smallpox to the Black Hills was the cause of the order. Cases have been reported at Guide Rock and other places in Nebraska and at Butte, Mont. The case of George Glover, jr., the son of the Christian scientist, is growing very interesting. The boy was admitted yesterday morning to the school, but was soon after turned out by order of the board of education. The school district will be sued for damages and a new case will be commenced by Glover to compel the board of education to admit his son. Christian scientists in Deadwood and other places in the county will fight the order.

Thurston to Appear in Case.

The Nebraska supreme court convened Wednesday and will remain in session for several days. The suit of Attorney General Smyth against the Standard Oil company to prevent it from doing business in the state on the ground that the company operates contrary to the anti-trust laws of Nebraska, will be argued on a demurrer filed by the attorneys for the company. John M. Thurston, United States senator from Nebraska, will be present to argue in behalf of the company. Attorney-General Smyth will represent the state.

Too Free Use of Firearms.

An unknown man, a workman from Ames, became well filled with liquor at North Bend and began target practice in Buchta's saloon. After firing two shots he went out on the streets and emptied his revolver. The city marshal surrounded him and lodged him in jail where he was given plenty of time to sober up and tell who he was.

Scarlet Fever Dying Out.

There are still a few cases of scarlet fever in Columbus, Neb., but the rigid enforcement of the quarantine regulations is gradually forcing it out. At Monroe the schools are again open, after having been closed for two weeks on account of the prevalence of the disease.

Brought Back for Trial.

Henry Hoffman, who was brought back to Hastings from Elkhorn, Wis., has been placed under $1,000 bonds to appear for examination in county court, and in default of bail was sent to jail. Hoffman, it is charged, secured money from the Exchange National bank last November by giving a chattel mortgage on thirteen head of cattle he never possessed, and deserting his wife and children, skipped out. He is also charged with victimizing several other parties by selling a lot of corn to them which was already mortgaged.

Horses as Exhibits.

An interesting and odd exhibit in the Paris exposition will be a hall devoted to the hussars of the world. Paintings showing the great deeds of men of this arm of the service will form a large part of the exhibit. Germany and Austria-Hungary will be represented particularly well, for the simple reason that the hussars of these two armies always have been men who did really wonderful acts of bravery and daring. Spain will have an interesting group, showing her famous Praicesa Hussars, and Italy will show her Neapoli Bourbons.

Czar a Wheelman.

The czar of Russia was, as a boy, very fond of cycling. He has now grown tired of pedaling his own machine, and has had a record-breaking petroleum tricycle made for him in Paris. A wicker-work car is being made which will be tacked on to the end of the machine for the empress.

The Mystery of Dust at Sea.

It is a puzzling fact that the decks of sailing vessels show dust at night, even if washed in the morning, and no work is done during the day. This is like indigestion and dyspepsia, which creeps on one unawares. The only way to cure them is by the use of Hostetter's Stomach Bitters, which also prevents malaria, fever and ague.

Advance in Higher Education.

The advanced stages of education are becoming more thickly crowded. Twenty-five years ago only 5 per cent of the population was enrolled in the public high schools, now the percentage is 0.61—the number of such pupils having increased from 22,900 in 1876 to 449,600 in 1898. The number in private high schools has increased in the same time from 73,740 to 105,225—there having been a decrease relative in population. This indicates a large measure of advance in the public high schools as preparatory schools for colleges over what was the case years ago.

Sea Ports.

The memory of man runneth not back of the time when seaport towns and cities did not exist, thrive and flourish. There is a new and promising one growing up down south which bids fair to soon enjoy great commerce. It is La Porte, at the head of Galveston Bay on the gulf coast of Texas. A magnificent natural land-locked harbor already exists and extensive docks, wharfs and terminals are being constructed. The government is to deepen Galveston Bay, affording a 26-foot channel into the splendid fresh water harbor bay of San Jacinto. As Newport News is to the Atlantic coast, and Duluth and Superior are to the inland seas, so La Porte is to be to the south.

A FORMER AMERICAN SAYS.

Doubled Their Cultivated Lands and More Than Doubled Their Stock.

The following letter, written by Mr. John Cummings of Wetaskiwin, Alberta, Canada, formerly of Washington, to a friend in the United States, is only one of a hundred similar cases, and what was done by Mr. Cummings can more easily be done today by any good, sober and industrious farmer who chooses to make his home in the dominion.

Dear Sir: You want to know how I got along since I came into Northern Alberta. I am happy to inform you that I am not ashamed to tell.

We located five miles northeast of Wetaskiwin; left Farmington, Wash., on the 29th day of May, driving all the way. We had time to build our log house the first fall, and to make us comfortable for the family and stock. We then built four stables, 18x20 inside, so that we could put everything inside them when the cold got down to the fifties, and worked hard getting up the stables, and got through dubbing on the 1st of December; but, to our surprise, we had no use for the stables only for the milk cow and two spans of horses. The balance of the horses lived on the prairie all winter, and took care of themselves. The doors of two stables were left open for them to go into in a cold time, but they would not do it, but stayed out on the prairie the coldest night we had and looked as spry as crickets.

I can go ten rods back of my house and count ten residents. I know all of their circumstances. Every one of them have doubled their cultivated land, and doubled their animals, and a great deal more. All of us are comparatively out of debt and an unusually big crop to thresh and prospects of a fair price, and I expect we are as well contented a lot of people as there is to be found from Florida to the Klondike.

My son bought two pounds of twine to the acre, and when we started to bind some barley we found that instead of taking two pounds to the acre, it was taking nearly five pounds. Then you ought to have seen him hitch up a team and make for town for 100 pounds more. I cannot say how it will thresh. All I can say is that it is well-headed, and takes an enormous amount of twine.

The World's Three Classes.

Some one has said that the world is divided into three great classes: The wills, the won'ts and the can'ts. The first are the actors, the second the opposers, the third the do-nothings. To the first class belongs the honor of whatever has been accomplished by human agency, done in spite of all the hindrance the second class could bring to bear; to the third belongs nothing; and whatever the second class loses by its obstinacy, the third lets pass without making an effort to secure.

AVOID DANGER.

The Danger of Catarrh Ointments That Contain Mercury.

This journal, although more particularly devoted to all that interests finance, commerce and manufacturing, is nevertheless always awake to the need and wants of its readers, let the subject be what it may. We were asked to investigate and report upon the merits of the various catarrh remedies on the market. The production of preparations of injurious composition cannot, unfortunately, be stopped or restricted at present, or until our state legislatures can be induced to pass such suitable and stringent laws as will effectually prevent their appearance on the market. In the meantime, the people must look out for themselves. In this matter, we have made a most careful and painstaking investigation, realizing the confidence that would be placed in our reply. Our medical staff employed to make such investigations were most favorably impressed with the preparation known as Hall's catarrh cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co. of Toledo, Ohio, and agreed that this peerless remedy deserves our highest indorsement. Many of the catarrh remedies on the market contain mercury, which destroys the sense of smell and deranges the whole system when entering through the mucous surfaces. From analysis we found that Hall's catarrh cure contains no mercury. It is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. We have no interest whatever in this matter beyond faithfully serving our readers, and as our indorsement is extended without reward of any kind, and is wholly unsolicited by this company, and will be received with the full credence that all our statements have met with for the past eighteen years.—Southern Review of Commerce.

BULLER GOES BACK

Last Movement Declared Complete Failure.

HAS RECROSSED THE TUGELA RIVER

Desultory Cannonade, But No Active Fighting—First Report From Boer Headquarters Telling of Retreat Causas Consternation.

A Leipsic, February 9 dispatch says: The Neuste Nachrichten prints a special dispatch from a correspondent who claims that General Buller's third attempt to relieve Ladysmith has completely failed.

Mr. Balfour, the government leader, replying to a question in the house of commons as to whether any information had been received from the seat of war, said:

"Our information points to the fact that General Buller is not pressing an advance from the position he has occupied. We do not consider it right to press him for details of the operations which are in progress, nor, if he gives such information do we deem it proper to make this public until such operations are completed. The government had no information as to whether General MacDonald has retired."

A dispatch from Boer Head Laager, Ladysmith, Thursday, Feb. 8, says: The British who were in possession of the kopje at Molen's drift abandoned it after after a bombardment by Boer cannon this morning and retired across the Tugela river to their former position.

A desultory cannonade is proceeding at the Tugela this morning, but otherwise everything is quiet.

A London, Feb. 9, dispatch says: Up to the present time the war office has evidently heard nothing of General Buller's retreat as described in the dispatches from the Boer Head Laager, Ladysmith, February 8.

When shown the Boer dispatch the officials appeared utterly dumfounded. Apparently they had not the least suspicion of the possibility of such an outcome of the operation.

It is said on reliable authority that General Buller's dispatch announcing Monday's and Tuesday's movements was particularly hopeful. He described the position gained as effective, so the news of another retirement is exceedingly bitter to the British, and, though it comes from Boer sources, there is little disposition to discredit it.

The news spread rapidly, and, naturally, disappointment was visible on all sides, although the long silence from the Upper Tugela had already aroused apprehension that General Buller might have found it impossible to go forward, in which case he would have no option but to recross the river.

APPEAL TO FEDERAL COURT

Attorneys for Minor State Officers in Kentucky Appeal to Courts.

A Cincinnati dispatch says: Judge William H. Taft, who has just been appointed as president of the new Philippine commission, has given notice to counsel that on February 12 he would hear arguments on the petition of the state officers of Kentucky other than governor and lieutenant governor for a restraining order against the three members of the Kentucky state board of election commissioners and the contestants other than those of governor and lieutenant governor.

The legislature in Kentucky hears and decides contests for governor and lieutenant governor, but the contests for other state offices comes before the state board of election commissioners, sitting as a contest board and in which said board has final jurisdiction. This petition for an injunction against the present state board of election commissioners and the democratic contestants for minor state offices is therefore not one affecting Governor Taylor and Lieutenant Governor Marshall.

PEACE PACT PUT OFF

Governor Taylor Refuses to Sign Agreement and Trouble Expected.

Governor Taylor had not, up to Saturday morning, signed the Louisville peace agreement. He announced, moreover, that he had no intention of doing so for some time, and did not know whether he would sign it at all. On the other hand, the democrats were confident that he would affix his signature to the document. Friday was a day of conferences in Frankfort. They were in full swing from 10:30 in the morning until 5:30 at night, and outwardly nothing tangible resulted from them. The situation is now, to all appearances, exactly where it was when the peace agreement was first submitted to Governor Taylor.

The tension under which the republican members of the state legislature who are at London, Ky., has been laboring, especially during the past week, reached a crisis when the following message from Governor Taylor was received by a member:

"Have warrants issued for members of the house and put in the hands of sergeant-at-arms to serve."

The warrants were made out late Friday and given to Sergeant-at-Arms Cecil of the house. Lieutenant Governor Marshall telegraphed he would come to London.

Sergeant-at-Arms Cecil of the house and Howard of the senate left after 1 o'clock Saturday morning on the northbound train armed with warrants for the arrest or absent democratic members of both houses.

LOOK FOR BAD NEWS

London Accepts as True Third Reported Reverse.

A London dispatch of February 10, 4:20 a. m., says: London accepts as true the Boer statement that General Buller has failed again. These statements were passed by the British censor at Aden and are read in the light of Mr. Balfour's announcement in commons that General Buller is not pressing his advance. Mr. Winston Churchill wires that Vaal krantz was impracticable for the lack of guns which were needed to support a further advance.

His cablegrams leaves General Buller on Tuesday night sending a fresh brigade to relieve the tired holders of Vaal krantz. The descriptive writers with General Buller were allowed a rather free hand again in explaining the ugly position which the British held and the natural obstacles which had to be overcome. So it is easy to infer with Boer riflemen and artillery defending them these hills, ravines and jungles have not been overcome and thus the public is prepared in advance for bad news.

Hchograms from Ladysmith, dated Monday, describe the effect General Buller's cannonade had on the worn garrison. Hope ran high that the long period of inactivity and tedium was drawing to a close. The crash of guns was almost continuous for ten hours and at times it seemed as if as many as twenty shells burst in a minute.

The Boers, preparing always for the possibility of defeat, were driving herds and sending long wagon trains towards the Drakensberg passes. Intense darkness and silence followed, broken only by frogs croaking and the occasional blaze of star shells, surrounding the town with a circle of light to prevent the unobserved approach of the enemy. A series of British mines laid for the Boers exploded accidentally, shaking and alarming the city and camp.

Fruit jar manufacturers of Pennsylvania, Ohio, and Indiana, representing the entire production of the country, have completed an organization whereby hereafter, it is said, all the product will be sold from the Muncie factory, and each factory will share in profits as per capital invested. Jobbers have not been allowed to buy this year as yet and the entire season's business is yet in the hands of the manufacturers, who have advanced prices 25 per cent.

FALLING HAIR

Save Your Hair with Shampoos of Cuticura SOAP

And light dressings of CUTICURA, purest of emollient skin cures. This treatment at once stops falling hair, removes crusts, scales, and dandruff, soothes irritated, itching surfaces, stimulates the hair follicles, supplies the roots with energy and nourishment, and makes the hair grow upon a sweet, wholesome, healthy scalp when all else fails.

Millions of Women

Use CUTICURA SOAP exclusively for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and healing, red, rough, and sore hands, in the form of baths for annoying irritations and chafings, or too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes for ulcerative weaknesses, and for many antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women, and especially mothers, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. No amount of persuasion can induce those who have once used it to use any other, especially for preserving and purifying the skin, scalp, and hair of infants and children. CUTICURA SOAP combines delicate emollient properties derived from CUTICURA, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients, and the most refreshing of flower odors. No other medicated soap ever compounded is to be compared with it for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair, and hands. No other foreign or domestic toilet soap, however expensive, is to be compared with it for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Thus it combines, in ONE SOAP at ONE PRICE, viz., TWENTY-FIVE CENTS, the BEST skin and complexion soap, the BEST toilet and BEST baby soap in the world.

All that has been said of CUTICURA SOAP may be said with even greater emphasis of CUTICURA Ointment, the most delicate, and yet most effective of emollients, and greatest of skin cures. Its use in connection with CUTICURA SOAP (as per directions around each package), is the "ONE NIGHT CURE FOR SORE HANDS," in the "INSTANT RELIEF TREATMENT FOR DISFIGURING ITCHINGS AND IRRITATIONS," and in many uses too numerous to mention, is sufficient to prove its superiority over all other preparations for the skin.

Cuticura Complete External and Internal Treatment for every Humor, consisting of CUTICURA SOAP (25c.), to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle, CUTICURA OINTMENT (50c.), to instantly allay itching, inflammation, and irritation, and soothe and heal, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT (50c.), to cool and cleanse the blood. A SINGLE SET is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring, and humiliating skin, scalp, and blood humors, with loss of hair, when all else fails. POTTER DRUG AND CHEM. The Table Rock Argus.

P. H. Taylor, Publisher.

Col. Richard W. Thompson, one of the old school republican leaders, whose thought helped shape and define republican doctrine, during its early days, died at his home in Terre Haute, Ind., last Friday morning, aged nearly 91 years. He was secretary of the navy under President Hayes.

The republican state central committee, which met at Lincoln last week, decided to hold one convention and nominate candidates for state officers and delegates to the national convention at the same time. This plan was opposed by Dr. Wilson, who favored a later convention for the nomination of a state ticket, but he was outvoted by a small majority and May 2, was decided as the date, and Lincoln the place for holding the convention, Pawnee county is entitled to 15 delegates.

Governor Taylor refused to sign the "compromise" which was submitted to him last week, but he has decided to permit himself to be robbed of the office of governor, and the voice of the people made null and void by the Kentucky democracy, and he will go before the people in the next campaign with the battle cry of "An honest election and a fair count," and ask the people to redress the frauds prepetrated. This is the easiest plan and republicanism will lose nothing in the in the long run by following it.

Prof. R. A. Lyman, of the institute for the blind at Nebraska City, discovered a species of tapeworm, which he pronounced the European form. He sent specimens to Prof. Ward of the state university, who indorsed his opinion. Specimens were also sent to Prof. Stiles, at Washington, who did not receive them at the time, but laughed at the idea of the European form being found in America. Recently Mr. Lyman received a letter, Prof. Stiles saying the specimens had reached him, that they were the European form, and congratulated Ashley on being the discoverer of them in America. It takes a Table Rock boy to find out things, anyway.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C. February 10, 1900. (Special Correspondence) The "anti- imperialistic league" of this city, which includes all the Anarchist and latter-day Valandinghams in the District, has just issued an address notifying Admiral Dewey that he is not truthful in all things, and that they know more about the conditions and events in the Philippines than he ever did. They believe now with Bryan that the United States ought to give up the property and establish a "protectorate."

All authorities here agree, however, that to maintain a protectorate would require an actual increase in the standing army, with no chance of deriving any benefits, and that should Aggy later conclude to sell the islands to some European power, this country would be in a ridiculous attitude. The situation would be equally embarrassing in case of internecine warfare, or in case Aggy concluded to declare war against some other country.

In discussing the Philippine question in the House the other day Joseph Sibley, of Pennsylvania, one of the ablest democrats in the nation, and who in the past has often been mentioned in connection with the vice presidency, said that Thomas Jefferson and Andrew Jackson would be ashamed of the attitude of democratic leaders of the present day. He produced records to show that the old democratic statesmen were expansionists, and he urged the party to get back where it belonged. One result of the speech was that the democratic members denounced Sibley as a republican, and told him to change his seat. The answer to his speech was not very good, but it was all they had.

The treasury statement at the close of business on January 31 showed a balance in the treasury of $291,956,833. It also showed that for the past seven months the receipts of the government were larger than the expenditures by $29, 822,099. Under the democratic administration, and by the operations of a tariff bill which Bryan helped to pass, the country ran in debt several million dollars a month.

Another indication of prosperity is the large increase in the money circulation of the country. The total amount of money in circulation at the close of January is found to be 33 per cent greater than it was in 1896. The actual increase has been $493,424,155.

The indications now are that during the coming campaign Nebraska will hear some of the best orators of the country. The storm center will revolve around Nebraska and Kentucky. It is beyond question that the east is for sound money, protection and expansion, while the south will through the aid of its election machinery be here in line for democracy. The debatable ground will be in the central and western

Mr. Bryan has just made some speeches in New Jersey, near here, and democratic papers triumphantly announce that at one place all the shops and factories closed so the men could go to hear the speech. This was not remarkable, as the main object of the Bryan campaign seems to be to close up the factories.

An Editor's Life Saved by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

During the early part of October, 1896, I contracted a bad cold which settled on my lungs and was neglected until I feared that consumption had appeared in an incipient state. I was constantly coughing and trying to expel something which I could not. I became alarmed and after giving the local doctor a trial bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the result was immediate improvement, and after I had used three bottles my lungs were restored to their healthy state.—B. S. Edwards, Publisher of The Review, Wyant, Ill. For sale by S. G. Wright.

The Duty of the Mother as a Citizen.

Read by Mrs. E. E. Linn at the Mother's meeting Jan. 24th.

This much neglected theme is one of most important, for the mothers and wives of men who are law makers ought themselves to be well informed, patriotic citizens. If how can they properly influence, husbands and sons along these lines. If we not our women too willingly shut their eyes to all duties as citizens, encouraged by the plaudits of husbands who as a rule are averse to house cleaning and knowing that distressing moral uncleanness is brought to light wherever the women commence investigation, they want to postpone the day as long as possible. "Every right brings a duty." How long would we, permit Indians or Negroes to steal, rob, or destroy the peace of our homes and not claim protection from the government, yet women will see the earnings of husbands and sons go for poison or at the gambling table and fold their hands bewailing fate, saying its no use to protest, while the husbands who are sober, honest citizens, and hard working, tax paying women, must furnish food and shelter for these moral paupers.

How long think you it would be if every woman used her right to vote whenever and wherever possible and at other time, the right to kindly petition or indignantly protest, against wrong whenever and wherever opportunity offered, until the men would say come, we will have to give these women a chance to help us and do some governmental housecleaning. Verily, woman's indifference as a citizen is the greatest bar to moral progress in our government. I have said before and I reiterate that the mothers in this, or any community can work any good or moral reform they choose if they will but unite and stand firmly for the right. Few are called to work outside the ordinary walks of life but the great Lawgiver has given minute instructions in his word, where by everyone can be a good citizen, and it is summed up in this "Love is the fulfilling of the law. Love worketh no ill to his neighbor." We have discharged but a small part of our duty as citizens when we see that our families are properly clothed and fed. "Is not the life more than meat?" the soul more than our body? How earnest then ought we to be to instill principles of obedience, respect for law and government, and regard for the rights and privileges of others. If our little ones were all well trained in these things under the home roof, there would be no friction in school or society, the government would run smoothly and easily. Miss Williard said "Only the golden rule of Christ can bring the golden age of man "If every woman instead of catering to the sinful indulgences of men would insist kindly but firmly, that she and her children have a right to breathe pure air, free from the taint of tobacco smoke and spit and the fumes of liquor; and if she would use her vote and voice far as possible in seeing that men and women who oppose these evils are put on our school boards and in our schools as teachers, we would soon see a strong tide of sentiment against these things that would eventually banish them from our midst. Ask your merchants; I doub not their sales of tobacco exceed the sale of sugar or flour. Is it nothing to us as women that more money is spent by men for these things which bring pain and death to millions, yearly, than is spent for the betterment of humanity? Let us redouble our diligence and with love for God and humanity do the work that lies nearest us with our might, so keeping this earthly temple that it may be the abode of Holy Spirit who shall be to us wisdom, righteousness, sanctification and redemption.

"After doctors failed to cure me of pneumonia I used One Minute Cough Cure and three bottles of it cured me. It is also the best remedy on earth for whooping cough. It cured my grandchildren of the worst cases," writes Jno. Berry, Logainton, Pa. It is the only harmless remedy that gives immediate results. Cures coughs, colds, croup and throat and lung troubles. It prevents consumption. Children always like it. Mothers endorse it.

THRILLING.

Mrs. Guy Gere, formerly of Lincoln, now with her husband in Honolulu, writes her parents here, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Loomis, an interesting account of a narrow escape experienced by Mr. Gere a short time ago. The bubonic plague has broken out with considerable force in Honolulu and heroic measures were necessary to stop it. It was decided to burn the entire infected district in the city.

Mr. Gere holds the position of assistant commissioner of public works there and was therefore active in the extermination proceedings. The fire they started, however, waxed fiercer than they expected and was soon beyond control. It then became necessary to adopt still more desperate measures to stop the spreading of the flames and save the desirable unplagued portion of the town.

In this emergency dynamite was used to destroy buildings in the track of the fire and thus deprive it of food for further conquest. Mr. Gere and some assistants were engaged in sending buildings to the heavens with great gusto when the dynamite sticks which they were carying caught fire in some way.

This caused great consternation and dismay among those within the neighborhood of a half mile and they one and all lay down and prepared to meet further on.

In this recumbent position they waited patiently for the shocks of extermination to relieve them of further worldly cares. For some reason however, the dynamite refused to explode, but merely burned steadily. Then Mr. Gere decided that he was not to die and all the party busied itself in extinguishing the fierce burning destroyer. This they succeeded in doing after great efforts, the fanning being of the worst terror producing type. The feat was finally accomplished, however, and thus many a life was preserved.—Lincoln News.

A Night of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from Pneumonia before morning," writes Mrs S. H. Lincoln, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of Consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her." This marvellous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung Diseases. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at S. G. Wright's drug store.

The Designer for March presents to the femine public a most tempting array of fashions and millinery depicted in black and white and in color. For Health and Beauty" treats of the teeth, "Floriculture" gives directions for March work among the plants, and tells just how to make a seed sowing box. "For the Paris Exposition" instructs the feminine tourist as to what she should wear and whatshe should carry when she embarks for the other side. "Book Notes" gives interesting criticisms and extracts from the new books of moment. "Fancy Work" shows some serviceable as well as pretty things in the decorative line. "Among Ourselves" discusses briefly but pointedly the topics of the day, "The Kindergarten in the Home" describes and illustrates interesting and instructive occupations for little fingers. Dainty Bits of Furniture" will attract the attention of the householder, and the girl or woman who can use knitting needles, crochet hook or tatting shuttle will find ample opportunity for the exercising of her skill on the patterns given on the four pages devoted to such matters. "I had bronchitis ever winter for years and no medicine gave me permanent relief till I began to take One Minute Cough Cure. I know it is the best cough medicine made," says J. Koontz, Corry, Pa. It quickly cures coughs, colds, croup, asthma, grippe and throat and lung troubles. It is the children's favorite remedy. Cures quickly.

To almost every girl there comes between girlhood and womanhood a time when she feels prompted by her own vitality to take some share in the world's work. It accounts for much that is vigorous in church and social life. Cornelia Atwood Pratt writes of this period in the March Delineator. Her article is thrilling and will in itself do much to induce directness of aim. In the same number, as if to add meaning to Miss Pratt's thoughts, there is a well illustrated article of great interest to women dealing with the leaders of Women's Colleges and some of the co educational institutions. A timely article in the March Delineator is devoted to the details of growing seeds, plants and bulbs. The timeliness is outweighed, however, by the fact that the article is designed to open up to women a new line of healthful money making. The Delineator is devoted solely to the interests of women and in many of its main features is an invaluable guide to the thrifty women who have to make their own clothes as well as to the women who purchase clothing yet desire advice and suggestions in doing so. 15 cents.

John Birr, Possyville, Ind., says, "I never used anything as good as One Minute Cough Cure. We are never without it." Quickly breaks up coughs and colds. Cures all throat and lung troubles. Its use will prevent consumption. Pleasant to take it.

Gleanings From The Union Signal.

Ten thousand people starve to death each year in Greater New York while nearly 400,000 a day passes over the Saloon bars of that City for liquor.

One of the first steps taken by General Wood on his return to Santiago, toward stamping out yellow fevor, was to order the closing of all American bars and saloons in the city and prohibiting the sale of strong drink to Americans.

Dr. S. G. Howe traced the parentage of three hundred idiots and reported to the legislature, of Massachusetts that of the three hundred, one hundred and forty seven were found to be the children of drunkards. In one instance seven idiotic children were found to be the offspring of a drunken father and mother.

A law which will go into effect in Germany in 1900 places every confirmed drunkard under the espionage of a "curator." This person will be empowered to put the individual whom he regards as a dipsomaniac anywhere he pleases there to undergo treatment for the malady as long as the "curator" wishes. And the law formulates a fine, broad distinction in telling what an habitual drunkard is. It says that the term includes everybody who in consequence of inebriety cannot provide for his affairs or endangers the safety of others.

DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is unequaled for piles, injuries and skin diseases. It is the original Witch Hazel Salve. Beware of all counterfeits.

There is no better medicine for the babies than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Its pleasant taste and prompt and effectual cures make it a favorite with mothers and small children. It quickly cures their coughs and colds, preventing pneumonia or other serious consequences. It also cures croup and has been used in tens of thousands of cases without a single failure so far as we have been able to learn. It not only cures croup, but when given as soon as the croupy cough appears, will prevent the attack. In cases of whooping cough it liquefies the tough mucus, making it easier to expectorate, and lessens the severity and frequency of the paroxysms of coughing, thus depriving that disease of all dangerous consequences. DO YOU WANT A CALENDAR

The biggest—and best—calendar ever issued by an American railroad is now being distributed by the Burlington Route. It has twelve sheets, one for each month of the year. On each sheet is a striking illustration of some feature of the Burlington's service or of the territory reached by its lines—the government fast mail running at full speed; a tourist car on its way to California; engine 1591, the largest passenger engine in the world; a library car; a compartment sleeper; the Burlington station at Omaha; a dining car; a monster freight train; Estes Park, Colo., the plunge bath at Hot Springs, S. D., Yellowstone Falls, etc. The drawings from which the pictures were made are by Louis Braunhold, of Chicago, and cost several hundred dollars.

The size of the calendar is 22x28. The dates are in big type which can be read at a distance of 50 feet. For business offices the Burlington calendar is simply invaluable. Purchased in large quantities, the calendars cost the Burlington Route 27 cents apiece. With postage, packing, etc., they represent an investment of about 35 cents. Our price is 25 cents—10 cents less than cost. Write for one; stamps will do. If it is not satisfactory, send it back and your money will be promptly refunded. J. FRANCIS, General Passenger Agent, Omaha, Neb.

WEDDING BELLS.

On Tuesday evening at the home of Mrs. A. C. Barnard occured the marriage of her daughter Miss Olive to Mr. J. Clark Irwin, of Lenox, Iowa. Promptly at eight o'clock to the strains of Mendellsohn's Wedding March the bridal party entered the parlor. There in the presence of many friends, was performed the short but impressive ceremony which made them husband and wife, Rev. W. H. Parker officiating, assisted by Dr. McCready of Pawnee. After congratulations, all sat down to a delightful wedding luncheon, most daintily served. The bride was costumed in a rich garnet silk. The groom was clad in the conventional black. The home was daintily decorated with smilax and carnations.

The bride needs no words of commendation, is well known in our midst, prominent in educational and church circles. She has proven herself a woman of culture and merit.

The groom is also known in these parts as a young man of stirling worth and character. His home is Lenox, Iowa, whither he will take his bride and make his future home.

Mr. and Mrs. Irwin are receiving the well wishes of their many friends. May He who doeth all things well, be the ever present counsellor of this happy couple, and may they fulfil to the utmost the life of usefulness for which they are so highly qualified.

At the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. Easter on January 24, 1900, a quiet but very pretty wedding took place when Marcia their eldest daughter was married to Owen Avery. At twelve o'clock they came into the room where there were gathered the immediate friends and relatives to witness the impressive but solemn service performed by the Rev. I. L. Oaks. Soon after the ceremony and congratulations the guests were ushered into the dining room where an elaborate dinner was served. The bride is a young lady well known here, having grown to young womanhood in our neighborhood. She has many friends and will surely do her part to make life pleasant for the man she has chosen for a life companion. The groom is a deservedly popular young man, one of those steady, honorable, thriving kind, who are sure of success in the world. The wedded pair received numerous and appropriate presents and the best wishes of all go with them to their new home. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Avery, Mr. and Mrs. David Easter, Mrs. Sarah Easter, Misses Flossie Easter, Mertie Avery, Lillian Avery, Ettie Zickefoose, and Myrtle Easter, Messrs. Hugh Avery, Frank Jenkins, Glen Lewis, Marian Avery, Grandpa Easter, and the parents of the bride, Mr. and Mrs. J. Easter—Burlingame, Kas., Enterprise

The Daily Without The Devil.

Rev. Charles M. Sheldon, the author of "In His Steps" or "What would Jesus do" has been offered the absolute control and use of the entire plant of the Topeka Capital for one week. This paper is the widest circulated and best known daily political paper in the state of Kansas, and perhaps no paper in the southwest has a wider reading, better equipment and financial backing. The paper is owned by a trust company whose president is a member of Mr. Sheldon's Topeka church. His personal friendship for, and interest in his pastor ought to take the edge off of any criticism always ready to be offered in these auspicious days that the offer and experiment are simply to give the newspaper an excellent advertisement. After careful thought Mr. Sheldon accepted the offer, only asking time to prepare himself and the 13th of March he is to take charge of the paper. It is to be christian from editorial and ad's down to the local happenings that ought to be told. How many want to try such a daily, for one week. Subscriptions will be taken by the Secretary or Treasurer of the W. C. T. U. Mrs Lulu Conklin and Mrs Abbie Tillotson or by Mrs. E. E. Linn.

S. G. WRIGHT STOPPING TIME AT 1900,

Would be as reasonable a wish as to expect people to lose sight of thrift in their drug buying. The new century finds this store in excellent readiness, a store that can meet every requirement, that will contribute best to your interests. We cordially solicit careful comparison at any time on any line we represent viz.:

The last criminal case on the docket in the district court of Otoe county was disposed of recently by Judge Jessen, it being the first time in twenty years that the docket has been cleared.

A fire in the hardware store of Wolfe & Kelly at North Bend afforded an opportunity to test the new waterworks system. The result was satisfactory to all, the pressure being even and the supply adequate.

The Monroe Looking Glass reflects a number of that town's wants. In the foreground are a canning factory, a beet factory, a seed farm, some new houses and a depot. The old depot was recently destroyed by fire.

The York Manufacturing company has quit business. It was found that the cost of producing its patent jeweler's lathe was too great, considering the locality. The device will now be made by an eastern manufacturer.

The Hastings Record thus libels the old maids of its city: If the man who wrote the governor of Kansas to find him a wife were to come to Hastings he would have to keep his wants to himself or hire a policeman to guard him.

The Tobias Gazette says it is a very hard thing to convince boys under eighteen years of age that they don't know more than their parents or teachers. It says there are a few in Tobias, and a schooling of five years has not changed their belief.

Lawyers of Osmond are preparing charges of discrimination to file against the Short Line Railroad company. The company is said to charge rates so excessive that many merchants haul large quantities of goods overland from Foster in order to save margins.

O'Neill has a two-seated buggy with something of a history. It has been driven about the city for over twelve years. From it, while riding with his family that day in '94, Barrett Scott was rudely dragged to the slaughter, and it has been the cause of litigation enough to pay for a dozen buggies.

Business men of North Bend who feel that they have been treated unfairly by an outside telephone company are taking steps to build an exchange of their own. The line as planned is to extend from that city to the beet factory, to Ames and possibly farther. An assurance of from eighty to 100 subscribers leads to the belief that the enterprise will pay well.

Ponca is thinking of getting a new and larger fire bell. The one now in use is too small to be heard all over the city when the air is not at its clearest.

The Hastings racing meet will be held the 3d, 4th and 5th of July. The management of great crowds has determined that city to celebrate the loudest Fourth of July in years.

Grand Island's old cannon, which is a prized relic of the historic days of the pioneers, has been mounted on a platform in front of the court house where every passerby may see it.

An inspection of the list of county treasurers in Nebraska shows that forty-two of them were re-elected last fall. Very few who ran for a second term were defeated.

The prairie fire that swept the country southwest of Ainsworth recently caused among other losses that of 2,065 tons of hay, the property of eighteen farmers.

Fullerton feels the need of a new fire bell. A delegation of firemen placed the matter before the city council along with an offer to donate the proceeds of their ball to the purchase fund.

A MINNESOTA FARMER

WRITES OF WESTERN CANADA WHERE HE IS NOW LOCATED.

The Farms in His Neighborhood Are Being Rapidly Taken Up by Former Residents of the United States.

The following extracts from a letter written to Mr. Benj. Davies, Canadian government agent at St. Paul, Minn., give an excellent idea of what is said of Western Canada by those who have gone there during the past two or three years.

"When we first arrived here and took up our homes on the prairie near Dalesboro Assa., for a short time we had a fit of the 'blues,' but now all hands are settled to business, hale, hearty and contented, enjoying the finest winter we have ever seen. We have got very comfortably situated, with considerable preparations for a crop, and all hopeful. I think this is a very fine country, and if the past season's crop is not an exception, which they claim not, I believe this is going to be the wheat field of the West. It is filling up fast. In this township last spring there were 25 quarter-sections of land vacant and today there is not one. I can stand at my house and count ten houses where there was not one last spring, with six more to go up this spring. This is only a sample of what is going on all round. We intend to build a church next summer, right close to my place, so we will be strictly in line. It would have amused you to have been here last spring. There were crowds of land-seekers, and sometimes in the spring the prairie is not very inviting, and of course lots were discontented. There was one in the crowd who jumped on me for putting a letter in the paper, only for which he never would have come here, and he was very hostile, but eventually he got a place and today claims he would not take a thousand dollars and move out, so I am glad he is satisfied.

"Well, my dear sir, as Arthur Finney is about to move out in March, with his family, and also one of my sons, anything you can do for them to assist them along and to make things smooth as possible, will be greatly appreciated by me. I will close for this time, and will write from time to time to let you know we are living. Drop us a few lines to let us know how things are moving in St. Paul.

"Yours Respectfully,
"ALEX. CAMERON."

Phosphate Rock.

Fernandina, Fla., is the largest shipping point in the world for phosphate rock. The rock, which is used as a fertilizer, was discovered in Florida in 1888. In 1890 the shipments from Fernandina amounted to 10,428 tons. Each year it has increased until last year 195,000 tons were shipped from that port. This year it is expected that the shipments will reach 288,000 tons. All the phosphate rock shipped from Fernandina goes to foreign countries. The harbor of Fernandina is unsurpassed by that of any Florida port, the depth of water over the bar being 22½ feet.

The War in South Africa.

Has demonstrated the great foresight of the Boers, in availing themselves of all the opportunities in times of peace to prepare for war. Similar foresight should lead you to improve the opportunity of securing better farms than theirs in this country. They are on line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul railway in Marinette county, Wisconsin, where the crops are of the best, work plenty, fine markets, excellent climate, pure, soft water; land sold cheap and on long time. Why rent a farm when you can buy one for less than you pay for rent? Address C. E. Rollins, Land Agent, 161 La Salle St., Chicago, Ill.

New Teeth.

With her second childhood Adeline Woodfin, a colored woman of Jeffersonville, aged 75, is cutting a new set of teeth. For years Mrs. Woodfin has been toothless and unable to eat solid food, but large jaw teeth have appeared and evidences of a full set are apparent. She is a little woman, of the ante-bellum days, who has been earning a living mending cement sacks, and she is convinced that the cement dust which she has inhaled has been responsible for the new teeth.—Louisville Commercial.

Rob Cleverdale's Adventure.

By Seward W. Hopkins.

Copyrighted, 1899, by Robert Bonner's Sons.

CHAPTER XIV.—(Continued.)

The boat which had brought Torrevo to shore was there, with two of the crew.

"Where El Capitan?" asked one.

"I have not seen him," said Rob. "Is he ashore?"

"Him go far. Him leave at night. Where him go?"

"He'll come back all right," said Rob. "Take me on board, will you? I have run away from Elvin, and they may come after me. I want to hide."

"Hide from Senor Elvin! Ho! Him got sharp eye!"

"He can't see down in the hold of the 'Black Cat,'" said Rob.

During the voyage to Brazil and back many of the crew had grown fond of Rob—in their own savage sort of fondness. They all feared Elvin, but none loved him.

"Come!" said the one who was doing the talking.

Rob stepped into the boat, they shoved off, and in a few minutes Rob was on board. The situation was at once explained by Rob, and the crew promised to help him. He was snugly hidden in the hold, and his last words were:

"If anybody comes after me, don't say I am here. But tell Torrevo when he comes."

Rob remained for sometime hidden there, and wondered what kept Torrevo so long. He could see nothing, hear nothing. He could feel the motion of the schooner, and knew she was still at anchor.

At last he heard the sound of the anchor chain. They were getting under way.

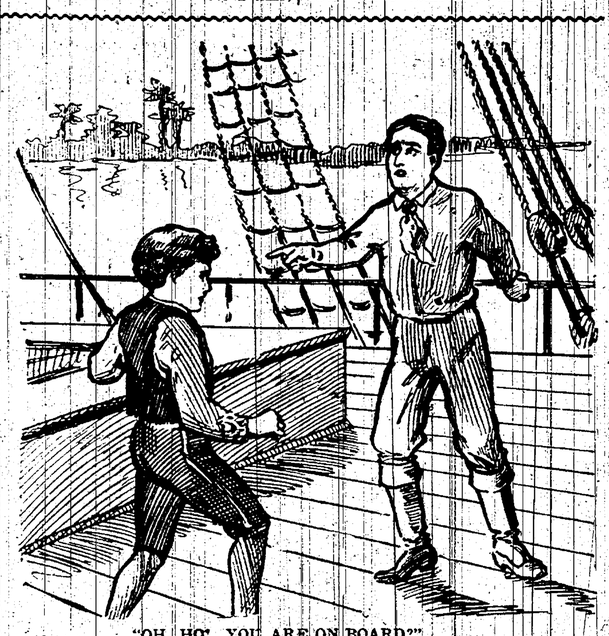
"Torrevo has come back," said Rob, exultingly. "Now I am all right."

He still remained hidden for a time, wondering why Torrevo did not call him.

"He is waiting for me to come up," said Rob to himself again. "I will go now. We must be a good distance away from the bay by now."

He crawled out from his hiding place, and, finding the hatchway left partly open for him, clambered out of the hold and went on deck. The "Black Cat" was speeding down the river. The crew were working as they never worked for Torrevo.

Rob took a turn or two on deck, looking for Torrevo, and suddenly came face to face with—Lemuel Starne.



"OH, HO! YOU ARE ON BOARD?"

CHAPTER XV.

A look of demoniac hate came into the face of Lemuel Starne.

"Oh, ho!" he cried. "So you are on board, eh! Well, really, this is quite a pleasure, Mr. Rob Cleverdale."

Rob stared in amazement, and felt a thrill of terror. Then Starne had learned who he was.

"This is quite a bit of masquerading," continued Starne, pointing to his Spanish clothes. "A gift from your dear uncle, I suppose. Your Uncle Terrevo, I mean."

He laughed exultantly, and his flaming eyes showed Rob that no mercy could be expected from this terrible foe.

"Allow me to present you this, with the compliments of Mr. David Horton," said Starne. He took from his pocket Rob's own letter, and handed it to him. "It will scarcely do us any harm now."

"How did you get this?" demanded Rob. "Did my uncle see it?"

"Ha! ha! Well, I should say not. Fortunately, your uncle trusts me, and I read his letters. You played a sharp game, but fate was too strong for you."

"I played no game but what was right," said Rob. "You and your father are two villains."

"Indeed! Well, keep a civil tongue in your head. You are dealing with me now, and not with my father. You cannot pull the wool over my eyes. I am too sharp for you, Master Cleverdale. Torrevo and Horton."

"Oh, you are sharp enough," said Rob, resolved not to let this arrant boaster see how much afraid he really was. "But when the government seizes you and your gang, then we'll see."

"You will never see that time," said Starne, growing more and more ugly all the time, and scarcely able to maintain the composure he had assumed. He wished to taunt and torture the young American before he killed him.

The dusky, swarthy crew, seeing that something unusual was happening, left their work on board, those who could, and gathered round the two. Rob stood like a young gladiator, defying the greater strength of the other.

"You crossed my path when you decided to come to Buenos Ayres," said Starne, "and I resolved to get rid of you. You know how well I succeeded—but for that fool of a Torrevo, you would long ago have been food for the fishes in this river. Well, Torrevo is dead. I shot him last night. Oh! It was a pretty game. We met him going to the house to look for you. His nephew, he said. Ha! ha! his precious nephew will join him soon enough, I fancy."

"What do you mean, you coward?" demanded Rob. "You will not kill me now that I am here alone and in your power?"

"Will I not?" chuckled Starne. "That's just what I am going to do, and pretty quick at that. What do you think I am going to do? Let you go free and get shot myself? Why, you would have the soldiers of the government after us in no time. Oh, no! You played your game and lost. I play to win. And I could not expect to win with a prying cub like you around. So, say your prayers, if you want to. Your time is come."

There was a murmur among the crew. These dark-skinned fellows were not all murderers because they were smugglers. They had liked Torrevo, and they bore Starne no love for killing him. They liked Rob, and while they were not the kind to mourn if they heard of his death somewhere else, they were not quite ready to have him killed under their very noses.

Rob heard the murmur, and instinctively knew that some of the men were friendly to him, and opposed to Starne's brutality. He quickly turned and addressed them.

"Men, I have sailed with you!" he said. "Torrevo was your friend and mine. Will you let this man kill me?"

There was no answer from the crew. They looked at each other with dark, questioning glances.

"Will they let me!" yelled Starne, now beside himself with murderous rage. "I'll show you and them what I care for their let."

He drew a pistol from his belt. As he raised it to aim at Rob, the boy suddenly felt a giant arm on his, and he was swung round behind a powerful fellow who took his place before Starne.

"No shoot!" said the dusky giant.

Starne, who had now lost all control of himself, and had no caution in him, turned white to the lips at this unexpected interruption.

"Get out of the way!" he yelled. "Do you know that boy is a traitor?"

"No shoot!" said the man, stolidly.

"He must die!" said Starne. "He is placing us all in danger. He knows all our secrets. He is the nephew of Horton, of Buenos Ayres, and knows that we have arms stored in the cave; knows that we are planning to overthrow the government, and knows who the men are who are with us. If he lives and escapes from this schooner, he will have us all shot. He did write a letter to his uncle, but I got it. I tell you he must die."

"No shoot!" said the confronting giant, with a face that was impassive.

"No kill," now came from someone in the crowd.

"He berry good boy. What for he must die?" asked one, who had heard every word of Starne's explanation.

"To save your life and mine!" said Starne. Then, with an angry glance around, he added, "And because I say so. I will not only shoot him, but every man who interferes, as well."

Quick looks of anger greeted this speech. Starne was not aiding his cause any by rousing the anger of such men as these.

Rob, whose senses were rendered more acute by the danger he was in, saw at once that Starne had created a feeling against himself. He was quick to take advantage of it.

"Every man who sticks to me will be rewarded by my uncle!" he called out. "What if this man does kill me? Does he think that the letter he received was the only one I wrote? Before a week has passed this gang of plotters will be in prison. Where will you be, then, if you follow him? But if you stand by me, my uncle will help you, and everyone will go free."

At this there was a rising sound of approval in the crowd.

VOTES TO SPARE

Senate Passes the Financial Bill 46 to 29,

PARTY LINES ARE TIGHTENED UP

Chandler the Only Republican to Go Astray—Two Democrats for Bill—Lindsay and Caffery Go With the Majority—Other News.

The senate substitute for the house currency bill was passed by the senate Thursday by the decisive majority of forty-six to twenty-nine. Prior to the final passage of the bill amendments were considered under the ten minute rule. Only two of the amendments were adopted, one offered by the committee on finance, keeping the door open to international bimetallism, and one by Mr. Nelson of Minnesota, providing for national banks with $25,000 capital in towns of not more than four thousand inhabitants.

The vote taken on the various amendments offered were practically along party lines. Mr. Chandler (republican, New Hampshire) voted for the bimetalic amendment, but against the bill. Mr. Caffery (democrat, Louisiana) and Mr. Lindsay (democrat, Kentucky) voted against the committee amendment, but for the bill. Mr. Kyle (South Dakota) was the only senator who did not vote and was not paired. The free silver substitute offered by Mr. Jones, the leader of the democratic side, was defeated by a majority of nineteen, the vote being forty-seven to twenty-eight.

It is supposed the jets were accidentally turned on.

Mr. Ottman was picked up unconscious and died soon afterward.

CIRCUIT COURT CANNOT ACT

United States Judge Taft Refuses to Take Up Kentucky Case.

In the circuit court of the United States at Cincinnati, Judge W. H. Taft denied the motion for a preliminary injunction in both of the cases from Kentucky. After citing the law showing that the federal court had no jurisdiction in such cases, Judge Taft reviewed the Goebel election law and denounced in vigorous terms the conditions that have been existing in Kentucky. But he held that it was merely a matter of law with the court.

While the court held that no injunctions would issue, yet it was held that after the cases had been heard in the state courts they could get in on error for review in the United States supreme court.

After the decision was announced Former Goverbor Bradley and his associate council announced that they were unable to state what would be the next step of the republican state officers of Kentucky. They had no doubt either of the ultimate possibility of a hearing of the cases in the United States court as indicated by Judge Taft, or of the final result.

Their information will be presented to the national organization, which has already expressed its desire to aid the local men in every way and strikes will be ordered. Buildings in New York, Boston and Philadelphia, as well as in many other cities, it is believed, are in course of construction by firms which are members of the Building Contractors' council.

A New Diagnostic Sign of Measles.

Under the above heading Dr. Henry Koplik of New York described recently in the Medical Record a phenomenon which he considers a very valuable sign in the very early stages of measles. It consists of an eruption which appears on the mucous membrane lining the cheeks and lips. It can be seen only in very strong daylight falling from a window direct on the mucous membrane. It is then necessary to avert the mucous membrane covering the lips and cheeks, either with the fingers or by means of a spatula. One can then see by close study the infinitesimally minute bluish-white specks on a reddish punctate area in beginning measles, and on a more difusely reddened background in advanced cases, which are absolutely characteristic of measles.

Honey Stopped the Clock.

A church clock in Harborne, near Birmingham, England, was found to have stopped on account of bees swarming in it and filling the works with honey. It took two days to get the honey out. Another Yorkshire clock was stopped by a bird, which made a practice of roosting on one of the hands.

SUCCESS FOR THE DAIRY.

To secure the best results in the care of milk and butter, attention must be given details. The milking must be properly done, and all vessels used must be kept scrupulously clean by washing morning and night in hot water with Ivory Soap, then rinsing well in cold water and setting out to air and sun.

I Could Hardly Breathe

"I had a terrible cold and could hardly breathe. I then tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral and it gave me immediate relief. I don't believe there is a cough remedy in the world anywhere near as good."—W. C. Layton, Sidell, Ill., May 29, 1899.

Cures Night Colds

How will your cough be tonight? Worse, probably. For it's first a cold, then a cough, then bronchitis or pneumonia, and at last consumption. Coughs always tend downward. It's first the throat and then the lungs. They don't naturally tend to get well. You have to help Nature a little.

You can stop this downward tendency any time by taking Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. Then take it tonight. You will cough less and sleep better, and by tomorrow at this time you will be greatly improved.

You can get a small bottle of Ayer's Cherry Pectoral now, for 25 cents. For hard coughs, bronchitis, asthma, and the croup, the 50 cent size is better. For chronic cases, as consumption, and to keep on hand, the $1.00 size is most economical.

IS AT KIMBERLEY

French Blazes the Way to Besieged Garrison.

NO TIDINGS OF A GREAT BATTLE

Boers Evidently Offering Little Resistance—News Comes From Roberts—General Himself Stationed at Jacobsdal—London Rejoices.

London has received the following dispatch from Wedraai, dated Thursday at midnight: "Official news has been received here that General French arrived at Kimberley today and dined at the club this evening."

The war office announces that Gen. French reached Kimberley Thursday evening.

Following is Lord Roberts' message to the war office:

"Jacobsdal, February 16.—3 a. m.—French, with a force of artillery, cavalry and mounted infantry, reached Kimberley this evening, Thursday. I have good reason to believe the Magersfontein trenches have been abandoned and that the Boers are endeavoring to escape. General French is scouring the country north of Kimberley. One of General Kelly-Kenny's brigades of infantry is in pursuit of a large Boer convoy moving towards Bloemfontein."

The following dispatch from General Roberts fills the gaps in the earlier dispatches:

"Modder River, Feb. 15.—The Sixth divison left Waterfall drift early yesterday morning and marched here, going on the same evening to Reondeval drift to hold the crossing of the Modder river and leave General French free to act. Shortly after arriving here the mounted infantry visited Jacobsdal and found it full of women and children, with four of our wounded men doing well.

"On the way back the mounted infantry were attacked and nine men were wounded. Colonel Henry and Major Hatchell and ten men were missing. Both officers were subsequently found at Jacobsdal, slightly wounded.

"The cavalry division is moving in a northerly direction and has apparently already reduced the pressure on Kimberley, as Kakewich signals the enemy has abandoned Alexandersfontein and that he has occupied it.

"French has advanced as far as Abonsdam with a slight loss and is pushing on the posts, his rear being held by mounted infantry. Clements, having been pressed by the Boers, has retired to Arundel to cover Naauwpoort."

The war office points out that the word "here" in the above dispatch means some other point on the Modder river than the Modder river station.

There is great rejoicing in London over the relief of Kimberley. Stocks took an upward spurt.

MR. MOORE'S DEFALCATION

The Insurance Companies Will Be Asked to Make It Good.

State Auditor Cornell appears to have meant what he said when he announced that he intended to collect from insurance companies the amount of ex-Auditor Eugene Moore's shortage. He is now preparing itemized bills to be sent to the various companies for collection. The total amount of the shortage is $23,000.

Statements are being made out in the auditor's office in accordance with the records of Eugene Moore. The records are said to be accurate, as Mr. Moore made no effort to cover up any of the payments he received. The itemized statement to each company will show the exact amount still due the state for fees between February 6, 1895, and December 31, 1896. Accompanying the statement is a circular letter requesting the companies to remit to the state treasurer and to make a "special check or draft for Moore's defalcation."

Breaks Sounding Record

The United States steamship Nero, during its recent survey for a trans-Pacific cable, broke the record for deep sea soundings. One sounding near Guam island marked 5,160 fathoms and another 5,269 fathoms, only sixty-six feet short of six statute miles. That is deeper than the height of the highest mountain peak on the land surface of the globe.

Polygamists Barred Out.

The house committee on election of president and vice president submitted a report in favor of a joint resolution for a constitutional amendment disqualifying polygamists for election as senators or representatives in congress and prohibiting polygamy and polygamous association between the sexes.

San Francisco Firm Fails.

The contract firm of Marcus & Remmels of San Francisco has failed for $140,000. Several large blocks of city property owned by them have been sold to satisfy the pressing creditors. The firm states that it is able to liquidate all debts, and will be allowed to continue its business.

Appeal From Taft.

Ex-Governor Bradley and other attorneys interested in the Kentucky contest election cases, appeared before United States Circuit Judge Taft in chambers at Cincinnati, and filed notice of an appeal from the decision rendered by the latter on last Wednesday afternoon. The appeal will be taken direct to the United States supreme court. The petition for appeal merely states that Judge Taft erred in declaring that jurisdiction did not lie in the federal court, and it was sorely upon this ground that the appeals were taken.

Overcome by Sewer Gas.

A Chicago sewer laborer was killed and five others overcome by gas while at work in a sewer at Paulina and Fulton streets. It is said the remaining five may not recover because they were drenched with water and then exposed to the cold wind before reaching the county hospital.

Hardware Men Conclude.

The Iowa retail hardware dealers' association adjourned after a three days' convention. Dubuque was selected for the place to meet next year.

THE KENTUCKY SITUATION

Warden Recognizes Beckham and Refuses to Obey Taylor.

The clash between the democrats and rebublican branches of the Kentucky government was emphasized by the prison officials releasing John Seals, a Louisville convict, on a pardon issued by Governor Beckham, Douglass Hays, a Knott county convict recently pardoned by Governor Taylor, is still in confinement, the prison officials refusing to recognize Taylor as governor.

Attorneys for the contestees and contestants today signed the following agreement as to the conduct of the contestants for minor state offices:

"We hereby agree that all the testimony taken in the contest for governor and lieutenant governor so far as the same may be competent and relevant may be read as evidence in the contest for the minor state offices now pending, and that the contests shall be submitted to said board without argument, the counsel for neither side nor any other person to be present during the trial, and the contestees expressly reserving all rights to accept, object or demur to the evidence or other proceeding which they may have under the law, and that the contestees do not by the agreement waive or relinquish any objection to the jurisdiction of the board."

The state canvassing board took up the cases of the minor offices on the state ticket. It is not expected that any decisions will be rendered inside of three or four days.

About 250 Chicago journeymen tailors were locked out by the members of the tailors' and drapers' exchange. THIRTY YEARS OF CURES

Smoke Shells Suggested.

The great loss of life incurred by the English troops is mainly attributable to the charges they have had to make across open spaces in order to dislodge the enemy from the sheltering kopje. In order to minimize the death roll it has been suggested that just before a charge takes place smoke shells should be fired, which would temporarily hide the English soldiers.

Electricity a Century Ago.

Electricity as we know it is just 100 years old. In 1799 the Italian scientist Volta gave definite form to the method of producing the current, and it is from his name that we have the term voltmeter to describe the instrument which measures the force of the current, and volt as the unit of that measurement.

Public Schools Gaining.

The current annual report of Dr. William T. Harris, United States commissioner of education, estimates the population between the ages of 5 and 18, at 21,458,294. Of these 15,068,635 are enrolled in the public schools. The increase in attendance in the public schools is in excess of the increase in population. The recent enrollment is 70 per cent of the whole, against 65.5 in 1880 and 61.4 in 1870. The average term of the school year increased from 132 days in 1870 to 143 days in 1890.

NICE OLD QUAKER LADY

Cured of Catarrh By Peruna After 20 Years' Suffering.

MRS. POLLY EVANS, A LIFE-LONG FRIEND OF PERUNA.

"My wife (Polly J. Evans) says she feels entirely cured of systemic catarrh of twenty years' standing. She took nearly six bottles of thy excellent medicine, Peruna, as directed, and we feel very thankful to thee for thy kindness and advice. She did not expect to be so well as she is now. Twelve years ago it cured her of la grippe. I want to tell thee there has been a great deal of Peruna used here last winter. Peruna does not need praising. It tells for itself. We can and do recommend it to anyone that is afflicted ith catarrh."

As ever, thy friend, John Evans, South Wabash, Ind.

When catarrh has reached the chronic stage, of course it has gone beyond the reach of all local remedies. Nothing but a systemic remedy can reach it. Peruna is the only remedy yet devised to meet such cases. Peruna eradicates catarrh from the system. It does its work quietly, but surely. It cleanses the mucous membranes of the whole body. It produces regular functions. Peruna restores perfect health in a natural way.

No one should neglect to procure one of Dr. Hartman's free books on catarrh, sent to any address by The Peruna Medicine Company, Columbus, Ohio.

The Table Rock Argus.

P. H. Taylor, Publisher.

It is said that the stingiest man in Nebraska lives in Plattsmouth. He married a home girl to save expense. They walked around the block for a bridal tour. He bought her a nickel's worth of stick candy for a wedding present, and then advocated saving the candy for the children.—Ex.

The Pawnee Chief is the name of the new paper at Pawnee City. It is well filled with ads and other indications of permanency. Its editor is C. E. Williamson, who comes from Marysville, Mo. The Argus extends to him and the Chief a welcome to the inner circle of Pawnee county journalism.

The track laying on the new grade, southeast of town, was completed last week and on Monday the old grade was abandoned and all trains were run over the new track. The improvement has cost the Burlington many thousands of dollars but the investment will pay. The track is now all above high water mark, the sharp curves have been straightened and the grades have been practically eliminated. During the coming summer the track between Tecumseh and Lincoln will be similarly improved.—Tecumseh Chieftan.

Frank L. Parks was called to Chicago last week as an expert in the use of dynamite. The big canal was gorged with ice near Joliet and after repeated attempts to remove the blockade they gave it up in disgust. The Rook Island folks said they had a man who could accomplish the task, and wired for Frank to come on and "show 'em." Word from him Thursday evening stated that he had the ice going and expected to complete the job by this evening. This is quite a feather in Frank's cap.—Fairbury Enterprise.

Capt. R. P. Jennings, ex-confederate—received a telegram on Monday afternoon from the committee of a rousing Camp Fire at Schuyler, requesting him to be with them Thursday evening. No man in Nebraska enjoys camp fire meetings more than Captain Jennings, and no man can raise more real, genuine, hilarious enthusiasm than this same Capt. Jennings and if the Schyler people don't have a big laugh when he tells his experiences, it will be because they are a dyspeptic set of people. He left Wednesday afternoon for Schuyler. His expenses will be defrayed by the committee. The pleasure which the Captain gives and takes in meetings of old soldiers is a striking and pleasing illustration that the old animosities between the soldiers of the north and south has been eradicated and today they go upon the same platform and recount the struggles of the past in fraternity and pleasure.

There are no flies on Atty. Matters now. In the case wherein constable Doyle of Lewiston swore out a warrant for the arrest of Henry Matters; charging the said Matters with the willful crime of threatening to shoot the daylights, stuffing, or some other kind of pudding out of the said Doyle; was tried before his honor, Judge Barton of Pawnee City last Tuesday. After hearing the testimony of some twelve or fifteen witnesses, his honor acquited the defendant and taxed the cost up to the complaining witness; which amounted to something like 40 or 50 dollars. Henry claims that while in Lewiston a few Lewistonites acted very insulting and abusive toward him, and he naturally feels that the result of his being acquited and the plaintiff getting it socked to him to the tune of $50 for costs, thouroughly vindicates him as a law abiding citizen, with the stigma of dishonesty on the other fellow.—Burchard Times.

On Saturday, Feb. 10th, 1900, at Pawnee City, Mr. O. C. Reid and Miss Claudia Stratton were united in marriage, Justice Graham officiating.

These young people thought to surprise their numerous friends in this city and to say that they did so completely, would be putting it mildly.

While it was known that they were keeping company for some time past not even their most intimate friends even dreampt that matters had taken this sudden, serious turn, and even when they returned and made a public announcement, it took several boxes of cigars to impress the public mind that it was a fact. The young couple started for Table Rock, Saturday morning, and after stopping with a sister of the brides for a short time proceeded to the county seat without imparting their mission to that household, consequently the surprise reached farther than the morbid curiosity of the public. Just where the young people have decided to locate we have not learned, but wherever their choice decides, the ENTERPRISE joins a host of friends in wishing them all the joy a fitting union brings.—Humboldt Enterprise.

The Union met at Mrs. Conklin's Friday the 16th with a good attendance. Each one present responded to roll call by [illegible] writings. Her husband [illegible] was sung and Mrs. Conklin read some very interesting reminiscences of [illegible]'s childhood, and [illegible] a paper on [illegible] woman. Mrs. Conklin favored us with [illegible] Duetts. "Songs that Mother Sang" and "Save the Boys." A thank offering was taken and all felt it was an hour well spent. "After doctors failed to cure me of pneumonia I used One Minute Cough Cure and three bottles of it cured me. It is also the best remedy on earth for whooping cough. It cured my grandchildren of the worst cases," writes Jno. Berry, Dingmans, Pa. It is the only harmless remedy that gives immediate results. It cures croup, colds, grippe and throat and lung troubles. Children always like it.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C. February 17, 1900. (Special Correspondence) Haiters here who were here in Frankfort the day Goebel was shot freely express the doubt that the shot was fired from the Taylor headquarters. They say that before any sympathy is wasted on the Goebelites the full facts ought to be known. Some say that the drama was played by the Goebelites as if it had been carefully rehearsed,—that Goebel fell while reaching for his revolver, that Jack Chinn tragecally cried "We will all die with you," and that the wounded man was hustled into the house before anyone could see how and where he was struck. Nobody saw the smoke of the gun, and nobody could tell where the shots came from. No inquest or post mortem was held to ascertain the direction and angle of the firing. None but Goebelites were allowed to know anything about the wound. Many thought it possible that Goebel's friends had fired the shot for political effect, and had struck harder than they intended.

Certain it is that the three men who were walking across the state house grounds were not angels. Goebel had killed one man and driven the widow to the insane asylum. Jack Chinn was a notorious fighter with gun and knife, and had several victims to his credit. Eph Lillard had also "killed his man." All were armed and looking for trouble.

After the shooting Jack Chinn guarded the sick chamber and gave out the news. Here is what he gave to the reporters. It was printed in the Louisville Journal, the New York World and Journal, the three principal Goebel organs, and must be accepted as authority.

He was very game. He smiled often in his weak way, and his mind drifted out into the dark and nebulous regions of semi-delirium, when the syllables which dropped from his loosed tongue showed where his mind was wandering. It was always in the same direction, war, violence—the accomplishment of the darling object on which he had staked his all, and for which he was paying the penalty he had exacted from another—the penalty of his life.

"Give it to 'em Jack,' he would cry. 'Lay 'em low my lad. Your gun has done many a good job before. I'm going to give you an office that will warm your heart, old man.' He thought he was addressing Jack Chinn, his devoted body-guard."

"Horrid visions crossed his brain. He tought imaginary battles. He led imaginary mobs in bloody contests with the militia. He shot down men, and ordered others to shoot. 'Kill! kill' he cried, and awoke screaming, his wounds bleeding afresh."

That was the sort of news given out from the bedside and printed by the Goebelites to gain sympathy for the "martyr" in Kentucky. Law-abiding citizens in a civilized state like Nebraska will not waste much sympathy on victims of the Kentucky civil war. Yet, all must deplore a state of civilization which admits of the leadership of men of the Jack Chinn, Eph Lillard and Hank Botts stripe.

Care of Raspberry and Blackberry Patch.

Bureau of Horticulture,
Nebraska State Horticultural Society.

C. H. BARNARD, Secretary.

The most desirable location for the Raspberry and Blackberry is an East or North East or South East Slope, however level land well protected by wind break is very satisfactory. The location should be high enough to avoid killing by late frosts. A wind break of some kind is desirable on any location as it not only keeps the strong gales and storms from breaking the new thrifty canes but helps to conserve the moisture by carrying the wind over the patch.

They should be planted in well pulverized soil which has been plowed deep. Plant two inches deeper than they stood in the nursery. Plant Raspberry two and one-half feet in rows, having the rows five or six feet apart. Prune in the spring, cutting out all old wood and cut back new wood to two to four feet, owing to strength of canes at time of trimming. Where old canes are not too much of a harbor for insects, it is better to leave them until spring as they help to hold up the snow and to keep the new canes from breaking down.

Plant blackberry two and one-half feet apart in rows, having rows six or seven feet apart. Give thorough cultivation, always preserving all new canes that appear in the row, and destroy all that appear between the rows, thus keeping the rows uniform, rather narrow and full in the row.

The ground in both blackberry and raspberry patches should be stirred four or five inches deep once a year, by a one-horse stirring plow or some other implement that will thoroughly stir the ground, then the soil kept loose by frequent cultivation. Prune blackberry in winter or spring; take out all old wood, and cut back new wood to three or four feet. Cut off all side shoots that hang over the row or they will make your horse afraid to walk close to the row when cultivating. Summer pruning or pinching of the blackberry can be avoided with good results, as the large leaves on top of the strong young shoots will partially shade the ripening berries which is very beautiful. There will be enough fruit buds below the four foot mark to furnish all berries that the cane can ripen without this pinching back.

VARIETIES.

The most reliable varieties so far tested are blackberry: Snyder; Raspberry: Palmer; Tyler, for early, Kansas and old for medium and Gregg and Nemaha, for late. The hardiest of these are the Palmer, Older, and Nemaha.

Red raspberries do well in many localities. They need a rich mellow soil and will stand for years with some fertilization, and give good returns after being once established.

The best varieties so far tested are the Turner, Cathbert, and Reliance, in the order named.

An Editor's Life Saved by Chamberlain's Cough Remedy.

During the early part of October, 1896, I contracted a bad cold which settled on my lungs and was neglected until I feared that consumption had appeared in an incipient state. I was constantly coughing and trying to expel something which I could not. I became alarmed and after giving the local doctor a trial bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy and the result was immediate improvement, and after I had used three bottles my lungs were restored to their healthy state.—B. There is no better medicine for the babies than Chamberlain's Cough Remedy. Its pleasant taste and prompt and effectual cures make it a favorite with mothers and small children. It quickly cures their coughs and colds, preventing pneumonia or other serious consequences. It also cures croup and has been used in tens of thousands of cases without a single failure so far as we have been able to learn. It not only cures croup, but when given as soon as the croupy cough appears, will prevent the attack. In cases of whooping cough it liquefies the tough mucus, making it easier to expectorate, and lessens the severity and frequency of the paroxysms of coughing, thus depriving that disease of all dangerous consequences. A Night of Terror.

"Awful anxiety was felt for the widow of the brave General Burnham of Machias, Me., when the doctors said she would die from Pneumonia before morning," writes Mrs. S. H. Linkin, who attended her that fearful night, but she begged for Dr. King's New Discovery, which had more than once saved her life, and cured her of Consumption. After taking, she slept all night. Further use entirely cured her." This marvellous medicine is guaranteed to cure all Throat, Chest and Lung Diseases. Only 50c and $1.00. Trial bottles free at S. G. Wright's drug store.

A sensible young lady made the following request of her friends: "Do not lay me down by the rippling brookside lest the babbling lovers wake me from my dreams; nor in the beautiful cemetries in the valley lest sight-seers conning over epitaphs distract me; but let my sleep be under the counter of the merchant and business men generally who never advertise. There is the peace that passeth all understanding, and a deep sleep on which neither the buoyant footfall of youth nor the weary shuffle of old age will never intrude. —Ex.

In case of a tie, the estimate received first will be awarded the premium.

DO YOU WANT A CALENDAR?
The biggest—and best—calendar ever issued by an American railroad is now being distributed by the Burlington Route. It has twelve sheets, one for each month of the year. On each sheet is a striking illustration of some feature of the Burlington's service or of the territory reached by its lines—the government fast mail running at full speed; a tourist car on its way to California; engine 1591, the largest passenger engine in the world; a library car; a compartment sleeper; the Burlington station at Omaha; a dining car; a monster freight train; Estes Park, Colo., the plunge bath at Hot Springs, S. D., Yellowstone Falls, etc. The drawings from which the pictures were made are by Louis Braunhold, of Chicago, and cost several hundred dollars.
The size of the calendar is 22x28. The dates are in big type which can be read at a distance of 50 feet. For business offices the Burlington calendar is simply invaluable. Purchased in large quantities, the calendars cost the Burlington Route 27 cents apiece. With postage, packing, etc., they represent an investment of about 35 cents. Our price is 25 cents—10 cents less than cost. Write for one; stamps will do. If it is not satisfactory, send it back and your money will be promptly refunded. J. FAVORS FREE WOOL.

BRYAN HATES PROTECTION AS MUCH AS EVER.

Declares He Stands as He Stood Six Years, An Uncompromising Opponent of any Tariff for the Benefit of the American Sheep Grower.

Last week the wool market report of the Commercial Bulletin contained the following paragraph:

"The Salt Lake City correspondent of Hecht, Liebmann & Co., of this city, writes that Mr. Wm. J. Bryan, in his recent visit to Utah, assured leading dealers and growers in private conversation that he had changed his mind on wool, and that though he would consent to a reduction of duties, they could rest assured that he never would sign a free-wool bill."

We desire to repeat the paragraph, and are perfectly prepared to furnish the names of the persons who were given the assurance that the wool tariff would not be an issue and that the protectionist who wished to vote for free silver might do so without fear that the beneficent duty would be removed from wool by Mr. Bryan.

Mr. Bryan now makes this publication unnecessary, however, by a public pledge, which, of course, recalls all private or personal assurances as to his attitude on wool. In an interview accepted as authentic by such free wool authority as the Boston Herald, he is quoted by that paper, among others, of Jan. 14 as follows:

"When asked regarding the report that he had changed his views on the matter of free wool importation, and had asserted that, in behalf of western dealers and manufacturers, he would, if elected president, favor a tariff on wool, Mr. Bryan stated most emphatically that he had made no statement whatever to the effect that he had changed his former views on the question."

These are Mr. Bryan's "former views," as expressed on the floor of congress, March 16, 1892:

"I, therefore, Mr. Chairman, denounce as fallacious, as unworthy of consideration, the only reason that can be given in support of a tariff on wool, as a protective tariff and for protective purposes."

And on Jan. 13, 1894:

"It is immaterial in my judgment whether the sheep grower receives any benefit from the tariff or not. Whether he does or does not, whether the wool manufacturer collects a compensatory duty from the consumer of woolen goods and pays it over to the wool grower, or collects and keeps it himself, or doesn't collect it at all; and therefore doesn't need it, I am for free wool."

It is idle for Mr. Bryan's friends in Utah or the other Western states longer to seek the votes of wool growers, as they have been doing, on whispered assurances that the free trade plank of the Chicago platform is not an issue.

Free wool is an issue in 1900.

Mr. Bryan has made it so by his own public utterance at Columbia, Miss., Jan. 15, 1900. The private whisper in Salt Lake City is overridden by the public declaration again publicly endorsed: "I am for free wool."

A Bryan victory thus means not only surrender and free silver, but a drop to the old free wool basis of 27 cents a scoured pound for ordinary fine medium Utah wool. The Western wool grower will do well to ponder this and to cut out Mr. Bryan's interview for reference when the campaign is on next fall.—Boston Commercial Bulletin.

A TRULY GREAT CHANGE.

Marked Improvement in the Grade of Coffins and Furniture Now Demanded.

"Some queer facts regarding improved business conditions are set forth by the Canton (Ill.) Register in the shape of an interview with a traveling man who represents three factories, one that manufactures coffins, one that makes a specialty of tables, and another that produces a general assortment of furniture. Said this commercial traveler:

"The factories, though running night and day, are away behind their orders. Three of the largest houses on our custom list we have, for the present, quit taking orders from, simply because we can't fill them by the time desired. This being true, it looks as though my services as trade solicitor will have to be dispensed with."

"How do you account for this excessive demand?" was asked.

"Prosperity; everybody—at work; good wages; plenty of money."

"Well, but ain't coffins as much in demand in hard as well as in good times?" interposed a Democrat.

"Yes, and perhaps more so, but in such times those of inferior quality are the most called for—the kind that can be more rapidly thrown together. In such times as we now have the best is required, and it takes longer to manufacture them."

"What is your experience with tables in good as compared with hard times, or in McKinley as compared with Cleveland times?" was asked.

"Now, that is something I would sooner talk about than to talk about coffins. I will tell you. The many who use store boxes and loose boards for tables in the Cleveland times are now, that they have plenty of work, good wages and good money, wanting good factory-made tables. And when it comes to furniture in general it is wonderful to note the increased demand in these McKinley times compared with the demand in the Cleveland-Wilson tariff era. People who could not afford sideboards, rocking and easy chairs then are now in a position to have and enjoy them. I confess, as I contemplate the situation, that I am somewhat troubled lest I be laid off until my houses can catch up with their orders."

It will be noticed that in the difference between Cleveland's reform tariff times and McKinley protective tariff times the change runs to quality as well as quantity of goods consumed. Coffins must be better than four years ago. Any old sort of burial box would do then; it had to do; but it will not do for people who are earning and making more money than ever before, and who are able to afford seemly and proper mortuary accessories. So must the tables be more neat and presentable than in the times when a board or a box had to suffice; and in the matter of furniture a demand had sprung up for a style and quality of articles that put to shame the cheap stuff that found a stinted market in the days of the Wilson tariff. All this means more demands upon American labor, more employment, more wages, more money in circulation, more comfort, more happiness. Truly the change is great.

ACHIEVEMENT AND FAILURE.

Results of Republican and Democratic Policies Contrasted.

We have had three years of McKinley and Republican domination. Look at the practical results. During the free silver panic pending the election of 1896 every man owning a hundred dollars in currency, who could get into the treasury, got there demanding its substitution in gold, and the Republican leaders even predicted that McKinley, if elected, would be compelled to start out with a bond issue. But instead, confidence being restored even before his inauguration, the gold flowed back into the treasury in a steady stream, just as it came back from its hiding places in Europe to which it had been driven by the phantom of four-bit silver. Before the spring of '98 had waned the money supply of the country, resting upon a sound foundation, in circulation, in the banks and in the treasuries, had reached the high water mark of experience, and before the autumn had waxed every preceding record had been broken. This success was repeated in the unprecedented increase of our domestic and foreign trade, and for the first time in many years the balance of trade was registered at a high figure in favor of this country. Before January, 1899, more than a million of laborers driven into the streets by the Democracy had been restored to work at top-rate wages. At the beginning of the last named year every furnace was ablaze, every mill was pregnant, and every piece of machinery was instinct with life. Yet the record of 1898, surpassing all others in business achievements so far as to stand out as a conspicuous landmark in history, is dimmed and eclipsed by the achievements of the year just closed.

Wherein experiment has proved Democratic policies a miserable failure it has proved Republican policies an unparalleled success. Then where lies the path of patriotism and honor?—Webb City (Mo.) Inter-State Commoner.

THE MODERN DAVY CROCKETT.

WAITING FOR DEFEAT.

How the Democrats Hope to Get Rid of Mr. Bryan.

The Springfield (Mass.) Republican, which is not Republican, but is bitterly hostile to the Republican administration, says:

"The Bryan situation is strictly unique. The less his prospects of election the tighter grows his grip on the nomination. For the first time in our political history, a great party sits worshipfully at the feet of a man and does little or nothing to oppose a leadership which few believe can result in victory."

The foregoing is a fair statement of the situation by a paper which would delight to support any candidate who could make a half hopeful fight upon an anti-expansion platform. But its zeal for Aguinaldo and its relentless hostility to the Republican party do not make the Springfield mugwump oblivious to the facts which are obvious to all except the blind followers of Mr. Bryan. There is but one explanation for the general acquiescence of the Democratic leaders in Mr. Bryan's candidacy. With the issue before the country they have no hopes of success next November. Whatever the platform may be or whomsoever the candidate may be, President McKinley, who has generally satisfied the country and whose administration has been attended by a marvelous prosperity, will be re-elected. This fact seems to be conceded by leading Democrats in most the states. The anti-Bryan men who are prominent Democrats realize this fact, and, realizing it, they see a sure way to get clear of Mr. Bryan, his silver and other heresies. They may make a little show of opposition, but they will acquiesce in Mr. Bryan's nomination. They do not "sit worshipfully at Mr. Bryan's feet," as the Massachusetts paper affirms, but they are waiting patiently to see Mr. Bryan rejected as the party dictator by another defeat. When he is again defeated they believe the Democracy will accept men of brains as leaders.—Indianapolis (Ind.) Journal.

A Fine Fiscal Record.

The January record of receipts and expenditures by the treasury department was an excellent one. Omitting consideration of anticipatory payments liquidating the public debt by bond purchases in advance of the maturity of the bonds, the net excess of receipts over expenditures for the month was more than $6,000,000. The record of customs receipts was also an excellent one, showing more than $20,000,000 of receipts from this source. The receipts from internal revenue were about $22,000,000. It is a matter of surprise to public officials that the expenditures on account of the war department continue at such low figures, being less than half what they were during the Spanish war, notwithstanding the maintenance of large armies engaged in active campaigns in the Philippines. A year ago the monthly expenditures exceeded the receipts by about $10,000,000. As evidence, however, that existing tariff laws are not only proving efficient as protective measures, but also in bringing increased volumes of revenue to the treasury, the receipts from customs last month were more than $3,000,000 in excess of those in January last year.

They Favor It.

Mr. Bryan has denied that he favors a Protective Tariff on wool, but a large number of men who voted for Mr. Bryan in Montana and other wool growing states favor the law, which has nearly doubled the price of wool.—Indianapolis (Ind.) Journal.

The Table Rock Argus.

P. M. Taylor, Publisher.

The recent National Convention of the Woman Suffrage Association was of more than ordinary interest. The retiring of Susan B. Anthony as President of the Association, was, in itself an event of importance. The unusually large attendance of officers and delegates, especially from the South, and the appearance of the "Remonstrants" during the hearing before the Conventional Committee, together with the social recognition given the delegates, the increased membership, and interest in the work from all parts of the world, will make it a meeting to be long remembered by those who were fortunate enough to be present.

A most gratifying feature was the deference paid to Miss Anthony by everyone. As she said at the close of the meeting in Lafayette Square Opera House, "from being one of the most persecuted, reviled persons on the face of the earth, people had seemingly grown to love her." This meeting was arranged by the National American Woman Suffrage association. The immense building was packed with people and she received greetings from organizations and women all over the world. Prominent people among whom may be mentioned Clara Barton, Grace Greenwood, Mary Seymour Howell, Ex-Governor John W. Hoyt sat on the platform.

One beautiful part of the program, was eighty children, both boys and girls, passing in single file across the stage each bearing a rose. As they passed Miss Anthony they dropped the rose in her lap.

On the evening of the 15th the Board of Trustees of the Corcoran Gallery of Art opened their collection of art treasurer to a private view, complimentary to the National American Woman Suffrage association. In regard to this reception the Washington Post says, the reception last night at the Corcoran Gallery of Art in honor of Miss Anthony, as a part of her birthday celebration was perhaps the largest and most brilliant affair ever held in the gallery. The reception hours were from 7 until 11 o'clock and during that time over two thousand of Washington's representative citizens, and delegates who had been attending the Suffrage convention, exchanged greetings with Miss Anthony. In a gown of ruby velvet, with old point lace, she received seated in a queen's chair, which was placed to the right of the main entrance, in the main corridor. In the receiving line, with Miss Anthony stood Mrs. Julius C. Burrows, wife of Senator Burrows of Michigan. Mrs. Francis E. Warren, wife of Senator Warren of Wyoming. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, the newly elected President of the Association, Rev. Anna Howard Shaw of Philadelphia, Mrs. S. E. Gross of Chicago and Samuel H. Kauffman, President of the Board of Trustees of the Art Gallery. Your correspondent will mention meeting Rev. T. DeWitt Talmage, Hon. John C Bell, Harriot Stanton Blatch, among other noted personages.

The reception at the White House was an event of importance to the delegates. Miss Anthony stood with the President to receive, and Mrs. Harriet Taylor Upton of Ohio, presented the delegates to the President. Mrs. McKinley was unable to be present, but at the close of the reception the President escorted Miss Anthony to call on her. She sent a beautiful bouquet of Ferns and Lilies to the Convention, with regrets that she was unable to meet the ladies.

Another pleasant social event was a reception given by the District Federation of Woman's Clubs. Mrs. M. B. Lowe, National President was assisted by Mrs M. B. Kendrick, of Philadelphia, and Mrs. E. Bookwalter of Ohio.

A reception was given the delegates by Mrs. Henderson, wife of ex-Senator Henderson of Missouri. Their home is said to be one of the most elegant in the city, and their collection of pictures and works of art, a most valuable one. Dainty refreshments were served. Miss Anthony stood with the Senator and Mrs. Henderson to receive, it seemed perfectly marvelous that a woman eighty years old could attend these social functions and yet be at her place in the Convention on time and preside as no other could, with her happy hits, keeping everything moving without friction. The financial standing of the association is in good conditions Miss Anthony announced that she intended to present the new officers free from debt. The business committee stated that it would require $10,000 for expenses the coming year. Miss Mary E. Haun of California was introduced to the audience as the champion beggar of the world. In less than thirty minutes the amount was pledged. Miss Anthony will devote her time to raising a permanent fund for the association, having set her mark at $50,000. Several thousand [illegible]

A very pleasant social event this week was the party Tuesday evening at the home of Miss Edith Wood, gotten up and participated in by a large number of her young friends to bid her a pleasant visit, as she expects to spend the summer with an aunt at Washington, Kas., for which place she leaves today.

J. H. Lehman will hold a public sale at his farm five miles northeast of Table Rock on Wednesday, March 7th, when he will sell fifteen head of well-bred Shorthorn cattle, twelve head of hogs, seven head of good young horses, some extra fine sorghum seed and a lot of other things, including a cane mill and pan. Twelve months time will be given on sums over $5.

Dr. Fletcher Wharton, pastor of St. Paul's church, Lincoln, will deliver the last of the Epworth League lecture course, at the opera house on Wednesday eve., March 7, his subject being "That Preacher's Boy." Table Rock people have heard Dr. Wharton, and all that is necessary for us to say is that he is at his best in this lecture, and they know they will be delightfully entertained. Don't fail to hear him.

A. C. Boyd is circulating a subscription paper asking the citizens to contribute to a fund to buy a hand fire engine for the city. This morning the paper had fifty names upon it, and the amount upon it was over $250. The sum required is $350, so that if every property owner will contribute a little it will work a hardship upon no one and the sum will soon be raised and our town provided with adequate protection from fire. We urge all to respond promptly to the call. You may not just favor the plan of raising the money—perhaps every other man in town would have a different one—but it is the one adopted by the fire boys, and you are in sympathy with the object for which the money is intended, and so put your name down for all you feel it a duty to give, and do it cheerfully.

A number of friends were invited to the home of Miss Nellie Cotton on Saturday evening, to hear a musical program rendered by her music class. She has a large and growing class and the program on this occasion demonstrated that they were apt pupils of an efficient teacher.

For twenty-one years Mr. and Mrs. Frank Parrish have sailed the matrimonial sea—the anniversary occurring last Saturday. At supper time friends put in an appearance with well-filled baskets and made merry over the event, a pleasing feature being the music furnished by Charley Brock, violin, John Morton, banjo, and Minnie Parrish, organ. The guests presented them with a double dinner set as a token of esteem and friendship.

Forty years ago today Chauncey H Norris and Fannie C. Giddings were united in marriage in this town. Forty years! What an age it seems to young life, and yet how like yesterday they are to those who have lived them and paused at some milepost for retrospection. To Mr. and Mrs. Norris these forty years—which have been passed mostly in Table Rock, where as young man and maiden they plighted their vows each to the other—have brought many changes; now their hair is sprinkled silvery white, telling them they are nearing life's twilight; children and grandchildren are about them, and all their surroundings indicate that they are growing old. Forty years! and the little hamlet on the Nebraska frontier in which they were married, has been transformed into the thriving, bustling city of the Table Rock of today. Forty years! and the retrospection shows success and disappointment; joys and sorrows; smiles and tears—political preferment, successful business enterprises, beautiful home and happy children; little mounds in the cemetery where loved ones have been laid. Forty years! No wonder that Mr. and Mrs Norris entertained a few friends at dinner today in honor of the event. No wonder that the handshake they gave each guest was a little closer than that ever extended before, and no wonder that something like solemnity pervaded the festivities of the occasion. Every citizen of our city extends congratulations to Mr. and Mrs. Norris and wish God's choicest blessings upon them during the remainder of life's journey.

The series of meetings now going on in the Presbyterian church, are growing in interest each evening. Rev. The meetings will be continued each evening next week.

Dr. C. I. Jackson drove up to Armour Thursday to disinfect a house which had been occupied by smallpox patients.—DuBois Correspondent to Pawnee Republican.

There is a pathetic consistency about the DuBois people. They permit one of their practicing physicians to go to an infected house in another town without protest, but when one their own physicians lies stricken with the disease they permit him to die without medical attendance and threaten to run Dr. Jackson out of town if he dares visit his brother physician. Verily such beautiful consistency would make angels weep in anguish and devils dance for joy.

A Nebraska woman, who was a member of a prominent cooking club persuaded her husband to purchase a dog as a house guard. The third day after the dog had been taken home by the woman's husband, it was seen hiking out across the country on a keen lope and had the look of a dog that was not figuring on returning. An old acquaintance, meeting the traveler, hailed him and asked why he was leaving that comfortable home to take his chances in a cruel world. "Isn't the lady of the house agreeable?" asked the friend. "Agreeable enough," replied the dog who was emigrating, as he headed for a bone by the roadside, "but she insists on feeding me on her scientifically constructed biscuit and my stomach simply won't stand the strain."—Ex.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C. February 24, 1900. (Special Correspondence) Governor Poynter has been here this week. It is said that he hurried away from Lincoln because the populist committee was going to meet there. He knew they would have a fuss among themselves, and he did not care to take the part of either faction, so he left town before the trouble began. He was very pleasantly entertained here by the Nebraska colony.

Some of the southern congressmen have been claiming that the national banking system was all in favor of the north, and that the south was being held down in various ways. They said the country ought to return to the old state bank system in order that prosperity might visit the south. This has led to an investigation of conditions, and it is found that in the thirteen southern states since the election of McKinley the individual bank deposits have increased over $110,000,000, and that in manufactures and commerce the improvement has been one hundred per cent in three years. The growl comes only from two or three dyspeptic congressmen. The southern writers are all singing a different tune.

The democratic national committee has been in session here this week. W. H. Thompson, the nonpareil giant, is the member from Nebraska who has been here to deliberate. The German voters of the country were anxious to have the convention go to Milwaukee, but the committee turned them down, and decided in favor of Kansas City.

Chas. E. Magoon of Nebraska, who is solicitor for the war department has just written a long and careful opinion on the legal status of the territory and inhabitants of the islands recently acquired. He holds that it requires additional congressional action to make citizens of the inhabitants, and that the Malays may be excluded the same as Chinese now are. It seems that the treaty with Spain did not give the full citizenship to the new political status of the native inhabitants of the territories hereby ceded to the United States shall be determined by Congress. Without congressional action they are like other inhabitants who become citizens either by birth within the United States and allegiance thereto, or by compliance with the naturalization laws. On this question Magoon cites many learned authorities.

The argument is being made on the floor of the house, however, that the United States having acquired the territory by the treaty should admit the Porto Ricans and their products to full fellowship at one fell swoop without action by Congress, while the Philippines, which were acquired in the same way and at the same time the "bolo members," as they are now called, think that they ought to be turned over to Aguinaldo.

The researches of the war department solicitor developed the fact that: 1. When Jefferson expanded the country and acquired Louisana, the inhabitants were not at one made citizens. 2. That the "divine right of citizenship has never been extended to inhabitants of territories of the District of Columbia. 3. The emancipation of the Negroes did not make them complete citizens. Hence the new inhabitants are not yet full citizens. F. A. HARRISON.

The nineteenth century will leave behind a great legacy of mysteries which it could not solve, and which probably will remain mysteries to the end of time. The most notable of these are to be recalled in detail in the April Ladies' Home Journal in an article on "The Mysteries of the Century." Each one set the whole world agog with excitement and speculation in its day, but has faded almost completely from the mind of the public.

Settlement of Kentucky Controversy Near.

ATTORNEYS ABLE TO AGREE ON TERMS

Consolidation of the Multiplicity of Suits and Final Action to Go Before a Louisville Judge—Other Important News.

The contests over the Kentucky state officers are very much simplified by an agreement entered into between the attorneys for the republicans and the democrats, representing both sides and straightening out the legal tangle over the multiplicity of injunction suits for the title to the governorship.

The agreement is that there shall be a speedy trial in the courts on an agreed case, involving all of the issues, the first hearing to be before Judge Emmetfield, at Louisville. The agreement in part follows:

"There are now pending in the Jefferson circuit court two suits, entitled respectively Taylor vs. Beckham, et al., and Marshal vs. Beckham, et al., and another suit, in the name of Beckham vs. Taylor and Marshal, is to be filed in said court. Process has been served in the first named two suits and the defendants agree at once to enter their appearance in the last named suit. All of said suits are to be placed upon the ordinary docket and tried by the court on the law and facts.

"One answer and the subsequent pleadings in the two first named suits may be filed and applied to both cases and they are to be consolidated; the same evidence shall be heard in all the cases, the three cases being tried and heard together. The pleadings shall be made up by Tuesday, February 27, 1900, or sooner if possible.

"The evidence shall be by deposition or record unless otherwise agreed upon, and shall be taken as soon as possible, say within ten days from the time the pleadings are closed."

There is general elation in political circles tonight over the argument between the attorneys, as it is conceded the matter will now be passed to a speedy finish. Both sides are pleased over the terms agreed on.

DECLARE GOEBEL ELECTED

Kentucky Democrats of the Legislature Ratify Former Action.

The democratic members of the two houses of the Kentucky legislaturre met in joint session and by a vote of seventy-four to two ratified the former proceedings by which William Goebel was declared elected governor and J. C. W. Beckham, lieutenant governor, and through which Beckham, since the death of Governor Goebel, claims title to the office of governor. The republican members of the legislature remained away from the joint session, having decided in caucus not to attend. The senate had adopted the resolutions Tuesday and the house Wednesday and the adoption of them by the joint assembly from the democratic standpoint puts the finishing touches to its action on the contests.

The attorneys for Taylor and Beckham will hold a joint conference for the purpose of discussing propositions to settle which of the two injunction suits, relating to the contest over the governorship, shall have precedence, or the consolidation of both cases in order to avoid a clash between courts over the question of jurisdiction.

PRONOUNCES THE LAW VOID

Anti-Deparment Store Legislation in Missouri Ineffectual

The Missouri supreme court in an opinion by Judge Robinson, declared the department store law, passed by the last legislature, unconstitutional and void.

The reasons given are that it is clearly class legislation; that the act is incomplete and is not a law and does not constitute a rule of conduct and that the act imposes an occupation tax as a license to do business. The law applied only to St. Joseph, Kansas City and St. Louis, and to stores in those cities employing more than a certain number of clerks. This feature is objected to in the opinion as class legislation.

Young Man Drops Dead.

Robert Martinson, a young man of Omaha, dropped dead Wednesay at the depot at Hooper. He had been unwell some time and in hopes of betterment had been visiting a friend working on John Dixon's farm, six miles northeast of Hooper, but his condition did not improve. He was about to return to Omaha. Alighting from the buggy at the station he fell dead on the platform.

SWINE BREEDERS' MEETING

Association Addressed by the Secretary of Agriculture.

At the opening of the annual winter meeting of the state swine breeders' association, Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson was introduced and made a practical speech to the state breeders who were attending the meeting at Lincoln, and gave them many valuable pointers. He spoke of the importance of the swine industry and of the fact that we have in the corn growing regions developed one type of hog; namely, the lard hog; that the bacon hog was a different creature and that it could not be grown upon corn alone. The bacon hog must be fed upon nitrogenous food. He urged the swine breeders to keep in mind both of these kinds of hogs, and to remember that they could evolve the one or the other form by careful selection. The lard hog can be prepared for market in a few months, while the bacon hog requires two years or more for its perfection. He then went on to speak of the relation between the swine industry and other farm industries. "I would not grow hogs alone," he said; "nor cattle alone, nor would I engage in ordinary farm tillage alone. The dairy and the swine herd are related to one another and the best results are obtained where there is a mixed industry."

In speaking of the work done in the way of a study of the diseases of swine he described the method adopted in Washington in the production of serum for the treatment of hog cholera, and then paid a very high compliment to the state of Nebraska by stating that Nebraska alone of all the states in the union was doing a large work along this line of the protection of the farmers. He complimented the Nebraska experiment station and intimated that perhaps the farmers did not fully appreciate as they should the good work which was done in the station. He closed his interesting address by calling attention to the fact that the sugar beet industry of the state was only partially developed; that when the sugar maker had taken out from the beets all he wanted, there was left in the pulp as much valuable food matter for domestic animals as if the sugar maker had not touched the beet at all. He urged the farmers of the state to turn their attention to this great opportunity to get still more out of the beets than they are now getting. The address was listened to with marked attention by those present and a hearty round of applause greeted him at its close.

REPORT LADYSMITH SAFE

Boers Reported to Have Loosened Their Gaip on Besieged Town.

A London dispatch says the war office has received the following from Gen. Buller:

"CHIEVELEY CAMP, February 21—The Fifth division crossed the Tugela today by pontoon and drove back the enemy's rear guard, our naval twelve-pounder silencing all of the enemy's guns."

The Berlin Tageblatt publishes a special from Brussels, which says the Transvaal legation there announces that all the Boers are evacuating Natal, their positions in that colony being no longer tenable. General Joubert, it is added, has ordered the concentration of all the available forces to oppose Lord Roberts.

The siege of Ladysmith it is further stated, will be raised, and it is expected General Buller will enter the town at the end of the week.

Victims of a Snowslide.

News has been received at Aspen, Colo., that Harry Wico, Ed Robinson and Tom McDerMott, miners, working at the Enterprise group in the Taylor river country, were buried in a snowslide two or three days ago, and the bodies have just been recovered. The scene of the accident is twenty-five or thirty miles from Aspen and there is no telegraphic communication with the place.

Strike of Coal Miners.

A general strike is on at all the mines between Sandy Lake, Pa., and Jackson Center, the men going out on refusal of an advance of 5 cents a ton for run of the mine. The former price was forty cents. All the mines have been running full time and are several weeks behind in filling orders.

HE CANNOT ESCAPE

Fifty Guns Are Bearing Upon Cronje at Short Range.

HIS SURRENDER IS EXPECTED SOON

Gallant But Ghastly Defense Already Too Long—Graphic Description of Terrible Fight Sent to London by a Correspondent.

Mr. Balfour announced in the house of commons at 4:15 Saturday morning, February 24 that no further news regarding General Cronje had been received by the government. He had sent to the war office during the hour and he asserted that nothing had come to hand there.

General Cronje, therefore, is still unbeaten. No other construction is placed upon the three days' silence of Lord Roberts. Yet no one sees how it is humanly possible, judging from the descriptions of his situation Wednesday morning, for him to resist so long. Great Britain does not withhold admiration for the valor of a losing fight against such odds.

"Englishmen feel something like pride in Cronje, even as a foe," says the Daily News. "In a position covering only a square mile, hemmed in on all sides, circled with a chain of fire from rifle, Maxim and Howitzer, played on by deadly lyddite, bursting in its own sickly light, his hastily built trenches enfiladed by a stream of lead sweeping down the river from the north bank, General Cronje still elects to fight. It is a magnificent courage."

General Cronje's wife is described by prisoners as urging him to surrender in order to save the lives of his men, but he would not. The British cavalry patrols sent by Lord Methuen north of Kimberley discovered the Boers concentrating, whether for offense or defense is simply conjecture.

Durban Gets Wild Rumors.

A dispatch from Durban says: The rumor gains credence that Ladysmith has been relieved. It is also reported that General Cronje has surrendered 8,000 men and that General Kitchener has been slightly wounded in the left arm. Crowds throng the streets singing and cheering because of supposed victories. Seventeen hundred Boers have been killed or wounded, the latter, it is reported, including General Cronje.

WILD DAY IN COTTON TRADE

Sensational Advance at Liverpool Sets Market Agog.

A New York dispatch, dated February 23, says: The wildest excitement prevailed on the cotton exchange today following an erratic, sensational advance in prices at Liverpool, the latter market closing today at a net rise of 3@3 10-64d on the future list and 5-32d in the spot quotation as compared with the closing of Wednesday.

The Liverpool advance, according to private cables, was to a considerable extent on the report then in circulation to the effect that Cronje had surrendered. But apart from the South African situation the English cotton trade manifested alarm in consequence of the arbitrary attitude of holders of cotton in this country, with their own stocks down to 40,000 bales against 1,801,000 a year ago, and 1,179,000 bales two years ago.

Yet they are taking only one-third of the exports now in progress from the American seaboard, the other two-thirds going to the continent. There was a large amount of selling, but everything offered was promptly absorbed, and the market closed practically at the highest point of the day, an advance at 9 to 27 points. The best advance had been 20 to 29 points.

New Pitcher for Iced Drinks.

The new pitcher for serving iced drinks is an English invention, and beautifully presented in both green and ruby glass. To put ice directly in the beverage weakens its strength and flavor. This is obviated by the introduction into the new pitcher of a glass inner cylinder (resembling a lamp chimney as much as anything), with a silver top and screw cork. In this the cracked ice lasts a long time, the drink poured from the pitcher proper, and renewed again and again as required.

Alcoholic Stimulants.

In the Union Signal of Feb. 22, Bertine H. Lesser gives a very interesting account of a case that led to the investigation which resulted in the abolishing of all alcoholic stimulants from the Red Cross Hospitals. She was in the training school for nurses and a firm believer in the necessity and value of these stimulants when in the last six months of her training, having charge of the children's ward, one of her wards a boy of twelve had pneumonia. Among the medicines prescribed for him was a half ounce of whiskey three times a day. Evidently the boy had never tasted either whiskey or brandy and he strongly objected to the odor and taste so they had great difficulty in getting it down him for several days; but finally he became as she thought a good boy and took it as readily as the other medicines. He was ill four weeks and about the middle of the second week the order was changed and whiskey given twice a day, morning and evening. When noon came he reminded her that his dose had been forgotten and seemed quite disappointed when told he could have it but twice a day. Next day at noon he pretended to be very weak, but as no stimulant had been ordered he did not get it. This continued for four weeks, the dose of whiskey being gradually decreased until he was discharged as cured.

A few months later she met the boy's mother and inquired about him. The dairyman called at a drug store for a doctor to come and see his child, then very sick with croup. Not finding the doctor in, he left word for him to come at once on his return. He soon brought a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which he hoped would give some relief until the doctor should arrive. In a few hours he returned, saying the doctor need not come as the child was much better. The druggist, Mr. Otto Scholz, says the family has since recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to their neighbors and friends until he has a constant demand for it from that part of the country. For sale by S. G. Wright, Drug'st.

The writer witnessed a game of basket ball at the opera house Monday evening, between the Midgets and the Giants—the teams being composed of Pawnee City ladies. The game akin to football, but in lieu of kicking the ball it is tossed by hand. Both teams, as a whole, did good playing, and several of the individual players of both teams made exceptionally good scores. Not being acquainted with the players, we were unable to keep the score in the manner we should like to have done, in order to have published the same.—Pawnee Chief.

"I had bronchitis ever winter for years and no medicine gave me permanent relief till I began to take One Minute Cough Cure. I know it is the best cough medicine made," says J. Koontz Corry, Pa. It quickly cures coughs, colds, croup, asthma, grippe and throat and lung troubles. It is the children's favorite remedy. Cures quickly.

Married, at the residence of the bride's mother in this city on Tuesday, February 20th, at 8:30 p. m., by Rev. A. C. Crosthwaite, assisted by Rev. G. W. Swan, Rev. G. W. Hawley, of Lincoln, and Miss E. Luellen Leach. The ceremony was performed in the presence of about forty relatives and near friends, after which the guests partook of a bountiful repast. The bridal couple took the one o'clock train for Kansas City to spend a few days. They will return here and will then go to Lincoln, their future home. Many useful and ornamental presents were given as a slight token of the esteem in which the couple are held by their many friends. The usual shower of rice, beans and old shoes followed the happy couple as they left on their bridal tour.—Auburn Post.

A Fiendish Attack.

An attack was lately made on C. F. Collier of Cherokee, Iowa, that nearly proved fatal. It came turrugh his kidneys. His back got so lame he could not stoop without great pain, nor sit in a chair except propped by cushions. No remedy helped him until he tried Electric Bitters, which effected such a wonderful change that he writes he feels like a new man. This marvelous medicine cures backache and kidney trouble, purifies the blood and builds up your health. Only 50c at S. G. Wright's Drug Store.

Chief of Police Schlosser received a letter Tuesday from the marshal at Plattsmouth giving the description of a man who had stolen a watch, an overcoat and $10 at a boarding house in that place. Schlosser arrested a man Wednesday morning answering the description, and who had part of the stolen goods in his possession. The fellow, who gave the name of George Eddy, was taken to Plattsmouth.—Falls City News.

We have saved many doctor's bills since we began using Chamberlain's Cough Remedy in our home. We keep a bottle open all the time and whenever any of my family or myself begin to catch cold we begin to use the Cough Remedy, and as a result we never have to send away for a doctor and incur a large doctor bill, for Chamberlain's Cough Remedy never fails to cure. It is certainly a medicine of great merit, and worth.—D. S. Markle, General Merchant and Farmer, Mattie, Bedford county, Pa. For sale by S. G. Wright, Druggist.

$15,000 IN PREMIUMS.

For the nearest correct estimate of the Census for 1900 of your own state.

RULES:

The Weekly Inter Ocean will give away $15,000 in premiums for the nearest estimate of the population of each state as announced in the 1900 census. Think of it! $15,000 in premiums! Each subscriber will guess on his own state, thus estimating the population with which he is most familiar. The first premium will be awarded to the one making the closest estimate of the state in which he lives. (That is, closer than the guess of any other subscriber on his premiums.) For example, if the nearest estimate is made by a Nebraska person, which is 30,000 from the correct 1900 census population of Nebraska, he will get 1st prize; but if a man in Iowa were within 20,000 of the correct figure for Iowa, the Iowa man would get 1st prize, as the Nebraska man 2nd prize.

In case of a tie, the estimate received first will be awarded the premium.

All territories, D. C., and Nevada are barred, and their inhabitants may engage in the contest.

Each estimate must be accompanied by $1.25, subscription price of The Omaha Weekly Bee, the greatest western weekly, and The Illustrated Bee, a splendid western weekly news magazine, all for one year.

PREMIUMS:

1st—10 room house and lot in Omaha, value	$3,500
2d—Cash	$1,000
3rd—One Chickering Piano	$800
4th Cash	$500
5th—One Kimball Piano	$450
6th—Cash	$200
7th—Cash	$200
8th—Cash	$100

You know as much about the population of your state as your neighbor. Why not earn a big premium.

Perhaps this will help you.

DO YOU WANT A CALENDAR?

The biggest—and best—calendar ever issued by an American railroad is now being distributed by the Burlington Route. It has twelve sheets, one for each month of the year. On each sheet is a striking illustration of some feature of the Burlington's service or of the territory reached by its lines—the government fast mail running at full speed; a tourist car on its way to California; engine 1051, the largest passenger engine in the world; a library car; a compartment sleeper; the Burlington station at Omaha; a dining car; a buffet or freight train; Estes Park, Colo., the plunge bath at Hot Springs, S. D., Yellowstone Falls, etc. The drawings from which the pictures were made are by Louis Braunhold, of Chicago, and cost several hundred dollars.

The size of the calendar is 2x28. The dates are in big type which can be read at a distance of 50 feet. For business offices the Burlington calendar is simply invaluable. Purchased in large quantities, the calendars cost the Burlington Route 27 cents apiece. With postage, packing, etc., they represent an investment of about 35 cents. Our price is 25 cents—10 cents less than cost. Write for one; stamps will do. If it is not satisfactory, send it back and your money will be promptly refunded. J. Thomas Rowen died in the county jail at this place last Friday night from the effects of excessive drinking. He was by trade a painter and had been a teetotaler about seven years past until about two months ago, when he again began drinking, since which time he has drank very heavily. He owns a little home in the north part of the city, but had become so abusive that his wife had left him and gone elsewhere to live. She was at his bedside however, in his last hours. A few days before his death he had been taken before the insanity board and adjudged insane and was in jail awaiting admission to the hospital at Lincoln.—Auburn Post.

Wealthy Farmer Kills Wife and Suicides.

MURDERED WOMAN PROMINENT W. C. T. U.

Wilson Wakelin of Brock Goes Wrong and After Killing His Wife, Goes to Cemetery and Suicides on First Wife's Grave.

A telegram from Brock, Neb., says: Wilson Wakelin cut his wife's throat shortly after 11 o'clock Monday night and proceeding to the cemetery first cuts his own throat and then blew out his brains on the grave of his first wife.

Wakelin is a farmer living three miles north of Brock. His wife was widely known all over the state, having for some years been president of the Nebraska Woman's Christian Temperance Union, and a well known worker in that organization. At the time of her death she was general superintendent of the division of work known as "Mothers' metings."

About 11:30 Monday night S. P. Robertson, a farmer living near the Wakelin place, was aroused by a knocking at his door. Opening his window he found Wakelin outside. The latter told him that his wife, who had been ill for some time, was worse, and asked him if he would go over and tell his son-in-law, who lives close at hand, to go to town and get a doctor.

Wakelin seemed to be in much distress of mind that Robertson got up and went over to the Wakelin house. He found a light on the sitting room table, but no one in sight. On the table, in plain view, was a note which read as follows:

"11:05 p. m.—Am going to kill Mary."

Appended was the following line:

"11:15—Have cut her throat. She is entirely dead. You will find me at the cemetery."

Mr. Robertson went for help at once. On the bed in her usual apartment lay Mrs. Wakelin with her throat cut, the windpipe having been severed by a razor's stroke.

There was very little blood on the bed or about her person. About all the blood visible was in the slopjar, over which, it is presumed, he held his wife's throat, after he had cut it. He seemed to have taken special pains to wipe from her person all blood-stains.

A searching party started for the cemetery at once. There, on the grave of his first wife, they found the body of Wakelin—dead. He had taken the razor with which he had cut his wife's throat, made an incision in the jugular vein on either side of his throat. In order to make sure that death would ensue he had taken a revolver, placed it against his right temple and pulled the trigger.

No other note or writing to indicate why he had done the deed was to be found. Wakelin and his wife had been married about six or eight years. He had never shown any symptoms or signs of insanity, and everything indicates he committed the deed coolly and deliberately. The razor and revolver were found by his side in the cemetery.

Coroner's inquests were held on the two bodies and a verdict rendered in accordadce with the above report.

TO SAVE BLOEMFONTEIN.

Boers Hasten to Defend Free State Capital.

A dispatch from Lorenzo Marquez dated Friday last, says:

"It is reported here that 5,000 burghers have left Ladysmith for the Free State. The Boers are concentrating their forces thirty miles outside of Bloemfontein and the Free State government is moving to Winburg.

"Reinforcements from all parts are passing through Bloemfontein hourly. President Steyn has telegraphed President Kruger that Lord Roberts is within a few hours of Bloemfontein, and he urges that every male, irrespective of nationality, should be commandeered.

Cronje's Position Strong.

A dispatch from the neighborhood of the investment of General Cronje says that a baloon has discovered that the Boers are well covered by a system of burrowing in the river bank, which resembles a rabbit-warren and affords shellproof positions.

This, perhaps more than any other circumstance, explains why what has been regarded as Cronje's death struggle has been prolonged.

As General Cronje is reported to have plenty of food the plan of starving him out can scarcely avail, so Lord Roberts must either wait until his ammunition runs out, or those of General Cronje's forces who are counseling surrender prevail. In the meanwhile the British are gradually drawing the cordon closer.

SNAKE RIVER VALLEY

RICHEST FARMING COUNTRY IN THE WORLD.

A Complete System of Irrigation Relieves the Anxiety About Rain That Prevails in Other Parts of the United States—East and West Compared.

We are permitted to publish an extract from a private letter written by a gentleman who has recently been devoting his time to the personal investigation of practical farming by irrigation in the west. His vivid portrayal of the advantages of that system will no doubt interest our readers. He says:

"There is a vast, an immeasurable difference between farming in the east and farming in the west. If the farmers of the east could only be made to understand the advantages enjoyed by their western brethren, I verily believe there would soon be no land for settlement in the great irrigation states. The irrigation farmer has absolute certainty of crop, and certainty of its perfect maturity. He never plants that he does not reap, and when I say reap I don't mean the reaping of scattered stands of half matured grain such as the eastern farmer cuts at the close of a dry season, but the reaping of fields that frequently average 50 bushels of wheat to the acre—every grain of which has reached the perfection of development. There is no anxious scanning of the skies for the 'cloud no larger than a man's hand' and fervent prayers that it may envelop the heavens and send down water to the thirsty fields. The irrigation farmer never thinks about rain. He watches his growing crops, and the day and the hour moisture is needed, he is out with his hoe flooding his fields with water from canals that skirt them.

"Everything grows in the west that grows anywhere else in the United States north of Tennessee. Potatoes frequently yield 500 bushels to the acre, and barley is grown far better than any raised in the east. The fruits are delicious. I never saw any to compare with those grown in Idaho, where apples, peaches, plums, cherries, pears, apricots abound, and where there are thousands of acres of Italian and German prunes which I am told have made fortunes for their owners.

"To my mind, Idaho is the best watered and most inviting arid state in the Union. I made a careful investigation of the great Snake River valley in that state, along and tributary to the Oregon Short Line Railroad, and saw there evidences of prosperity such as I have never seen elsewhere in the United States. This wonderful valley is said to contain over 3,000,000 acres of arable land. It is threaded with great irrigation canals in every direction, and there are vast tracts awaiting only the touch of the farmer to make them productive. The sun doesn't shine on finer or more fertile land. When I saw the happy homes, the well filled granaries, the sleek, fat stock, and the smile on the face of nature reflected in a smile of contentment on the faces of the farmers, my heart went out in pity to the thousands in the east who are struggling along from year to year, toiling against adverse climatic conditions, and never knowing how soon a drouth will wipe out the profits of prosperous years.

"Lands can be had in this Snake River valley almost for the asking, but they are going, day by day. The Oregon Short Line is making extraordinary efforts to bring the advantages of Idaho to the notice of eastern farmers, and is flooding the country with conservatively written descriptions of the state. Write to the General Passenger Agent of this Railroad at Salt Lake for printed matter about Idaho, and read it carefully. It will be a revelation to you and I sincerely believe will end in your removal to the west."

Republican Senatorial Convention.

The republican senatorial convention of the First District, is hereby called to meet at the opera house in Table Rock on the 24th day of May, 1900, at 1 o'clock p. m., for the purpose of selecting a candidate for State Senator for said First District and for the transaction of any other business which may properly come before said convention. The basis of representation at said convention is apportioned between the two counties as follows:

W. H. Wilson, Committee for Pawnee.
E. A. Tucker, " " Richardson.

Dave Hill will head the New York delegation to the Kansas City convention.

The Senatorial convention is called for the 24th day of May, and will be held at Table Rock. The candidate will come from Richardson county this year.

Our democratic friend Edgar Howard, is not to have smooth sailing in the fusion convention for Auditor, for certain fusion leaders have decided that the auditorship belongs to them, and no democrat need apply.

The republican county central committee held a meeting at Pawnee City last Saturday and issued a call for a county convention for the 31st day of March, when candidates for members of the legislature and county attorney will be chosen, and delegates to the different conventions selected.

Judge Tucker, of Humboldt, has been announced as a candidate for delegate from the First district to the republican national convention. The Judge is a willing worker for the republicans, and his voice has always been raised in behalf of its candidates at every election and he deserves this recognition.

A call has been issued for the republican congressional convention of the first district, to be held at Lincoln on April 12, at 8 o'clock p. m. It is generally conceded all over the district that Congressman Burket will be renominated by acclamation, as he deserves to be. The apportionment of delegates is as follows:

WASHINGTON LETTER.

WASHINGTON, D. C. March 3, 1900. (Special Correspondence) The past week has witnessed the ending of the debate on the Porto Rico revenue bill in the House. It was made a party measure, and the Democrats hope to make use of the question in the coming campaign. For this reason they were able to hold nearly all their members in line in opposition to the bill.

In the course of the long debate the democrats, as usual tried to throw dust in the eyes of the people, and in this they partially succeeded, as there seems to be much misunderstanding about the real provisions. The minority party made the argument that it was intended to "rob the poor people of Porto Rico." A few of the republican members were led off by this delusion.

The real purpose of the new bill is to raise revenue to build up the schools and public works, and maintain the local government of the island for the next two years. To do this all goods shipped from Porto Rico to the States, and from the States to Porto Rico are to pay a customs tax equal to 15 per cent of the tariff on similar goods entering into or coming from a foreign market. All the money collected in this way, both in the States and in the Island, goes to the benefit of Porto Rico. Those who framed the bill thought it would be better to levy this tariff on the business of the alien and non-resident merchants and importers who now have a monopoly of the trade on the island, rather than to directly tax the inhabitants. So that is what the "robbery" cry amounts to. It is quite evident that some of those who opposed the bill were inspired by a desire to aid the capitalists who control the export business of the island, or else they were on extremely friendly terms with the merchants of the south who want the privilege of shipping products to the island free of duty. No matter where the inspiration came from, the Democratic leaders have decreed that "free trade with the colonies" will be one of the issues of the campaign. They are looking for something like this to detract attention from the money question.

The fusion members from Nebraska have been quite active of late formulating speeches to be printed in the Congressional Record. No one listens to the delivery of this class of speeches which are intended only as campaign documents to be circulated at the expense of the government. A simple application for "leave to print" without delivery is often a relief to the other members. The member who has a large number of these dummy speeches printed, however, is often able to delude his constituency into the idea that he is a tireless worker who is cutting quite a figure in congress. He is more often looked upon as a joke or a nuisance by the members who do the real work, and who tell the small fry how to vote.

Mr. Sutherland in a speech the other day referred to the fusion forces as "we democrats." This agrees pretty well with the predictions made in the "Harrington letter."

The national treasury makes another good showing for February. The statement for the month shows that the receipts of the government have exceeded the expenditures by $7,804,265.08, representing a reduction of the national debt by practically that amount. For the eight months of the present fiscal year the surplus receipts have amounted to $37,674,785.22.

This is in direct contrast to the condition of things when the democrats had full control. In a time of profound peace they could not make the receipts pay the running expenses, but found it necessary to increase the public debt many million dollars every month. F. A. Harrison.

Lincoln, Neb., March 7.—The supreme court today for the second time, but in different cases, affirmed the constitutionality of the law, giving the state board of transportation power to regulate telegraph and telephone rates. The Nebraska Telephone company sought an injunction, preventing the board from acting on a complaint, and the district court of this county refused to grant it. On appeal the supreme court sustained the lower court.

It May Cost the County for Palmer's Injuries.

Philip Palmer, of Peru, has brought suit in the district court against Nemaha county for $16,000 damages. The plaintiff was driving a four horse team over one of the public roads of the county with a load of sand on the 27th day of January last when the team became frightened and unmanageable at a passing train. They turned around, upset the load of sand on the plaintiff, breaking a rib and both bones in the right leg between the knee and ankle were broken and crushed so that amputation was subsequently necessary in order to save his life. For this injury he asks judgement in the sum of $15,000, $1,000 for medical attendance and $100 damage to team and wagon, in all $16,000. Quackenbush and Lambert appear as attorneys for Palmer.—Auburn Post.

Fifty Dead Bodies.

Fire Creek, W. Va., March 6.—The most disastrous mine explosion ever known in the New River district occurred at the Red Ash mines shortly after the miners went to work early this morning. Although the most heroic work of the rescuing party had been going on incessantly all day it is impossible tonight to estimate the full extent of the loss of life and property. More than fifty dead bodies have already been taken out and the number of the dead may reach seventy-five or more. It is thought tonight that at least forty-five miners are yet entombed in the wrecked mine.

Fire Creek, W. Va., March 6.—After twelve hours' work at the wrecked mine for relief, it is stated tonight that there are at least forty-five miners still entombed.

Bloomfield, Ind., March 6.—Mary Ann Anderson, aged seventy years, was found guilty today of complicity in the murder of her idiotic daughter, Clara Waggoner, and was given a life sentence yesterday. William Waggoner the husband of the girl, is serving a life sentence for the crime.

A bull fight is the latest novelty to draw a crowd to the state fair. A Gentry county, Mo., man has a remarkable dog, in illustration of whose attainments the veracious editor of the Albany Ledger tells the following: "This intelligent canine makes it a practice to howl dolefully about the time his owner's subscription to the Ledger runs out, and the only way he can get any rest at night is to pay up at once. We have made arrangements with him to increase the breed and have this stock of dogs take the place of all others in this county. Perhaps your own dog has been making nights dismal of late, and if so try our friend's plan and see if you cannot quiet him."

He was shot in old Kentucky, where "fueds" grow on trees, and the bullets from the rifles buzz through the air like bees; where the instruments they play on when they give a dance or hop are the musical revolvers, and they "call off" with a pop.—Ex

For Damp Cupboards.

Damp cupboards and rooms can be made dry and airy by placing a basin of fresh lime where the moisture penetrates to the detriment of food, linen, etc. The lime quickly absorbs the unwholesome humidity, and the remedy need only be repeated every now and then. In living rooms which are not to be depended upon as being dry as would be desirable it is advisable to place saucers containing salt under sofas, etc. This will absorb the moisture in a wonderful manner. If thoroughly dried, the salt can be used again for the same purpose.

Very strange to the Coreans is their new electric railway. They think that the overhead wires draw the trains along. Coreans wearing funeral hats have to pay treble fare. The hats are about two feet high and are very much in the way. The railway company does not look kindly on funeral hats.

THE BILL PASSED

Porto Rican Bill Gets Through With Eleven Majority.

FRIENDS OF MEASURE WERE AFRAID

Four Democrats Favor the Measure and Six Republicans Against It—Passage Made Possible Only After Many Amendments.

The battle royal over the Porto Rican tariff bill ended in the house of representatives Wednesday. The bill, amended as agreed upon at the conference Monday night, so as to reduce the tariff from 25 to 15 per cent of the American tariff, and limiting its life to two years, was passed by a voted of 172 year to 161 nays. Six republicans, Messrs. Crumpacher of Indiana, Fletcher of Minnesota, Heatwole of Minnesota, Littlefield of Maine, Lorimer of Illinois and McCall of of Massachusetts voted with the opposition against the bill, and four democrats, Messrs. Davey and Myer of Louisiana, Devries of California and Sibley of Pennsylvania, voted with the republicans for the bill.

In addition, Mr. Warner (republican, Illinois) was paired against the bill with Mr. Boutelle (republican, Maine) for it. Two other republicans, Mr. Lane of Iowa and Mr. Faris of Indiana, were absent and unpaired. They were understood to be against the bill. Four democrats who were opposed to the bill, Messrs. Fleming of Georgia, Small of North Carolina, Smith of Kentucky and Stallings of Alabama, were absent and unpaired. Other pairs were Gibson, Tennessee; Reeves, Illinois; Boutelle, Maine; Harmer, Pennsylvania; Bailey, Kansas; Sheldon, Michigan; Wadsworth, New York, all republicans, for the bill, with Tate, Georgia, Sparkman, Florida; Fox, Mississippi, Bellamy, North Carolina; Cox, Tennessee, and Epes, Virginia, democrats, all against the bill.

Herculean efforts had been made to get out the full vote and this led to some remarkable incidents. Six men were brought from beds of sickness, two of them from hospitals. Mr. Brownlow of Tennessee was brought in a carriage, accompanied by his wife and physician. It was felt that the strain would be severe on him, but when Tawney, the republican whip, urged that the bill might be lost by this one vote Mr. Brownlow said:

"I would rather lose my life than see this bill defeated."

Mr. Tawney and three assistants were out in carriages until midnight accounting for every vote, and Mr. Underwood, the democratic whip, was similarly exerting every means to get out his vote. Three democrats were brought from six beds.

DECLINE TO GRANT DEMAND

Manufacturers' Association Will Not Yield to Machinists.

The machinery manufacturers' association voted unanimously at a meeting in Chicago to refuse the demands of the mechanics' union for an increase in wages and recognition of the union. This action means the calling of a general strike by the machinists' union. From 4,000 to 10,000 machinists will be involved. It is expected that every factory in the city will close down.

The effect of the action of the association will not be felt in Chicago alone. Six thousand machinists throughout the country have made practically the same demands that the Chicago local union has, and it is expected that the action taken by the Chicago manufacturers will be followed by the others in the United States and Canada.

WRECK IN A STORM

Trains Collide and Several People are Killed.

During the progress of a blizzard in western Missouri the St. Louis day express on the Missouri Pacific was delayed by a freight train which was struck in a snow drift two miles from Independence, Mo. The St. Louis local passenger train, running behind the express, crashed into the latter. The parlor car of the express was split in two, and caught afire. Two persons, Mrs. J. G. Schmidlapp and Mrs. Emma Schmidlapp, died of burns received. A number of other persons were injured.

Close to an Agreement.

The united mine workers and coal operators of the state in convention at Springfield, Ill., are nearing an agreement. The sub-scale committee fixed on the scales for Colfax, Moweaqua, Lincoln and Niantic at 53 cents. The advance is 10½ cents at Niantic. The Peoria and Fulton county scales are still in dispute, there being now but a difference of ¼ cent to fight over. The machine differential will be settled soon.

Student Pleads Guilty.

Albert Colson, the student accused of pilfering from the college students at York college, York, Neb., and stealing a bicycle lamp, pleaded guilty before Judge Wildman, and was given a fine of five dollars and costs. He had paid the fine and part of the costs, and then left for his home at Stromsberg.

WAIT FOR NEXT MOVE

The English Public Eager for Fresh Details of Surrender.

Further details of the dramatic surrender of General Cronje at Paardeberg are eagerly awaited. The Boer commander's forces are variously estimated at 4,000 to 8,000. Speculation is rife as to how soon Lord Roberts will be able to press on to Bloemfontein, but before he enters the capital of the Free State he will undoubtedly have to overcome a powerful force and take strong entrenchments.

The news of General Cronje's surrender was received with unbounded satisfaction at Windsor. The queen immediately telegraphed her congratulations to Lord Roberts and the troops.

There was a much more outward display of rejoicing in the provinces than in London. The Glasgow and Liverpool stock exchanges were greatly excited. The members sang "God save the Queen" repeatedly and cheered for "Little Bobs." Flags were liberally displayed on the municipal and public buildings in all the large towns.

Windsor was very jubilant at the news, which the queen disseminated immediately after it reached her, and the inhabitants seized the occasion of her majesty driving through the town on her way to take a train for a visit to the wounded South African soldiers at the Netley hospital to give vent to their delight.

COIL MURDER CASE CALLED

Trial of Slayer of Tom Ryan Begins at Chadron, Neb.

The trial of the George Coil murder case has commenced at Chadron, Neb., and is progressing without a hitch. The story the widow of the dead Tom Ryan told in evidence was tinged with pathos. She told of his slayer coming to her house and telling her that he had killed her husband, and told her where his body was, but refused to help her summon aid. She took her three small children and went to the scene, and left two, aged three and five years, to guard off range cattle, while she took her baby in her arms and went two miles for help. Young Coil is boyish looking, though past his majority. Before the commencement of the trial he asked the privilege of visiting the drug store to buy some perfumery for his hair and breath.

FUNERAL OF MRS. WAKELIN

In accordance with Mrs. Wakelin's oftrepeated wish, services were held from the Woman's Christian Temperance Union temple, which edifice she was instrumental in building.

Kills Daughter and Lover.

Joseph Glean, a farmer living six miles north of Bluefield, W. Va., killed his daughter and Albert Marsh, her lover, and then killed himself. Glean had forbidden Marsh to call on his daughter, and finding him in the parlor, ordered him to leave. Upon Marsh's refusal, Glean fired at him with a shotgun. Ellen Glean sprang in front of her lover and received the charge in her throat, dying instantly. The second shot killed Marsh. Glean then cut his own throat.

Wreck in Pennsylvania.

On the Pennsylvania railroad, near Nescopeck, about twenty miles above Sunbury, Pa., a passenger train crashed into a freight train going in an opposite direction. Engineer Joseph Keefer and Fireman Charles Seeley of the passenger were killed. Both were residents of Sunbury. A number of passengers are reported injured, but further details are not obtainable. A wrecking train left for the scene with with seven physicians on board.

Reichman Received.

A NOTED JUDGE SAVED BY PERUNA.

Had Catarrh Nine Years—All Doctors Failed.

HON. GEORGE KERSTEN, OF CHICAGO.

Hon. Geo. Kersten, a well-known Justice of the Peace, of Chicago, says:

"I was afflicted with Catarrh for nine years. My catarrh was located chiefly in my head. I tried many remedies without avail. I applied to several doctors, but they were not able to cure me. I learned of the remedy, Peruna, through the daily newspapers. After taking the remedy for 18 weeks I was entirely cured. I consider my cure permanent, as it has been two and a half years since I was cured."

Any man who wishes perfect health must be entirely free from catarrh. Catarrh is well-nigh universal; almost omnipresent. Peruna is the only absolute safeguard known. A cold is the beginning of catarrh. To prevent colds, to cure colds, is to cheat catarrh out of its victims. Peruna not only cures catarrh, but prevents it.

All families should provide themselves with a copy of Dr. Hartman's free book entitled "Winter Catarrh." This book consists of seven lectures on catarrh and la grippe delivered at The Hartman Sanitarium. It contains the latest information on the treatment of catarrhal diseases. Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio.

Magnetism in Bricks.

From time to time experts have noticed certain unexplainable peculiarities in magnetic instruments in various buildings. Electricians now declare, as the result of experiments and investigations, that the vagaries are due to the presence of magnetism in bricks. They are made of earthy matter containing a greater or less proportion of magnetic iron ore.

Poverty would soon be an unknown quantity if men could dispose of their experience at cost.

If you have not tried Magnetic Starch try it now. You will then use no other.

Absolute Cleanliness and Regulation as Necessary as for Any Other Kind of Machinery. How to Keep it in Working Order.

One little screw in the big machine gets a trifle loose and the whole apparatus clogs, balks and refuses to work properly.

A skillful engineer can tell by the "feel" of his engine when there's a screw loose.

Occasional constipation—call it costiveness or biliousness—needs prompt attention. It clogs the whole delicate mechanism of man, and must be removed skillfully without force or shock. Cascarets are the only antiseptic cathartic, and not only make the liver lively, remove obstructions in the bowels, strengthen the intestines, but kill all germs of disease in the body. Therefore prevent as well as cure.

Cherry Culture in Nebraska.

The cherry is undoubtedly the best and most successful fruit grown in Nebraska. One of its chief advantages is the fact that it transplants easily and thrives equally well in almost every portion of the state. It delights in dry soil and will yield an abundant crop where other varieties of fruit fail. Another advantage is its season of ripening. The early fruiting varieties are ripe and harvested before the intensely hot weather begins, and the spring rains are always sufficient to ripen the crop. This gives the cherry a decided advantage over fruit that must remain upon the tree until October first.

The cherry needs but very little pruning—in fact none at all if the tree is trained right when first started. At most, all the pruning necessary is to remove limbs that cross each other and rub.

Another reason why the cherry is peculiarly adapted to Nebraska is the fact that it ripens its wood and fruit buds early in the season, and is thus much less liable to winter injury than varieties of fruit that grow late in the fall and go into winter quarters with wood and fruit buds only partially matured. The cherry has produced more full crops of fruit than any other variety of trees grown in Nebraska, which would indicate that it is the fruit especially adapted to this state.

In preparing for planting the soil should be loosened to a depth of 12 to 16 inches. The trees should be set two or three inches deeper than they stood in the nursery row, and the soil should be packed firmly about the roots. There is no danger of setting the tree too firm. When near the surface dry, loose soil should be used. This will prevent the tramped soil from baking around the tree, and will also act as a mulch or blanket to prevent evaporation of the moisture.

After planting the trees should have good, clean cultivation. By planting potatoes, sweet corn or other garden crops in the orchard sufficient returns may be obtained to pay for cultivating the ground until the trees require all the space. The trees should be planted 16 feet apart each way for three rows; then leave a space of 20 feet and plant three more rows 16 feet apart, and so on. The object of this wide row is to give an opening through which to drive and handle the fruit when the orchard comes into full bearing.

The varieties named in the following table have all been tested in Nebraska. They are named in the order of ripening, the time indicated being the average time from the first to the last picking of the crop:

Early Richmond	June	13 to	June	25
Dyehouse	"	14	"	20
Early Morello	"	14	"	21
Montmorency	"	21	July	10
Terry	"	23	"	10
Osthelm	July	10	"	20
English Morello	"	14	Aug.	1
Wragg	"	15	"	1

While the varieties named in the above list are all well adapted for family use and are desirable for that purpose, for commercial orcharding would plant Early Richmond, Montmorency and English Morello.

For the afternoon program Mrs. Mary Andrew read a beautiful poem entitled the "Sweetest Song" and Mrs. Ballou read a short but excellent paper on "The relation of diet to purity," showing how by irregular and improper feeding habits of intemperance and gluttony may be fostered in the growing child. Mrs Linn read an article from "The New Crusade on the Value of Toys" that contained some very helpful hints for mothers. The Union returned a vote of thanks to Mrs. Ballou for her paper and adjourned to meet with Mrs. Fair in two weeks March 18th.

The Temple.

Friends of the temple are inquiring if we still hope to save the temple. Yes, our state president Mrs. S. M. Walker is one of the trustees and she says the trustees have never entertained a thought of abandoning the enterprise. The rentals of the building at present are paying all running expenses and interest on the mortgage. The amount to be raised to finish the retirement of the $300,000. Temple Trust Bonds is 90,000, which will also secure a controling interest in the management of the building. Our state treasurer Mrs. Cobb urges every W. C. T. U. woman to secure a dollar in some way and give to the Temple by June 1st.

E. E. LINN.

It is very hard to stand idly by and see our dear ones suffer while awaiting the arrival of the doctor. An Albany(N.Y.) dairyman called at a drug store there for a doctor to come and see his child, then very sick with croup. Not finding the doctor in, he left word for him to come at once on his return. He also bought a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, which he hoped would give some relief until the doctor should arrive. In a few hours he returned, saying the doctor need not come, as the child was much better. The druggist, Mr. Otto Scholz, says the family has since recommended Chamberlain's Cough Remedy to their neighbors and friends until he has a constant demand for it from that part of the country. THE WAY TO GO TO CALIFORNIA is in a tourist sleeper, personally conducted, via the Burlington Route. You don't change cars. You make fast time. You see the finest scenery on the globe.

It has wide vestibules, Pintsch gas high back seats, a uniformed Pullman porter, clean bedding, spacious toilet rooms, tables and a heating range. Being strongly and heavily built, it rides smoothly, is warm in winter and cool in summer.

In charge of each excursion party is an experienced excursion conductor who accompanies it right cough to Los Angeles.

Cars leave Omaha, St. Joseph, Lincoln and Hastings every Thursday, arriving San Francisco following Sunday, Los Angeles Monday. Only three days from the Missouri River to the Pacific Coast, including a stop-over of 1½ hours at Denver and 2½ hours at Salt Lake City—two of the most interesting cities on the continent.
